Dogcatchers Learn To Be Diplomatic

VICTORIA (CP) — Two attacking bird at dogcatchers' for the summer by roundtrippers in suburban Saanich want to get the idea in the public's mind they are "ogres who take away little dogs from their owners."

Harold Zimmer, 21, formerly studying at Royal Roads military college and now an education student at University of Victoria, said the public has a distorted view of pounkeepers.

His partner, Scott Bouvier, 19, headed for the RCMP when he finishes college studies, agreed.

"We do a lot more than just pick up stray dogs," he said.

"What we do includes capture vicious dogs, getting down off the truck to pick up stray cats, picking up animals who have been killed and people who wild steers.

Rummaging cattle isn't the Saanich area's most frequent complaint but it was called once this summer to deal with the problem.

"We had a call from a man who said he had an extra steer in his herd and that it was really wild," said Bouvier.

With help from the SPCA, the said herded the rogue steer into a corral and tried to grab it. The animal charged and beat the SPCA man flying but it was finally rounded up and returned to its owner.

Both like animals and enjoyed the out-of-the-ordinary summer job. Mr. Bonner, who plans to join the RCMP as a dog handler, said he learned a lot about how to deal with people on the animal patrol.

"What we have to do is play the diplomat—the job is really half public relations. People don't understand enough about running regulations.

"One man had chickens for four years where he wasn't supposed to—he was surprised when I told him he couldn't have them there, but now he has moved his chickens to another place and is going to get some pigeons, which he can have on his place."

Congress Recesses After Compromise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is in recess until Nov. 12 after breaking a stalemate with President Ford over cutting off United States military aid to Turkey.

A compromise on a twice-vetoed money bill suspends aid to Turkey Dec. 10, or sooner if Turkey increases its military occupation force in Cyprus or sends it any more U.S. "implements of war."

The compromise was worked out after the House of Representatives rallied Thursday for the second time in a week to override Ford's veto of a perennially routine funding resolution. The Turkey military aid ban was attached to the resolution.

The House vote on the veto was 181 to 85, two short of the two-thirds majority required to override a stalemate veto. The compromise was passed by the House 291 to 23 and in the Senate by voice vote.

Both houses of Congress then began a 22-day recess until Nov. 12 when they said they hope they will return to tackle unfinished business including appropriations for several major government departments.

Final action on the money resolution and the president's agreement to go along with the squeeze off thousands of government employees who had been facing payless paydays next week. The resolution provides funding authority to operate agencies for which regular appropriation bills have not been passed. These include foreign-aid programs and activities of the health-education-welfare, labor and agriculture departments and several smaller federal agencies, largely with cut-finds since Sept. 30.

The Turkey aid rider was equipment was used in the invasion and partial occupation of Cyprus beginning July 20. U.S. law limits the use of U.S.-supplied equipment to defensive purposes.

Under the rider, the president can suspend the cutoff until Dec. 10 if he determines this action will assist negotiations among Greece, Turkey and Cyprus for a peaceful settlement of the Cyprus dispute, but only if, during that time, Turkey shall observe the ceasefire and shall neither increase its forces on Cyprus nor transfer any United States-supplied implements of war to Cyprus."

Senator Thomas Eagleton (Dem., Mo.), who said he was the author of the "implements of war" language, said it means weapons, aircraft, and munitions of any other defence article used, by itself or in combination with other articles, to kill, wound or destroy.

Ford said he vetoed the second money bill with the Turkey aid rider because it would destroy U.S. ability to promote a negotiated settlement and do nothing to encourage the two sides to resolve the dispute peacefully, and would bring a further deterioration of the posture of the NATO alliance in the crucial eastern Mediterranean."

Parliamentary Roundup

Magazine Needs 'Pizazz'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians are ready to support a national news magazine of their own provided it displays "a certain amount of flair" in covering national events, State Secretary Hugh Faulkner said Thursday.

Such a magazine stands a good chance of prospering if it receives much of advertising revenues now going, with the help of special tax provisions, to the Canadian editions of Time magazine and Reader's Digest, Mr. Faulkner told the Commons broadcasting committee. He also said the government will not provide further special financing to revive Saturday Night, which suspended publication Oct. 7.

Mr. Faulkner made it clear to committee members that the government is leaning towards revocation of the special provisions which allow advertisers in Time and Reader's Digest to claim full tax exemptions for their advertising costs.

Immigration Stabilized

OTTAWA (CP) — Tightened regulations to stabilize immigration at about the present level will be introduced next week, an immigration department spokesman said Thursday.

The move will tie immigration more closely to demands for labor skills and will be announced as soon as possible after Immigration Minister Robert Andras's return from Europe this weekend.

The practice of admitting spouses, minor children and elderly parents of people already here will be retained as will the policy of non-discrimination as to place of origin.

Would Restrict Contempt

OTTAWA (CP) — A former judge and justice minister said Thursday contempt of court charges resulting from activities outside the courtroom should be abolished.

Claude Wagner (PC—Ste. Marie) said in an interview such abolition would prevent contempt proceedings moved against labor unions and even against newspapers that comment on decisions of judges.

PM Pushes for Trade

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday he will press for improved trade relations with the nine-country European Common Market during his scheduled visit to Brussels and Paris next week.

But he told the Commons he will not seek links that would discriminate against other Canadian trading partners.

He said the general objective of proposals outlined in to improve relations with the European Economic Community (EEC). The EEC obtained a proposed trading agreement and there were suggestions for improved consultations.

Parliament Pays Tab

OTTAWA (CP) — An all-party House of Commons committee approved without debate Thursday a spending program of more than $50 million to run Parliament this financial year.

The total of $51,184,000 for the year ending March 31, including amounts fixed by law, is up from about $47 million last year and $34 million the year before.

The funds, voted by the committee on procedure and organization, include money for everything from pay for the men who polish Parliament's brass banisters to the cost of guards who show tourists around the buildings.

Conservation Could Beat Energy Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — A two-year study says the energy crisis in the United States can be beaten by all-out conservation instead of all-out fuel production, avoiding the need to strip-mine the West or to drill for oil off Atlantic beaches.

The report, issued Thursday by the Ford Foundation's energy policy project, challenged the current government inclination toward energy development. It was attacked immediately by the oil industry.

The American Petroleum Institute said reliance on energy conservation would be a reckless gamble. The president of Mobil Oil Corp. called it "a formula for perpetual economic stagnation."

However, the report anticipated and rejected such charges.

It urged cutting the growth rate of U.S. energy consumption in half, to two per cent a year from four per cent.

This can be done by more efficient use of energy, the report said.

Even at the lower growth rate, U.S. energy supply in 1985 would have to increase 28 per cent above last year's level, the report said.

However, the report anticipated and rejected such charges.

It urged cutting the growth rate of U.S. energy consumption in half, to two per cent a year from four per cent.

This can be done by more efficient use of energy, the report said.

But it added that low growth will make nonnecessary additional developments which threaten serious environmental damage or increased oil imports which pose foreign-policy concerns."

The report said energy cuts need not lead to economic stagnation.

It claimed the U.S. can even adopt a policy of zero energy growth beyond 1985 without harming standards of living.

A major government study of energy policy is due for delivery in early November. But federal agencies already are deep in preparations to lease areas off the Atlantic, Pacific and Alaskan coasts for petroleum drilling, to strip-mine coal and oil shale in the West, and to speed development and construction of atomic power plants.

The report described these energy sources as "troublesome," saying they present serious environmental and safety problems.

It said the U.S. can meet its needs without them, partly by developing current energy sources and partly through conservation.

Swedish Example Not Necessarily Ideal for Us

OTTAWA (CP) — Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme has called for closer ties between Canada and Sweden, but he has said he is not necessarily a good model for Canada to follow.

Mr. Palme began a six-day official visit to Canada with a news conference, saying Canada and Sweden, blessed with a prudent, free yet responsible people, should strengthen their co-operation on a wide range of economic and international issues.

Specifically, he said, both countries should exchange more information on the operations of big multi-national corporations, extend their joint efforts in international peacekeeping, and develop more exchanges in the technical and scientific fields.

But the idea of a model, Canada must pursue the highly artificial stability followed by Sweden's socialist government, Mr. Palme said.

He was answering questions on statements by Ivan Head, Trudeau's special foreign affairs adviser, that Mr. Trudeau wants to learn more about Swedish foreign policy.

"I don't think that freedom as a model is very desirable, necessarily," Mr. Palme said.

"In the fields of foreign policy there is a close affinity between our view and the Canadian view, but it is really the Canadian government that will decide the policy of Canada," he said.

Mr. Palme, 47, is the first leader of a Swedish government to visit this country since Tage Erlander visited Canada with a foreign affairs delegation in 1959.

He arrived at the airport by Air Canada jet Thursday night before attending a private dinner at the Swedish embassy.

He held a 45-minute news conference shortly after arriving at Uplands Airport. He was greeted at the airport by External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen, a 30-man armed forces guard of honor and a 19-gun military salute.

Mr. Palme is scheduled to spend this afternoon talking with Mr. Trudeau.

He continues the tour Saturday in Winnipeg where he is to meet New Democratic Party Premier Ed Schreyer at a luncheon given by the Manitoba government and meet members of Winnipeg's Swedish-Canadian community.

I. G. A. Supplier Thinks Price Board Survey Stinks

OTTAWA (CP) — Food prices rose slightly in most Ottawa-area stores surveyed by the food price review board last week, but groceries in all but three of the 36 stores cost less than they did before the board began its surveys in the first five weeks ago.

Statistics released by the board Thursday show only Steinbergs supermarkets increased prices from the level they were before the board began its surveys, the latest survey Sept. 14.

But these stores continue to have lower prices than I.G.A., which has consistently had the highest prices among the surveyed stores.

Again last week, three I.G.A. stores had the most expensive groceries in the area. In only one part of the city were I.G.A. prices less than those of nearby competitors.

Norman Lash, vice-president of merchandising for M. Loeb Ltd., which supplies I.G.A. stores, has complained that the survey "stinks," saying independent grocery stores do not have the same price advantages of the larger chains.

Wednesday, Mr. Lash said Loeb will wait until a final report on the food price surveys is completed before considering whether to take legal action against the board.

Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet, on the other hand, has expressed pleasure with the survey, saying he hopes it will be extended in other cities as well.

New Cholesterol Test

TORONTO (CP) — Delegates attending the annual meeting of the Ontario Public Health Association here were testing a new method of measuring cholesterol levels with a drop of blood from a fingertip.

Dr. Frank Peter of the Ontario ministry of health, who developed the test, said the quick, painless process might improve on the present method of obtaining vials of blood from the arm.

The new test would provide results in about 30 minutes with an accuracy of plus or minus 10 per cent.

High levels of cholesterol lipids in the bloodstream are believed to restrict blood flow and be a factor in some heart attacks.

Murder Suspect Talked to Wife Half Hour Before Body Found

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court jury was told Thursday that Peter Demeter, charged with murder in the death of his wife, talked with her on the telephone about an hour before her battered body was found in the garage of their Mississauga, Ont., home.

Sgt. Bernard Burns of the Peel regional police testified Demeter, 41, told him he and five house guests were on a shopping trip to Toronto earlier in the evening to buy a locket for his 33-year-old wife, Christine.

The policeman said Demeter told him he had called his wife from a jewelry store about 8:30 p.m. On arrival back at their Mississauga home about 9:40 p.m., Demeter's wife's body was lying in the garage.

Sgt. Burns testified that Demeter told him he saw the body as he drove into the garage. Both he and a doctor friend, who was one of the house guests, shouted at others that it remain in the car while they ran up to the body.

The sergeant said Demeter told him his wife refused to go along on the shopping trip because she had a headache.

He quoted the accused as saying that his 8½-year-marriage was on rocky ground, and that he was drifting away from his wife although they had had no serious arguments.

Demeter is charged with conspiring with a person or persons unknown to murder his wife.

The trial began Sept. 23, but was in voir-dire hearings on the admissibility of evidence for most of the first three weeks.

When they arrived at the station, Demeter speculated on the cause of his wife's death, Sgt. Burns said.

The woman's body was found lying face-down in the garage of the Demeter home. An autopsy showed the back of her skull was crushed.

Sgt. Burns said Demeter asked "if I thought she had killed his wife.

"I said I didn't know," the sergeant testified.

He said Demeter then suggested: "She must have been crawling up on the rafters for something and fell."

Land Tax Yield Lagging

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Treasurer John White said Thursday the lack of revenue generated by the province's land speculation and land transfer taxes is proof they are working.

The land transfer tax puts a 20-per-cent surcharge on Ontario properties bought by foreign investors and has yielded only about $700,000 so far of the $20 million predicted by Mr. White in his April budget speech.

Mr. White said criticism that the tax is a failure because it has produced very little revenue is "one of the most misguided pieces of criticism, I have heard in years."

Speaking to a seminar on United States-Canadian relations, sponsored by Canadian public relations firms for American public relations officers, he said the speculation tax was designed to discourage speculation and that the amount "of domestic and foreign investors has gone elsewhere.

"And we say good riddance," he said.

"Both these tax measures provide what we consider to be reasonable control over one facet of foreign investment without penalizing the legitimate entrepreneur."

Mr. White said resource taxes to control foreign investment in Ontario are not meant to be punitive or discriminatory.

Ont. Housing Gets Boost

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government will put another $200 million into its $200 million worth of housing programs in the next two years to increase the supply of housing and rental units, Donald Irvine, provincial housing minister, announced Friday.

Mr. Irvine announced his plans to bring on the market more rental units in particular and said the problem so far is that developers are not using their opportunities to build because of the costs involved in mortgages.

He told a news conference the government will put $50 million into eight-per-cent mortgages for developers who set aside units for low-and middle income renters and that developers must agree to control rents on the other units in their projects.

About 125 million will go to mortgages at 8¾ per cent for developers who build condominium units on land leased from the government or private owners.

The province will also try to attract more developers to provide 25 per cent of their units for rent-geared-to-income residents, Mr. Irvine said. The government now provides second mortgages equal to 25 per cent of the appraised value of the unit and charges 10¼ per cent interest.

Mr. Irvine said the government will give larger mortgages of up to 35 per cent of the total value.

He said the government also hopes to work directly with the federal government to buy and develop land—with Ottawa paying 75 per cent of the costs and the province 25 per cent.

geared-to-income people, fients on other units would vary, but stay below market levels, Mr. Irvine said.

He said the Condominium Act would be changed to allow leased land to be used. Units built on Crown land will be sold under the Home Ownership Made Easy plan, which lowers down-payments on houses by not including the cost of land, which remains government owned for five years.

Mr. Irvine rejected the idea of rent controls, saying the answer to housing shortages is to increase supply. He said rent controls have "worsened the situation wherever they have been applied."

William McCance, research director for the Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada, said in an interview that direct involvement in housing by the government "can't make a dent in the market" because it lacks sufficient funds.

J. Richard Stiff, president of Bramalea Consolidated Developments Ltd., Toronto, said in an interview that the proposals are a fresh breath of air and added that the change in the Condominium Act might result in more people being able to own their own homes.

Teachers First For Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government's confrontation with 170,000 teachers and civil servants probably will be in the forefront of the Tuesday session of the 29th legislature which resumes Tuesday.

One of the 72 new bills or amendments to old ones proposed by the government is legislation affecting 110,000 Ontario teachers—legislation that would take away their right to strike.

There is also the threat of a strike Jan. 1, 1975, by 60,000 Ontario civil servants who are attempting to negotiate a new contract and a breakthrough on the 40-per-cent pay increase.

The government also has to deal with a record budget deficit of $846 million a year and the rising cost of living.

Besides the legislation involving teachers, John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial affairs, indicated there will be legislation recommending sweeping changes in the province's liquor licensing laws.

In addition, there will likely be reports from two royal commissions—an investigation into violence in the construction industry and the abortive raid staged by the Niagara regional police at the Landmark Motor Hotel in Fort Erie.

Both Opposition Leader Robert Nixon and Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party expect the attention involving teachers and civil servants to play a significant role during the session, which is expected to end in December.

Legislation has already been enacted making a civil-service strike illegal but the threat of both opposition parties sky a strike is still possible.

Mr. Lewis said his party will also move, very hard to get the government to give the Ontario Energy Board the authority to roll back increases in gasoline prices and home fuel oil.

"We will be pressing for an investigation into the supermarket and retail food industry in an effort to get some of those prices rolled back," he said.

Mr. Nixon said he hopes the Progressive Conservative government "is going to bring forward legislation which will emphasize free and collective bargaining for their employees."

Lawyers Propose Probe of Police

TORONTO (CP) — Two Toronto lawyers proposed Friday that an Ontario police complaint commission appointed by the provincial minister of justice be set up to handle citizens' complaints against Metropolitan Toronto police.

The lawyers, David Humphrey and Gerald Lepkin, presented the proposal on the last day of scheduled public hearings into the Metro police system of handling citizen complaints against them.

Mr. Maloney has been questioning persons who came forward with what they would like to see and virtually all wanted some organization, free of the present police control, to investigate citizen complaints.

"What I am thinking of is like a preliminary hearing where the public can be there but the press can't publish anything," Mr. Maloney said at the hearing.

The 48-page submission presented by Mr. Humphrey and Mr. Lepkin is critical of the present method of coping with complaints it is "unfair and that the public sees this.

It cites allegations that the complaints bureau discourages people from lodging grievances, often attempts to avoid acting on complaints.

The lawyers said the new province-wide body should have independent investigators and complaints should be heard by tribunals composed of a policeman and a lawyer who both Citizen selected from jury rolls.

Mr. Humphrey, founder of the Criminal Lawyers' Association, said that body endorses the recommendations.

A presentation by the Committee on Police Reform, a group sponsored by the Church of Scientology, asked that police records be made available for inspection in the way credit reporting agency files are opened, so persons can challenge false information.

Further presentations made to Mr. Maloney included one from William Dias, a Toronto lawyer resident, who said:

"I don't even care if they (the police) have a complaints department—I just want them to quit beating up my people."

Copter Crash Kills Five

TREVORTON, Pa. (AP) — Five persons were killed in the crash of a Canadian Armed Forces helicopter that apparently caught fire in flight and plummeted into a mountainous area of central Pennsylvania Pennsylvania authorities said.

State police said two bodies were found Friday night in the wake of the crash, one underneath the wreckage and two others on the ground nearby.

In Ottawa, the defence department identified the dead as Capt. R. W. Lovett, CFB Cold Lake, Alta., and Capt. D. E. Cavanagh, Sgt. D. L. Kortman, Master Cpl. J. L. Lacoste and Sgt. G. J. O. Ouliet, all of CFB Ottawa.

A spokesman described the helicopter as one of eight bought from Boeing Co. and the first to be ferried to Canada following delivery.

Burglars Expensive

WASHINGTON (AP) — John Dean has testified that the hardest part about keeping the Watergate cover-up going was raising all the money to pay off the Watergate burglars.

In three days of testimony at the Watergate cover-up trial, Dean has portrayed an almost-desperate nine-month struggle to raise funds for legal fees and attempts to prevent the original seven defendants "from going off the reservation."

The White House was being blackmailed," the former White House counsel testified Friday.

Prosecutors have said that about $500,000 went to the seven defendants.

Bills Zip Through Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons closed out the week with a burst of energy Friday, whipping three budget bills through second reading and off to committee for detailed study.

All left over from the last Parliament and re-introduced by the government hopes will be quick passage, the bills would:

—Establish a federal industrial development bank to broaden financial and other government services to companies, particularly small and expanding businesses;

—Triple the authorized working capital available to the Export Development Corp. (EDC), a government agency that promotes export sales by making loans to foreign buyers;

—Broaden benefits under the Canada Pension Plan by extending survivor benefits to the husbands and children of deceased women contributors and abolishing the earnings test for claimants 65 to 69.

The bills died on the order paper when Parliament was dissolved for July 8 election and were reintroduced virtually unchanged after the new session opened Sept. 30.

Top Level Talks

Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme walks with Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau outside the Parliament buildings in Ottawa Friday, on their way to Mr. Trudeau's office for talks. Mr. Trudeau told the House of Commons he will act soon to broaden Canada's foreign ownership laws and add he intended to discuss operations of big multinational corporations with Mr. Palme. (CP Photo)

Nuclear Limits Agreed

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and Sweden have agreed to press for stronger safeguards on the growing worldwide use of nuclear energy, an official in Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's office said Friday.

He said the agreement was reached during more than three hours of discussions between Mr. Trudeau and Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme who is on a six-day official visit to Canada.

The two leaders conferred Thursday evening and again Friday on subjects ranging from nuclear proliferation to international peacekeeping, trade and world economic problems.

Mr. Palme attended a dinner at the prime minister's official residence Friday night, winding up the first part of his Canadian visit.

He is in Winnipeg today and Victoria and Vancouver on Sunday and Monday.

The official said Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Palme agreed to seek stronger safeguards and better policing on export sales of nuclear reactors. They further agreed to seek the help of other countries in developing more effective ground rules for policing the safeguards.

The official said both leaders gave priority to the subject because they fear that increasing use of nuclear energy for peaceful purposes is aiding to the number of countries capable of producing nuclear explosions.

The official said the two leaders agreed that international peacekeeping forces sometimes hinder rather than help settle disputes between countries. Using Cyprus as an example, they said United Nations peacekeepers can hold two warring sides apart but contribute nothing towards a solution of the dispute.

But these doubts do not signal any let-up by either country in their extensive peacekeeping operations, the official said.

Mr. Palme and Mr. Trudeau agreed there should be a substantial increase in the relatively light trade between the two countries. The trade, worth $200 million a year, is about two-to-one in Sweden's favor.

The official said the two discussed the need for generating more confidence in the international economy and expressed fears about the increasing use of commodity cartels to control the supply and price of raw materials.

Hydro Line Draws Mixed Reaction

PICTON — The Ontario Hydro information centre in the Armory Mall here, outlining the proposed route for Prince Edward County's recommended 230,000-volt transmission line, is being well received and response is "picking up" as more people become aware, Jim Service.

Mr. Service says members of the "Save the Bay County Committee" an action group protesting the construction of the power line, have dropped in to discuss the route with Hydro officials.

"We are very pleased with the data the Bay Committee has and how fair they have been with us", commended Mr. Service.

Relationship between Ontario Hydro and the Committee have apparently been very cordial.

Barbara Mowat, representative of the Save the Bays Committee, says "We can't go along with the need for this new power line, but we must commend Ontario Hydro for their sisters effort in this proposal. They have come a long way in learning how to deal with the public and listen to the public and get problems resolved."

The 115-mile power line will run from the Lennox to Napanee transmission line, across Hayward Lane, Sandy, at Green Point in Prince Edward County to Rimbrook and is expected to cost in the vicinity of seven million dollars.

The Save the Bay Committee was formed two years ago when it was recommended that Hayward Lane Reach be crossed with an overhead span of cables, linking it to the new proposed submarine cable. The committee was originally concerned with protecting the beauty of the Long Reach.

Youth Charged in High-speed Chase

BANCROFT — A young Bancroft man has been charged with dangerous driving and with assaulting police, following a high-speed chase early Saturday morning in the Bancroft area.

Charged is Larry Vardy, 21, who was clocked by Bancroft Provincial Police at more than 140 miles per hour on highway six-six chase outside Bancroft.

Constable L. Hebbard said that shortly after midnight he had signalled Vardy to pull over but he failed to comply and took off at high speed toward Bancroft. After a 15-mile chase Vardy's 1964 model car went out of control, smashed a hydro pole and slammed into a tree.

Education Beat
Students in On Planning

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Education Week will never be the same, now that Hastings County has brought a student-committee into the planning.

Would you believe a "sleepin at the bed house" — actually a weekend leadership seminar for students, at the Ann St. education centre. The educational centre was suggested because the students could bed down there overnight in sleeping bags, without costly outlay for accommodation.

Students from Centre Hastings in Madoc, Centennial, Bayside, Trenton, Moira and BCI met at the Ann St. Centennial to formulate their own plans for Education Week, slated for April. Hastings Education is the best for the provincial opening of the week, at be held at Loyalist College with many provincial political dignitaries in attendance.

A year ago, Dudley Hillyer, then a vice-principal at Centennial, suggested that the most important ingredient was student to absent from all Education Week planning. This year he got them in, and they lost no time, at their initial meeting, in solidifying their priorities.

The student representatives offered about 25 suggestions, for relevant Education Week activities. None of them embraced futility or communications. Most involved learning exchanges between school, and between students and the people in the community and the schools.

All suggestions came before students were told the theme of Education Week 1975. Learning, a Co-operative Commitment.

They want exchanges between secondary schools in the county, between their student councils, between colleges and universities and secondary schools and between elementary schools and secondary schools.

They want talented members of the community — poet Audrey Davies was cited frequently as a possible — to be invited to the classes — operated agency in work further and said: "I think the theme of a strong creative and dynamic voluntary sector — government social service force in the community is so essential that if we don't have it, we would have to create it".

Mr. MacKinnon gives as the most cogent and compelling reasons for the existence of voluntary agencies, among its attunation, to social change, its personal touch and immediate response to need for social change and new policy.

As well as Mr. MacKinnon we all know that the huge monolithic elephantish impersonal government monstry takes year or never to become attuned to a need for change and then more time to institute that change.

Whenever the government takes over that sector there is a great widening gap between the personal need and the meeting of the need but also the big slowed — down monster costs more to feed. Do you pay more or less now for your medical coverage now that the government has taken it over? To my astonishment I pay more.

Hundreds of volunteers in this community work on the United Way including canvassers, campaign cabinet, board of director, budget committee, students, people working on special events. If you are only interested in the dollar and cent aspect of this problem try to figure out what the government payroll would be when the people were hired to take up the slack of these volunteer workers.

And there are other higher values. How do you evaluate the loss of community involvement which occurs when government takes over a private sector achievement like the annual United - Way campaign across the country?

Add how do you evaluate the loss of the personal touch? Have you ever seen an Ombudsman government filing cabinet reach out and put its hand on the shoulder of someone in pain or hurt, someone who needs a human touch?

Even if you aren't now, still involved in that government you shouldn't take over the United Way, your excuse is still full of holes. The fact is that the government BASES takes over the United Way. What are you going to do about supporting the work of the United Way agencies this year?

"I don't give because I don't like the Scouts (or the Guides, or the Y, or the Brigantine, etc.)" Well most likely this is because you don't understand what they do. Or perhaps the young people of this community. As matter of act, fund-workers report that, with out exception when they are confronted with this excuse and have time to really explain the work of these agencies, the excuse - maker reconsider. In any case, if you don't like one agency why deny all the others? No one throws out the baby with the bath. Why use one agency as the excuse for not supporting others?

Excuses. Excuses. We've heard them all. Trouble is, the excuse - maker, don't fool anyone. Least of all themselves.

Editor's Note: Joan Finnigan is the pen-name o Mrs. Joan MacKenzie, free-lance writer and last year's director of special events for Kingston United Way campaign.

Excuses Don't Lessen A Community's Need

By JEAN FINNIGAN

The excuses for not giving are almost as varied and complex as the reasons for giving. Some of the excuses are funny and some are sad and some of them don't make any sense at all.

"We give at the HEAD office?" some businesses with branches here often say. No way. If you live and work and TAKE a living out of this community, then this is where you GIVE. If you need help from a United Way agency are you going to run to the head office in Toronto and Montreal to get it?

Interesting. Even the government itself thinks the government shouldn't take it over. P.M. MacKinnon, deputy minister of public welfare of Nova Scotia, in an address to the Children's Aid Society of Wellington, last year said that he "firmly" believes in the Farm 'Junk' Frequently Valuable to Collectors

As eras that interests many people today is the era of the horse and carriage. What is just to one person may have a very important value to others. In addition to the interest created by some of our older artifacts and equipment, there are also valuable lessons that can be taught to some of our younger people. From time to time we receive calls from local high school students and in talking to the younger children in particular about agriculture, it is better to use pictures or actual items to illustrate your talk. Young children like many of us, can quickly lose interest and stop listening to someone and if they can actually see what you are talking about it makes it much clearer and much better understood.

Two items I am looking for and present are rather apparent as purchasing are corn shellers. I am interested in both the manual and power that could be mounted on a table or a bench as well as the larger model that sat on the floor. If any one has either of these models and they are in a condition that would be suitable to use in demonstrations and would be interested in selling them, I would appreciate it if you would let me know at the office. From time to time there are items that can be used for demonstration purposes and can create an interest and awareness of some of our past agricultures.

The second area of old agricultural implements is equipment that is of interest at the moment to the staff with the Ontario Agricultural Museum. This museum was mentioned in a previous letter. If anyone has any items that they might like to donate to the Agricultural Museum, please contact our office and we will obtain the information. They are particularly looking for small implements and equipment needed to operate a household. Items such as old books, catalogues, farm magazines, journals, diaries etc. The purpose of this Agricultural Museum is to acquaint the public with the true and exciting story of the evolution of our most important industry.

Zoning Bylaws Need Review

By AL SABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Trenton's draft zoning bylaw, which was released recently by council, may be neglected further, a local realtor said at the public meeting held last night.

Ken Rowe, a realtor, said he doubts the upcoming municipal election and a switch in provincial government policy concerning hazard land designations will be of much help.

The two documents are tied together as closely as a man and a necktie. The bylaw implements policies set down in the official plan, now two years old. If the plan is incorrect in places, then the bylaw will reflect those inaccuracies.

So then what is the problem? Why will the bylaw be delayed? Can the difficulties have made an error when the plan was approved?

Yes, the Ontario government has admitted it made a mistake. Hazard land designations imposed on Trenton weren't realistic. Some even were downright off base, not taking into account a number of changes the town had made.

When the bylaw recently came to council for consideration, it was found very, Councillor felt an official plan amendment to an incorrectly drafted hazard land site went out of Douglas Rd. should be frustrated, but Coun. Rowe seemed to be that passing the bylaw would complicate the arrival of an industry, only a dependent away from becoming a town resident.

The deal is done. The change is waging its way into provincial hands.

But a second hitch has developed Queen's Park is in the process of changing its mind about classifications of hazard land.

Removal of many such classifications will be made in the official plan, with its subsequent influence on the zoning bylaw.

Council might, and would be perfectly entitled, to wait and see what the government will do. Further changes would also undoubtedly improve council's image in the eyes of developers and builders. Inaction however, would have no affect.

Council, then, has an excuse to hold off on any further decision. It would be to their benefit as well as safety.

Now, with a decision close at hand, there would be considerable danger in putting one's head in a self-created noose.

Since the zoning bylaw became public, builders and developers have cried nay, as well as an angry "uncle". Parts of the bylaw proposal — in particular, hazard lands — have been viewed with a good deal of displeasure. More scorn and derision was heaped on the document then any four wishes for.its quick passage.

One can only guess whether councillors will want to deal with a subject that could bring sessions non-support their way.

For those seeking a second term, an incorrect position could prove fatal, assuming of course, that the developer - builders can muster enough opposition at the polls.

The question is: Is anyone willing to take the change?

Food Shortage Topic Of World Conference

By JOSEPH DUPUIS
CP Business Editor

It may not be too far-fetched to say that nobody goes hungry in Canada.

Yet, 10,000 people die of starvation in the world every day and another 400 million to 800 million go to bed hungry.

Each week, the world's total population increases at the rate of 1.4 million people. India, for example, has one million more people to feed, clothe and house each 45 days.

Demographers estimate that 2,000 years ago, there were only 250 million people in the world. By the end of this century—only 26 years away—the world population will have climbed to more than six billion.

These figures are among those that will confront a major world conference in Rome next month, sponsored by the United Nations, on how to feed the world's starving millions.

Canada as one of the world's most prosperous countries, will be counted on heavily to provide money, supplies and expertise to help solve the problem.

The importance attached to Canada's role was underlined recently when 180 of the world's agricultural leaders gathered in a met in Toronto to try to come up with some answers to feed shortages for the Rome conference.

They produced five documents which were not made public but which are the basis of action for the Rome delegates.

They were the elite of the agricultural world—Jo Grimond, Pan's Mitsubishi, multinational the Unilever, Canada's Massey-Ferguson—and they reached Orville Freeman, former United States secretary of agriculture who now president of International Basic Economics Corp. of New York.

"They met with a sense of urgency, coming up with recommendations that could be tackled quickly," said G. S. Bishop, their spokesman, who represented British sugar interests.

And they must act quickly because the problem is of such a magnitude that even if the developed countries like Canada provide enough food to feed the starving countries, they don't have the facilities to get the food to them.

Dr. John Hannah, a U.S. foreign aid specialist who once served under President Harry Truman, estimates world food production would have to double by the end of this century "just to maintain the present inadequate level of diets."

The agricultural experts agreed the world has the capacity to solve the problem, but that it will take more than just money.

"We will not be held up by money," remarked Mr. Bishop, "it will be found to feed production would come forward if sumption of grains is slightly leaders could ensure more than 60 pounds. that the technological Rich countries like Canada consume five times that amount of cereals, much of it indirectly as meat, eggs and dairy products.

"If the nightmare of some is famine," the UN report noted, "the nightmare of others is glut."

In the developing countries, the need is for management and skills—loans of comeEasic, engineers, technologists to help their local economies deriving their land and produce more and better crops.

To meet the need, agricultural production would have to be doubled in Africa, increased by 40 per cent in Asia and 25 per cent in Latin America.

There is a world shortage of pesticides. In many poor countries, storage facilities are so poor that precious food spoils.

One problem that won't confront the delegates is the question of what to do with surpluses. Not since the days of the Roman Empire has there been such a problem.

If need under the supervision of the FEMCA in co-operation with the municipality or group involved, the conservation area will be available to the public for recreation.

Throughout the nature trails from falling into disuse as did the Quinte Trail, group activities should be fostered. A family hiking club could enjoy a summer afternoon exploring the mountain, then return to the base of the slope for a barbecue or picnic. Tables, grills and picnic facilities might be provided by the FEMCA for public use.

Overnight camping rules for use of the conservation site could be printed, advising horse owners where not to ride. The ski slopes are not limits but to throughtime campers on a trail ride this information could carry to late.

Most organizations would appreciate permission to hold a special event on the site and would, therefore, observe the rules.

The Macaulay Mountain Conservation Area, equipped with its new recreation shelter, is a facility with potential that should be developed to its fullest. To do this there must be liaison between the FEMCA and the public. A public meeting with groups eager to use the site might promote increased activity there.

Mountain Trails Need More Use

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Although Project SWEEP (Students Working for Environmental Enhancement Program) may be losing its manpower trails at Macaulay Mountain Conservation Area, a few Prince Edward hikers seem to have discovered them.

The trails, crossed by rustic wooden bridges, were conditioned recently in a Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority project. They make an ideal way to enjoy autumn colors. Maps are provided for walkers at the recreation shelter at Macaulay Mountain and after hours and on weekends a billboard map recreation posted outside.

Close to town, these nature trails have been used recently by county nature owners who ride single file over the woodsy mountain. A 30-mile trail sponsored Thanksgiving week-end by the Prince Edward Horse and Light Club drew about 50 riders.

Perhaps hikers could derive similar enjoyment from the nature trails if organized hikes were formed to appease weekend walkers. Although Project SWEEP Individuals may explore the paths occasionally, a hiking club might foster better and more regular use of these trails.

Possibly more school children could be taken to the area as part of an outdoor education program. When the Macaulay Mountain Conservation Area was built it was suggested as an outdoor education centre. A group of Queen Elizabeth public school students from the week did visit the area with FEMCA supervisor Ian Schibli-Barlin.

Since many walk-a-thons for charities organizations are sponsored annually in Prince Edward the nature trails at Macaulay Mountain would be part of the route. The bridges, the shelter, the signs and the woods should spell welcome to hikers who are along the shoulder of the road.

To develop maximum usage of the nature trails and the conservation site perhaps the FEMCA and several local organizations could consider closer liaison. Riders using the trails on a day's outing might enjoy permission to picnic at the top of the slope or serve cocoa at the summit. Hikers on the other hand, might welcome the opportunity to ride.

If need under the supervision of the FEMCA in co-operation with the municipality or group involved, the conservation area will be available to the public for recreation.

The Spartan Life

The office of health minister in the federal government has attracted its share of eccentrics.

Perhaps only mildly eccentric, but enough to make the incumbent a little more interesting than most.

There was Judy LaMarsh for one. She demonstrated her belief in the office, and what it stood for, by giving up smoking. And if that is eccentricity, let's have more of it.

Now we have Marc Lalonde. His salary is around $30,000 and while there can be little need at this level of affluence for the sickdom or spartan life of say the pensioner, the minister says his family is trying a lot of powdered milk. He says it is cheaper by the pint. And this in the wake of Ottawa's decision to withdraw its consumer milk subsidy.

Or are we to believe that to maintain the ministerial standard of living is difficult at $30,000, as it is for the pensioner in his room or apartment on only a fraction of that?

Economic Squeeze

If there is one area of the work scene that should stand the pruning of costs and salaries, in the interests of curbing inflation, it is government.

Universities, which are feeling the cost squeeze, represent one discipline which finds itself unable to compete with government salaries.

"Our best secretaries are leaving to get $1,800 more across the street," according to a University of Ottawa official.

"The $500 federal cost-of-living bonus left us out in the cold," he told an Ottawa Journal interviewer. "Where are we supposed to get the money"

The Journal says technicians, such as computer operators at Carleton University, use the universities as a training ground and then go elsewhere for higher pay.

The fear is that rising university costs will force staff cuts and increasing workloads for those remaining.

The answer would be government meanwhile, whether at the elected representative level, or in the civil service, command high salaries and expense accounts. And this, while MPs contend it is in order enough considering the expenses they must meet.

A member of parliament these days may well have to pinch pennies, Marc Lalonde fashion, in these inflationary times, but hardly in any way that it hurts substantially. And civil servants, their jobs and salaries the most secure of all, have less to fear than most.

Consider, in conclusion some thoughts on inflated salaries from one who had experience in both government and private life as the $50,000 a year President of Simon Fraser University.

We refer to one-time Liberal member for Northumberland, and NDP federal candidate in 1972, Pauline Jewett. "Actually, I have very strong feelings against high salaries," she told a Weekend magazine interviewer in commenting on the still higher salaries of some of her university contemporaries. "I think that in the next few years enough Canadians will be concerned to see that something is done about these inflated incomes, whether of hockey players, business executives or anyone else. You could either have a much higher level of taxation for them, or you could go out to get a greater equality in salary figures."

Defending her own salary, Miss Jewett says that as a woman going into the position for the first time she should take on the job at roughly the same level as a man.

It is a reasonable argument, but do we have to wait for a number of years to cry halt to it? Interesting to note that U.S. union leader George Meany gets something like $75,000 annually, or more than half as much again as Prime Minister Trudeau's $45,000, before some of politicians, union men or university presidents begin raising their sights to that sort of level, the time to put on the clamps should be the present.

Company Of Young Canadians Budget Climbs to $4,000,000

BY RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa — Remember the Company of Young Canadians, that free-thinking band of social "innovators," set in the permissive era called it when first using a couple of million of your tax dollars to set it up in the business of doing its own thing?

And recall how the Company quickly investigated in such an outrageous fashion the activities of the governments of Alberta and Newfoundland it is doing its best and dest and depart their borders?

The Company was too much even for the brave new world of Prime Minister Trudeau, and so cut it, the government chopped the budget of the Young Canadians from $2 million to $1 million.

Now recall how, just a few days ago, in the Speech from the Throne, which is really the Prime Minister's annual assessment of the state of the nation — the government, undaunted it not altogether frightened by inflation, announced it is to triple its its own spending? To a budget which can't fly rock the economic boat no more with extravagant social programs before?

Well, how is this for restraint another better-than-$900,000 for the Company, boosting its budget that has been climbing up from that cautious $1 million to almost $4 million now, and with even more likely to come next year.

Some restraint, huh!

The Young Canadians are most talented.

Not only can they flatter their budget when times are low, profile while supposedly in official disfavor, but they can turn around — in reverse — the constantly accepted status and authority of management and staff.

Cleverly, the Company has managed to soften criticism by the Secretary of State department, of which it is one of a multitude of agencies, and with the Treasury Board a contract that is "unique."

The deal is the talk of the public service, and the privilege of the free-thinkers in the Company who subscribe, to the unofficial grapevine, of the functions of management belong to the workers.

The Company calls it "industrial democracy."

The Young Canadians' new contract with its boss, the State Secretary and the Treasury Board — which is the government — sets out that:

1. The field staff of 230 shall be given active when evaluation

Retirement 'Nightmare'

Older Citizens (45 and Up) Being Betrayed Says Osgoode Observer

By VINCENT EGAN
Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Retirement—a time of freedom and leisure, or a time of financial straits?

To many Canadians who must cope with the daily frustrations of the job—not to mention the irksome problems of getting to and from it—retirement sounds like a dream come true.

But Dr. Ronald Baum, the author of a newly published book on Canada's treatment of the retired, it sounds more like a nightmare.

His conclusions are summed up in the title of his book: The Final Platform—The Betrayal Of Our Older Citizens (Burns and MacEachern, $4.95).

Dr. Baum is a well developed sense of justice (he lectures in administrative law at Toronto's Osgoode Hall). That sense is affronted by the fact that 1,345,000 of the 1,900,000 over-65 Canadians need the Guaranteed Income Supplement.

Almost everywhere in Canada he finds the same discrimination against older workers—a form that takes in those as young as 45.

Let's look at the other side of the picture.

The amount of the benefits payable under the Canada pension plan increases regularly to defend its purchasing power against inflation.

The plan is founded on the assumption that Canadians, unlike Britons, for example) will have the benefit of supplementary assistance, but will accumulate some resources during their working years, to help encourage Canadians to do so by allowing them to contribute tax-free current income in a registered retirement savings plan.

It it fair, then, to denounce a system as discriminatory because it doesn't provide for those who choose not to help themselves?

According to Prof. Baum, retirement doesn't provide the freedom from under-dog drudge about. He contends that the retired "dependent" and the retired laborer have only the freedom to do what their own economic, social and political masters will allow.

Yet that is exactly the extent of the freedom that most Canadians enjoy—at least under—whatever their age.

The importance of planning for retirement can scarcely be over-emphasized. It's prudent not only to invest from an early age, but also to avoid putting all your eggs in one basket.

Most conventional pension plans are safe—but bankruptcies and changes in corporate control can devastate the plannes of employees who failed to spread their savings around.

(Prudent planning, by the way, is not the same thing as penny-pinching. Contrary to the extreme self-denial during one's working years is the hope for a long lavishly after 65).

Dr. Baum is a continuing and active interest in the world and its wonders. The creative process need not slow down as has been demonstrated by philosophers Jacques Maritain, Bertrand Russell and Santayana, and by Picasso and Pablo Casals—all of whom have done great work in their late 80s or 90s.

The pensioner is faced with certain disadvantages—such as almost complete lack of bargaining power to change the terms of his pension that was probably drafted with no conception of the economic conditions of living in an era of 8 or 12 per cent annual inflation.

But the pensioner has advantages, as well. Financial needs are low—no more household contributions, no more group-insurance premiums, no more professional or union dues, no more commuting expenses nor income tax bracket.

Whether all that freedom to take advantage of opportunities depends upon the individual. Every element, to anyone accustomed to the discipline of routine, is disciplined activity.

Consider a contented retired person of my acquaintance is a man who spent his early years trying to educate a flock of entertainment — a profession which encompasses a wide discipline—then at 46 began a successful 30-year business career. His habit of rising early—he still is—serving him well in retirement.

Normally, Canadians retiring between the ages of 65 and 69 are eligible for the Canada Pension Insurance Commission's retirement benefit—a lump sum equal to two-thirds of the calculated average weekly insurable earnings for three weeks), once they are no longer working and have had their application for the Canada Pension accepted.

Anyone in that age group who retires and doesn't apply for the Canada Pension may claim regular UI benefits under the normal conditions that are in effect regardless of age—that is, that the claimant has had an interruption of earnings, has at least eight weeks of insurable employment in the past year, and is willing and able to work.

Those same conditions would establish eligibility for regular UI benefits for anyone retiring between the ages of 65—but under-65s are ineligible for retirement benefit under the UI Act.

Participation in the UI scheme ends at age 70. Regular UI benefits are not payable to anyone who has received his or her employer deduct UI premiums from the salary of anyone who continues to work at age 70. But the UI retirement benefit is normally payable to anyone relinquishing from regular employment at age 70.

Those are some of the other major benefits available at retirement—

Canada Pension Plan is normally available to anyone who has contributed from full-time employment to 65 or over, and has contributed to the plan for at least one year. Application should be made three months before one attains age 65. Provision is also made under CPP for benefits to widows, disabled widowers, orphans, the disabled and their children, and for lump-sum death benefits.

—Old Age Security is paid to persons 70 years of age or over in Canada for 10 years, regardless of other sources of income or assets. Application forms are available at post offices, and must be completed at least three months before one's 65th birthday. The monthly OAS pension, currently $104.10, is indexed to the CPI, and is adjusted quarterly to reflect changes in the cost-of-living index.

—Guaranteed Income Supplement, also indexed, is payable to OAS recipients with limited or no income. Application has to be made each year. It is paid on about half of all OAS recipients.

Besides these federal benefits programs, several provinces have supplementary benefit schemes for their residents.

Donald Irvine Tackles Housing

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — To some people being a politician and particularly a cabinet minister, is pretty much of a cinch.

They see the chauffeurs and secretaries and other perquisites that go with the job and what they see seems like a good deal.

But they don't see the other side of the coin. The long hours, many of them spent on the road and away from home, the necessity of having always to appear as a good sport, the problems and frustrations particularly the frustrations.

The former mayor of Prescott has taken on the ministry of housing and one has to wonder what the portfolio may do to him.

For it has many problems.

We have been railing far behind in housing starts.

There isn't enough money available to build what is needed.

The housing most needed is for middle-income brackets and municipalities tend to resist this.

The serviced land that is required isn't available.

The job has already put one minister, Robert Macaulay, on the sidelines with a heart attack.

Mr. Irvine has a different disposition than Mr. Handelman.

Not to be doesn't appear to have the intensity the former minister did.

He seems to be cooler, and probably better able to stand up to stress.

But cool or not he still is human and the frustrations in this ministry and the constant criticism of it inevitably, it would seem, would get on the nerves and patience of any man.

Irvine is a Rhodes Scholar, has much so, in fact, that automatically you have sympathy for him in the tough job he has taken on.

He is about as far as possible as you could get from a cinch.

It is common to say that politics should be rewarded with a spirit. He will certainly earn his.

Fanfani Takes Over Helm in Italy

By HILMI TOROS
ROME (AP) — The man who will try to forge Italy's 37th post-war government from the country's squabbling political parties comes equipped with a background in politics and a taste for political warfare and an aversion to compromise.

Amintore Fanfani also brings a rare expertise to the job of premier—he's been there on three occasions before.

The 66-year-old leader of the Christian Democrats was picked unanimously by his party to try to revive the centre-left coalition led by Mariano Rumor that collapsed Oct. 2. All Italian premiers since 1945 have been members of the Roman Catholic-backed party.

President Giovanni Leone officially asked Fanfani Monday to form a government, and the "little warrior" plunged into negotiations with the Socialists and Social Democrats.

Fanfani pledged "austere measures" to help Italy's economy, now suffering from an annual inflation rate of about 20 per cent.

His nomination apparently ended, at least for now, the possibility of government participation by the Communists.

After the collapse of Rumor's government, largely in cabinet squabbles over the Communist question," many observers thought a stable post-election government could no longer deny a share of power to the Communists, who constitute Italy's second-largest party.

Fanfani said his chances of reviving the former coalition were "not encouraging."

At five-foot-four, Fanfani has stood as a giant in Italy's history since the Second World War.

Trained as an economist, he entered politics soon after the war and quickly rose through a series of cabinet posts until he was named premier in January, 1954.

He returned to head the government from July, 1958, to January, 1959, and again from July, 1960, to April, 1963. In 1965, he was chosen president of the United Nations General Assembly.

His opponents, particularly the Communists, often accuse Fanfani of being too authoritarian.

Friends say his ability to bounce back from defeats—often within his own party—is a testimony to indefinable principles and to the unshakable confidence in his abilities.

Fanfani called former Premier Fanfani's native Tuscan hill town of Pieve Santo Stefano "stone crucified." "My boys used to play at being altar boy, but Amintore, even if he had to fight for it, always took the part of bishop for himself."

Outside his political life, Fanfani has written books on history and economics. He is an accomplished artist, whose paintings have won critical acclaim, and is the author of a series of Horoscope poetry.

Fanfani was born in Rome, and recently gave up economic history lectures at the University of Rome.

LETTERS

Civil Servants And the Work Ethic

Editor,
The Intelligencer

The letter written by Mr. Clarence Young, and printed recently, seems to warrant an answer, and perhaps filling-in, by a civil servant.

Mr. Young makes the points that too many Civil servants, us in this case, are overpaid, underworked and, unqualified".

Well

To be personal for a moment: and, as I am sure Mr. Young will support four others, adults and teens, in couple with my married son and his wife and children, and other demands, I must say that I do not feel overpaid. Nor, I suspect, do others, Civil servants or not, who are in the salary range. And No Sir! We do not feel underworked, nor used and sorry - enough some-times!

The second point made is that we are seeing more & more continuing, let me assure Mr. Young that I do not feel underworked, and I would be most happy to devote him to join me for a week, or two, as my undeworked days. He will have to be quite conditioned, as I have a number of lectures to write, and, as I say, sure he knows, it takes, on the average, three hours to prepare a one-hour lecture. That -means that he will have to spend some time at my home in the evening, and on the weekend, as I do not always have the time to finish the preparatory work in my office hours, during my official working week. This includes, of course, book music, but he knows that is the way it is, whether one is a Civil servant or not. When he comes with me to work, he must bring stuff that takes since much waiting is involved.

Thirdly, in his letter, he says many of us are unqualified. That is an under the bell blow at the Kingston Military College, as well as at us, since most of us do have some professional and higher level, and must be interested at how many Civil servants, in various classifications, extensive work experience or a combination of both. There are, among the civil teachers, bright and enquiring minds, changing many of the students we have today, who put the stamp of an Arts degree (and not only Civil servants) to shame.

Mr. Young should clarify two points in his letter. Who would he say is a First-class citizen? In North America, where class is based in the main, on financial status, it is obvious that most of us are therefore second class. So it is a good idea to have a first-class objective.

Last, but not least, he says "there are no suggestions their members look for other work on weekend, as I do not always

"Miss, yer know me ..." I heard this so often when I was teaching in Britain. It was almost my wife's question when I remark was even when he knew very well that I knew him. The fact is that I began my first poor neighborhood Classes were too big, and teachers all too busy. Families often had five, six, seven children; no parents at — and most of the mothers worked too — didn't have much time to spare. Very soon I understood what "Miss, you're not really cross" meant: Focus on me. Don't half listen to me. Please, please have time to notice me.

Children's Plea: To Be Noticed

Episcopal Church Is Divided Over Women Becoming Priests

CHICAGO (Reuter) — Alison Cheek, a 57-year-old mother, said sadly, "My only crime is that I was born a woman."

Her "crime" threatens to rob Mrs. Cheek and 10 other women of becoming priests in the United States Episcopal Church, an issue which has divided the 3,285,000 church members and many bishops for millions of fellow-Anglicans throughout the world.

Some 24 bishops of the Episcopal Church, at a meeting here, approved a resolution which declared the ordination of the 11 women as priests at a ceremony in Philadelphia was invalid.

The bishops maintained their decision was not based on sexual grounds but on the argument that the ordination of women violated the constitution of the church and canon laws because they did not have the permission of their bishops.

The Right-reaching lay official of the church, Dr. Dr. Powell Wilkie, resigned his church posts in protest against what he described as the inhumane way the church had treated women.

"To carry out the unjust laws of this church which do not affirm the right of females to be priests and bishops is to visit oppression upon the women," he said.

Ten of the women have issued a statement saying they cannot accept the decision of the bishops and have accused them of aggravating conflict and disunity within the church.

"Each of us will make her own decision as to how and when to affirm the priesthood she knows to be hers," they said.

Members of the Roman Catholic Church have given strong indications that the ordination of women is not what the Episcopal Church might present an obstacle to the dialogue between the Catholic and the world Anglican churches on strengthening unity.

Carter Heyward, another of the women ordained in the Philadelphia ceremony, said: "A young priest had told her, 'I hope you burn in hell.' Miss Heyward added: "They might call us all the names in the world, but that is better than being invisible."

The 128 bishops had met originally to decide whether any action should be taken against the seven bishops who took part in the ordination ceremony.

They delivered only a mild rebuke of their fellow bishops, forbidding two who had retired and a third who had resigned his bishopric.

"We believe they are wrong. We decry their acting or violation . . . of the unanimous witness of the whole church," the bishops said.

They then declared the ordination of the women was invalid.

Some of the bishops said afterwards they were not opposed to women becoming priests but felt the constitution of the church had to be changed first.

Such a move is not expected to be considered before September, 1976, when the general convention, the governing body of the church which includes clergy and lay members as well as the bishops, meets in Minneapolis.

Bishops who support the ban on women priests have quoted Paul as saying: "As the women learn in silence with all subjection. But I suffer not a woman to teach, nor to usurp authority over the man, but to be in silence."

They point out that all Christ's disciples were men. Canon Erwin Seaburg of Chicago said Paul lived in a male dominated patriarchal society and could not envision in his time the question of women as priests.

Episcopal women have been moving up toward priestly rank since 1970 when the church first allowed them to become deacons.

The church now has 120 women deacons, who can perform baptism and marriage ceremonies and preach. But only priests can give blessings or absolution or consecrate the elements of communion.

"Hawking of Hinduism" Disturbs Noted Guru

BOMBAY (CP) — At daybreak every morning a small group of tourists gather on the banks of the Ganges river in Hardwar, northern India.

After having a dip in the holy water, Hindu prayers and march through the Himalayan town's ancient streets, distributing hand-written appeals to citizens to "beware of the enemies of spiritualism."

Hardwar, the world-famous citadel of Hinduism, is at present witnessing a campaign for what Ram Dev Shastri calls "the purification and regeneration of Hinduism."

Shastri, 65, says he is deeply pained by the "commercialization" of the Hindu faith.

"Some of the so-called monks here are hawking Hinduism to foreigners especially Americans, Canadians and Germans as if it is a factory product," the religious leader said. With his flowing orange robes and a magnificent white beard, Shastri looks every inch a guru.

Among the 10-odd disciples who join Shastri in his morning march are two Canadian-born Hindu monks. They are Daniel MacDonald of Hamilton, Ont., and James Ricker of Vancouver.

Twenty-nine-year-old MacDonald came to India four years ago and, while Ricker, 32, arrived in Hardwar last year after working as a chemist in Melbourne, Australia.

The two Canadians now have adopted Indian names—MacDonald is Prabhad and Ricker is Harshikesh.

Shastri claims a following of more than 10,000 in the mountainous region around Hardwar and adjoining Rishikesh. His headquarters is Haridwar near Badrinath, 200 miles from Hardwar, but he comes down to Hardwar for several months in the year.

The Hindu religious leader said that with more and more Western tourists coming to Hardwar to see its famous temples and to wash its spectacular bathing festivals, "some unscrupulous elements have begun to trade in religion."

He cited the recent Kumbha Mela festival which was attended by nearly five million pilgrims, including 2,000 American and Canadian tourists.

Shastri said that many so-called tourists made a lot of money during the festival by posing as yogis and gurus. One Canadian couple from Montreal he said, to have paid $700 to a monk to teach them yoga physical culture techniques.

"The visiting Canadians could have got better information by His two Canadian disciples have invited Ram Dev Shastri to tour Canada but he has firmly declined the offer.

"I'm not one of those international gurus out for publicity," he said. "My job is right here—the exposure of frauds."

Leaves Politics

Jean-Noel Tremblay, former Quebec cultural affairs minister, has decided to become a priest. Bishop Marcien Pare of Chicoutimi says Mr. Tremblay could be ordained within a year because of his age and experience, instea of the usual four to six years. (CP Photo)

One Should Decide How to Use Talents

By Dr. Gordon C. Smyth

All the temptations (Matthew 4:1-11) came to Jesus through the very sense of power of which he could not be aware. Here was this acute awareness of capacity in him to do wonders, to display himself, to get glory.

How should he use his gifts? Should it be for himself or others, for adventure or for God? The first major decision in the ministry of Jesus Christ was the decision of the purpose to which his powers should be dedicated.

The basic fundamental decision comes to us all. Here are your capacities, great or small. What are you going to do with them? Are they for selfish ambition or unselfish service?

The sooner the decision is made the better. Many people have never quite done with that temptation. They go on trying for first place in life, to the end of popularity, wealth or notoriety, and reach that goal only to find that it is the goal that hurt their lives, which might have been broader, have become benign and unselfish.

Such a life is like a fish swimming into the labyrinth of a river-dam. The liberty to return to the lake grows less and less. At last, in the very element where it seems most free, the fish is in fact a helpless prisoner.

On the other hand, you turn to lives that have given themselves to service. What do you see? You see their capacity enlarged: You see small gifts multiplied.

Few sights are more impressive than to behold men and women who, by nature, are not extraordinarily endowed achieve highest adjustment and satisfaction by the sheer dedication of modest gifts. They lose themselves in helping others and thus they find themselves.

These folks are tempted, not by a sense of their greatness, but by the criticism of being "do-gooders" that the secretly envious or guilty put in them. Yet, like their Master, the temptation to chart another course is put behind them.

In that decision their confidence develops. The angels of God have come and ministered to them.

'Society Forgets We're Part of Families'

By Sharon Airhart

"You read magazine articles and women's stories asking why more women aren't political," Betty Exelby says.

"However, I know why there aren't more women politicians and so does every working mother. They can't cope."

Which families? The "more than 50 per cent of families with both parents out to work every day."

What society? North American society with its forms and function based on the idea that Mummy and Daddy stay home all the time and go off to work from 9 to 5.

If your lifestyle falls outside that rigid definitions, it's difficult to survive as a cohesive family unit.

The result, she says, "is the agony and the anguish of the women who are trying to hide the guilt feelings for the PTA after putting in a hard day on the job."

That "agony" is familiar to Betty Exelby who has always worked at professional and who has three children, now in high school.

"I've been lucky. I was always been able to take my preschoolers with me to wherever I've been working. But I still sometimes wonder if I should be there when the kids get home from school."

She adds, "There's no way you can do what you've educated to do as a person and not feel guilty as a mother."

"It's fine to say 'okay, don't work if it's difficult and don't feel guilty' but we're trained girls to have a mind, to believe that work and a salary are essential to self-esteem."

Compounding the time pressures in a home with two working parents are the difficulties most families experience in finding good, even adequate — day care.

"We don't like to leave your children in the hands of strangers and the isolated nuclears family is far from the major family group."

Compounding the problems is the startling "mobility" we exhibit as modern families.

"We move around more now. There's little to cultivate the sphere of friends who might prove helpful in emergencies."

Society's penalties that work comes first also adds to the difficulties.

"As employers can't forget that the people he employs aren't just bodies with skills but persons with other responsibilities — to his or her spouse and children.

"It's to his advantage to realize this however because the job will be done better who there's less guilt and undue concern about their children's welfare."

"As it is, you're expected to be on the job and that's that: no matter how your child is ill or your sitter doesn't show up. There's no room in the community or society that admits we're part families that are important and that make demands on us, too."

NSA MEETS

The October Meeting of the National Secretaries Association (International) Bay of Quinte Chapter, was held Tuesday, at Sun Lock Gardens.

The Program for the evening consisted of an "In-Basket Exercise" conducted by Lillian Feister, Education Chairman, and her committee.

A letter of congratulation was read from the Canadian Division of the N.S.A. regarding the appointment of Past-President Marjorie Cross as Chairman of the Chapter Formation Committee, Central Canadian Division.

Only Parents Can Make It Better

"Parents have to come out of the woodwork and be counted."

Betty Exelby sees a simple remedy to the problems of the nuclear family in society. If only parents will willingly to get together and make demands. And then be willing to implement those demands.

The word is cooperative.

The whole of society is changing," Betty Exelby says. "And instead of split roles we have partnerships of parents exchanging duties according to what makes sense."

Accordingly, parents should form together in groups to decide what they need in the way of community facilities.

"Parents shouldn't look at day care centres as an abdication of their responsibilities," she continues, "but as a place not only to bring children but a place for parent education.

"Children need other children and need other parents. The body of folk knowledge for parents that used to exist is gone. We have to be together if only to identify common needs."

The ideal for Betty Exelby it is a co-operative children's centre, a kind of "grandma House" for families without grandmas. A place to play, a nursery, a creche, a day care centre and a library and short notice, short term care, all in one.

It takes a community a long time to realize its own needs," Mrs. Exelby says, "and then the tendency is to sit back and wait for the government to do the job. We need many parent movements getting together and saying these are the issues not being met by the community and then forcing the issue.

"The problem is there, it's just up to the parents."

Historical Society Hears Famous Restoration Expert

The keys to historical restoration are authenticity and respect for detail, Jeanne Minhinnick told members of the Prince Edward Historical Society.

Addressing the group's October meeting, Mrs. Minhinnick described her life's work as a museum advisor and historical consultant.

Widely-known for her expertise, Mrs. Minhinnick is responsible for the restoration of interiors in Upper Canada Village and the home of Mackenzie King as well Dundurn Castle in Hamilton.

With slides of the restorations from beginning to completion, she described the study and research which are part of something as basic as finding the correct wallpaper and paint or china.

Once the old, paint was removed layer by layer until a sample of the original coat could be obtained and matched. A similar process is carried out to find the old wallpaper.

She told the audience often searches of gardens or trash heaps would give evidence of the kind of china or glass used in the home.

The Consumer Recycle These Words

Recycle these words — find the rest of The Intelligencer, too.

After you've finished reading the paper you can turn it into a colorful log to warm a winter evening.

First a warning: when you are working with the chemicals needed to produce the color, wear rubber gloves, keep them out of the reach of children and mix them in a plastic container that you're sure will by positive will never be used for food.

Use half a pound chemical to a gallon of water. Soak newspapers thoroughly and drain off excess liquid. Roll the sheets tightly to make a cylinder about three inches in diameter. Allow to dry about one week.

For orange flames, use calcium chloride or borax; for blue flames use copper sulphate; for yellow flames use common table salt; for brilliant green flames use pure borax.

If you're lazy, throw a handful of salt or borax (only) into a fire for a similar effect.

Add-ons add up. That's just one of a series of warnings from the department of consumer and corporate affairs in its Consumer Contact bulletin. The articles in the series and the department wants to alert consumers that some 1975 cars come with catalytic converters to prevent pollution. These devices make it necessary to use non-leaded gasoline which is hard to find in some areas and fix-a-shoot always more expensive. These cars are more expensive and get lower mileage.

Other new car buying tips: options on cars are standard equipment on another. Cars manufacturers don't always, of, take your car seat along and strap it to be sure. Understand purchase agreements before you sign and insist that verbal agreements be written into the document and signed by an official of the dealership as well as the salesman.

"There are so many variables in buying a car," the department says, "it is only possible to lay out general guidelines. The best rule of thumb is know what you are at every step, protect yourself."

Pro-Abortion Doctors Speak

TORONTO (CP) — A group of seven pro-abortion doctors Tuesday released the names and addresses of 30 doctors across Canada who support their stand of an organization they established.

The doctors' group, called Doctors for Repeal of the Abortion Law which was founded here Sept. 19, "deplores the continued failure to introduce legislation for repeal of section 251 of the Criminal Code."

Dr. Gustavo Tolentino, a Toronto psychiatrist, said at a news conference that the law is unjust and unworkable. He gave as an example Women's College Hospital which claimed because of the stand taken by Dr. Patrick Hewlett, chief resident of obstetrics and gynecology in the hospital's outpatient' area.

Dr. Tolentino said the law does not obligate h ospitals t o provide abortions. He added that only five of Canada's 1,300 hospitals have abortion committees, most in Ontario and British Columbia.

"I dare say there is not one hospital in Canada who could get a therapeutic abortion for his wife or his mistress."

Indians Urged to Cut Wedding Costs

By RAM SUBHAR
Of Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — Thousands of elderly Indians have to spend the last years of their poverty because they spent too lavishly on a daughter's wedding.

Bulbul Ayyar, who recently retired as head clerk in an import-export company in Bombay, is a typical example. Of his retirement benefits which totalled 227,000 — Rs1 Rs2,000 had to be utilized against "debts taken to family members."

What Ayyar really means is that he borrowed heavily to finance the weddings of his two daughters.

Now, he has to take up some job to make ends meet.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi has been calling on her countrymen for years to keep wedding extravagance to the minimum but no one, not even members of her own Congress Party, seems to have followed her advice.

Recently, Mrs. Gandhi set a personal example by celebrating the marriage of her son Sanjay Gandhi to Menaka Anand, a New Delhi college beauty, in a most austere manner.

Less than 30 guests were present at the simple wedding. There was no feasting or fireworks and the whole thing was over in half an hour.

At most there are some signs that the prime minister's advice in this regard bears fruit.

A number of government officials in New Delhi, Bombay, Madras, Calcutta and other cities have decided to celebrate the marriages of their sons and daughters at a cost of less than $100.

Ramnath Gupta, a federal official working in the customs department in Calcutta, says the forthcoming marriage of his only daughter Mala will cost him only $75.

Gupta recalls that when he was married 30 years ago the expenditure was around $10,000. At that time, $10,000 meant more than 10 times that amount in these days of inflation," he says.

But in Indian social conditions it takes a lot of courage to insist on simple weddings.

Mrs. Kamla Suri, a Bombay housewife, said: "It is all right for Mrs. Gandhi to talk of austere weddings. But who would have married our two daughters if we had not prepared to spend $8,000 on each wedding?"

A legislator of Maharashtra state (Bombay) to have spent nearly $100,000 on his daughter's wedding recently. More than 5,000 guests were invited and entertained lavishly.

Social workers are touring villages in Rajasthan state to persuade peasants to end the ruinous custom of celebrating their whole village for a week during harvesters' weddings.

The custom has placed thousands of rural families at the mercy of local money lenders.

Both women are said to have excellent chances for complete recuperation. (AP Wirephoto).

Successful Living

Poems Settle Scrappy Kids

By DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS: I, too, was beating the morning "voice of the Pioneer" out of the mother who called "hey, give it back to him" when her boys became rowdy and scrappy.

There is a story, not so appalling, but at least it served its own purpose.

We were married the first year of the depression. The first baby arrived, producing almost nothing in the line of crops. Our third baby arrived after the third poor-crop year and we were deeply mired in the mortgage. Instead of a farm, I felt myself a prisoner in a small room, where my husband earned $5. per week "take home" pay. Shelter, heat and light were also supplied.

Then the twins - brother and sister - arrived. Baby was healthy and thrived, although I was hard put to keep up to the daily chores.

My husband's hours were long, about 70 hours a week. Often when I was preparing the evening meal, my active children were fighting, screaming, scrapping, bickering, or being plain naughty. I had to continue working with my hands, but my tongue could rattle.

As soon as I began telling a story, the children climbed on separate chairs and listened closely. Unconsciously I had memorized all the poems in grade school readers, as I often recited them. I had read quite widely, so the subject matter varied greatly.

Sometimes I told, as poetry, sometimes history, biography, science stories or whatever I didn't seem to matter as long as my voice could be heard.

Sometimes I told them how Daddy was home, supper was on the table, and family peace was preserved.

I had started reading aloud to the children before they could talk. Perhaps I enjoyed it as much as they did; but I was pleased to notice that quite a bit of the information found a place in their background of knowledge. And now, I am having the pleasure of seeing my daughter introduce books to her children.

Not a spectacular story, I must admit, but perhaps a satisfying one.

Grace

DEAR GRACE:

Lucky, indeed, are the children whose mothers have the insight to bring their offspring through poetry. Poems have a way of getting the rebellious and unhappy, as they played in the living room.

So she went from the living room, sat down on the chesterfield, gathered the three of them around her and read them a story. Peace reigned. Marianne knew it instinctively I think just which was the more important: a scrupulously tidy kitchen or serene children.

(Don't just meddle along Doris Myers knows human behavior and can help. Write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope for private reply).

Ann Landers

'Fat City' Dweller Trying Hard to Move

Dear Ann Landers: Can you stand one more open letter on being fat?

Dear Everyone: I am heavy and I know it. Don't tell me: All you do is remind me of some thing I've forgot about it. You have an way of knowing how I feel because I hide my hurt behind humor. (Fat people are jolly, right?) But I'm really sensitive about my weight and doing everything I can to shedding. Everyone, is not why I eat so much.

Fact of it is I do tremendous eating at people like you for not knowing me at all. I'm sick now that anger every time I put food in my mouth. And another thing—I don't understand why you think you have the right to tell me how I should look. If I told you you needed a nose job, wouldn't you feel hurt?

So, please stop offering me tips for every pound I lose, or a trip to Europe if I lose a ton. And don't tell me how pretty my face is. Thanks—Living in Fat City And Trying Like Hell To Move

Dear Trying: If you really want to move, you will. There are no permanent leases in Fat City. Stop eating and start losing. Only then will you have neither the desire nor the determination to live in a hamburger stand neighborhood. Good luck. I'm sure you'll make it.

Dear Ann Landers: I've asked several people for the medical field about those new shots in the world. They contain the urine from pregnant women). All I get are vague answers.

Some of my friends are taking them once a week at $15 a pop, and they are losing weight. I'm disturbed because only two doctors in this area will give the shots, yet my sister is taking her teen-age daughters to get them.

The doctors I contacted are the same people who go by the "fat farms," seek out the fad diets, and have gallbladder attacks (if they get goofed up and have to quit). In each case they put all the weight back on.

When I ask why only two doctors in the area are involved I get is, "The medication is in short supply." What about the Anti-Interested And Worried

Dear I and W: The shots you are describing are called human chorionic gonadotropin injections. The reason so few doctors will give them is because they have not been approved by the Food and Drug Administration.

There is no valid evidence that these shots have any effect on sagging epidermis, or that they get goofed up and have to quit). In each case they put all the weight back on.

There is a weight loss it's from the 500 calorie-a-day diet that is supposed to be part of the program. I've said this as many times I'm beginning to sound like a broken record, but I'll say it again—The only sensible way to lose weight and keep it off is to go on a diet (under a doctor's supervision) exercise regularly (I walk, walk, walk), and join a group if you need emotional support and can't do it alone.

Lang Blocks Abortion Reform

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang has indicated to block or hold up federal grants to organizations which help women get abortions outside the country when the operation has been refused by a domestic hospital committee.

A spokesman for the justice minister confirmed today that Mr. Lang has "intervened with the other cabinet ministers" to make sure grants which help women find such abortions do not get federal money.

The minister has no objection to agencies which merely provided abortion counselling, telling women where to turn for abortions within the country.

If such agencies were receiving federal grants it was "no problem," the spokesman said. The minister took exception to groups which help women get abortions they "can't lawfully obtain in Canada."

The spokesman said that the minister — specifically helped hold back a $5,280 grant to the Saskatoon Women's Centre, proposed by officials in the state secretary's department last April.

That department's minister, Hugh Faulkner, was asked to delay the grant until an investigation had been carried out to ensure it would not be used to help counsel women about illegal abortions in Canada or legal abortions outside the country which had been turned down domestically.

Birth Control for Poor Nations
No Answer to World Problem

HALIFAX (CP) — The notion that birth control will put developing countries on the road to success is twisted thinking, says an Oxfam field representative in South America.

Mike McCormack says exporting family planning is a Western method of overcoming the fear that an increased Third World population will put a strain on food consumption patterns in the West.

Mr. McCormick was in Halifax recently as part of a cross-country tour before returning to his headquarters in Lima, Peru. He said increased populations in South American, African and Asian countries threaten the standard of living in Western countries. But food shortages could be blamed more on food consumption patterns in the West than on production.

Most South American countries have an artificial -rather than a real population problem, he said. They contained enough natural resources for their citizens but their resources be longed to Western companies.

These companies took a disproportionate share of the wealth, leaving the major part of the population in the country landless and destitute.

Cutting down or stabilizing the population in South America would only mean a continued drain on South American natural resources by foreign capital.

Birth control programs had not had much success in South America because they had little support from governments or predominant Roman Catholic religion. But private family planning agencies had been formed.

Mr. McCormick said the main reason birth control has not gained wide acceptance is because most of the agencies operating in South America do not have the interest of South Americans at heart.

Converters Can Save Gasoline

OTTAWA — Cars with catalytic converters may give better gasoline mileage than the conventional type, federal officials say in the October issue of its monthly circular, Consumer Contact.

The statement is a disclaimer of one made in the previous issue, in which the department told automobiles with converters use more gas.

A Canadian Press story carried Oct. 16 quoted the earlier circular's erroneous statement.

"We have found since that this is not always the case. In fact, cars with catalytic converters may well give improved gas mileage."

Some 1975 cars have the converters, an sophisticated device that requires unleaded gasoline. The department noted that unleaded gas may be difficult to find in some areas and more costly than regular-grade leaded fuel.

While acknowledging the possibility of fuel savings, the department also urges car buyers to investigate before buying a car with a converter.

"Ask your local dealers how much such a converter might cost you, what gas mileage you can expect, and how a converter will affect your driving habits," the consumer affairs department says in the October issue of its monthly circular, Consumer Contact.

USSR, Egypt Back PLO

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Soviet Union and Egypt have demanded that the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), a guerrilla umbrella group, be allowed to participate on equal terms in key Arab-Israeli peace talks.

There was no immediate Israeli response to a statement issued Friday in Cairo and Moscow after Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy concluded four days of talks with Kremlin leaders.

The Israelis have repeatedly refused to negotiate with the PLO, calling it an organization of terrorists and murderers.

The only meeting place for Israel and the organization is on the battle field," Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin said this week.

Quebec to Stock Ontario Wines

MONTREAL' (CP) — The Quebec Liquor Corp. has lifted an embargo on Ontario wines following that province's decision to purchase Quebec wines and ciders, it was announced Friday.

Raymond Garneau, Quebec finance minister, said an official of the Ontario board confirmed that Ontario will list 10 Quebec wines and six Quebec ciders at its retail outlets.

"The lack of Ontario products which has been noticed in the stores here will be solved promptly," Mr. Garneau said.

Mayoralty Challenge Awaited

By HARRY MUIRHALL
Staff Reporter

At least one current city council seat is up for grabs in Belleville's 1974 civic election.

Roger Porter said Friday night he will not seek another term as alderman.

His announced decision should quicken early interest in a campaign where sweats have barely stirred.

The Dec. 2 election is six weeks away. Today, the city hall campaign is still as tranquil you could hear a voter change his mind.

Some aldermen and others now have confirmed their candidacies. But a key nomination is awaited.

Focus of most speculation today is tomorrow's noon Nov. 7 will be the mayoralty.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey announced her re-election bid Monday.

As yet, there have been no confirmed challenges.

But, barring some community personalities have been pondered as possibilities by local politicians.

Conjectured as candidates:

— Gerald Joyce former councillor for five years, and city realtor. He acknowledges his name is being widely rumored, but says he won't announce a decision until administration are closer. Meantime, he prefers to remain a potential candidate.

— Arthur Keegan, veteran alderman with a total 17 years on council. At 64, he says he still is thinking through his election decision; the mayoralty is "a possibility I'm not overlooking that point."

— Paul Rinaud, on council seven years, and parks board chairman. "I'm still considering all the alternatives," he says cryptically of his election intentions. He wouldn't say "if that means for mayor."

— Alderman Ben Corke, who has a total 11 years service at city hall, says he will announce his election intentions later. But if he decides to run it will be for his council seat.

But four of the 10 aldermen are specific about their intentions. Ready to run again for council seats are:

Jean Smith, who has served two terms, was re-elected in 1973 by topping the polls. She is chairman of the Belleville-Quinte municipal solid waste disposal committee, chairman of the Hastings-Prince Edward health board.

Stu Mitchell who entered civic affairs in 1972 and has been the prime prompter of municipal efforts at city beautification improvement.

Joe Cote, who also was election to city hall in 1972.

George Sargeaunt, voted into his 15th term on the 1971 ballot, then named to council after illness, following the retirement of veteran alderman Arnold Orr.

The remaining two councillors — Dr. John Stock and Jack Ireland — were out of the city and could not be contacted for comment.

As of now, incumbent councillors face at least two confirmed challenges from outside city hall.

Norman Young, a frequent critic of civic administration, has stated his intention. Friday night of seeking public election for the first time.

Vern Heimbecker, city housewife who was an unsuccessful first time candidate in 1973, also said she intends seeking a council seat once more.

Other 1972 candidates declining to run again include Richard Hillis, Ward 1; and George Murray, Joe Rayburn.

But the tone of the election rests with the mayoralty.

Politically, it is a two-party race — with its clash of key political personalities still unresolved over who will be opposition for the whole city hall campaign.

Skiers Pray for Snow

BATAWA—A white Christmas followed by a long winter with lots of snow would please the executive of the Batawa Ski Club.

In the last two seasons when the winter fallout has been slim, members of the club's executive has watched membership drop to 250 from double that number in 1971.

"With a decent break in the weather patterns this year," John Cormack, president said, "it's only a matter of simple economics for us to get more heads above water this year."

To that end, cancellations and delay the inevitable in the event of a cold winter the club has recently contacted area municipal government and other sources for financial assistance. So far Sidney Township has contributed a $1,000 grant.

While the club's money needs are high, major concern the executive favors maintaining membership and rentals at the 1973-74 level. The concensus is a resurgence of interest in slopes and trails will accompany a typical Canadian winter. Full membership would provide sufficient revenue to meet expenses and maintain a level for snow making equipment needed by the club.

In the winter of 1969-70 when there was no comparable facility in the area, an estimated 1,000 welcomed the Batawa Ski Club opening.

From the beginning, the club maintained an open air skating rink free to visitors.

Later when snowmobiles became popular, an extensive system of trails was made available to members and those who held club membership. The club also has encouraged cross country skiing.

At the time there was no snow on the hill the skiers were pulled up the slopes by improvised tows powered by internal combustion motors. When an electric powered T-Bar was added in the 1972 facilities in 1972 the installation was looked upon as the first step in modernizing the club's equipment in accordance with requests from the membership.

The new tow-bar equipment cost the club $30,000 but the installation considered by the executive, "a necessity and have been double the amount had we been a commercial enterprise without the know-how and labor," the club president observed.

However, the new T-Bar set-up has yet to have a prolonged test. An extended winter thaw skiing activity failed to materialize however due to lack of snow.

School Dedicated

The new Quinte Mohawk School on the Tyendinaga Indian Reserve is to be officially opened tonight. Included in the evening program will be official opening ceremonies with Indian Affairs officials expected to be in attendance for the building, followed by a reception.

The new school, situated a short distance west of the band council building, accommodates elementary school children from Kindergarten to Grade 8. The building has been in use since the opening of school in September.

VP to Speak

R.J. Garlick, will be the guest speaker at a meeting of the Bay of Quinte chapter of The society of Industrial Accountants Oct. 31. Mr. Garlick, a graduate of the University of Toronto is a vice-president of The Society of Industrial Accountants of Ontario.

Early Start on Spring

Results of work by this city parks crew will best be seen next spring. But before winter closes in they've been readying pocket-size addition to city's greenbelt. This new parkette on Turbull St. provides direct access to Church and — since it's across from senior citizen apartments — will be a rendesvous for the elderly when warm weather comes again.

UCS Predicts Extension To Reach Campaign Goal

Like many other Ontario cities, Belleville will be continuing its United Way campaign into November and beyond - if it's to collect the $140,000 advertised as its 1974 goal.

The campaign here this year has already collected $20,000 or about 14 per cent of its goal.

Last year the campaign will go into November," Gordon Mullin, United Community Services executive director, said this week.

"It seems to be going well — a little slow perhaps but comparing this years totals so far with last years, it looks hopeful."

Mr. Mullin said the campaigners are looking forward to Monday and Tuesday's residential blitz which will see 250 volunteers collecting donations door-to-door.

"There's not enough of a trend yet," he adds "to determine whether or not we'll make our goal."

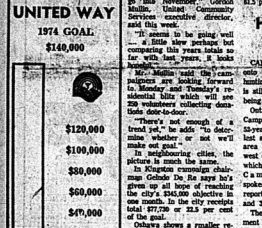
In Kingston campaign chairman Celeste De Re says he's given up all hope of reaching the city's $345,000 objective in one month. In the city receipts total $77,720 or 22.5 per cent of the goal.

Oshawa shows a smaller return so far — only 11 per cent of its $710,000 1974 objective.

Cornwall campaign has reached 20 per cent of goal with more than $55,000 collected.

Top Ontario city so far is Brantford which has achieved 61.5 per cent of its goal.



Hunter Still Missing

CAMPBELLFORD — A Toronto man missing while on a hunting trip northwest of here is still being sought after last being seen six days ago.

Ontario Provincial Police in Campbellford are looking for 55-year-old Quinte Capriotti last seen Sunday in a wooded area about seven miles northwest of the village of Hastings which is eight miles west of Campbellford. A police spokesman said he was last reported sighted between 2 and 3:30 Sunday afternoon.

The Peterborough detachment of the OPP had been put on alert police said. Investigating officer is Constable J.R. White of the Campbellford detachment.

Ready for Snow

Conservationists Plan Tour of New Property

CAMPBELLFORD — Approximately 40 members of the Lower Trent Conservation Authority and local municipal officials will be leaving Sunday at noon for their annual tour of authority conservation area and newly-acquired properties.

Liberals to Meet

The Liberal party's eastern Ontario director, Mrs. Sylvia Sutherland, will be key speaker at a meeting of Hastings Provincial Liberal Association in Madoc Wednesday night. The meeting has been called to name new officers for the riding which, under provincial boundary changes, would absorb more electoral territory west of Marmora and become Hastings-Peterborough. At present, the constituency includes all Hasting County outside Belleville and Sidney Township.

Car Lands on Roof

TWEED (Special) — Victor Roy Phillips, 19-year-old Shilog area youth, escaped with cuts and bruises late Friday afternoon when he rolled his car on a Hastington Township road.

Provincial Police Constable Robert Reeder of Madoc said Phillips was eastbound when he lost control of his car and rolled out a section of farmer's fence before coming to rest upside down. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $1,000 and to the wire fence $60.

Police have charged the driver with careless driving.

Big Brothers: Helping Hands For Boys Without Fathers

By JIM SMELLE
Staff Reporter

Twelve-year-old Guy Prud'Homme is the key date for his age. He likes sports and even has a shiner he picked up in a soccer game Guy plays in it.

He likes camping and fishing and baseball. In fact he likes everything a 12-year-old boy should, but there is a difference. Guy doesn't have a father to share these interests with.

This is where Bernie Rober comes in. He too likes sports, especially a previous ball team. And he likes camping and hockey.

Bernie is a Big Brothers to Guy. He has been since April, almost two months after putting in his application to the organization, formed late last year in Belleville.

Bernie first heard about the group when Roly Thomas, president of the group and one of the organizers spoke at a meeting of the Rinomen Club of which Bernie is a member.

So far, says Roly Thomas, there have been four matches in the city, Bernie and Guy's being the second. There are eight more application forms Big Brothers now being processed. There is a potential of about 300 boys between six and 16 who could use a Big Brother, says Mr. Thomas.

Fifty of these 300 boys have already become known to the organization, but more Big Brothers are needed Mr. Thomas says.

Joan Burke, a social worker and executive director of the association conducts interviews with the applicants to determine their suitability. She says there is about a six- to eight-week waiting period from the time a person makes his application to the time he meet his little brother for the first time.

Mr. Thomas says there are no special requirement needed to become a big brother, except a desire to see a boy develop to his full potential.

Applicants, however, must be over the age of 19 and of good moral character.

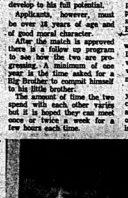
After the match is approved Bernie is a Big Brother to Guy for at least one year. If the time asked for a Big Brother to consult himself to his little brother.

The amount of time the two get each week varies but it is hoped they can meet once a week for a few hours each time.

Says Bernie: "A lot of people have the wrong impression that you have to take a boy camping out in the sticks as a Big Brother.

"There's no pressure one way or the other. Guy and I can get together whenever we want to and talk if we want to. It's all very informal," said Bernie.

"The main thing is that you're helping someone. You get a great deal of satisfaction and so you want to help someone out. I think Big Brothers is a worthwhile organization.



Doing Things Together

It's good for a young lad to have a big brother. Someone to take him fishing, to the movies and to hockey games. But sometimes this isn't always possible. That's where the Big Brothers organization comes in. Here Big Brother Bernie Röper watches the activity at Memorial Arena accompanied by his little brother, 12-year-old Guy Prud'Homme.

Guy smiles in agreement and mentions the fun he had going on a camping weekend with Bernie to the Coleroy area, which Bernie combined with his ball tournament. Even though it rained all weekend and Bernie got poison ivy they both had fun.

"I think Big Brothers is good," answers Guy when asked what he thinks about having one.

"After Guy's dad died in 1972, he had to make a big adjustment. He's the boy boy with three girls in the family. Guy and his father were very close and went to a lot of places together.

"We moved from Montreal to Belleville after my husband died. Guy developed problems in school and was having a difficult time there.

"We didn't know if there was a Big Brothers organization here but decided out there was one starting out.

Bernie g a Big Brother has made a big change in Guy. His attitude has changed and he has a different outlook on life now.

Anyone interested in becoming a Big Brother may call 962-3067 for further information. The association is also having its second annual public meeting at Corby Public Library Tuesday Oct. 22 at 7:30 p.m. Everyone interested in the association and its work is welcome to attend.

Big Brothers are available only for boys in homes where there is no father physically present.

"Not every boy without a father need a Big Brother. In some cases an uncle, grandparents or a real older brother can do," says Mrs. Beck.

But in homes where such a situation does not exist, Big Brothers can fill an important need in the life of a young boy.

Houston Can't Stop Phoenix Roadrunners

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ervin Gordie Howe and family will stop the expansion Phoenix Roadrunners Friday night as they gained their second win in as many games.

Gordie managed only two assists and his son Mark added another in a losing cause, as Phoenix downed Houston Aeros 6-4 in one of four World Hockey Association games played.

In the others, Winnipeg Jets blanked Edmonton Oilers 4-0, Toronto Toros defeated Indianapolis Racers 5-1 and Chicago Cougars edged Vancouver Blazers 3-2.

Don Borgesani scored twice in the final period for the Roadrunners to break a 4-4 tie and keep Phoenix in the unbeaten ranks. Michel Cormier, Bob Barlow, Gerry Odrowski and Dave Cowan got the others.

Goalie Jack Norris throttled the Aeros, turning aside 38 Houston shots. Frank Hughes got two past Norris before being ejected from the game in the third period for jostling a linesman. Don Larway and Jim Sherritt also scored for the visiting Aeros.

At Winnipeg, the Jets scored in each period and got abstinent goaltending from Joe Daley for their second consecutive win.

At Toronto, goaltender Jim Shaw, making his league debut, stopped 21 shots as the Toros gained their second victory in two starts.

The Toros got goals from Paul Henderson, Wayne Dillon and Pat Quinn, while Bob Whitlock's shot in the second period was the only one to strike Shaw, who previously played for Nova Scotia Voyageurs of the American Hockey League.

Indianapolis goaltender Andy Brown took offence to a shot by Toros' Frank Mahovlich from 20 feet out at the top of the red circle. He caught the puck after it had hit his shoulder and he threw it at the Toro player.

"Who's he kidding?" Brown asked, referring to Mahovlich's denial that there was any intent on his part to injure Brown, who does not wear a face mask. "He couldn't even see the net from there."

He was trying to put it through us. There was no way he was going to get it by me from there."

In Vancouver, Francois Rochon's goal with 1:45 to play gave the Cougars the victory.

The teams entered the third tied 1-1.

Following play Friday, Winnipeg and Toronto share first place in the Canada division with 2 records. Phoenix tops the Western Division and Chicago's initial-game victory has left it in first place in the Eastern Division.

In games tonight, Cleveland Crusaders are in Phoenix, Michigan Stags entertain the Wheaten in New England and Houston tangles with the Marines in San Diego.

On Sunday, Chicago is at Vancouver, Cleveland travels to Phoenix, Toronto plays host to Michigan and Quebec entertains Indianapolis.

HOCKEY TIPS

By BOBBY ORR
Collector's Weekly, Toronto Sun Publications

EAST SEASON WAS GOOD, THIS SEASON (HOPEFULLY) WILL BE BETTER

Except for the ending, I've got to be very happy with the National Hockey League season in 1974-75. Game 6 in the dressing room after the Flyers had defeated the Philadelphia Flyers in the Stanley Cup final, but the Flyers played a good example for youngsters as to what hard work will do for a team.

The reason Boston Bruins were beaten — I'm positive of this fact — was they worked harder than we did. The Flyers had everyone going with total effort and we didn't have everyone giving as much.

Bill, the first tip out should pick up this year is that consistent hard work leads to winners. The Flyers' execution and outhustled us to win the Stanley Cup.

Our team was picked to finish anywhere from second to fifth in the old Eastern Division and we stood first with more points than any other team.

One thing which really helped us was our goaltending when many figured might be weak with Gilles Gilbert, Wilf Cude, Dave Brooks and Kenny Broderick, our goaltending was exceptional.

It was important to us that Brooks played exceedingly well whenever Gilbert needed a rest. At one point, Brooks was going for the record for most consecutive shots on net and we think the night he tried to break the record and lost.

Overall, we had quite a bit of satisfaction during the season and even the Eagles still want to meet Philadelphia. Their hard work showed.

As for this season, well, starting with Gilbert, I think he'll be one of the finest goalies in the league. He's coming right now and he's only 25 — he's bound to get even better.

Last year we were concerned about Phil Esposito at the beginning of the season because he had injuries and we didn't all saw how he turned in a brilliant year. Now, he's healthy and he'll probably be stronger this year.

Gregg Sheppard came into his own after a slow start as that in the playoffs he and Gilbert were our two best players. Everyone thinks Chief (Johnny Bucyk) is getting old but we don't ever have to worry about him.

Pleasant surprises last year were Al Sims and Andre Savard. They should be that much better after a year's experience. Watch Terry O'Reilly, he's one who improved each month. With either the Wayne Cashman and Ken Hodge we'll be all right.

Our team was picked to finish anywhere from second to fifth in the old Eastern Division and we stood first with more points than any other team.

One thing which really helped us was our goaltending when many figured might be weak with Gilbert, Wilf Cude, Dave Brooks and Kenny Broderick, our goaltending was exceptional.

Seals Looking Good

By AL COLLETTI
The Canadian Press

The last trappings of Charles O. Finley are gone from California Golden Seals and both management and players agree they're better off without him.

Maybe not so much financially as in the peace-of-mind department. Actually, the Seals are the orphans of the National Hockey League, hoping to latch on to a new owner.

Finley was saddled with a loser but couldn't move the franchise out of Oakland. Rather than take the continued losses, he got the NHL to buy him out for $6 million.

During his reign, the club seemed to be in constant turmoil. But now Finley has a third consecutive world baseball championship to play with and doesn't need hockey.

Marshall Johnston, up from the Seals player ranks, is in his first full season as coach after taking over last February.

"As far as I'm concerned, I think it's working satisfactorily," Johnston said after a recent game in New York against the Rangers that ended in a 5-5 tie.

The Seals had a tie and a win in their four starts prior to tonight's game in Montreal against the Canadiens.

Cherry Has Warning For Hawks, Mikita

BOSTON (AP) — A war appears in the making between Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks in the National Hockey League.

The Bruins and coach Don Cherry were furious Thursday after hearing and reading complaints of a cheap shot by Boston's Bobby Orr against the Hawks' Stan Mikita during a 4-0 loss Wednesday in Chicago.

"I only wish I had one man I could have sent after Mikita to send him back to Czechoslovakia in a coffin," Cherry told the Boston Herald American.

Mikita scored two goals in the 5-0 victory over the Bruins, but later complained of a cheap shot by Orr in the third period. Orr refused to talk to writers in Chicago after the game.

Bobby admitted he took a cheap shot at Mikita, but that guy was doing the same thing to my guys all night and nobody would retaliate until Orr did," Cherry said.

"One of these days that guy is going to be playing the last one," sideways and I'm going to be there. I could have used him. As a matter of fact, I wish I had been a player for the last few minutes of that game. I would have done it."

Orr's only comment, en route to Philadelphia for a 4-1 victory over the Flyers Thursday night to my guys all night and nobody was "No sweat."

Ernie Leads Braves to Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bob McAdoo, a 6-foot-9 centre who Buffalo Braves drafted in the 1972-74 National Basketball Association scoring champion last year, was overcome by stage fright Wednesday in the team's season opener.

"We look to Ernie for team leadership and he showed that he can do it," Buffalo coach Jack Ramsay said Friday night after the Braves defeated NBA champion Boston Celtics 126-119 in a league opener before a packed crowd of 15,320 at Boston Gardens.

In other NBA games, Philadelphia 76ers downed New Orleans Jazz 113-99, Chicago Bulls outscored Atlanta Hawks 126-121, Houston Rockets defeated Milwaukee Bucks 106-101, Los Angeles Lakers beat Golden State Warriors 106-99, Portland Trail Blazers nipped Cleveland Cavaliers 102-100 and Detroit Pistons got past Seattle SuperSonics 108-96.

In the American Basketball Association, New York Nets thumped Utah Stars 106-90, Kentucky Colonels defeated Denver Rockets 118-98, Indiana Pacers got past the Spirits of St. Louis 92-86 and San Antonio Spurs beat Indiana Pacers 128-121.

"This was Ernie's best game as a pro," Ramsay said. "He showed fine ball control, his shooting was good and he passed off well."

He played an outstanding game. I have to give him credit for the way he ran the club. Leadership-that's what we want from him."

The Celtics carried a 61-60 lead into the second half, but they were bombed in the third period as Buffalo ran up a 21-6 surge at one point. Boston managed just seven field goals in 26 attempts in the decisive third quarter.

"We're very hard playing catching," Boston captain John Havlicek said. "We're not making it with giving up 126 points every time."

McGregor scored 23 points and McAdoo hit for 27 to pace the Braves' attack. Jim McMillian also helped with 21 points, 15 in the second half.

At Milwaukee, the Rockets blew an 11-point lead but rallied for the victory.

Rookie Bob Wilson, whom basket tied the score, 106-106 at 4:46 of regulation, gave the Bulls, paced a furious overtime attack as Chicago rallied for the win on home court.

Golf Chuckle: Hard is At points to lead the Lakers to victory in Los Angeles.

Sidney Wicks and Geoff Petrie's foul-line jumper with 36 seconds remaining in the fourth overtime gave Portland the victory.

Six-goal Third Sparks Spitfires

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Six goals in the final period sparked Windsor Spitfires to come from a one-goal deficit and trounce Niagara Falls Flyers 9-4 in Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League action Friday.

In the only other league game Friday, Guelph Biltmores defeated Chatham Maroons 5-3 to move into a tie for second place with Welland.

At Niagara Falls, the Spitfires trailed the scoring with Mark Smith's goal in the first period and a goal by Scott Miller in the second.

Flyers came back with goals by Mark Dumouvil, Gary Solchuk and two by Reg Lahey in the second period to take a 4-2 lead. Later in the period, Spitfirer Colin Thompson narrowed the lead to one goal.

Windsor, the league leader with nine wins and two ties, outshot the Flyers 33-31.

At Guelph the third goal by Biltmores' Jim Joy broke a 3-3 tie midway through the final period.

Phil McDonald added the insurance goal, while John Blake had a single for Guelph.

There's Nothing Rigged Says Lord Killanin

VIENNA (CP) — The president of the International Olympic Committee has denied reports that Moscow will automatically be awarded the 1980 Summer Olympic Games and that next week's presentations to the 12 cities bidding for the XXII will be mere formalities.

IOC president Lord Killanin of Ireland told a news conference Friday that both cities still be given the same treatment and consideration as they make their presentations. "There is nothing rigged in the IOC."

Killanin said a proposed reduction of attendance will be one of the most important topics the IOC meeting will consider. He declined to discuss the proposal which he will present to the committee Monday.

The question of China's entry into the Olympic movement would not be discussed here because it comes "down to an application from the People's Republic at this stage."

Aside from the two bids for the Summer Games, the IOC also will hear a presentation from Lake Placid, N.Y., for the 1980 Winter Games.

Killanin said the IOC could not accept any new bids for the 1980 Winter Olympics at this point even though Lake Placid was the only bidder.

Earlier in the day, Jim Worrall, president of the Canadian Olympic Association, told a news conference he had received a letter from Quebec City expressing interest in holding the 1980 Winter Olympics.

Worrall said a letter from Mayor Gilles Lamontagne, of Quebec said the city was interested in having the Games "in the event that no suitable candidate was accepted at these meetings or in the event the IOC decided to defer a decision on the Games."

Originally there were three areas vying for the event, but Chamonix, France, did not make a formal application and a Vancouver-Garibaldi group withdrew its bid Oct. 4 after it failed to get backing from the British Columbia government.

Jose Rezaza of Venezuela, president of the Pan-American Sports Organization said the Mexican offer was accepted unanimously by association members at the IOC meeting here and by telegraphic votes from other members.

Sao Paulo, Brazil, announced earlier this week that it will not be able to stage the Games because of an outbreak of meningitis.

Diehl Responds To the Challenge

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Rookie Terry Diehl came into the $125,000 San Antonio-Texas Open golf tournament with his playing life on the line.

"This is a very important week for me," said the husky, 24-year-old Diehl, "my Professional Golfers' Association (PGA) card will be reviewed after the tournament.

"I've got to make a good check to stay on the tour.

"So far, I haven't made enough. They'll call me in for my review."

But the young man from Rochester, N.Y., responded to that challenge with a blazing, seven-under-par 65 that gave him the lead Friday midway through the old event, that is the last individual championship of the year on the pro tour.

His 131 total; 11 under par on the 7,035-yard Woodland Gold Club course, gave him a one-shot advantage over former Texas Open champs Mike Hill and John Mahaffey.

Hill, who was in his last start, had a second consecutive 67, while Mahaffey matched Diehl's 65 as the best round of the warm, sunny day.

Will Hemmnik of Whitney and George Knudson of Toronto turned in the best scores among the Canadians. Each shot a 71; but Knudson, who had a 71 opening day, failed to qualify for further play with a two-round total of 147.

Hemmnik and Don Kern of London, Ont., each made the cut of 148. Hemmnik was at 148, while Kern, who carded a 76 Thursday, was at 146.

Diehl has won only $1,120 in his first-full year on the tour. He hasn't finished higher than 20th, hasn't made a check since July and coming into this one, faced Texas Open champ Mike Hill the possibility of losing his playing rights on the tour.

The performance of all first-year players is reviewed by the tournament players division of the PGA at the end of the season. Those who fail to meet flexible standards lose their cards and their playing rights.

Reds Squeeze By New Haven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Providence Reds got a 36-foot goal by Pierre Lagasiere for a 4-3 decision over New Haven Nighthawks, but the other two league games Friday night wound up in ties.

Richmond Robins finished in a 3-3 tie with Nova Scotia Voyageurs and Syracuse Eagles tied Rochester Americans 5-5.

The Reds took a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by rookie Boyd Anderson and Hartland Monahan. New Haven's Scott Marcbildon knotted the score with tallies in the second and third period.

In Richmond, Lew Morrison scored the first of two goals to give the Robins a 1-0 lead in the first, but Mario Tremblay tied the score for Nova Scotia. After a scoreless second period, the Voyageurs went ahead twice on goals by Peter Sullivan and Jim Cahoon. However, Richmond's defence, Lafreniere and Morrison salvaged the tie.

The Americans took the lead in the first period on a goal by Larry McGillis. Rochester's Ian Hyrsek scored on a breakaway in the second, but Dick Gervais tied the game in the third period.

National Hockey League veteran Ken Stewart will make his coaching debut with Springfield against the Clippers in Baltimore. Stewart, who played for Toronto Maple Leafs, New York Rangers, New York Islanders, Boston Bruins and Vancouver Canucks, succeeds Jerry Toppazzini.

The coaching change was announced Friday by Jake Milford, general manager of the parent Los Angeles Kings.

In his first season as coach, Stewart led Portland of the Western Hockey League to second place last season.

MCKINNIS TO HELP

CLEVELAND (AP) — Running back Hugh McKinnis will get his first starting role Sunday in the National Football League when Cleveland Browns meet the Steelers in Pittsburgh. Cleveland coach Nick Skorich decided earlier this week that the Browns, 1-4 needed a little shaking up and decided to call on McKinnis, formerly of the Canadian Foothal League, to help at the fullback spot.

Gary Bergman Traded

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota North Stars of the National Hockey League said Tuesday they have traded defenseman Gary Bergman to Detroit Red Wings for future considerations. Bergman, 34, came to Minnesota from Detroit last November in a trade for Ted Harris. A nine-year NHL veteran, he had three goals and 29 assists for the North Stars last year.

In the Monza 2 + 2, Chevrolet has applied the classic principle that form should follow function, to build a car that drives like it looks and looks like it drives. The Monza 2 + 2 gives you the best of both worlds. Sporty. Exciting to drive. And with all the authority of a rugged, well-constructed design. It features a hatchback rear, rectangular headlights, wrap-around taillights and power ventilation system with exterior pillar louvres. Power comes from a standard 2.3 litre 4-cylinder engine or the optional 4.3 litre V-8 engine—(the smallest V8 we've ever made at Chevrolet). And new efficiency comes from a High Energy Ignition System and Radial Tires standard. Check the Monza 2 + 2 out for yourself. It's really something else. And a very good reason to buy Chevrolet in '75.

Or is that so?

Well, George Bernard Shaw, the cranky genius who wrote some of the most brilliant drama of our time, was notoriously skeptical of most things but believed in hexes. In fact, he claimed to have been the victim of one.

The remarkable little-known story was reported by New York psychoanalyst Dr. Jan Ehrenwald. He recounted how he once wrote to Shaw about the great man's advice about a book he was writing on telepathy. This was in 1946 when Ehrenwald was living in London and Shaw at his country home nearby.

In his reply, the celebrated playwright described a singular experience of being cursed.

It happened, he said, after he had spoken at a meeting in King's College, London, in support of one of his many pet causes. He sat down amid tepid applause. "In perfect health and at the top of my form".

Suddenly, said Shaw, he felt something happen to his spine — "something blasting and blighting".

It was only with great difficulty that he got home from the meeting, and for a month the painful affliction persisted.

Then, he said, "at the same hour the blight ceased, as suddenly as it had begun, and left me again in perfect health."

Shaw maintained that he had been "cursed" by a woman at the meeting.

"She very strongly disapproved of me and was intensely angered by certain personal references in my speech," he said. "She sat directly behind me and my spine was, in point blank range of her face-field, subjected contemptible hatred."

"Her curse damaged me and possibly my recovery was due to the prayers of some of my friends. Anyhow it was a clear case of a telepathic curse."

Dr. Ehrenwald wrote to Shaw again to ask more details about the incident. He suggested that the actual telepathic may have had a perfectly natural explanation — a draft, say.

The reply was a postcard on which Shaw's usually immaculate handwriting were four words: There Was No Draft.

Dr. Ehrenwald's experimental evidence supports the idea that malignancy thought can blight living things. Some time ago, he had transplanted hate focussed on barley seeds apparently has inhibited growth.

In one experiment, 62 per cent of the blighted seeds did not even germinate and the rest were stunted. Though other seeds from the same package showed normal growth.

The power of positive thinking isn't new to us. We've heard about the power of negative thinking.

Two Heads Better Than One

NEW YORK (AP) — A weteyed Raquel Welch walked out of news conference Thursday after being asked if her gerrymuled image kept her from glory for her role as chairman of the 1975 American Cancer Crusade.

"I don't feel that at all," she responded, "I think that was very rude of you."

Then she walked out, but returned five minutes later and said: "Excuse me, I'm sorry I had to leave to regain my composure."

Irving Rimer, vice-president of public information for the American Cancer Society, said the society is grateful to Miss Welch for volunteering to head the 1975 crusade.

Society officials said crusade fund-raising will total $30 million this year and they hope to raise between $130 million and $150 million next year.

Miss Hayward, who re-entered the hospital 11 days ago, has asked that her silenced remain undisclosed, newsmen George Shadid said Wednesday.

She underwent a biopsy at Emory University Hospital last July but the results of the test for cancer were never released.

The black singing trio was formed in 1931 and became one of the top rasket vocal groups Harris remained a member until 1941 when he joined the U.S. Army.

NEW YORK (AP) — A work by artist Frederick Remington, sold for $370 in 1892, brought a record bid of $175 000 at a Sotheby-Parke Bernet auction.

The painting, an oil on canvas entitled, "Turn 'em Loose Bill," depicts a cowboy breaking a bronco. It was from the collection of the Kimble Art Foundation of Fort Worth, Tex., and was purchased by a New York dealer Wednesday.

It was one of 25 works by American artists that brought a total of $997,500 at public auction at Madison Avenue art gallery, a spokesman said. He said the previous record for a Remington work was $125,000.

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Cynthia Gregory, a star of the American Ballet Theatre, is to become the first American artist to perform in Cuba since bilateral relations were broken in 1961, her company announced Thursday.

Miss Gregory, one of the leading ballerinas in the United States, is to dance with Alicia Alonso's National Ballet of Cuba in Havana in November.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rock musical Hair, banned in Chattanooga, Tenn., was the subject Thursday of arguments before the United States Supreme Court.

Arguing that sex scenes permissible in the movies may be prohibited on live stage, lawyer Randall Nelson, representing the city of Chattanooga, asked the justices to uphold the ban.

Henry Paul Monaghan of Boston, lawyer for Southeastern Promotions Ltd., responded that the city is engaging in "perpetual supervision of ideas."

The court took the matter under study and will rule later in the current term.

Director Takes Year To Study Rival Theatres

OTTAWA (CP) — Paiton Whitehead wants it to be known that his year's sabbatical leave as artistic director of the Shaw Festival is not going to be spent on some quiet south sea island.

It won't be for a year, but only for eight or nine months. And it's not a paid holiday, but only an opportunity to work in some other theatre than the one associated with the Shaw Festival at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont.

Whitehead said in an interview he hopes, however, to spend time in libraries and museums, reading about George Bernard Shaw and the works of some of them obscure—of his contemporaries.

Assuming all his year's leave, the Shaw Festival said Whitehead would return to plan the 1976 season. Next season, actor-director Tony van Bridge will be acting artistic director, and he has announced the Shaw Festival will do Caesar and Cleopatra, and Pygmalion.

Those are among Shaw's greatest plays, and with the Stratford Shakespeare Festival doing Shaw's Saint Joan next year, 1975 promises to be a major Shaw year in Canadian theatre.

Whitehead, who is here for a three-week run starring in his own production of Charley's Aunt at the National Arts Centre, will take the Shaw company next to Philadelphia where it will play for two weeks. Then he will direct a production of Shaw's Millionairess for the Philadelphia Drama Guild.

His plans after that are uncertain.

Now 36, Whitehead came to Canada in 1965 from England via New York, and has been at the Shaw Festival since 1967. In 1973 he directed it. His festival will have completed a full cycle of all the Shaw plays. But there can be time again, especially now that the festival has moved into proper quarters in its new 800-seat Festival Theatre.

The festival began in the Niagara - on - the - Lake Court-House, and it started there by accident, producing five plays in the two theatres for the three festival weeks.

When your doubleton king is hopelessly trapped in front of dummy's ace-queen, there is no real reason not to produce the king on the first lead of the suit. Sometimes this second-hand-high play, which is actually a falsecard play, may cause declarer to go wrong.

West shifts to the ace of diamonds (another peripheral contract. East plays the deuce and South bids West's bid trick. West shifts to his ace of diamonds and continues with the queen, after East follows to the first diamond with the eight spot.

A really expert South would lead a spade to dummy's ace and a second spade back to his queen. West would show out, and South would cash his ace of hearts; lead a club; finesse the queen if answer; ruff a heart; lead a second club to dummy; ruff a club; lead his last diamond, putting West on lead, and overruff East on the next to last trick.

A slightly less expert South would not cash one that play. He would lead the club right away and finesse dummy's queen. West would win the second round but trump finesse against East.

But, perhaps West played the king of clubs on he first club lead. Now South would play West for two spades and one club. He would play the ace and the king of clubs, and then wind up down one since the only comp could not be developed at that stage.

Warts Only Harm One's Appearance

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have no quarrel with your article on warts and I personally have had some ugly ones shrivel and disappear spontaneously.

However our daughter, eight, had her hands covered with warts last fall (at the moment). Our pediatrician referred us to a specialist in dermatology who marked each wart with an ordinary pen, then treated each wart with a drop or a Q tip dipped in liquid nitrogen.

We were told the hands would look terrible for about 10 days—and they did. But as the dead skin from tissue dried up and fell off, no more warts. We've been assured that is a cure and there would be no scar, tissue or after-effects. (At the moment nearly white spots on her otherwise lightly tanned skin.)

We learned that not all are capable of this type of treatment.—M.W.

Thank you, sir. Warts are a peculiar type of growth, sometimes an annoyance, but not dangerous or harmful except in appearance.

If folks are willing to let them come and go naturally, they always disappear in time. If you are in a hurry to get rid of them, let a dermatologist do it. By whatever method he finds effective. The liquid nitrogen is one such method, as you know.

I'll let you in on a secret: not even a specialist can guarantee that warts won't return, but the instant-freezing method you describe is effective when used by doctors who know how to do it.

Since warts do (in their own sweet time) disappear spontaneously, all sorts of hocus-pocus seems to work when applied around the time the warts are getting ready to depart anyway. When this happens, the physician (or just surprisingly) certain that he has discovered the sure cure for warts.

It didn't exactly astonish me to receive a fresh supply of such testimonials this time. Among them the following:

"A neighbor asked me if I would like to get rid of my warts. He held my hand and rubbed his hand over the warts. In about two weeks my warts were all gone.—Mrs. B.M."

"There's a product called Ironcide made in Indiana. The firm doesn't know why it works and makes no claims but I have seen the results.—M.W."

From a traveller in Europe: "I found some yellow peas and rubbed on the warts and they went away."

From Minnesota: "I cured them with castor oil every night on my hand and my eyebrow. It kills the root. One day after the surprise when I looked at my hands every wart was gone.—R.K."

From me: I was in my teens a neighbor told me to get a milkweed and every day take one leaf and dab the milk on my warts and when I used up all the leaves, threw out the stem and my warts would disappear.

"When I was all finished the warts were still there so, I figured, hey, she was laughing at me. Every few days she would ask me, it was two or three weeks or so. I was amazed. There were no more warts. I am in my 50s now, and still no warts.—R.T."

Prince Edward Island MP Owes Life to Comet Line

OTTAWA (CP) — Angus MacLean, Progressive Conservative member of the Commons for Malpeque, P.E.I., owes his political existence to his voters in his Prince Edward Island riding — but he owes his life to a petite, shy, middle-aged woman, Mme. Pierre Ugueux.

Mme. Ugueux was a leading member of the Comet escape network for Allied fliers like FL Sgt. MacLean, who were captured in occupied Europe between 1941 and the liberation in 1945.

There was a reunion here recently of 36 Comet-line members with 34 members of the Canadian branch of the Royal Air Forces Escaping Society.

For men like Mr. MacLean, now 60, it was a time for memories. He was a Royal Air Halifax bomber returning from a mission over the Ruhr valley in June, 1942, when he crash-landed in Holland.

Soon after the landing, Mr. MacLean became separated from the rest of his crew, who were captured by the Germans.

After a few days, "I threw myself on the mercy of a Dutch family," he said.

For six weeks, the family sheltered the young Canadian flier in their household. Then, using friends' contacts, they made his way to Brussels, where he was put in touch with the Comet line.

With the help of people like Mme. Ugueux, Mr. MacLean worked his way south through France to the Pyrenees and into Spain. Following a short stay in the British Embassy in Madrid, he arrived in Gibraltar. After 11 weeks on the run, the ordeal was over.

Mme. Ugueux was at the time a 21-year-old nursing student in Brussels who helped in the work of the escape network. She early in 1943, a new responsibility was placed on her shoulders.

Andree deJongh, the Comet-line leader, was captured by the Gestapo and the young nurse was confronted with the task of rebuilding the broken network.

Mme. Ugueux, whose code name was Michou, today is a shy, diminutive woman who hardly looks her 53 years. She is modest when...

...her exploits in helping 120 Allied airmen to safety.

Her work in the underground escape route was by the George Cross, a Commonwealth award for civilian gallantry.

The procedure involved contacting the fliers, hiding them, providing them with false papers and sending them on their way to safety, she said.

By moving constantly and changing her identity, she kept the Germans off the track. But in the end, the Gestapo net began to close in and she, too, had to use the network to escape to Great Britain.

There was great joy home at a dinner held here for visiting members of the Comet-line, with the veterans' affairs department.

Mme. MacLean says he will never forget the work of Mme. Ugueux and the others who helped him. Nor will he forget the uncertainty of being an escapee in enemy territory.

"The thing I feared most difficult from a private point of view was that you had no way of knowing whether you were going to be successful or not. There was great temptation to turn yourself in."

Mme. Ugueux remembers those in the Comet line who weren't able to make the visit to Canada and the United States. For every flier saved, she said, three helpers were killed and 15 concentration camps.

Veterans Affairs Minister Daniel MacDonald caught the spirit of the reunion when he said in a speech: "It's funny that many of the members of the Comet line died lonely and silent deaths because they wanted the rest to lead free lives. . . They died for their ideals and for their love of their country and mankind. We will remember them."

Charter Pilots Change Image

KINGSMERE HILLS, B.C. (CP) — Chatting it's a realistic bird, the blame dips lower and lower, and the pilot, sensing an emergency, banks sharply to starboard.

This is wrong, it touches down on the Kingsmere River, 90 miles upcoast from the Vancouver pleasure-boat basin.

It has been, for Aleck Bose-chuk of Fort Nelson, a 700-mile flight; two hundred miles in two hours.

Logger Bob Jones, who chartered the plane, thinks they paid for the trip in Kingcome, climbers from the bottom of the valley to the ridge, ready to begin work.

There are 50 by hours to hit the mountain with seven-man crew and guides logs.

Mr. North, with a degree in electronics and presently booked into Alaska, likes to describe it as charter or taxi pilot.

"We're trying to get away from that image. Most people fly the pilots with our company as weekend pilots. Actually, I'm not a bush pilot, but a booked pilot. I've got 10 jet, airline and jet. It's like driving a taxi.

"Other than that, I'm a bushman right can take an hour and three-quarters. You can't fly that way or when a customer feels the call of the wild while in the air. I've made several unscheduled stops for passengers who've been drinking too long."

Coastal flying is more difficult than flying in the interior because of the coast's varied climate and terrain.

Federal regulations limit pilots to 1,200 flying hours a year but Mr. Pitch says he rarely gets

Increased University Enrolments Reflect Search for Job Guarantee

By BRUCE KARSON
The Canadian Press

Many Canadian universities report record numbers of students on campus this autumn and some spokesmen attribute the revived interest in higher education to the current economic situation.

Kelvin Andrews, assistant admissions officer at the University of Toronto, said first-year students are most interested in professional courses.

They are seeking a degree that will guarantee a job when they graduate rather than one that leads to the unemployment line, he said.

John Evans, registrar at Hamilton's McMaster University, agreed that young people are more interested in professional courses because of inflation and the uncertain job market.

The result at McMaster has been "a real influx of first-year students into science, engineering and business courses."

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press indicates the apparent temporary disenchantment with post-secondary education, reflected in a general decline in university enrolment in 1973-75, has disappeared in most areas.

An exception appeared to be Memorial University in St. John's, Nfld., where total undergraduate enrolment this fall was estimated at 5,200, a drop from the 6,048 last year.

However, a Memorial spokesman noted first-year enrolment this year was 1,600, about 100 higher than in 1973-74, and he said the total was down only because of the fewer number enrolling in the university's couple of years ago.

Women's liberation was suggested as another possible reason for higher enrolments this year by an official of Mount Saint Vincent, a women's university in Halifax.

"More women are interested in careers these days," he said.

Regal Blue, registrar at the University of New Brunswick, said there were about 5,650 full-time students at the Fredericton and Saint John campuses this year, approximately 50 more than in 1973 fall.

"The slight increase, I think, is coming from girls," he said.

In British Columbia, the maximum limit on government bursaries available to students has been increased to $2,500 from $2,000 and the province also has a campaign for more teachers.

As a result, the University of British Columbia in Vancouver anticipates the number of undergraduate and graduate students this year would be as much as 19 per cent higher than the 21,500 registered last year.

A spokesman for the University of Victoria also expected enrolment would be higher than last year's 4,088. Victoria's enrolment record of 4,241 was set in 1973-74, the year that many other Canadian universities registered a drop in students.

In Ontario, applications from all first-time students—including high-school graduates, mature, transfer and out-of-province students—are processed by the Ontario Universities Application Centre.

Students are requested to state first, second and third choices of institutions they wish to attend and the applications then are sent to the universities concerned.

An admissions officer at Ottawa's Carleton University said the number of non-high-school graduates wishing to enter Ontario universities this year is up 25 per cent over last year.

At McMaster University, total 1974-75 enrolment is estimated at 8,250 and the number of first-year students 2,790, both records.

University of Toronto anticipated a record total enrolment of 43,775, about 1,225 more students than last year.

Mr. Andrews said the most popular courses among first-year students are all branches of engineering, pharmacy, dental hygiene and nursing.

Estimated enrolment at some other Canadian universities this year:

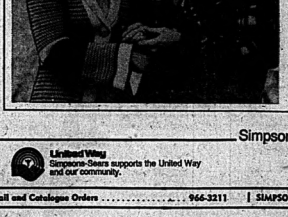
GIRDLES GLOBE 4 TIMES

More than 200 million tire casings are discarded each year in the United States, says the Tire Retread Information Bureau. That's enough to circle the globe four times at the equator.



We're on our way! With our first great choice—our diamond. From Sears. Just to be sure.

We chose a diamond that we both think suits the way we live. It's not a no-frills, but it's very, very natural.
It has a high quality of "fire", because Sears diamonds of all sizes are specifically chosen for brilliance.
And that's what's important to us.

We decided on Sears because there, you not only get a beautiful diamond, you get a Certificate of Appraised Value from an independent licensed gemologist.

Plus, Sears own 6-way guarantee, that includes a free sizing service, free inspection and cleaning, and a Lifetime Trade-In policy as well.

This one, well, it was such a natural choice. And that's what a diamond is, you know. Created by the earth itself.
It's got to be natural to be a real diamond. And we wanted something beautiful. And real. For always.

One Dead, Four Missing

Damage in Millions In Maritimes Storm

HALIFAX (CP) — It is expected in labor several days to arrow most of the physical scars of a storm that swept through the Maritime provinces Saturday with snow, rain and high winds.

At least one person is known dead and four others were missing in the wake of the storm which left Sydney in a state of emergency.

As much as 12 inches of snow was dumped in parts of mainland Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and the southern half of New Brunswick.

Cape Breton and parts of eastern Nova Scotia received two inches of rain and wind with gusts of more than 80 miles an hour. The Sydney airport recorded one gust at 115 miles an hour.

More snow was expected in P.E.I. today with flurries elsewhere and temperatures in the 30s.

The militia was called out to assist city police as fears of looting grew. Motorists were ordered to stay off the streets and police were to arrest anyone who appeared to be merely "sightseeking," Mayor Tobrett said.

His said millions of dollars of damage had been done and at least 12 families were left homeless.

Elsewhere in the Maritimes, power and telephone service was frequently disrupted.

Between 9 half and three quarters of P.E.I. was without power for most of the day, and it could be several days before it is restored throughout the province.

It will likely be at least another day before all power and telephone service is restored in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

George Alan McLean, 51, of East Mines, N.S., was killed Sunday when a barn he was in collapsed on him in high winds.

Four fishermen, two from Petit de Grat and two from Canso, were presumed drowned during the storm.

Fruit growers in the Annapolis Valley in Nova Scotia fear heavy apple crop damage but the full extent of damage cannot be determined until the storm subsides.

Fanny Jelley and New Brunswick and Newfoundland in North Sydney, N.S. were terminated during the day as high winds made sailings hazardous.

As Air Canada spokesman said many flights had to be cancelled because of poor visibility and wind conditions.

Traffic snarls were reported on the Trans-Canada Highway in several spots, the worst being a multi-car pileup between Amherst and Truro, N.S., which forced RCMP to close the road for several hours.

Supertanker Outraces RCMP To Avoid Paying Bill for Fuel

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — A supertanker has been roaring mid-Atlantic today, having behind in Newfoundland an unpaid bill of $500,000 and a warrant for the arrest of her captain.

The Multi-as the Great outdistanced an RCMP patrol vessel Saturday to reach the safety of international waters off the south coast.

A warrant for the arrest of Captain Brian Greenwood, 35, was issued by a magistrate's court after the vessel sailed without paying the fuel bill to Newfoundland Refining Co. Ltd.

The 237,000-ton British Leader docked Oct. 14 at Come-By-Chance, site of an oil refinery, 100 miles west of here on Placentia Bay, and unloaded 1.5 million barrels of crude oil for Newfoundland Refining.

Until August the vessel was owned by the Court Line of London but the first declared bankruptcy and was taken over by a trustee.

The tanker was chartered by Shabeen Natural Resources Inc. of New York, parent company of Newfoundland Refining, and 16 years remained of the charter when Shabeen was a court battle to have the vessel completa her contract.

The Court Line had sought the ship's return to London.

The Federal Court of Canada rejected an application from the owners for an injunction directing Newfoundland Refining not to interfere with the ship's departure for England.

The court also rejected the oil company's plea for an order restraining the owners from using the vessel in any manner inconsistent with the charter.

Mr. Greenwood said in an interview Sunday he had sailed on the instructions of the trustees.

"I was advised the charter was over," he said on the radiophone radio. "I took the advice of the present management."

Captain Greenwood said he heard about the warrant for his arrest but did not return because he thought the amount of money involved was $200 and that ship's representatives in Canada would look after it.

He "had a suspicion" a patrol boat was chasing his tanker

Five Million Starving

Million Deaths Are Forecast In Bangladesh

DACCA (AP) — Refugees, mostly women and children, have been streaming into the Bangladesh capital by the hundreds this month in search of food.

They are victims of the most severe famine to strike the Indian subcontinent in at least three decades. They have come by train, by truck and on foot. As they reach the train or load into trucks, they are lying along the pavements of the city, they are taken by police to camps, known as "great kitchens."

The government has set up 4-5 such camps throughout the country to provide overnight relief for some of the more than five million who face starvation among the country's 77 million people.

The government placed armed guards at the Dacca camps to keep those fanning from roaming the capital's streets causing social unrest.

Some diplomats offered what they said were conservative estimates that a minimum of would die of starvation or related diseases based on reports reaching Dacca from the government and volunteer organizations. This will be within six weeks, they said, before the autumn food crop is harvested.

Much of the summer crop was destroyed by floods.

The government said it has had arranged to import emergency food shipments. Much of the food aid will not arrive for another month, however, by which time it is feared thousands of thousands will have starved.

The three Dacca camps are set up in an abandoned industrial estate and in a high school and a college closed indefinitely because of the famine. Each has a population of 5,000, and the number is growing by at least 300 daily from as far as 200 miles away.

Trudeau At Paris

PARIS (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau's visit to France began on an optimistic note today with Premier Jacques Chirac saying it will set the seal on "a totally harmonious relation" between France and Canada."

Trudeau, accompanied by Mrs. Trudeau, arrived at Orly Airport to begin his first official visit to France as prime minister.

He was greeted by Chirac on his arrival from the Canadian Forces base at Lahr, West Germany.

In welcoming the Canadian prime minister, Chirac said "lots of exceptional quality" exist between the two countries.

"Your trip will set the seal on a fruitful relationship between France and Canada," Chirac said.

Trudeau replied: "France has an important place in Canadian hearts and it is a happy day for Canada and France."

Trudeau, on a six-day European tour, will hold formal talks with Chirac and French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing on Wednesday. He will meet with them again Thursday.

After a news conference Wednesday he will go to Brussels for discussions with Belgian government and European Common Market officials.

Trudeau has stressed that the aim of his European tour is to diversify Canada's foreign policy and to reduce his country's dependence on the United States by better integrating the country with the Common Market countries.

A projected commercial treaty between Canada and the Common Market is to be discussed at the EEC council of ministers later this month.

John Dean Returns To Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — With four tapes down and three to go, John Dean is returning to the witness stand to relate what happened in the White House after he told Richard Nixon about the Watergate cancer growing on the presidency.

The prosecution in the Watergate cover-up trial was expected to finish with Dean today after playing the remaining three White House tapes, in which his voice was recorded along with Nixon's.

Lawyers for all five defendants, John Ehrlichman, Robert Haldeman, John Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman, Kenneth Parkinson and Robert Mardian, then will have a chance individually to cross-examine the first government witness who has been on the stand since last Wednesday.

The resumption of Dean's testimony today was delayed by a lengthy conference between U.S. District Judge John Sirica and lawyers at the bench.

There was no explanation for the delay, but a copy of the New York Times was placed into evidence and it apparently entered into the discussion. The date of the newspaper was not known immediately.

The judge then called a brief recess.

Meanwhile, special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski was in a television/interview Sunday that the entire story of Watergate will come out during the trial.

"Through the evidence at the (cover-up) trial, you're going to have the story of Watergate," Jaworski said on the NBC program Meet the Press.

The last tape played for the jury in the conspiracy case was of the conversation Dean had with Nixon the morning of March 21, 1973, in that talk Dean told Nixon that demands by the Watergate defendants might cost $1 million.

In his interview, Jaworski, who leaves office Friday, also said that he believes Nixon was guilty of "obstruction of justice," and when asked whether he agreed with President Ford's reasons for granting Nixon a pardon, he said "No."

Churches Needed For Moral Change

Canadian churches must provide the leadership for moral change now being sought by society, Dr. Robert McClure, former moderator of the United Church said Sunday.

But churches, at times, retreat from the task they are still best equipped to perform, said the prominent churchman and humanitarian.

Dr. McClure, noted medical missionary, was in Belleville as a key participant in anniversary services by two of the city's biggest United Church congregations.

They were Belleway Street, where he joined clergy of the Belleville Presbytery for a

Noted Churchman

Bridge Street, celebrating the 125th anniversary of its founding church group, Dr. McClure was guest speaker at the morning service.

In an interview, he said society now is seeking change from a climate that has fostered violence, injustice, and such events as Watergate.

"There is no doubt at all that we're short now on moral leadership. ..." he said.

"Neither governments nor community organization can provide the same guidance for change as the churches."

But, "sometimes ... I feel the church is sort of backing off to "let George do it"," said Dr. McClure.

"I think changes in our social life could be better spearheaded by the church than any other organization I see on the horizon. I hope the church will be able to rise to responsibility and the opportunity it offers."

Even those who are not church members "automatically" look to the churches for moral guidance, he said.

In his addresses to both congregations, Dr. McClure stressed the interdependence of world populations although he said North Americans are the last to realize it.

Canadians, now in unbanized society, could learn lessons in living from what they describe as more primitive peoples. Both groups ago worked out the social attitudes needed for compatible togetherness in close-quarter living.

Urban society today has Canadians living only the thickness of a cement block from each other, and few people know their neighbors, said Dr. McClure.

Members of Bridge St. United church congregation like Harold Mott (right) had opportunity to meet distinguished churchman at 125th anniversary service Sunday. Dr. Robert McClure, noted missionary, humanitarian and past United Church moderator, gave sermon.

Overflowing Crowd Hears McClure Speak

Closed-circuit television was used to bring the 100th anniversary service of Bridge St. United Church to an overflow crowd Sunday.

The service's main event, ending events of the church's centennial and television monitors and camera crew were provided by Loyalist College.

An estimated 700 people thronged the church for the night service to hear Dr. Robert McClure, missionary and former United Church moderator.

The church was founded by the old Bridge St. Methodist congregation. Many, in fact, members of Bridge St. United church's board of trustee Sunday morning presented the original key to Hallowway St. Church. For the record ,they arrived in period costume in a gas buggy.

For the day pastor Rev. J. Clare Kellogg was joined by ministers from United Church Belleville Presbytery and Rev. George Richardson, of Perth, the church's Bay of Quinte Conference president.

The former moderator said a $10,000 donation from Bridge St. United Church now is benefiting tribal groups in Borneo.

Dr. McClure, told members of the Belleville Church how the money was spent.

It was sent to Dr. McClure a year ago while he was still working as a medical missionary with the Iban people of Sarawak once the headhunters of Borneo. The funds paid for educational films on health and agriculture and provide the equipment to show it from village to village.

"I don't think I've ever seen a project where — for $10,000 — we could do so much for so many people," said Dr. McClure.

UIC 'Watchdog' Retires

Thirty two years' service with the Unemployment Insurance Commission, for the most part in the investigation and legal branch of the department, has ended for Eric C. Naylor, of Belleville.

Mr. Naylor, who for many years acted as inspector for the UIC checking up on workers illegally collecting unemployment insurance benefits or sual leave and will retire officially late in December.

But he has little intention of complete retirement and is considering some post retirement employment in keeping with his various qualifications.

"You have to retain some purpose in life," he says.

"I have driven more than a million miles in my lifetime. I have been around the world and have little desire for further travel."

Mr. Naylor recently has been the guest of honor at two retirement parties—and in Belleville staged by the local UIC staff, and the other in Toronto staged for several retirees from the provincial regional office.

For the last four years, Mr. Naylor has been on loan to the Department of Justice and is ended up working with the UIC as special legal adviser to the Department of Justice council C. L. R. Gray.

A native of Ottawa, Mr. Naylor came to Belleville as a child, completing his public and secondary school education in this city. He joined the former Unemployment Service back in 1943 shortly after the federal agency took over the task of the former employment service.

In his role of inspector with the UIC, Mr. Naylor has presented to the courts more than 700 cases concerning illegal collection of insurance benefits. His farthest range from Toronto to the Quebec border.

For the time being, at least, he expects to continue living in the city.

One Story Missing

One story not in the books at Deloro's new library is the determination of the province's littlest village to rebuild community centre destroyed by fire. Tuesday saw official opening of new building. It includes library with about 3,500 books — some of which are being shelved by librarian Muriel Regan helped by Reeve Doug Lynch.

Smallest Village Opens Major Community Centre

DELORO — This is Ontario's smallest village.

Yet Saturday it proudly opened a new library, a community hall and a local government office.

But the 120 or so villagers saw it as an achievement — justifying their community's continuation in a world of big government. And visiting dignitaries agreed.

The new centre was created from the ashes of the village's community hall built in 1906, housing the first library in this area of Hastings County. When it burned down in December, 1972, the village council held its meetings over the general store while Deloro folk determinedly sought the hall restoration.

They received funds from county, federal and provincial governments, raised money from local businesses, organizations and individuals, and started a rebuilding project estimated at about $47,000 when completed.

It was the kind of challenge that "makes a community click," said Reeve Doug Lynch as he introduced invited guests to the results at Saturday's official opening.

Deloro, which makes Deloro the smallest incorporated village in the province, said Mrs. Bernice Young, clerk-treasurer since 1967, "grew from the industry community started by what became Deloro Smelting and Refining.

When the company moved out in 1961, the village stayed intact as a municipal unit. In recent times, with the trend toward bigger government units, it has retained its independence.

It intends staying that way and wouldn't consolidate into a larger area, says Reeve Lynch and Mrs. Young.

"We see no reason to consolidate," says Mrs. Young. "We're getting along fine and this hall, is the proof of it. It shows what a small community can do when people put their shoulder to the wheel."

Among those in agreement was Hastings County warden Jack MacKenzie.

Smaller communities respond more readily to human needs, the warden told the crowd at the opening.

He added: "I hope the day never comes when Hastings County goes into four or five municipalities. I can tell you when it does we're going to be in trouble."

Success of the project also drew praise as an example of community co-operation from Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings.

"It's very encouraging to see what these rural communities can do to meet a challenge when it's thrown at them," he said.

Employee Charged

A service station employee, who police said, reported a $400 armed robbery on the job last week, was charged with two men charged in connection with the incident.

Gary Smith, 18, RR 2, Bellcville, Kelley's Esso, charged with public mischief and conspiracy to commit theft, by the provincial police officers sent to investigate the robbery.

James Ash, 18, 21 Kellar Dr., was also charged with conspiracy to commit theft at the RK Gas Bar, 438 West Dundas St., last Thursday.

OPP Constables Bob Burkholder and Gerry Martin were investigating a report that two men, armed with balaclava helmets and wielding a knife, had robbed the gas station of $400 while Mr. Smith was on duty.

Police said $285 has been recovered.

They were apprehended when other officers arrived on the scene.

Trustee Seeks Re-election

First trustee from the Hastings County Board of Education to announce her intention of running for re-election is Miriam Graham.

Mrs. Graham has been a trustee for nine years — three years with the old Belleville Public School Board and six years with the county board.

She said today that she had decided to run again because she feels the next two years will be crucial to education in the county and experience will be needed more than ever before.

"I have the time; I have the interest; and I have the experience," she said.

"With ministerial dictates coming thick and fast, there will be a lot of selective economy to be done," Mrs. Graham predicted

Curriculum evaluation and community involvement are priority issues for the coming two years, in Mrs. Graham's opinion.

"We have made a start on taking care of the buildings; we have professional development for teachers under way," she said. "Now is the time to concentrate on the kids."

Mrs. Graham sees a need for involving parents in school activities and concerns in community involvement she includes the work experience programs in the schools and other out-of-classroom learning experiences.

"Our schools are opening up, but we need more involvement by students and parents."

Mrs. Graham is married to a Belleville barrister and has four children.

Belleville ratepayers elect five of the trustees on the 17-member board of education Separate school supporters elect two representatives to sit on the public board, while Mohawks of the Bay of Quinte band appoint one trustee. The remaining trustees are elected on a ward system to represent other areas in the county. Municipal and school board elections will be held Dec. 2.

Mayor Seeks Re-election

Mayor Robin Jeffrey, seeking a further two-year term, can claim with truth that "a healthy, young, and progressive atmosphere" has been created in the city.

If there are programs, such as road improvement, that have not reached complete fulfilment during her tenure, this is no more than in the nature of things. Rome was not built in a day, but we are confident that if re-elected, Mrs. Jeffrey will lead Belleville along the road to further progress.

As it is, Belleville has made considerable gains in the past year or two. Industry increasingly is finding it a desirable place for new plants.

A lot of hard work is involved in running the affairs of a municipality and Mrs. Jeffrey is both hard-working and conscientious. She reflects the positive outlook and forward movement the city has taken on in recent times. There is much to be done and we believe Mrs. Jeffrey's leadership is equal to the task.

As of now there are no other candidates for the office of chief magistrate. If there should be, as well as new faces offering themselves for municipal seats, it will be to the credit of the city that such interest exists. It would also give added significance to the election and to municipal politics here.

Toffler's World

If some of us are scratching our heads over Alvin Toffler's questioning of the need for reading, writing, and arithmetic, we are reminded that this sort of original and stimulating thought helps society along to new concepts of learning and of social development.

Noting that kids bring pocket calculators to school these days, Dr. Toffler advocates replacing "action learning" or work-oriented study in the community, a concept that is already at work here. Yet, while our educational system locally is in the van of changing methods, it takes on a new dimension when someone of Dr. Toffler's calibre comes into our midst. He has given further substance to the Future Shock society outlined in his book of that name — a work he said in a foreword could be outdated even as he set down his concepts of the future.

But even with such swift passage of events and ideas, we cannot see any phasing out of reading, writing, and arithmetic. After all, what is a man if he cannot even read or write? These are the basic techniques as yet to supplant those skills. Illiteracy is one thing that must stay forever in the past.

An Anniversary

Bata's presence here contributes to the overall stability of the Canada area's industrial base. More than that it is corporate structure, and the people who work for it, have been part and parcel of the commerce and culture of the Quinte area for these past three decades or more.

Part also of an international organization which arose from the adverse circumstances of war and energy and ingenuity in Eastern Europe, and spurred by the genius of company president Thomas Bata.

Bata's 35 years here have meant much to the Quinte area, and it remains a strong contributor to its economic health.

The company's recent birthday celebrations and subsequent contract settlement reflect its continued stability.

Ed Sullivan

A showbiz legend has ended with the passing of Ed Sullivan — the sportswriter with a yen for the world of entertainment. Underneath the mournful visage and awkward manner, Sullivan was a real genius. Some of his stars who came to prominence under the magic influence of his show — from Elvis Presley to the Beatles — Sullivan himself was a weekly institution for millions. A unique personality, comic mannerisms and all, target for every mimic in town, he endeared himself to a host of fans. The passage of time and low ratings eventually sealed the program's fate; but even so, the memory lingers on.

The Tyranny Of Credit...

Or How To Beat The Computer When It Is In Error

By VINCENT EGAN
Financial Consultant and Affairs Analyst
Toronto, Ontario

When a consumer has a problem, is the government the only place to turn to for help?

Frustration mounts and I think it is. The federal minister of corporate and consumer affairs, Mr. Andre Ouellet, has announced that about 10 consumer protection offices will be opened across Canada next year, to complement his department's regional and district offices, and the several stock brokerage information centres already operating.

But business organizations are concerned about parts of Mr. Ouellet's legislative program, and about provincial initiatives such as Ontario's draft bill to prohibit unfair practices in sales to consumers.

Some of these may be justified when it complains that it is not the responsibility of legislators "to frame laws to protect the negligent or unwilling buyer from his own folly, his own inertia, or his own cupidity or to place the onus of 'buyer beware' on the seller" (as the Better Business Bureau of Canada says in its slogan).

It is undeniable, however, that the world of commerce still abounds with incomprehensible business practices that work to the detriment of the consumer — even those many customers who think carefully before they spend.

To take only one example, the new "fuel-saving gadgets" appear on the shelves of auto supply stores every year, even though they are as worthless as the snake-oil cure-alls of a century ago.

Reputable merchandisers continue to promote the gadgets on some of them with very high price tags — to gullible car owners who believe the unfounded claims of better mileage, improved performance, cleaner emissions and the like.

As usually happens, the potential is the widespread practice of "psychological pricing." The pseudo-psychologists of the retail trade continue to believe that consumers ignore the odd cents on a $9.98 price tag.

"Congratulations. I see you've found the one you shot last year."

Prosperity In The Communist World

Poland's Ted Gierek Listens To The People

By JOHN D. HARRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The general affluence which has spread across Europe in the last few years, has not escaped the Communist East with the German Democratic Republic and now Communist Poland sharing in good fortune.

As indicated in an earlier column, the lack of civil liberties plus authoritarian rule in a country do not necessarily inhibit the growth of a consumer society. Rather given the right kind of technocrat and shrewd policy planning by a strongman to maintain tranquility, well-being can often be legislated.

This may be the case in Poland and with Edward Gierek, the former coal miner who is first secretary of the Central Committee of the Polish United Workers Party, or more correctly who is the Polish political boss and ruler.

Mr. Gierek who is sensitive to the dissatisfaction of the Polish working class after the long and oppressive Gomulka years, came to power following the serious riots in Gdansk (Danzig) in 1970.

You might say he had to be sensitive at that time, since the shipyard workers of this shipbuilding town, one of Europe's largest, were already among the most pampered in Poland.

And if they were in open revolt against the Communist system how many others in less-favored industries were ready to go, in spite of the threat of police opposition and the possibility of a 1956 Soviet-style invasion?

Mr. Gierek was, and remains a fine example of pragmatism and good politician His own industrial experience with his refusal to heed the demands of the Polish working class, is described as "workers' state" was politically disastrous and unacceptable.

During his current visit to the United States, the affable well-regarded Polish Communist boss has left behind a reinvented Poland. Goodness knows it needed rejuvenating after the sombre ideological years of Gomulka with lots of talk and refusal to change its lifestyle.

It is even reported the remaining political prisoners are few and far between, since the worker boss of the workers claims to understand what will dampen opposition is, the, regime, namely and economic hard times.

These seem to have passed away for many Poles for the first time since the end of them of a very grim Second World War.

Last July 30 on the 20th anniversary of the "liberation" of Poland, which means a date prescribed by Polish and Soviet Communist leaders when the Soviet armies entered German-occupied Poland, Mr. Gierek granted amnesty to about 140,000 "common criminals." This is surely a very relevant act in a once hard-line Polish Communist state.

In international diplomacy Poland's relations with the West are better than they have been for years, with West German and Papal relations in process of constant improvement.

The Roman Catholicism, Poland remains a frontier state facing the hard ideological frontiers of the USSR, but with a strong Catholic majority who have made church-state relations a prickly issue in the two decades of Poland as a Communist state.

There have been so-called "bread riots" before, the most noticeable one being in 1956, again following severe workers and food riots in the year of the Hungarian revolution.

But these moves by Gierek have indeed met "there" by presenting a substantial easing of the social and political order.

More Office Jobs For South African Blacks

South Africans, maligned by all and sundry for their racist policies, can also assess their own attempts at justice in this regard. Thus, while South African policy-makers often frustrate professional and industrial progress among the black population, they are quick to recognize the fingering problems of Whites elsewhere. The Black, in a recent article by Leon Kok in The South African Financial Gazette, on the emergence of black office workers, is an illustration.

A NEW phenomenon of the Johannesburg business scene is the appearance behind office desks and in entrance foyers of sleek and efficient Black female receptionists, typists, secretaries and private secretaries.

They are the newest entrants to the city's small but growing army of Blacks in white collar employ.

However, to date, this new group has not managed to penetrate the offices of Non-white firms (of which there is an increasing number) and so few White businesses (those with Non-white clientele).

Despite the apparent abundant availability of Black female applicants at relatively low, and thus competitive, salary levels, the white concerns (including those managed by businessmen who publicly claim to be liberal) are still hesitant, generally speaking, to bust on maintaining traditional barriers.

Says a spokesman for Carlton Hotels: "We get a lot of Chinese in and they are snapped up immediately. They are respected as staff. We also get quite a few Coloreds and others but we are able to place them in companies we know well. But Blacks are out of the question. What then are the barriers? They include:

Government policy, according to the Minister of Labour, Mr. Marais Viljoen, "a Black may not unnecessarily be employed in a Black area."

The break from the traditional master-servant relationships and the psychological adjustment of the sharing of facilities such as toilets, canteens would also present considerable resentment among White staffers.

Most White executives view Black education and training as not yet adequate, and in a large extent this is true.

And finally, social distances prescribed by local racial etiquette. Most White executives are reluctant to be addressed, even respectfully, with Black surnames.

Despite the "success" of job prejudice at the last Atscom congress, the former President, Mr. Neil Sawmill, said: "There are many occupations where there are neither legal nor trade union restrictions to the free employment of Blacks, but employers have hesitated to employ them because they fear, for example, that such a step might upset their customers, their White employees and also because of fear of criticism or official disapproval.

"Fear of job insecurity are groundless. The upsurge in economic activity which follows a lowering of color barriers removes artificial occupational rakes with it the standards of both Black and White.

"Prejudice, no deep, but dynamic leadership from the Government, supported by the private banking job business, industrial, religious and cultural leaders, will achieve favorable results."

Mr. Sawmill added that "the prejudices of a few should not be allowed to stand in the way of opportunity for the majority, ies so urgently needed for our very existence".

Student Aid For Honduran Needy

Letter to The Peterborough Examiner

During the current events portion of our morning exercise my grade 5 and 6 pupils have been discussing the recent hurricane disaster.

We, as generally well-to-do Canadians, do not always know what it's like to be homeless and go without food for days at a time. On Monday, Sept. 26, a note was sent home with each pupil inquiring if the parents of the following plan:

1. To go all day Thursday without food — or any kind. The children could drink water if one glass of milk, if necessary.

2. To bring a small donation (10-25 cents) to school. The money would then be given to one of the many funds set up for the Honduras people. The donation was to be earned in some way at home.

I am happy to report that the "fast" on Thursday was quite successful. About 16 of my 29 pupils received permission from their parents to participate. I, too, went the day without food. All the pupils' eyes were able to go the full distance, though others unable to resist small, outside temptations.

What is heartwarming, however, is that it was a truly worthwhile learning experience for those who actually participated. I hope that never again will they have to experience the hunger that so many children and adults face almost every day. Let them be truly appreciative of the food, the clothing, the homes, and the family they have.

Our class collected, Oct. 4, a total of $7.80. May I take this opportunity to thank my pupils and their parents for their support in this endeavor.

Politics And Delegates

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

There are a few observations I want to make re Douglas Allen's article in response to Chimmie Richard Jackson as reported Oct. 26.

I have been a delegate at two federal and two provincial leadership conventions. Although at each there were some delegates who had no previous experience in the various groups of people in our society, the vast majority of delegates were selected for their individual riding executives and were known to the party members and immediately pasted by the Constituency Association executive.

Each delegate was free to support the candidate of his individual choice. However, all delegates persuasive tactics workers for any candidate might use. Each delegate was supported by a candidate they knew or who they respected. Party lines are eliminated, and then having had the opportunity to observe the performance of the remaining candidates, continue to cast his ballot for the candidate chosen or without consulting his local member who might personally be committed to support a party other candidate for reasons he might give, if asked.

Each delegate spent time and money as a contribution to participatory democracy, but I am sure that Mr. Allen-Attorney-at-Law, Barrack, MP is opposed to this participatory system and prefers to have a leader selected by Constituency MP's and Senators only. What about the ridings presently represented by Members of other Parties? Do not active Conservative supporters in all ridings deserve to have a voice in such an important decision as the selection of a national leader?

Mr. Allen's attitude betrays respect Mr. Stanfield for his integrity and most Conservatives sympathize with him, but they question if he is giving in his thankless job the support he needs in helping leadership candidates to emerge.

I, at present, only John Diefenbaker, George Hees, Davis of Ontario and Manning of Alberta would seem to have the national appeal needed to receive consideration across Canada. To my way of thinking, Stanfield is giving the opportunity to build support.

NORMAN WHITNEY

Status Of Civil Servants

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

In a recent issue, you published a letter from Marianne Young protesting the current campaign by Ontario's 60,000 civil servants to secure more rights.

Mr. Young, it appears, has missed the entire point.

I wonder if he has read Bill 105, "The Crown Employees' Collective Bargaining Act? It denies civil servants in Ontario the same rights that the government guarantees workers in the private sector. Instead of the Ontario Labor Relations Act, it excludes them from bargaining, banning such things as classification, reclassification, promotion, demotion, layoffs, discipline, workload, and "Right to Strike or leave it". It's been a long, hard struggle to rise above that kind of treatment in this country.

What civil servants in Ontario want is simple. They want Bill 105 so that they are free to bargain on important issues of concern to them, such as employment, just as other workers in Ontario are.

A CIVIL SERVANT

Who Was Responsible ?

Editor:
The Intelligencer.

This letter is in response to the pair of comments made by "Fair Play" in his letter Oct. 26.

"Fair Play" writes of the "gang" of two boys, one of whom suffered burns to his legs.

The author makes blanket assumptions that the boys were going to burn down somebody's garage, and somehow manages to include Prince of Wales School among their targets. To top things off, the letter is not signed. The author has written something akin to "Fair Play" but has failed to sign it as well, but to someone who supposedly is interested in positive displays he lack of Fair Play on the writer's part.

Next we come to "House-holder".

Where would we be without these glorious newspapers? He or she writes of the broken windows caused by "the kids". This is deplorable vandalism. There is no proof that children were responsible, but they can be proved, there is no assurance that females could not also have perpetrated the deed. I sympathize with Householder on the damage done to the home, I feel more sympathy could be used in placing blame.

PAUL PARK,

Oil 'Hoax'

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I watched with interest and admiration the CBC National's report last evening on the world oil situation expected this year. It is apparent that last year's oil "shortage" was contrived by the major oil companies, in order to justify a 30 cent increase in the retail cost of oil products, has worked with the doubled revenues, most of this revealing or maybe embarrassing situation, can we now expect a substantial reduction in the price of fuel and other related products?

Unusual Home - in - the - round Really a Futuristic Dome

By CHRISTOPHER ALAGEY
Staff Correspondent

If you want to build a home with no mortgage, it is simple. All you need are 16 sheets of plywood, 1,000 linear feet of two by four lumber, 75 pounds of nails and $120 worth of bolts.

Plus a day's work from ten neighbours and a lot of patience. Once sheets of plywood have to be cut into 180 pieces.

That basically describes the house that Ken Bock has built, in Rawdon Township south of Stirling.

He and his wife, Karen, will have spent a total of $5,000 for their home when they move into it by Christmas. The plans for the geodesic dome, designed by Buckminster Fuller, were obtained from Popular Science.

Ken altered the plans a bit. His has rounded the dome lines just off the floor, and put a cellar underneath. The windows are half hexagons instead of full, and the doorway is mounted differently.

A central stairway will connect the cellar with the main floor, and, will run up to a second floor above the bathroom and kitchen.

By could not have extended the second floor right across the inside of the dome, Ken said, he said he wants to leave one half open to enjoy the effect of the dome. The acoustics are different, to say the least, compared to a square room.

Once the shell is built, Ken has the 1,000 square foot building with its wood stove in the cellar. Heat will rise through a central grate in the main floor, convection currents will carry the air out to cold spots, and a fan will help by sending to the cellar, where Ken thinks it will be trapped. Electricity will provide a backup heating system when the Bocks are away.

Don't forget all those nails. They are driven into the plywood pieces every two-and-a-half inches, Ken painfully remembers them. After the four windows were in place, he said his wife decided to move them for a better outlook over the hill. That two weeks working at nights to do the job.

Brother-in-law Dennis Anderson says the house is well-built. He says he has seen a helicopter pick one up by the top. Ken laughs and says his new home looks like a big pumpkin ill on a night.

The outside of the dome is covered with asphalt roofing shingles. "If I ever want to sell a job," Ken says, "Try shingling half a dozen two weeks working at nights to do the job."

Quinte Cuisine

The Intelligencer's Cash Mahaffey is proud of this pancake recipe, one that belonged "to my father and his father before him". The famous pancakes once prepared by Cash at the Canadian Home Show are still a family favorite. He adds that the pancakes are unique because they're puffy and crunchy and are really worth trying.

Dad's Pancakes

¼ cup white flour
½ cup whole wheat flour
½ cup corn meal
½ cup corn starch
six tsp. baking powder
1½ tsp. salt
2½ cups milk
one egg
one tbsp. oil

Combine dry ingredients (½ cup corn starch is the correct amount) and mix well. Beat egg and add "milk. Stir into dry ingredients and when smooth, add oil. Bake on ungreased griddle.

Do you know any good cooks? The Intelligencer is looking for cooks in the area willing to share their recipes with our readers. If you're a good cook, or if you know one, write The Women's Department, The Intelligencer. Be sure to include his or her address and phone number.

Ann Landers

'Workaholic' Beats 'Restaholic'

Dear Ann Landers: A word to the wise about "workaholic" husbands: Don't complain because their husbands are "workaholics."

You could be worse. Our daughter did. She married a "restaholic." He's a nice guy, has a new job after another became he was "bored stiff with the meaning" things at work overtime, came in on Saturdays occasionally, drove to the office in the morning. He couldn't manage to get up in time to sleep every night. On weekends he was so pooped he couldn't move (he lives, like clothes to the cleaner or empty the trash.

Since he was often "between jobs" our daughter had to leave an infant to go to work. Naturally he wouldn't lower himself to do any household chores because he was a "man," so she had it all.

The only time I ever saw the old "workaholic" stirring was when was at the table. Of course he was disgustingly overweight. She finally got rid of the bum, got custody of the baby, got a job, and is now happily married to a "workaholic" who loves his family, his children, his home and his work. Maybe he's a little boring, but he's a good provider and a decent human being. Tell your readers that "workaholics" aren't all bad. Some of us are darned proud to be married to them. — Grateful Grandma

Dear Grateful: Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I heard the following remark and was interested in how a friend of mine would react. I found pleasure and helped her gamble. Your friend got out with his income tax refund.

He took her on a beautiful trip, paid her an honorarium for her services and wrote it off, along with current expenses. Such gave him a nifty tax deduction.

How's that for a unique twist to the oldest profession? — Bookkeeper

Dear Bookkeeper: Mr. Wheeler Dealer hasn't gotten away with it yet. The revenue department knows how to find fault, examine the records of people who have "business" deductions that are questioned — and to disallow them.

Dear Ann Landers: This is urgent. Please tell me what to do about my sister. If was engaged to be married in two months. They hope it a secret until his divorce was final. Because his wife was very vindictive and threatened she would have been brutal had she known he was planning to remarry.

Two months ago the man got his final decree and the very next day he married a woman he knew less than three weeks. My sister was overjoyed to learn. She had no idea he was seeing anyone else.

Since I got the news she has gone from 125 pounds to 98. She can't eat or sleep. She has lost so much time from work she will probably lose her job. As it is, she is functioning like a robot. I don't believe she'll manage to get out of bed in the morning.

I am the only person who knows what is wrong and I've been sworn to secrecy. My sister has given her every imaginable lie and can find nothing logically wrong. The simple truth is she wants to die, and she will die unless something is done to help her. But what? Please, Ann, this is an — R.S.S.

Dear R.S.S.: Yes and I both know that she must has got in a 36-carat heel and your sister is lucky to escape with only one slice. But to get her to accept the truth is another story.

Neither is this world, can keep her alive if she wants to die. Your only chance is to accept professional help. But she must seek it. You can't drag her.

Show and Tell That You Care

by DORIS CLARK

"I know you believe you understand what I'm trying to say, but I'm not sure you realize that what you heard is not what I meant," — Anonymous.

Have you ever been misunderstood? I think it means that you have failed to communicate. They are speaking plain English are thoroughly misunderstand by the people they are talking to. And I've heard some instances of this.

Mother says to daughter: "I don't think you should go." Daughter thinks to herself: "She hates me. Never wants me to have any fun."

Mother thinks to herself: "I don't want to scare her to death with what I know about the world that's happen in these affairs. But now she thinks: I must be a spoil sport!"

Daughter says: "You never let me go anywhere!"

Both parties are thinking both could have more fun if they could only hope they will do the right thing after all. — Reg.

Dear Reg:

You hit something there; I, as a trained social worker, try to be aware of my client's every action. If some client's action, I'm sure attached. I do try to suggest how they might act, then there some alternatives and, I hope, some confidence in by.

Often I ask for a report, if I feel that writing down how things came out gives a person the nerve to make something good happen. By the way, I'd like to know just how you are handling things now. What deadlines (?) press of time influenced you?

Dear Doris; Mrs. K.H. asked for a poem; the thought was "The Little Things for Dad". This poem is actually entitled, "The Little Chap That Follows Me." The author is unknown.

I am including a copy, taken from a book entitled, "Poems That Touch The Heart— Mrs. G.F.

Dear Mrs. G.F.: Bless you! It did not take long for that one to come popping in to us.

Dear Reg: Letter copy from M.G., who found it in the back section of "Today Ministry's Treasury of Gospel Songs and Poems". It is one of her favorites.

Thank you all who have sent it in. It goes out to Mrs. K.H. right away.

Toy Sales Rise

NEW YORK (AP) — Sales of model electric trains and accessories should reach a new high of $230 million at retail in 1974, it was forecast at the annual American Toy Fair by Richard E. Grey, president of a toy company. He said 1974 retail volume will represent almost a 50-per-cent increase over the estimated $157 million for model trains in 1972 and a 35-per-cent rise over the $90 million in 1973 for racing equipment.

Nursery School in Seniors' Home

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — The old and the young have something in common. They both need companionship. What better way to meet this need than operating a nursery school in a senior citizen's home?

At Dufferin-Oakes in Shelburne, a co-operative nursery school for 15 three- and four-year-olds is in its second year of operation. This same home, equipped with an indoor pool, provides swimming facilities for retarded children and for adults in Dufferin County.

During the summer months, under an Opportunities for Youth Grant, nine teen-agers operated Connection '74, a project to integrate young and old.

The program, for rural preschoolers, was conducted in the auditorium of Dufferin-Oakes with residents of the home encouraged to participate.

Before the summer program concluded, the children were guests of the seniors at a barbecue and the senior citizens were guests of the children at a wiener roast. Mrs. Rosalind Bell-Rowbotham, administrator at the Dufferin-Oakes home, is optimistic the program will be continued next year.

She said of the program "at first I had my doubts but I would encourage it again.

According to Robert Butcher, administrator of Lynn Manor in Owen Sound, the idea of a nursery school in a senior citizens' home has some possibilities. Said Mr. Butcher: "It would need to be handled very cautiously and would need to be well programmed."

Mr. Butcher admits it's something he thought of as part of the activities division of the home. "I don't see it as a program seniors would take part in, but they would enjoy the interaction."

Sharon Parker, who came to Owen Sound from Newfoundland, Ohio, and now operates the Happy Hearts nursery school, sees the idea of an integrated program as a good experience if the nursing home had the facilities and didn't try to involve too many senior citizens. That way it could become too confusing for both children and seniors, says her opinion.

Her idea even went beyond a nursery school in a senior citizens' centre. She can envisage a program operating successfully in a high school. Such a program could help her student taking family living courses, was her view.

Ruth Hill, supervisor of the Owen Sound day nursery, supports the idea of a nursery school in a senior citizens' centre as long as it is properly set up with supervision and qualified teachers with the proper training in early childhood.

Mrs. Hill went on to explain that in her opinion too often society has everyone sit off in their own little compartments.

"There's no reason why there shouldn't be 4-day-care centre in a high school. Teens could take part or watch the children through glass. It could be set up as a regular centre with regular teachers and staff. Letting one half of the world see the other half of the world is better than reading a book."

Mrs. Hill was referring to high school students taking family life courses.

"I can see day-care centres in senior citizens' homes. I think this is the ideal. Each one helps the other. Each one gets something out of it. We've had a lot of people here who were ready to be helped at very cautiously and would to be well programmed."

Mr. Butcher admits it's something he thought of as part of the activities division of the home. "I don't see it as a program seniors would take part in, but they would enjoy the interaction."

Sharon Parker, who came to Owen Sound from Newfoundland, Ohio, and now operates the Happy Hearts nursery school, sees the idea of an integrated program as a good experience if the nursing home had the facilities and didn't try,

Hugh Hall Takes Top OMHA Award

TORONTO (Special) — Minor Hockey's top award, the OMHA Honor Award, for outstanding services to minor hockey was presented to Hugh Hall of Plantsville, Ontario, Saturday, by announcement and presentation of the award to Mr. Hall was made at the luncheon following the 41st Annual Meeting of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association.

Mr. Hall, long associated with minor hockey in Whitby becomes the 27th winner of the award.

Previous winners were John Owen, Kitchener; J. S. Elliott, St. Catharines; Bert Sullivan, Dehl, Merv Duke, Elmira, William Garner, Port Dover, Errol Russell, Sarnia, L. G. "Pop" Wheldon, Goderich, Dene Pollock, Preston, Eric Havelock, Tom Hyde, Brantford, Bob Glass, Stratford, Angus Bradley, Peterborough, Orv Hodgins, Woodstock, Gladwin Irving, Norwood, Wilmer Ainsworth, Wellington, Glen Irwin, Stratford, Harold Rivers, Forest, Bob Ewer, St. Catharines, Jim Mowat, Guelph, Bill Fissell, Gananoque, Robert R. Graham, Watford, Lesley Skipper, St. Marys, Len Bedel, Dresden, Byron Martin, Bobcaygeon, Harry Kargus, Port Dover, Alex Brown, Whitby.

In 1967, along with others, Mr. Hall donated his time to climb the rafters to help build the local arena (his second home) and in the winter, when the minor hockey organization was organized he was there.

He has been there ever since to help administer to the welfare of youth.

People would call him successful in Minor Hockey. He coached an Ontario championship team in Juvenile, and has several finalist awards. However, he himself doesn't measure success by these standards. His greatest delight in hockey was seeing that everybody played, and that they learned to play the team ahead of themselves.

Honesty was his policy, hard work and the desire to excel the backbone of his game plan, and the production of good citizens his goal.

As such, he has been a winner and because of the type of individual he is, he has preferred to stay in the background while the community is rewarded.

Second Half Outbreak Does Job for Whitley's

TRENTON — A pep talk delivered by coach Hap Hore at half time helped five Whitley lancrosse to a four-goal outburst here Sunday. The Lancers came on strong in the second half to defeat the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association's Charity Cup with a 5-1 win over Spartacus.

The wind advantage also proved beneficial to the winners, who kept Spartacus penned in their end of the pitch for most of the 45-minute half.

By NEIL CAMPBELL

Could Billy Smith and New York Islanders discovered Sunday night? It is fun to have a National Hockey League opponents learn to kick a hand.

Cutler Lifts Esks to First

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Western Football Conference may have still a tight affair a weekend in which all five teams saw action.

Saskatchewan Rideaus coiled Winnipeg Blue Bombers 24-16 on Friday night to move at five games into a strong third position overall. The win over Bobby Kuntz's crew provided almost all of the scoring with five field goals in 3 g ame deficiency.

The victory gave Edmonton pilots, now one game behind the Saskatchewan Roughriders and British Columbia Lions, a clear lead for second place.

In Vancouver, Saturday night, the Roughriders drove down the field for a touchdown with five seconds remaining to defeat the Lions 24-21.

Saskatchewan has one game left while the other four WFC teams each have two to go. The 16-game regular schedule ends with the final scheduled drive started on the Rider 37-yard line with 31 seconds remaining.

Quarterback Ron Lancaster used five plays, the longest one a 16-yard pass to flanker Bob Pearce, ending with a touchdown dive by George Reed.

Other Saskatchewan touchdowns were scored by Pearce and Tom Campeau. Brian Berg converted all three and added a field goal.

Joey Moorhead, Lou Harris and Maurice Eley scored touchdowns for the Lions who had built up a 21-7 lead. Dave Cutler, 2 of 3-6, 74-yard, 17-yard, Ivan MacMillan added three converts and Bob Lane.

The Stampeders won their second game in a row under rookie quarterback Don Pierson who replaced Starks interceptd twice in the fourth quarter to stop Argonauts offensive threats.

Tony Forzani, who took a 11-yard pass from Pierson, and Willie Burden, on a two-yard touchdown run, scored goals of 26, 18 and 22 yards and a convert.

Cutler, who has been replaced by a 26-mile-an-hour wind, connected from 27, 40, 38 and 49 yards anyway. The only other Edmonton points were provided by a safety touch by bomber kicker Wal McKee.

The game's only touchdown was scored by Bomber defensive back Dick Harris after Toronto fell on a loose ball in the Edmonton 10-yard end zone. Cutler's three field goals of 46

Corporative Greed Blamed for Inflation

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Dr. [illegible]n McDermott, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers, said Saturday that Canadian workers have not caught up to wages eroded by inflation.

Speaking at a news conference prior to a meeting of the [illegible]Union's Local 27, Mr. [illegible]Dermott said the "unbelievable greed of corporations" is largely responsible for the "[illegible]stationary spiral."

He said workers have been [illegible]eliminating huge corporate profits for too long with wages [illegible]behind prices.

"Unless labor has a chance to catch up, it's nonsensical for us government to talk about [illegible]trades on labor and wages," [illegible]said.

Rockefeller's Gift Won Kissinger's Aid

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Rockefeller says in an interview published in Time magazine that his $50,000 gift to Henry Kissinger was influential in the diplomat's decision to join the Nixon administration.

Rockefeller said in the magazine's current issue that Kissinger was reluctant to take a job in National Security Adviser Richard Nixon administration because he would be earning considerably less than he had as a consultant and Harvard professor.

Macdonald Denies Bid To Cut U.S. Oil Sales

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald denied Sunday night a published report that Canada plans to cut the amount of oil exported to the United States because of inability to agree on the development of arctic oilfields in each country.

Mr. Macdonald was commenting on reports carried in Newsweek and U.S. News and World Report.

"There is no foundation in the implication made by Newsweek magazine that because of disagreement on the development of oil reserves in the Canadian Arctic that Canada intends to curtail exports to the U.S., the min-later said in a statement.

"There has never been any question of joint development of oil reserves in the Canadian Arctic," Mr. Macdonald said. "The development of these resources will be undertaken entirely by Canadians."

The statement stated that a pipeline to Montreal from Alberta will divert to Canadian users about 200,000 barrels of Canadian oil that now goes to the U.S. by the middle of 1978.

In his statement, Mr. Macdonald said he expects bilateral discussions aimed at reaching a treaty to guarantee the "security of supplies in each country," to get under way in a "matter of weeks."

The treaty, he said, would be a "significant step toward the realization of a Macdonald-Varcoe proposal" for a "North American gas approval from both countries, it could mean access all to the U.S. and Canadian oil in certain situations.

The minister said a report, expected from the National Energy Board in about two weeks, "may recommend a reduction in oil exports, to ensure sufficient oil in the future for Canadians."

No Oil Concessions To U.S. in Mexico Plans

NEW YORK (Reuter) — An unpublished United States government study says the price of oil is likely to drop to about $7 a barrel by 1985, Time Magazine says in its current issue.

Time says that the study was prepared by the Federal Energy Commission and is due to be released in November.

The study, called Project Independent Blueprint, also predicts that if oil-producing countries maintain the present $11-a-barrel price, consumer countries likely will cut back their oil imports.

"Rather than accept declining revenues, the oil-exporting nations are likely to reduce prices to maintain their market," Time quotes the 980-page study as saying.

However, should producer countries maintain their high prices, a marginal product finds in the U.S. and the gasification and liquification of coal would become economically attractive, the study says.

In that event, U.S. oil import needs would drop to 3.5 million barrels a day by 1985 from the current 6.3 million barrels a day.

Swiss Reject Move To Expel Foreigners

The measure was proposed by a right wing group called the National Action Against Overfurnishing of People and Homeland. It was denounced by Switzerland's official, economic, political, labor and religious establishments.

The government rarely intervenes in Swiss referendums, but it said acceptance of the proposed constitutional amendment would damage the country's economy and its international reputation and possibly provoke the expulsion of 300,000 Swiss living abroad. It urged massive rejection.

The turnout in the country of 6.3 million was unusually high, as much as 75 per cent in many districts. It was the first national referendum for women, who were given the vote in 1971.

Final returns showed a count of 1,089,870 voted against the amendment to 878,739 for it, rejection by almost 70 per cent. It lost in all the 22 cantons, or states, and in the major cities including Geneva, which has the highest density of foreigners.

Proposed by Swiss Army Maj. Valentin Oehen, parliamentary leader of the rightist splinter group, the draft law would have set a limit of 200,000 foreigners for Switzerland, to be reached by Jan. 1, 1978. Passage would have meant expulsion of 340,000 non-Swiss, mostly farmhands, unskilled industrial furnishers, street cleaners, dishwashers and waiters.

Metro Chief Says Police Want to End Brutality

TORONTO (CP) — Harold Adamson, chief of Metropolitan Toronto police, said Sunday that "by far the majority" of the members of his police force want to end any police brutalities.

Toronto newspapers have published several stories alleging brutality by Metro police. Some stories said polygraph (lie-detector) tests indicated the complainants were telling the truth.

Interviewed Sunday on Toronto TV station CFTO, Mr. Adamson said Metro police want the allegations "taken care of promptly and properly because it's a reflection on other members of the force."

The police chief said that as long as the charges are not ignored they will not seriously affect good relations with the public. The province has said it will hold a public inquiry into the allegations.

Mr. Adamson said results of lie-detector tests generally have not been admitted in court.

"I think that's significant," he said.

Mr. Adamson said he supports any recruiting system that would detect persons with violent tendencies. But he said the value of psychological testing has not been proven and he will not "put in some system just to say we have psychological testing."

Toronto Youth Claims Detectives Beat Him

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail quotes a 17-year-old Toronto youth as alleging that he was beaten up by detectives as a police station here last January, when he refused to identify a companion accused of breaking a car window.

The newspaper quotes Robert Ebbier, who was 16 at the time of the alleged incident, as saying the policemen loosened his denture while hitting him on the mouth, punched him in the stomach and stomped on his feet.

The youth, who later pleaded guilty to under-age drinking—while a charge of mischievous damage against him was withdrawn—is quoted as saying police have been harassing him constantly since.

The newspaper says polygraph (lie-detector) tests given

U.S. Lawyers Use Leniency To Nixon and Agnew as Tool

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Federal prosecutors in the United States gave the leniency recorded Richard Nixon and Spiro Agnew has given people facing criminal charges a new argument in their pleas for freedom, U.S. attorneys from across the country said that defence lawyers are raising the cases of the former president and vice-president more often as they urge juries to acquit their clients and petition judges for light sentences.

Some prosecutors suspect that juries on occasion have refused to convict a defendant because of the handling of the Nixon and Agnew cases. But most say there is no sure way to determine what factors influence a jury's verdict.

The prosecutors said they see few signs that judges have changed their sentencing habits because of the Washington scandals.

The prosecutors assessed the impact of the scandals on their own cases in interviews during a four-day conference with justice department officials, personal scandals not to be named.

The U.S. attorneys say they have arguments to counter a defence lawyer's plea for leniency based on President Nixon's pardon of former president Nixon for any crimes he may already have committed in office.

Many attorneys agree that government lawyers suddenly are facing surprisingly skeptical jurors.

"Since all the troubles began, we've lost a few cases that we can't really explain. We've had a few hung juries that we can't really explain," said a western state prosecutor. "They may believe all the government witnesses are nutty because of Watergate or because of something else."

Before the Watergate scandal, defence lawyers rarely attacked the credibility of FBI agents testifying as prosecution witnesses because they felt it was impossible to convince a jury that an FBI agent could lie.

But defence lawyers now are testing the tactic more often, some lawyers said.

Fortune In Heroin Is Seized

CHICAGO (AP) — Police confiscated about $20 million worth of heroin brought from Mexico and arrested nine men and dozens of others after a brief chase Sunday. A police spokesman said he believed the shipment was one of the last to leave Tijuana, Mexico, before American forces set up an international drug smuggling ring operating from the La Mesa penitentiary.

Bomb Wrecks CN Transformer

MONTREAL (CP) — A bomb, which police said was made from ammunition destroyed a Canadian National Railways transformer and shattered about 60 windows in a nearby Quebec Liquor Board warehouse when it exploded Saturday night.

There were no injuries.

Police said the bomb exploded shortly after an anonymous telephone call warned that a bomb, placed in the CN transformer, would explode in two minutes.

Police said they have no indication of a motive for the bombs.

Picket Hospital

SIMCOE (CP) — About 150 labor representatives picketed Norfolk General Hospital here Saturday to protest the hospital board's threatened prosecution of a non-medical workers union and its president, John Adam.

The workers, members of the Building Service Workers Union, went on an 11-day walkout in July to gain wage parity with other non-medical workers in the union.

Hunter Killed

WEST MONTROSE, Ont. (CP) — James Sliminski, 30, of Waterloo died in hospital Sunday of a shotgun wound suffered in a hunting accident Saturday in a wooded area near this community's bout 10 miles north of Kitchener.

Jewelry Stolen

TORONTO (CP) — A thief broke into a room at the Hyatt Regency-Hotel Saturday and escaped with $60,000 in jewelry.

Mary Lee of Whitehouse, N.J., on vacation with her family, told police she dropped the insurance on the jewels recently when the premiums became too expensive.

No arrests were made.

Burns Way Out

Deputies said William H. Morrison, 18, of Colville, a convicted forger, escaped after burning a hole in a plastic basement window of the jail.

The plastic windows were installed recently to replace other windows shattered by prisoners, deputies said.

Wilson Intervenes In Thalidomide Row

LONDON (Reuter) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson intervened, Sunday in a row over a government decision to impose a stiff tax on the income which victims of the drug thalidomide receive from a charitable trust. The prime minister's office said Wilson was taking up "as a matter of urgency" the treasury's decision to impose a tax of 40 per cent on such income.

The treasury's decision, which was made known to the parents of Britain's 340 thalidomide-deformed children several days ago, came under attack Sunday from campaigners for handicapped children.

Labor party parliamentarian Jack Ashley described the tax as "a shattering blow" which would jeopardize the children's future and said such taxation would be "anomalous, anachronistic and unjust" in view of special tax exemptions in other countries for thalidomide-deformed children.

Distillers Co., the firm which made the drug, last year set up a trust fund of $15 million to be distributed among the victims.

The treasury's view is that it is not possible to change Britain's tax laws to give relief to the children.

School Entered At Kingston

KINGSTON (CP) — Loyalist Collegiate Institute will be closed Monday following vandalism, Bruce Warmington, chairman of the Frontenac board of education, said Sunday.

Mr. Warmington said the main reason the school is closed is because the board cannot provide adequate fire protection after the intruders, who broke in Saturday, emptied all the fire extinguishers.

He said damage to the cafeteria might be more than $1,000.

Mr. Warmington said the intruders also stole an unknown amount of money from several cash boxes.

About 1,600 students attend the school.

Construction Probe Will Be Continued

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa said Sunday threats of violence will not stop the provincial government from pressing "to the end" its investigations into the construction industry on organized crime.

"Whether there are threats or not, and there have been, some, the government will take things to their end," the Quebec premier told 800 delegates to a provincial Liberal party congress.

A key witness in the government's inquiry into construction union freedom received two telephone threats Thursday containing threats against his life and warnings by Mr. Bourassa and commission chairman Judge Robert Cliche.

Mr. Bourassa later told a news conference that his Liberal government is "the only government in the history of Quebec willing to go to the bottom of this matter.

"No matter who is involved — even if it extends to members of the Liberal party — we are ready to go all the way," he said.

Mr. Bourassa also said a weekend demonstration by 7,000 persons opposed his controversial Official Languages Act did not worry him.

"The separatists will continue to fight us with all possible dishonesty," he said. "This was just another example of their frustration as they see that we are creating a French state in North America."

Quebec Language Bill Protested by Marchers

QUEBEC (CP) — Despite a heavy rain, incidents of organizers expressed satisfaction with the outcome of a demonstration Saturday night against the Quebec government's controversial language legislation.

Francois-Albert Angers, president of the French Quebec Movement (FQM), which organized the march, told a news conference that "30,000 persons had participated in the march," 5,000 more than expected. Quebec Provincial Police estimated the crowd at 7,000.

Mr. Angers said he was pleased that people from all corners of Quebec had taken part in what he described as a "cannon shot" announcing the beginning of the fight against the legislation making French the province's official language.

Criticism Offence For South Koreans

TORONTO (CP) — "Infringement of civil liberties in South Korea is absolute, the country's constitution is restrictive in the extreme and those who seek to bring about democratic changes wind up in prison, says the top administrator of the United Church of Canada.

"The constitution makes it a criminal offence to criticize the constitution," Rev. George M. Morrison, general secretary of the general council of the United Church, said in a weekend interview.

"World public opinion must be aroused about the situation there for I think that what talks mostly to Park (President Park Chung-hee) and the Korean government is world public opinion."

Just back from a three-week visit to South Korea to study the position of Christians in that country, Dr. Morrison said the situation is one of suppressed civil liberties—a military government increasingly restricting human freedoms and a 6,000-man secret police force—officially called the Korean Central Intelligence Agency (CIA)—going around listening to people and detaining them without charge for 72 hours, that kind of thing."

Dr. Morrison was sent to South Korea by the United Church as a fraternal delegate to the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the Republic of Korea.

Heraldry Interest Proves Low

OTTAWA (CP) — There is a lack of interest on the part of the federal government in the establishment of a Canadian heraldic authority with the power to grant and confirm family arms, the Canadian Society of Canada says in its annual report.

The report, read Saturday at the society's annual meeting, said that when a brief was presented recently to a joint Commons-Senate committee, the a lack of elementary knowledge about heraldry.

As a result, the report said, mail-order houses now issue family coats of arms to Canadians "under false pretences."

The society decided to meet with the dominion archivist and suggest the establishment of a heraldic section in National Archives. Should their bid meet with approval, the new section would gather all Canadian family and business crests and other heraldic material and act as a resource consultant to the government and the public.

Takeover Asked

MONTREAL (CP) — Louis Laberge, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor, Sunday called for a government takeover of United Aircraft of Canada Ltd. without compensation to its American parent company.

He here to grab that factory—we've already paid for it," said Mr. Laberge, referring to government loans and grants received by the company which is currently faced with a 10-month-old strike by 1,600 production workers.

Gets Mandate

MONTREAL (CP) — The Union Nationale's national council Sunday extended interim party leader Maurice Bellemare's mandate until a leadership convention is held, probably in spring, 1975.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (Reuter) — Filmmaker George Peppard, answering that he is switching from acting to film directing because he can no longer get worthwhile roles, has asked to be relieved of paying alimony to his two former wives.

Peppard, one-time star of the television series Banacek, has asked to stop payments of $1,500 a month to first wife, Helen Dawes and $2,500 dollars a month to second wife, actress Elizabeth Ashley.

Peppard, 46, said in court Wednesday that since quitting Banacek in which he played suave private detective, he has earned less than $400 dollars a month and has received no worthwhile offers of parts.

NEW YORK (AP) — About 2,000 persons filled N. St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Cathedral in a heavy rain Wednesday for the funeral of showman Ed Sullivan.

Terence A. Cardinal Cooke, archbishop of New York, presided over the mass at the cathedral, who died of a coronary Sunday at the age of 73.

The wooden coffin was carried through the downpour into the huge church, including the aisle from a boat with mutants contracted in West Africa, himself in a heavy rain with a white cloth.

"For anyone who knew him even a little, no eulogy is necessary," said Msgr. James Mc Hugh, administrator of the cathedral.

Mayor Abraham Beame told reporters as he entered the church that Sullivan was a friend who gave so much to New York City and the world in making people happy.

TEL AVIV (AFP) — Sergo Klarsfeld, husband of the famous war-criminal hunter Beate Klarsfeld, has arrived in Israel to make a film about the Nazis, the Israeli resistance movement which helped him search for the big - the post-war maniacs in Palestine.

Klarsfeld said his 55-minute documentary, being made for French television, is "nothing to do with terrorism. It criticizes rather the exploits of Israeli commandos and others during the Second World War."

NEW YORK (AP) — Aside from being Broadway's first play from Canada about gay life, Mosnos' radio show also has one of the most haingly assortment on it that recently worked there.

The title is the name of a hairdresser by day and transvestite by night who has a shattering encounter with Cleo Laine as Cleopatra in emulation of Liz Taylor when he has adored for 20 years.

His leather-garde hummer boyfriend, Cutrette, shares the stage through a first act of nudity before Cleo's exit to Rome again for the finale.

The two roles are played by Richard Monette, with an obscuring accent as Hosanna, and Richard Donat as a sloppy bed chum.

The production was directed by Bill Glasco, who runs Toronto's Tarragon Theatre and did the translation with John Van Burek.

Hosanna is no cause for hallelujah.

NEW YORK (AP) — Pianist Vladimir Horowitz, 70, said Monday he will help the Metropolitan Opera by giving the first solo concert there Sunday, Nov. 24.

Horowitz said he read about the opera's financial troubles and decided to help. Some 70% of the 3,700 tickets will be turned over to the Opera Guild to sell for double the price, with all proceeds to the hall.

Horowitz retired from the concert stage in 1953, played a comeback concert in Carnegie Hall in 1965 and has not now played in New York for six years.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Charlie Rich, the Silver Fox of country music, has been named entertainer of the year by the Country Music Association.

Rebel Dennis Milsap and British-born Australian Olivia Newton-John were named top male and female vocalists respectively Monday night.

Rich also won the album-of-the-year award for Very Special Love Songs.

Milsap is best known for his recording Please, Don't Tell Me How The Story Ends. The award was presented jointly by Lynn Anderson and Jimmy Dean, host of Springhill, N.S.

Sweetheart Tammy Wynette and Loretta Lynn won the top vocal duo award for the third time.

NEW YORK (AP) — Xaviera Hollander, the self-styled Happy Hooker, has won a court battle to block the removal of her name from the title of a film that is based on her autobiography.

State Supreme Court Justice Martin Stecher of Manhattan granted her motion Wednesday in a suit she filed against the producers and distributors of the movie The Life and Times of Xaviera Hollander.

Miss Hollander, whose book describing her life as a madam sold more than six million copies, said the film "is devoid of any events or details of my life."

BERLIN (AP) — Jewish historian Joseph Wulf, who chronicled Nazi persecutions on the Third Reich act, leaped to his death Thursday from his West Berlin apartment, police said.

They said Wulf, 61, was suffering from mental depression.

Wulf was best known for a series of books on art, music, literature, theatre and mass media during the Third Reich.

He also published works on Nazi leaders and persecution of Jews.

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the first atomic songs, produced in the United States concerning the principle error, brought $42.00 at an auction ending Thursday at A Manhattan gallery.

The error was made in printing the first sheet of 100 stamps. It was originally from the collection of the late Col. E. H. R. Hil, a wealthy financier, philanthropist for the Robert A. Siegel Gallery said.

AT THE PARK — In Color — This is the story of a man who is a hairdresser by day and a transvestite by night who has a shattering encounter with Cleo Laine as Cleopatra in emulation of Liz Taylor when he has adored for 20 years. His leather-garde hummer boyfriend, Cutrette, shares the stage through a first act of nudity before Cleo's exit to Rome again for the finale.

The two roles are played by Richard Monette, with an obscuring accent as Hosanna, and Richard Donat as a sloppy bed chum.

The production was directed by Bill Glasco, who runs Toronto's Tarragon Theatre and

Organist Reveals Depth of Ability

By EUGENE LANG

Sparse was the congregation in attendance Saturday evening to hear an organ recital given by the new organist of Christ Church, Herbert Ciceri.

Mr. Ciceri played a program touching upon components of the last three centuries who were noted for their musical output in the realm of works for organ.

Sustained sonority wrestled with the melodic line of Haydn's Plein Jeu. Piercing trumpet stops carreened in the regal approach given the John Stanley Trumpet Tune. The Prelude, Fugue and Variation by Cesar Franck was treated to a rendition showing careful attention to the inherent details that crowed the score. Bach's Prelude in F Minor brought out rich and resonant registrations.

The Passacaglia in E Minor by Josef Rheinberger was perhaps the bigest challenge for the recitalist, but he managed a finely-wrought interpretation of the theme. J. S. Bach's Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring, however, was the one laboured in handling of triplets that should have flowed effortlessly.

The Sicilienne of Maria-Theresa von Paradis also could be cited for lack of detail in the new organist's grasp — again too arched in treatment. The Toccata from Widor's Fifth Organ Symphony demonstrated the technical accomplishment of the young performer. Steady pace was maintained in this familiar showpiece although one short stumbling gap was noticed. All told, a successful recital by a gifted musician.

"Four teen-age girls, consisting of Jayne Burns, Gayle Carmack, Jill Easterbrook and Orlea Wood blended their voices in the familiar Canon in Thomas Tallis and a modern setting of the Ave Maria by Irving Dutch composer Fay Peters.

Sensitive were their vocalizations, although some cadences in the former selection seem clipped. Nor, John Uttley introduced soloist and choristers to the nearly 90 interested listeners in Attendance.

Rhythm 'n' Blues Singer Popular with White Crowds

NEW YORK (AP) — Esther Phillips — Little Esther she was known as then—was touring around the country, singing rhythm 'n' blues before there was any rock 'n' roll.

She's still touring around the country now, singing rhythm 'n' blues. Her style hasn't changed, she said, just the background arrangements have been modernized somewhat.

She currently is appearing in primarily white clubs, like New York's Bitter End; trying to get more of an audience interested in her and her most recent record Performance, on Kudu.

"But we always used to draw white kids. I was on the Johnny Otis Show, doing one nighters. He had Big Joe Turner and Eddie (Cleanhead) Vinson, and we'd play dances in the South. The white kids had to sit in the balcony. If they got to drinking beer, they'd want to come down and the authorities would stop the dance and we'd have to leave then, which was a drag.

"That goes to show that even in 1948 and 49 everybody wasn't prejudiced. They wanted to come down to join the blacks on the floor at a dance."

Miss Phillips likes all the records she has made for Kudu, her most recent one — From a Whisper to a Scream, Home Again, Naturally and Black-Eyed Blues. From Performance, she has a single out, such a Night, a Dr. John tune. She also likes And I Love Him, which Ray Ellis arranged, and The Country Side of Esther Phillips, which included the single, Release Me, both on Atlantic.

The sister dressed me up to look older. She and a girlfriend needed money to go to a show. I was $10 and they gave me $1 and took me back home. They cleaned my face up so my mother wouldn't know and they took $9 and left.

"My mother found out and she beat me — that as I thought she'd be. I started singing with amateur shows around all the time to keep me in school as he wanted or if she'd married and never gone on the road at all. Her sister, who dressed her up for the amateur show, works for the United States Internal Revenue Service.

She was young and small, 4 feet 1, when she started, so she was called Little Esther. "I recorded Release Me in Nashville, and I was on the way back from the airport into Houston, I'd been thinking for awhile I didn't want to [illegible] songs; so more. We stopped at a gas station. I kept looking at the name of it and I said to my name with it. Esther Phillips. That sounded good. I started using the name Phillips. For about a year, I used Little Esther Phillips, and finally dropped the Little.

Soprano Gets Award

TORONTO — Young Canadian soprano Janet Field has been given the Canadian Opera Company's 1974 Jean A. Chalmers award of $1,000.

The award, given to a member of the Canadian Opera who has shown great promise either as a performer or in the area of opera production, was presented to Miss Field by Dr. Torel, the company's general director, for a recent performance of Mussorgsky's Boris Godunov at the O'Keefe Centre.

A student of the opera department of the University of Toronto's Faculty of Music, Miss Field studied voice at the University of Brandon before coming to Toronto in 1971. She has appeared in the comedy roles in Winnipeg and in opera workshop productions with the Toronto Opera Repertoire.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

MONDAY, OCT. 21

Aries (March 21-April 19): You will become too easily distracted today when you find the first attempt toward what you want to achieve falling short. Be extra-tenacious.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): You tend to put on a front at this time by not telling another the bare bones of something that's bugging you. It's best to open up.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): This is not the time to neglect your business interests or any person you are obligated to. Face up to them.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Today and tomorrow do all in your power to assure that harmony prevails in situations directly affecting you and your mate.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): The next few days you'll be tempted to shirk certain responsibilities due to their tiresomeness. Any other plans you're considering.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You'll cause a lingering problem with an older friend of yours if you plan something special and exclude her. Let her know she's welcome.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23): Even persons who are extremely fond of you won't be too tolerant now if you act more than you usually from them. Make reasonable requests.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22): Avoid the company of one who has a way of cooling off your hot ideas. Seek others who have a more open mind.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21): One who knows it's difficult for you to turn her down is apt to impose upon you again in some manner unless you're extra careful.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Self-doubts make it difficult for you at this time to make speedy decisions. Questioned it's just as bad to be overly cautious.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19): Nothing will be gained by making another postponement of an unpleasant responsibility that needs attention now. Get going.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20): A person who harbors a resentment toward you will be present at an activity you'll be attending. Treat her civilly at all costs.

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Jim: "South takes the first trick with dummy's ace of hearts and leads the jack of trumps. East plays the six and West South has the wrong form of greed, he will let Jack ride for a finesse. If it works South will suspect, to quote Hoyle's tricks, but if it goes to fail West will lead a second heart. South will have lost the finesse and his contract.

Oswald: "The right kind of greed will tell South to play safe. He will play with the king of trumps, cash the ace of clubs after. Eventually the defenders will collect two tricks and a diamond but South will be home with game and rubber."

Jim: "This particular trump safety play would have cost South a trick against a 3-3 trump break and two tricks if East had held the queen of trumps. But in rubber bridge you play for your contract and only go after overtricks when the contract is safely home."

Asthma Poses Tonsil Problems

By G. C. THORTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thoteson: My son, 12, has chronically infected tonsils, which his doctor feels should be removed. He gets three or four tonsil infections a year.

However he has asthma and one throat specialist said he never would remove tonsils from a asthmatic child since there is a possibility the asthma will get worse.

Another specialist I took him to said he didn't believe this and the tonsils should be removed. I am at my wits' end.— Mrs. J.T.

I agree that the question of one or throat surgery is an asthmatic child is controversial. You have seen three doctors; two are for removal, one against. I'd cross my fingers with the majority opinion, too, but there are one or two observations that may help.

The question should be approached cautiously because asthma may be temporarily improved but return later, or a mild case may become more severe.

How then to decide? Weigh the necessity of correcting the tonsils. Infected tonsils sometimes be controlled with antibiotic medication. If so, then why accept the possible risks of surgery?

But if the tonsils are of very large size causing symptoms of poor drinking and eating, or are swallowing, can be infectious) then the risk (as related to surgery) must be balanced by the high risk that the tonsils are very likely going to cause more problems of which impaired hearing is not the least.

One precaution to keep firmly in mind: tonsillectomy should not be done during an "asthma season." particularly in hay fever season although the "asthma season" for all patients is not the same. And as a standard rule of the past, the late summer, when pollen-count is not likely to be prevalent, is not a time for tonsil removal. That, however, is tempered by the wise use of polio vaccine, I trust that your son has been vaccinated against polio.

Dear Dr. Thoteson: About two weeks ago I fell down my basement stairs. My right side hurt me for a couple of days, so I went to my doctor. He took an x-ray and found I had two cracked ribs. He said there was nothing he could do as they don't bandages you up any more. Is this so? He said to keep working as I have been and gave me a prescription for pain pills.—A.J.C.

It's true that a simple crack isn't automatically taped or bandaged, because it will heal on its own.

But a binding can restrict the movement of the chest wall and in that way lessen pain. In other words, the severity of pain is pretty reliable indicator of what needs to be done. If you have intolerable pain/and you didn't go to the doctor for "a couple of days" then I see no need to do anything more. But if the pain is considerable, some restriction in your usual physical activity may be necessary until healing takes place in the ribs.

Wash Brings Business

MONTREAL (CP) — Oil company officials say adding a car wash to an existing service station increases business by at least 10 per cent to 25 per cent. The cost of fully-automated car-washing equipment costs from $25,000 to $75,000 with water recycling systems an additional $20,000.

Ignore Funds

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec industries are applying for only a small percentage of federal government funds available for combatting pollution, Jeanne Sauve, federal minister of environment and fisheries, has told the Quebec Union of Municipalities.

Davis Makes Pledge

No Tax Increases Ahead in Ontario

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario has no plans to increase provincial taxes in the near future, Premier William Davis said Monday.

"As far as municipal mill rates are concerned it will depend on what we feel we can do for the municipalities and to what extent they themselves can reduce their level of expenditure or at least maintain their level of expenditure," he said.

The premier made the statement in an interview Monday, three years to the day after his Progressive Conservative party rolled to an overwhelming victory in the last election.

He said that, as the fourth session of the 29th legislature nears, budget, government priorities will be to get ministerial spending estimates through the house and deal with 75 new pieces of legislation.

The government would attempt to maintain ceilings on education and health spending in an effort to control governmental spending. The deficit in the Ontario budget this year was expected to be in excess of $600 million.

Ontario has gone ahead as far as it can to control inflation on a provincial basis, he said.

"In terms of further steps we can take it is very hard to identify what they would be because it's very difficult for a single province to operate (against inflation) in isolation."

Mr. Davis can't foresee a balanced budget in the near future. "We're going to try and keep it within manageable proportions . . . don't see it turning around at this stage."

The encouraging thing was that even with inflationary pressures and an unstable situation in the international market place, Ontario had the highest possible credit rating in the international market place, something which no other provinces had.

Despite the deficit, Ontario is wealthier because of the capital expenditures undertaken by the provincial government, he said.

The deficit "is not something you would want to see prolonged over the next five or 10 years but at the same time it is not a significant problem."

"I would just say we have achieved that (credit) rating. If anyone who looks at these things objectively had thought it was a problem," he said.

Judicial Inquiry Planned Of Police Brutality Charges

TORONTO (CP) — Solicitor-General George Kerr said Monday the Ontario cabinet has decided that a judicial inquiry will be conducted into allegations of police brutality among the Metropolitan Toronto force.

Mr. Kerr said Monday's cabinet meeting ruled in favor of a judicial royal commission rather than an inquiry conducted by the Ontario Police Commission.

Possibility, he said, was a Supreme Court justice lead the inquiry if he said.

Mr. Kerr said the scope and terms of reference of the inquiry will be laid down in an order-in-council later this week.

The royal commissioner will be given comprehensive with plenty of public hearings to produce "a truly complete inquiry," Mr. Kerr said.

The inquiry would not be integrated with other judicial inquiries under way on similar problems.

The new inquiry will have a broader scope than the inquiries into allegations of guard brutality at Toronto's Don Jail and into police conduct during a drug raid at a Fort Erie, Ont., hotel, Mr. Kerr said.

All Ten Premiers OK Inflation Talk

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's call to the provincial premiers for a meeting on inflation has received an affirmative reply from all 10 first ministers.

Mr. Trudeau's office confirmed Friday that the prime minister had set Oct. 30 as the date for the meeting, designed to find a co-operative means of tackling the major economic issues confronting the entire nation.

Ontario Premier William Davis said Monday he plans to attend the conference, which will be preceded by meetings by the provincial and federal governments will be the prime topic of discussion.

However, Mr. Davis said he doubted that the conference would "get around to any discussion of federal-provincial sharing of revenues."

Premier Ed Schreyer of Manitoba said Monday he welcomed the decision of the prime minister — especially since the next official conference of provincial government heads will be in Winnipeg — but he scheduled until early next year. Mr. Davis's budget has been brought down.

Premier Dave Barrett of British Columbia said Monday Mr. Trudeau for calling the conference and added: "He changed his mind and that's the sign of a good politician."

The prime minister had said last month in Calgary that such a meeting was pointless.

Frank Moores of Newfoundland, Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick's Richard Hatfield, Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia, Alan Blakeney of Saskatchewan and Alberta's Peter Lougheed all confirmed Monday when reached that they plan to attend.

Swede Cautious About Restraints

VANCOUVER (CP) — Too much anti-inflationary restraint by the world's industrial nations could lead to widespread economic stagnation, Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme warned Monday.

In a speech to the Canadian Club, the prime minister urged "the industrial countries, with strong positions" to relax their policies of restraint or shift to expansionary ones.

The potential inflationary effect of more expansionary policy, he said, could be neutralized through fiscal measures with a direct impact upon prices.

Elaborating later at a news conference, Prime Minister Palme said the fiscal measures he was referring to include selective price controls, such as those now in Sweden for an 18-month period.

Countries like the United States, which have tried price and wage-controls have not continued the price controls because they do not work.

The prime minister advocated long-term price controls, with government subsidies where needed for agricultural production to keep food prices down.

Sharp Says Parley Not Summit

OTTAWA (CP) — Acting Prime Minister Mitchell Sharp denied Monday that the government has plans or is under pressure to hold an economic summit meeting.

"We've already indicated the approach should not be summit-ry," Mr. Sharp said in reply to reporters' questions about the scheduled Oct. 30 talks between Prime Minister Trudeau and the premiers.

"We're not calling everyone together and raising expectations of any immediate solution."

PM's Wife Recovers After Fainting Spell

PARIS (CP) — A momentary fainting spell by Margaret Trudeau slightly marred an otherwise triumphant morning for Prime Minister Trudeau as he continued his official visit here today.

While Trudeau was holding talks with French Premier Jacques Chirac, Mrs. Trudeau went to an exhibition of impressionist paintings with Mrs. Valery Giscard d'Estaing, wife of the French president.

Mrs. Trudeau, stylishly-dressed in a black dress with a white turtle-neck blouse, fainted at the exhibition but was immediately taken to her hotel.

She later attended an official welcome by the city of Paris where she heard her husband describe himself as "a disciple of Paris."

Observers said Trudeau's speech received unusually warm applause.

Earlier Monday, Trudeau and French Prime Minister Jacques Chirac agreed that joint energy problems should be further studied.

Meetings between Trudeau and the French prime minister seemed to indicate a basic agreement among French and Canadian officials that a working group would be set up to look into development of uranium, coal and oil resources in Canada.

Armed Forces Face Slowdown

Planes Won't Fly or Parachutists Jump - - It's Too Costly

OTTAWA (CP)—The armed forces have been rung down to land-slow ahead for the next few months while the government decides how and where to cut costs, informed sources say.

All but essential operations have been cancelled, means, that ships will spend more time than usual at the dock, planes on the ground and trucks in the parking lot.

Exercises scheduled for as far north as the Caribbean and as far north as the Arctic Circle, among others, have been cancelled as the forces attempt to live with an inflation-hit budget.

It is known that when elements of the Canadian Airborne Regiment return to Edmonton from Cyprus in December, they will not even be allowed to practise parachute jumping.

Aircraft and ships will be operated at a minimum consistent with safety. Air crews must spend a minimum time in the air and engines, to be kept up to efficiency, must be used.

Meanwhile, spending on such things as replacement for aged trucks, some of which have been rattling around for 20 years, has been deferred along with other equipment.

And hiring of casual civilian labor, about 8,000, persons a year usually, is to be drastically cut in future spending.

The squeeze is on until the government brings down its budget for the 1975-76 fiscal year, beginning next April.

By that time the government will have decided how much money it will be willing to spend in sustaining a "modern" force that Defence Minister James Richardson says must be cut to size but be well equipped. The government must decide which military tasks can be reduced so that the smaller force can operate effectively.

The squeeze is the result of $98 million in cost-cutting lopped off the defence estimates by Gen. J. A. Dextraze, chief of defence staff, as he sought the government plans to work out an economy program.

The government allowed that this year's defence expenditures to rise to about $3.5 billion from about $2.86 billion but some of that increase had to go to a $200-a-year inflation allowance that public servants and the military received in the spring — $100 million, it is explained by some sources. Gen. Dextraze took what apparently was unilateral action in allowing the size of the forces to drop about 2,000 below authorized strength as an economy device, but Mr. Richardson then pulled the rug from under the general by making permanent what the general had planned as a temporary measure.

The authorized level of the forces is in excess of 83,000. But generally about 1,000 of these are regarded as being part of the effective strength of the forces.

Today the forces are down slightly more than 79,000, Mr. Richardson has said for the rest of this year the size will be allowed to be in the 79,500-79,800 area.

Mr. Richardson has indicated that cabinet may prune a little from the basic tasks of internal security, defence of North America, NATO and peacekeeping. And he would like to bring home a few hundred Canadians from Cyprus.

Students to Investigate Museum as 'Resource Centre

PICTON — A step toward development of the Prince Edward County museum as a functional centre, open years round to students of Hastings-Prince Edward County when school principals and 11 student leaders met with committees of the county board of education. Purpose of the visit is to expose them to the exhibits for future assessment of their relevancy.

Mr. McNeil says principals and teachers cannot be told to use the museum in their curriculum but if its facilities really support class room work it might be "great" as a teaching aid.

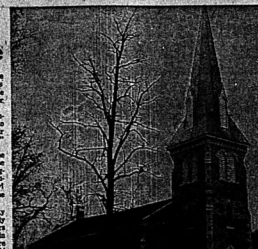
If kept open on a year-round basis, the county museum would ideally become a community centre where small groups such as the Prince Edward Historical Society, could meet, says Mr. Musgrove.

A re-organization of the museum's financial lot has been discussed to permit use of this section for meetings or art displays.

The educational committee is extremely anxious to have the museum at a year round basis, Mr. Musgrove comments Mr. Musgrove.

He observed most of the summer visitors to the museum are tourists and suggests by making it a community centre local residents could derive optimum use of the facilities.

The Prince Edward County museum was opened officially in 1973 and this year visitors approximately doubled in number. The exhibits are housed in the former Old Church of St. Mary Magdalene where the chancel has been restored as part of the museum's display.



Study Centre ?

Prince Edward County museum could, in addition to small community centre, open year round if schools and organizations can find use for its resources, last week Prince Edward County elementary principals and a student liaison committee were told by museum director Jim Musgrove.

A spokesman for the Wil-O-Lea Cottages of RR3, Milford, comments trade this summer was "as brisk as any year since we've been in business".

He reports no decline in the number of American visitors at his resort even adds all former American patrons made reservations for the 1974 season. The 12 cottages at Wil-O-Lea and the inland motor were completely booked.

At Cove Beach resort, near Cherry Valley, a spokesman reported a busy trailer park during most of tourist season.

In his first year of operation he says he has no basis for comparing the 1974 summer with other seasons.

Fines Go Unpaid

STIRLING — Council decided ed Monday night that persons not paying $2 parking fines "may be issued a summons" to appear in court.

The village bylaw enforcement officer has four he can't collect without further expense, so he gave the problem to council.

Municipal lawyer John Milne said that if council ignored the matter, soon everybody would be illegally parking. He advised the municipal clerk to write the owners of the four tagged cars and in the meantime add to the bylaw to prepare a report for the incoming council on the matter.

Reeve Wants Better Fire Communications

Clerk Bob Hollis said that a staff memorandum from Belleville was "quite concerned" that the OPP was not notified about a fire which occurred recently at two a.m.

"I don't know why they didn't hear the siren" the reeve said "they always say they are not too far away." The reeve, who attended the early morning fire for an hour until it was safely extinguished said he did not see a policeman on the site. The fire was on Highway 33 which runs through the heart of the village.

In future, for traffic control at fires, Stirling council is going to ask Belleville city firemen to alert the OPP. Fire emergency calls ring in Belleville, and the alarm in Stirling is activated from the city.

Stirling's volunteer force has moved into new quarters and the reeve said he is concerned about the communications system.

Previously, the fire hall was located across the street from Fire Chief Graham Mauck's residence and is back up the alarm siren his wife phoned all the men to make certain there were enough present to fight the blaze.

Mrs. Mauck also had access to the radio so she could tell a staff member with the men at the fire. She could ascertain if more men were needed or if the blaze was under control. The reeve said she was concerned because she could only phone now.

Councillor Wayne Martin suggested that a study be carried out on the radio and telephone communications system. Council agreed to ask the fire department to have the Ontario Fire Marshall's office come up with a recommendation.

Officials to Approve Dundas Bridge Study

TRENTON — Council will formally okay $13,900 engineering study of the Dundas St. bridge next week as a first step to possible major repairs or replacement of the Trent River span.

The study, the least expensive of two presented to Monday's committee of the whole session, will provide council with a cost estimate for both repairs and replacement. A report detailed study would have cost the town $25,000.

Called potentially dangerous by engineer Gordon Monaco, the swing bridge now operates without brakes. The Totten, Slow, Rubicki Associates Ltd. consultant told the committee that most now put the brakes between the stop the structure from swinging. The action strips teeth from the mechanism.

Mr. Aleong added that the swing bridge is currently moving on its central pivot and not on the roller-rail assembly that should normally support it. Lack of safety gaps around electrical equipment and on ladders are also concerns.

Concrete and steel structures have also deteriorated, he said.

Concern over the age of the bridges prompted council to seek the study.

Inspection of the bridge revealed repairs are possible, but it is unknown what they would cost the town.

Engineer George Totten said costs are unpredictable. By way of illustration, he said the Belleville to Rossmore swing bridge, almost the same size as Trenton's, would have cost $40,000 to repair.

He said has firm conducted a study of the span for the province. The Belleville — Rossmore causeway is now under study by Queen's Park.

The unknown cost factor, coupled with a possible need for a bigger bridge to handle growing traffic, made council opt for the second, less detailed study.

The decision followed assurances by Mr. Totten that it would suffice if replacement of the existing bridge is considered by council.

"The second alternative would give enough information that it would give us costs for repair or replacement," he said.

Mr. Aleong said the need for a new bridge would have to be justified to the province for subsidy purposes.

Council Approves Neighborhood Study

By AL TARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Trenton council authorized Town Clerk O.W. Larry Mooney to begin immediate talks with a Toronto research firm that could lead to federal and provincial Neighborhood Improvement Program (NIP) funds flowing into Trenton.

The firm, Environics Research Group Ltd., also asked council for assistance by letter in mapping Trenton with specific attention being paid to residential areas in need of possible upgrading.

Environics would prepare Trenton's submission for NIP funds to the provincial housing ministry prior to the Dec. 1 deadline. Specifically, it would recommend neighborhood selection and suggest plans to implement improvements.

Costs for neighborhood upgrading are subsidized 50 per cent by the federal government, 25 per cent by the provincial government and the remainder by the town.

During council's committee of the whole session Monday the clerk was authorized to bring immediate negotiations with the firm. To qualify for NIP funds in 1975, this year's deadline must be met.

In other business, council passed on a request for a $500 grant from the Belava Ski Club to the town recreation committee for study.

In other business, council passed on a request for a $500 grant from the Belava Ski Club to the town recreation committee for study.

In so doing, it noted any possible funds would have to be handled through the recreation committee under provisions in the Board of Education Act. According to the Municipal Act, Trenton cannot grant funds, a club in another municipality.

In a letter to council, club president Ken Lake said the lack of snow the last two years coupled with recent expenditures have drained club coffers. The grant, requested from several other local municipalities, would finance lessons, rental and capital expenses — such as the Wednesday Dandy Dan and kiddy tow.

Council decided to delay further action on the Dewfosse-Weaver subdivision in Trenton's west end until a local resident Fred Gainforth of 477 Dundas St. West, attempts to get an easement on his property from subdivider. Councillors gave Mr. Gainforth a week to negotiate access to property he called locked-in.

Mr. Gainforth said his home, now without sewers, will not get the service under the new layout of the subdivision. A previous draft of sub division would have allowed a sewer hook up.

Liberal Head Steps Down

MADOC — Charles Bates, president of the Hastings provincial Liberal Association, will not seek another term in office.

Mr. Bates, Melrose farmer and prominent district political organizer, has been president of the group for the last four years. Through the years, he also was president of the federal Liberal association in the riding.

Earlier this year, he was elected vice-president of party organization in eastern Ontario. He supervises a political territory from Toronto to the Quebec border — a task which is time-demanding, Mr. Bates said today.

As a result, he now must retire from direct involvement with the local association, he said.

His successor will be chosen Wednesday night at Madoc, where the organization holds its annual meeting in the area elementary school.

Electoral boundary adjustments designed as an expansion of Hastings riding to include several townships in Peterborough constituency.

Such changes have yet to be approved, Liberals from the Peterborough riding area proposed for new organization, have been invited to the Hastings meeting, Mr. Bates said.

The association will also name delegates to the Liberal party's annual meeting in February.

Guest speaker for the association meeting will be Sylvia Sutherland, of Peterborough, federal director for eastern Ontario.

Resort Owners Pleased With Tourist Season

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Writer

PICTON — Prince Edward tourist resort operators this week described their 1974 season enthusiastically with phrases such as "didn't coolies of Canadians" and "a very good year".

Merle Pearsall, owner of Merland Park Motor Court on Glenora Rd., Monday closed her housekeeping cottages following a highly successful five-month season.

Miss Pearsall this year advertised her resort in Quebec with excellent results. Many Quebeckers, some of them French — Canadians — arrived at her cottages for a holiday. She says they enjoyed Prince Edward's sand beaches.

"We should advertise more in Quebec," observes Miss Pearsall, a director of the Quinte's Isle Tourist Association.

Although Miss Pearsall welcomed "coolies of Canadians" she blames former U.S. president Richard Nixon for discouraging vacationers from the United States.

She says he told Americans during the energy crisis that even their Canadian neighbors were taking energy from them. The resort operator notes a rebuttal from Prime Minister Trudeau, who stressed Canada was exporting oil to the eastern states.

Miss Pearsall said she feels Americans who believed Nixon's statements felt resentment toward Canada and may have decided against a vacation here.

She clipped newspaper quotes of Trudeau's remarks and forwarded them to American patrons of her resort.

Miss Pearsall said she feels Prince Edward's tourism would benefit from a spring promotional program in May or June when business is slow. She observes the weather is usually good at this time of year but there is nothing to attract tourists.

The tourist operator must open at the start of the season and pay employees during this slack period but it usually represents a two-month deficit. If help were not hired until the peak of the season, it could prove difficult to find staff.

"We have to look at this as a business and run it as a business," she emphasizes, discussing tourism.

She said she considers the Cold Cup Race held in September at Hayward Lake Beach as a major step in promoting tourism.

"I had a terrific business," she says.

Winter recreation to promote a longer tourist season is supported by Miss Pearsall but she observes she and many other long-time resort operators lack deep enough plumbing facilities for the cold weather.

She recommends new resorts be built with pipes sunk deeper to avoid freezing and permit year round operation.

Mrs. Glen Jones, who with her husband operates Picton Bay Motel, considers 1974 a "very good year" comparing favorably with 1973.

Her business appeared to be fewer Americans seeking accommodation and added there were also fewer American cruisers stopping at the James' marina. She says, may have been prompted by high gas prices and wet season. This year, most American crafts arriving at the marina were sail boats.

A longer tourist season is difficult in Prince Edwards says Mrs. James, as snowfall is not a dependable factor.

On the immigration issue it seems the minister concerned, Robert Andras, is on his own at the cabinet level in believing the time has come to cut back on the numbers entering Canada.

The spectre of rising unemployment as more come to Canada, pressure on social services, and what could be worse, the possibility ultimately of racial trouble, evidently do not concern other members of the cabinet.

A Cabinet source, quoted by The Globe and Mail, was very revealing as to the political leanings of the Trudeau government as they affect immigration policy among other things.

Explaining Cabinet opposition to the Andras plan, he said: Bob was always pretty right-wing and he hasn't kept up with the move to the left in Cabinet."

The Left! So that's it. An explanation too for a lot of things that have emerged during the Liberal tenure in Ottawa. The absorption of Chilean refugees following the overthrow of the Allende government, so-called humanitarian aid to people in regions controlled by "liberation" movements in Africa, to name some.

If a move to the Left involves an active interest and compassionate role in feeding the hungry and improving standards of living there should be no grounds for that. But it is should mean ultimately a drift toward Big Brother philosophies, elimination of the middle class and private enterprise, then we should have no part of it.

How far the Trudeau government proposes to go along this road should be the personal concern of every Canadian. In particular it should be the concern of those who believe that left-wing philosophy, carried to the extreme, is the kiss of death where personal freedom and individual and corporate enterprise are concerned.

UK Hangs On

Back in the days when Britain was in the front rank of world powers, when inflation was not even a cloud on the horizon, the economic rallying cry there was "Buy British."

British goods were synonymous with good quality and durability, whether it was an automobile or an article of clothing.

This image has been muddied somewhat over the years, and while it is still possible to buy first-class British products, competition from other countries today is much greater.

Still, Britain soldiers on and even though Prime Minister Wilson predicts a "hell-of-a-fight" in the next six months, it is difficult to envisage anything in the nature of economic collapse.

Indeed, current economic indicators say things are a little improved, with a slight drop for instance in the price of raw materials in the UK. And there have been export orders of late worth some $422 million for the British Aircraft Corporation's low-level anti-aircraft missile system.

Britain still does a lot of business overseas, and this, coupled with the expected North Sea oil bonanza, ultimately should mean a large measure of recovery for Britain. Provided, that the country increases its production and improves its marketing expertise.

A Canadianism

"Togey Past $1.5 billion," the heading on a recent news story concerning unemployment payments in the first eight months of 1974, has drawn a query from a Kingston reader as to the derivation of the term "togey."

"A Concise Dictionary of Canadianisms has this to say: "Although the ultimate origin of this term is obscure, it became current in Canada and was in general use throughout the country in a variety of applications, all related to the widespread public-relief programs." For one thing, it was hobo slang for "workhouse."

Defence Dilemma

Fumbles By Ottawa, High Operating Costs, And Politics

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

As if lack of identity and public indifference were not enough, our men in uniform are now confronted by a shortage of recruits, milk costs more than ever the government has ended its subsidy of five cents a quart) and bread, eggs and most meats are out of sight.

But—at least the price of the Canadian soldier needn't soothe the consumer's inflation-battered nerves is likely to come down at some drug stores.

Since Sept. 1, pharmacists in Ontario, some 1,200 huge installed in Ontario's Drug Benefit Commissioner's new province's free-drug program, have been required to charge the public the least expensive product in a group of interchangeable drugs.

For example, if the province has ruled that seven brands of a tranquillizer are of equal therapeutic value it will pay the pharmacist the price of the cheapest, even if the pharmacist chooses to dispense the more expensive—which might cost five times as much.

This, it is expected, could lead to a levelling-off of price of drugs not only for welfare recipients but for the rich consumers generally, and possibly even the provincial coffers.

Better still would be some non-pharmaceutical relief from the cost of living.

But the prospects of any significant easing in the growth of the cost of living remain slim.

The current consensus of economic thinking seems to be that Canada's consumer price index will rise by some 10 per cent next year, vs. about 13 per cent in 1974.

The food sector represents one-quarter of the consumer price index, but will have accounted for half of the increase in the cost of living by the time 1974 is over.

Contributing to that growth, for every shopper knows, has been the substantial increases in the cost of everything from salt drinks to bolter and other dairy products, as well as in sugar, eggs and bread.

Not to come, in all probability, any time soon, but certainly third in the prices of processed foods and vegetables and a future in pork prices because of reduced supplies and the accelerated kill cost of feed.

The outlook is no more encouraging in other areas.

Housing, for example, accounts for almost one-third of the consumer price index. While trends in terms of new houses are mixed, rental accommodation may well go up by an average of 25 per cent next year. The cost of public-utility services is rising sharply, as are the prices of most household appliances.

Transportation represents nearly one-sixth of the consumer price index. Look for big increases next year—in new cars, in car insurance, in transportation generally. Fares have already been increased substantially twice in 1974, and more increases are planned.

The prospects in other areas of consumer spending are much the same. Big increases in nursing fees and in the cost of medical hospital care, for example. Smokers and drinkers will pay the price of five to six per cent more in 1975.

The cost of clothing has risen comparatively modestly this year—seven per cent—and the increase has been largely blamed largely on foreign competition and next year the prices will not go much higher next year.

Even more disastrously, the fuel needed to fly all the military, naval and aerial operated by the department and to drive all its ships has increased in cost as much as 80 per cent in one year.

Thanks to useless politicking, public controversy about unnecessary, desperately needed items, except when they shine in Vietnam or Cyprus and a joint Senate-Commons committee's report is selling them-selves in Ottawa, the Canadian Forces today are overwhelmed with the roles or tasks assigned to them.

It is true that an establishment of 82,000 uniformed men and women supported by about another 40,000 civilians, all told, ought to be able to tackle the nasty present tasks assigned to them.

These will include the shot down of a Russian spy satellite based establishment in the Northwest in Ontario area to move 8.6 Winnipeg and seven more supersonic the arbitrary shift of the "re" national and maintenance" facility to Winnipeg.

The same minister who has also made insulting remarks about diverting Eastern Canada's share of the aircraft manufacturing complex into the Canadian aircraft industry. The plan makes to sense whatsoever since the already hard-hit Canadian aircraft manufacturing plants are primarily integrated in Ontario and Quebec.

Such a disruption, again to satisfy the narrow needs of Western Liberals who can't win votes in federal elections, could be undertaken since the federal government has taken over the two major eastern aircraft plants of de Havilland Aircraft of Canada in Toronto and Canadair Ltd., in Montreal.

On the other hand, what the defence department should do like others before him, is sort out its priorities in ministerial responsibility, what it is the armed forces are meant to do.

Written Questions Controversial

By PETER LLOYD

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Harold Herbert feels the opposition parties "do a lousy job" and says he is trying to show how to improve their performance.

His is trying so hard that the list of written questions on the Commons order paper might lead the casual observer to conclude that the Montreal Vaudreuil MP is an inquisitive opposition member.

Of the 494 written questions asked between the first opening of Parliament and Thursday, 86 came from Mr. Herbert.

Tom Cossitt (PC—Leeds) took second place with 56 questions and David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North) third with 43.

Written questions—more complicated and requiring more research than oral ones—are a favorite device of backbenchers on either side. Usually they have political implications and often involve considerable work and expense.

The Privy Council office, which channels the questions to the departments concerned, regrets that the number asked so far this session is slightly lower than at the corresponding time last session. However, the number of new questions during this time because there are less unanswered queries being handled by the busy parliamentary section.

Mr. Herbert, a banker, in his second term as an MP, said his questions flow from letters he addresses to constituents. Opposition members sometimes ask many "political questions" and it is not an efficient way to get at substantive information.

"They do a lousy job."

If any of his questions proved politically embarrassing in the government or too expensive to answer, Mr. Herbert said he would not pursue them.

"I'm a very strong party man and I want no implication that I'm criticizing my own party."

This may be small comfort to Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp and Jean Reid, his parliamentary secretary, who have called for restraint on written questions.

Mr. Reid, who said one question in the last Parliament cost $75,000 to answer, favors limiting the number of questions each MP can ask a session.

During the recent throne speech debate, Mr. Sharp said: "I would solicit the co-operation of honorable members in avoiding duplication of questions, avoiding matters of minor urgency, answers to which could be obtained by simply writing letters to the ministers of unnecessary complexity and complication.

"Many times ... fishing expeditions are commenced by extensive and produce much irrelevant information can be avoided by a few telephone calls."

Mr. Cossitt rejects suggestions that written questions should be limited. Saying there are a necessary vehicle to get at things the government may be trying to hide.

Resigning Speaker Allan Reuter Regarded As One Of The Best

By DON O'BEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson Newspapers
TORONTO — The resignation of Allan Reuter as Speaker came as a bit of a shock here.

Not that the retirement was entirely unexpected. It had been recognized for some time that Mr. Reuter's health was not good.

But he has been such an excellent Speaker that it was hard to suddenly realize that he no longer would be presiding over the house.

To say he will be missed in this room certainly isn't trite.

There have been quite a number of high-calibre Speakers who have said that this 69-year-old public accountant and former mayor of Carleton is in fact may have been the best Speaker the province has ever had.

Despite the fact that the present house is one of the revolving-door variety, Mr. Reuter kept control and won the respect of all members.

A very human person he has realized that there must be certain freedoms, that rules can't be applied to the letter.

But when force has been necessary he has exercised it in a firm and dignified way.

In these modern times big Mr. Speaker can be a cruel job. Mr. Reuter has handled it well.

Some time must be spent in the morning discussing bills and house procedures and perhaps writing rulings.

Then daily the Speaker must be in the chair for the start of the session. And then if not actually presiding must be close to the chamber until 10:30 at night in case his presence is required.

This is the schedule for six months or more a year.

Then in the afternoon there are matters of routine administration to be handled.

Mr. Reuter, of course, broke once under the strain, when he suffered last December.

There were those of us who wondered why he returned at that time.

Then there are others who wonder why he is resigning at this particular time when the office of Speaker is likely to be greatly increased in stature and prestige.

Some of us who know him feel this would not be a consideration.

His interest has not been in stature but in doing a good job.

Costs Of 'United Way' Campaign

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The current United Way campaign could be more aptly named "Federated Appeals Club — because, in effect that is what it has become.

When we subtract the salaries of the professionals of the U.C.S. and the Y.M.C.A. there is not much left of the $1,000,000 for the real work of the agencies.

One of the things that really irritates me is the high salaries of the U.C.S. and the Y.M.C.A. executives. They are always shown as being allocated for this purpose or that, but I think there is never any real accounting as they are merely bookkeeping entries.

For instance, the U.C.S. said after picking up a grant of $12,000 from city council that "on paper" it would have "on hand" to pay the salary of $18,000 for their executive secretary, no what did they need the other $6,000 from the city taxpayers for? According to them it was for "operational expenses."

The Y.M.C.A. have for years taken the lion's share of United Way, ran door to door campaigns of their own and scrawl with tax property payments.

The total "take" of these two establishments alone, in terms of wages amounts to almost $100,000 a year. Where has all the past and I ask again, where are all these unpaid volunteers we hear so much about?

This year we have a campaign chairman. Why? We were told by the U.C.S. that they had hired a professional from Ottawa who was an outstanding fund raiser. Why isn't he directly conducting the campaign instead of the executive secretary of the Y.M.C.A. and the other professionals involved? Isn't this what the taxpayers of Belleville are footing for their money for or is this all in the name of social planning?

I don't connect with it still never go to the United Way as I have for a number years. I am not being used for the rehabilitation of professional bums.

Servicemen And Contact with MPs

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Lieutenant-General Boyle, commander of Maritime Command has made something of a flap-ortist. He claims that a letter from a DND service personnel regarding conscription to a member of parliament was "a complete misunderstanding."

I believe things have altered somewhat in the last few years. It was always the understanding of service personnel that they could write their member of parliament at their post — especially if they were dissatisfied with something of the service.

The normal forces of any country usually has an anti-democratic streak in it and Canada is no exception. It is not for the serving man in uniform to say when a letter is supposed to respond to all-or-ders without questioning their validity of relevance.

In times of war, there has to be a certain automatic response to orders - in peacetime one wonders whether such a requirement often exists. In the present instance, the letter in question was clearly considered democracy but not to Lieutenant-General Boyle.

In peacetime the armed forces can, and often are, huge bureaucracies. Any bureaucrat worth his salt is playing his or her role, hoping to avoid any kind of controversy, by good enough to allow him to keep his job and merit consideration for promotion.

Frequently, the serving man or woman, like the civilian bureaucrat, has no recourse but to appeal or "grievance" procedures. But they are, for the most part,pure formality. Most of the grievance etc can usually be settled at the level at which the cause up that is likely to put a senior officer's job in jeopardy then the "grievance" procedure will most likely, operate in his favour.

The only real recourse is to contact your member of parliament. When you do this you are putting your service career in jeopardy. The service has a long memory.

You can usually bet your boots that when a serviceman or woman complains to his or her MP they can expect a poor annual assessment as the result of their exposure.

I suggest, that the average armed forces individual would never dream of doing so. An MP unless he felt his case was totally lost in the maze of the military bureaucracy - he is only too well aware of the consequences of taking advantage of the democratic way he is, so often, called upon to defend.

P.C. member David McDonald could quite rightly in bringing this infringement of service personnel's right to contact their MP without fear.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY.

A total of 167 visits were made. School visits during the month totalled 45. Two home permits were issued.

The congregation of the Baptist Church has accepted the offer of Mr. Carnegie to donate $1,000 towards the purchase of an organ for the church.

These will include the shot down of a Russian spy satellite based establishment in the Northwest in Ontario area to move 8.6 Winnipeg and seven more supersonic the arbitrary shift of the "re" national and maintenance" facility to Winnipeg.

The same minister who has also made insulting remarks about diverting Eastern Canada's share of the aircraft manufacturing complex into the Canadian aircraft industry. The plan makes to sense whatsoever since the already hard-hit Canadian aircraft manufacturing plants are primarily integrated in Ontario and Quebec.

Such a disruption, again to satisfy the narrow needs of Western Liberals who can't win votes in federal elections, could be undertaken since the federal government has taken over the two major eastern aircraft plants of de Havilland Aircraft of Canada in Toronto and Canadair Ltd., in Montreal.

On the other hand, what the defence department should do like others before him, is sort out its priorities in ministerial responsibility, what it is the armed forces are meant to do.

House Gives Quick OK To Bill Aiding Veterans

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons moved quickly Monday night towards providing higher incomes for war veterans and to ensure that they will not pay exorbitant 'new' back to 'to date' taxes.

Bills on the two subjects received second reading and moved on to committee study.

Nixon Wants MPPs To Review Increases

TORONTO (CP) — Food price increases levied by marketing boards in Ontario should be subject to review by a committee of the legislature, Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Monday.

He told the Canadian Federation of Retail Grocers that marketing boards came into existence when agricultural producers were suffering "seriously depressed" food prices.

They are working in the interest of producers, Mr. Nixon said.

To ensure protection of consumer interests, pricing decisions made by boards and other agencies should be reviewed by a committee which would recommend acceptance or rejection to government, he said.

"This would mean that unilateral decisions on food prices would be replaced by the requirement to justify the price changes ..."

Mr. Nixon also said he will urge that the Ontario Food Council use its powers to enforce competitive price surveys conducted in Ottawa by the federal food prices review board.

The report, which compares food prices by store name on a weekly basis, has resulted in a four-per-cent drop in the overall cost of food in Ottawa in one week, he said.

Whelan Says Market Boards Are Undermined by Farmers

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Monday that farmers, not consumer groups, are threatening to undermine the world food and marketing agencies.

In a speech to the annual meeting of the Canadian poultry and egg council, Mr. Whelan said many farmers are only committed to orderly production and marketing as the other guy, and for the other province, but not for themselves and not for their own province."

But "any national plan to bring order into our production and marketing system demands complete and full co-operation from all producers and from all provinces."

Mr. Whelan said he is willing to fight to help farmers develop national marketing plans because both consumers and producers ultimately benefit from an orderly system of production and selling.

"But I cannot do that by myself alone and, in fact, I will not do the job alone if I detect that producers and provincial marketing boards lack the necessary commitment."

The agriculture minister's remarks follow a Commons decision to hold a parliamentary inquiry into egg marketing. That decision was reached following revelations that 36 many as 36 million eggs will be destroyed this year because they were bought by the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) as surplus, then left to rot in improper storage.

Whelan to Check Reports Of Over-fat Hamburger

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan promised in the Commons Monday to check reports of widespread violation of federal regulations governing fat and cholesterol in hamburger.

Canada has one of the world's best beef inspection services, he said in reply to a question from Bert Hargrave (PC—Medicine Hat) but he would check reports that regulations governing the fat content and amount of bacteria in ground beef were being violated.

Mr. Hargrave said the government has increased surveillance recently because of the large number of cows now being sold by farmers. The bulk of ground beef is made from cows and lower grade cattle.

Macdonald Rejects U. S. Energy Pact

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald Monday rejected suggestions from the United States that Canada be assured supplies of oil in return for an easing of all forms of energy.

"It's not as far as we're concerned," the minister said in an interview.

Suggestion for the treaty came last week from John Sawhill, chairman of the U.S. Federal Power Commission. He said the agreement could cover exchanges of energy — coal, natural gas and electricity — and possibly other commodities.

But the suggestion brought a cool response from Ottawa.

"There are no advantages for Canada in such a treaty," Mr. Macdonald said. "We're reluctant even to negotiate in the past."

Mr. Hamilton said the concept was also under discussion while talking about current negotiations for a treaty between Canada and Mexico. He said the agreement could cover exchanges of energy — coal, natural gas and electricity — and possibly other commodities.

Ann Landers

He's Too 'Hospitable'

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a bartender. I am not crazy about the job, but it's kind of a job, but he enjoys it and makes good money. He works every day and two nights a week. Our children are grown and on their own, so the two nights he works I'm at home alone.

It seems that Jerry put because he is employed at this place, he's free to have an open bar for all the customers have a good time. It came back to me through a friend that he often dances with the women who come in. I have been told he also he has driven them home.

When I asked Jerry about this he admitted it. I then demanded to know why he didn't tell me himself. He said: "I knew you wouldn't like it and I didn't want to make you mad." I then said: "If you knew it would make me mad, why did you do it?" He answered: "Because it's my job to keep the customers happy."

We are at a standstill on this issue and it is a source of trouble. Every time I bring up the subject (usually when he comes home late and I think he has driven a lady customer home) he got into a fight.

Tell me, am I wrong when I say he should behave like a 45-year-old woman and not like a fly dancing with women who are being escorted home by them home; He said: "Write to Annie, she's got good sense and will set you straight." So will you please be the judge? — Crazy or Not?

Dear Not Crazy: I know of no cocktail lounge where the bartenders are expected to dance with customers and drive them with transportation. This is strictly Jerry's idea of "personal hospitality."

Since he knows it's wrong and bothers you, he's not a happy man. He should knock it off. And you had better tell him that in no uncertain terms. If he's not willing to do the right thing, he's in trouble.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a bachelor, age 44, who is going with a woman, 43. Zelda has never been married and has a few hangups. For example, she has never had a complete physical exam. She won't see a gynecologist. She won't allow anybody checking she say: "Why should I? I feel fine and I'm not sick."

I know Zelda reads your column every day. Will you please print something about this subject to you.—It's Friend

Dear Friend: Zelda is 43-year-old woman who has never had a complete physical must have something very wrong with her body. I urge her (and others who are in the same leaky boat) to stop pressing their luck and make an appointment at once. If Zelda's hangup is what I think it is, please inform her that there are many female gynecologists.

Cheer Up... Economy Brightens By Year 2000

CHICAGO (AP) — Saturday by 177 per cent—possible?

No, not if you look into the crystal ball of a year 200.

And that is good news for the American consumer, according to a recent report. Offering a glimpse of how 21st-century families will be living, the report from the financial services arm of Xerox Corp. predicts that income for a husband and wife with two school-age children will average $20,041—compared to today's $11,232.

Homemakers will delight in the fact that food costs will be down. "Approximately 22.6 per cent of gross income will be spent on food in 2000 as opposed to 22.3 per cent today. Modern, automated food processing technology will help keep food prices down...

"Shelter will go up slightly compared to 1974. Americans in today spend roughly 24.5 per cent of their income for housing—25 per cent will be spent in 2000.

The forecast is for more of the family-dollar going into leisure, insurance and investments in years here—eight per cent. The probability of longer life will automatically create a demand for meaningful retirement programs.

It said it — rest and recreation—will figure prominently in the lifestyle of 2000.

"Better health, better life and more recreation is the year 2000! Thoroughly yes," the report concludes.

In Moscow

The Great Mushroom Hunt

MOSCOW (AP) — In the cool, clear days of early autumn, Muscovites gather to conquer the forests in search of quality of mushrooms they can find in the wicked settings of the forest.

The mushroomers of the normally staid-seeming television news program pulls out a gilt-edged guide to the delights of basketball and enthusiastically sets off in search of something to eat.

The season is short, usually from mid-July through August through September, but almost everyone gets involved. One Muscovite tells of a friend who spends his entire vacation collecting in the woods. The fruits of his labor are pickled in five or three big wooden barrels—enough for a whole winter of mushroom-filled meals.

During the season, thousands of people pour into the woods outside Moscow every weekend.

Employees of factories, offices and schools set off in their buses about midnight on Friday and travel four or five hours to reach a good mushroom-hunting grounds. Other hunters crowd on midnight suburban trains that start to search usually begin at dawn.

"You have to go at least 100 kilometers outside Moscow to get a good place," said one enthusiast. "Closer, there are too many pickers and not enough mushrooms."

After several hours of poking around with a stick and peering under ferns and fallen leaves, the hunters call it quits for that day and celebrate their finds with lively group picnics, which may include sizzling or broiling the mushrooms they found.

Then they pile back into the buses and trains for the long ride home.

Some years prized finds are the fat, so-called "white" mushrooms. But also popular are "black" mushrooms, under the birch tree" mushrooms and "under the aspen tree" mushrooms, so called because they usually grow in those nearby forest.

Some hunters can't tell the difference between edible and poisonous mushrooms.

"I often meet people in the woods who don't know a thing then if they can eat what they've picked," said one hunter. "Sometimes I have to tell them to throw everything out."

Most hunters, however, know the difference. Children are taught at an early age which kinds can be picked. They're often taken on school field trips in the woods to learn first hand.

Because the mushroom season is so short, Muscovites indulge in a month-long orgy of mushroom eating. They consume them in many different forms—boiled, fried, in soup, in sour cream and salted. Women's magazines keep busy coming up with new recipes.

Some of the crop is laid aside for drying and pickling for later winter ahead.

The love for mushrooms has spawned a big profitable business. Rural residents spend all their time collecting mushrooms during the season, then sell them in the markets of Moscow and other cities.

One Soviet forest inspector was able to buy a television set, radio, piano, car and many other luxuries with the money he made selling the fruits of his mushroom hunting.

Family Planning Advice Is Free

BY DORIS CLARK

"Love and Life — Fertility and Conception Prevention" is the title of a 37-page booklet which has been sent here by "JEREMIAH I," command. It as something which one can recommend with family planning should be.

Not only is there presented, in comfortable lay language, the physical facts of male and female anatomy; there is also relational, contraception, pregnancy and other areas of concern.

The pros and cons of various kinds of birth control are presented for perfect in sex may understand problems. There is a section on abortion, its risks and alternatives, which can help sex partners to discover their own feelings and come to decisions satisfactory to both as well as to society as a whole.

This brochure can be obtained free of charge directly from Health and Welfare Canada, Family Planning Division, 1943 General Purpose, Building, Tunney's Pasture, Ottawa, K1A 0K9, Ontario.

Dear Doris:

Recently I've had a letter in your column from "Incurable Ill, Full of Hope" expressing the meaning of suffering — that other people derive their capacities for love and compassion.

Letters such as this must be an inspiration to those who are "wondering". Thank you for a very interesting column. Keep it up.

Dear Keep: If "Incurable" can live with pain, Pain Sentence with poise and understanding, she could possibly be an encourager to many who find it almost intolerable to live with a life sentence.

If suffering brings sympathy, it has accomplished a good deed — as those who turn inward and bitter against the world, when things go against them. They just don't know what it takes to meet the challenge.

Yet none of us can ride the crest of the wave all the time, can we?

New Sewage System To Serve 170,000 Homes

TORONTO (CP) — Areas of Environment Minister Williams Newman said construction Toronto will get a sprawling sewage system to serve 170,000 new homes, two provincial ministries announced Monday.

Housing Minister Donald Irvine, speaking at a joint news conference, said the servicing plan will allow 35,000 new homes to be built by late 1978.

Mr. Irvine said the agreement reached among Metro, Durham, York and the provincial government is a "major breakthrough for long-term housing production" that will cut home prices in Toronto and provide orderly Metro.

"For the next several years the greater Toronto area can accommodate population growth without home prices escalating to excess demand," the housing minister said.

In the next 30 years, the system will permit construction of 170,000 units to accommodate about 500,000 persons in Metro and Durham regions, he said.

Mr. Newman said the immediate interim measures for the plan include sewer connections from Metro's Steels Avenue north and east into the adjacent regions.

These connections, along with expansions at existing sewage plants in Newmarket and Aurora, will provide services for 45,000 housing units between Metro and those communities when the Ontario legislature reopens in November.

Northumberland MPP Likely to Be Speaker

TORONTO (CP) — Russell Rowe, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Northumberland, is expected to be elected Speaker of the house when the Ontario legislature reopens in November.

Mr. Rowe, 58, has served as deputy Speaker since December, 1971, and will likely be chosen to replace Allan Brown who resigned as Speaker last week because of ill health.

Mr. Reuter, 60, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Waterloo South, said last week that he will continue to sit as a member.

Mr. Rowe, a stockbroker who lives in Cobourg, Ont., has been active as deputy Speaker and filled in after Mr. Brown collapsed in the legislature during the last session.

Plan On Display

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said Monday that the first draft of the amended official plan will receive council approval between 7 and 8 o'clock this evening.

Mayor Jeffrey told council Monday that additional copies of the plan have been ordered and will be on display at a special public meeting to be held in early November.

Council approval of the plan was studied at a special council meeting last week when several delegations appeared claiming the public had not been given sufficient opportunity to know details of the document.

Acting on the request, council delayed approval of the plan, directed the provision of additional copies of the plan be made public and agreed to a public meeting.

Six-year-old Hit by Car

TRENTON — A six-year-old Johnson St. boy was treated for minor injuries when struck by a car as he darted into Dundas Front St. on noon Monday.

A hospital spokesman said Wayne Paul, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Paul, of 4 Johnson St., was treated and released from Trenton Memorial Hospital.

The boy was struck by an east-bound vehicle driven by Robert Diamond, 34, of 367 West St. after he darted out in front of a stationary parked parking machine in the west lane of Princess St.

Police said he was one of two boys to run out onto the street.

Juveniles Charged

Police Chief Douglas Crumble said his department received a call about 2:45 a.m. Tuesday from the Kingston police department concerning a car stolen the same night from Belleville.

A telephone call to Claude A. Roger of 94 Sidney St. revealed that the car belonged to him. Mr. Roger was asleep at the time and not aware that his car was missing.

The three will appear in juvenile court in Kingston Chief Crumble said.

Little Growth Recorded

The report shows a total of 35,125 persons in the city of census time this year as compared with 34,947 in 1973 a gain of 178.

Another Day's Work

Gordon Rupert has been a regular feature at Belleville's market square this year, not missing a day since spring. "I've been here three days a week, every week since April," he said. "The Rit 2 Frankfort residents said he's had a good year.

Alderman Says Stations Present Possible Hazard

Belleville should limit the number of self-serve gas bars as a safety measure.

That is the feeling of Alderman Stu Meeks who Monday called for holding bylaw until the city is able to determine how many of the self-serve facilities are planned by oil companies.

The alderman claimed self-serve gas bars present a danger as the regulation banning smoking within a certain distance of the pumps is difficult to enforce.

"You see people with cigarettes pumping gas," said the alderman. "We are going to have someone killed."

Alderman Paul Russell said he feels the recommendation for a holding bylaw should have been in the form of a notice of motion so as to give council members the opportunity of considering the matter.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey took the same view, saying although she sympathizes with the alderman's concern, it would be unwise to take action until a legal opinion is obtained.

The recommendation was tabled to allow time for a legal opinion as to whether the city is within its rights to pass a holding bylaw.

Grant Approved For Dam Sites

Land acquisition connected with a Moira River ice control dam in Belleville was received a $9,000 provincial government grant.

For and flood control dams have established the need for construction of ice control dams in the city. A dam will reduce the threat of flooding caused by ice jams and formation of frazil ice. In recent winters a channel has had to be cleared near the mouth of the river in Victoria Park when it became logged with ice, raising water levels.

The city is the chief benefiting municipality, will pay the major part of the authorities cost on the project.

Yukon Bishop To Visit City

Anglicans in the Belleville area have an opportunity this Sunday to meet a bishop whose territory covers a rugged 205,000 square miles.

Rt. Rev. John Timothy Frame, Anglican bishop of the Yukon, is making an appeal for the church's Arctic Mission. He is touring Ontario dioceses, centred on Kingston and including Belleville.

Known as a formidable personality in the church, he has spent his entire ministry in the grandest from Toronto's Trinity College — in the Canadian north.

For 20 years he had charge of 12 missions in British Columbia. Then, in 1956, he became bishop of the huge Yukon diocese with its sparse, scattered 16,000 population.

Special music at the St. Thomas's service will be provided by a combined choir and by gospel-singing group from Victoria, B.C., known as the Paradox. It has been touring Ontario in recent weeks with music that includes originally-composed songs.

Time of the services is 7 p.m.

Council Confirms Debenture Issue

City council Monday authorized the borrowing of more than $2 million by the sale of debentures.

The borrowing bylaw for a total of $2,002,300 is the consolidation of 24 individual bylaws for completed municipal works and ranged all the way from a figure of $4,733 for construction of a short sanitary sewer on Bridge St., to the borrowing of $720,000 toward the cost of construction of the new Sidney St. bridge.

Other large items in the consolidated bylaw are the construction of sanitary sewers in the Hillcrest area, $359,000 towards the cost of constructing the new public utilities office building at the corner of Sidney and College street and $100,000 for road construction on Hill and landscaping at East Zwicky's Island Park.

Booklet Tells How To Grow Your Own

Despite the fact the possession of marijuana is an offence under the Narcotics Act, there is a booklet on sale at Coles Book Store at the Quinte Mall explaining how to grow your own.

City environmentalist Clarence Young brought this to the attention of city council Monday evening, claiming the ready availability of the booklet presents an open invitation for young people to become part of the increasing drug scene.

He asked that council take immediate action to have sale of the booklet stopped.

Mr. Young said if council did not take immediate action, young people are unworthy of representing the city.

The matter was referred to Mayor Robin Jeffrey who will take it up with the city police commission Tuesday.

Alderman Stu Meeks wanted to know why Mr. Young brought the matter of the marijuana booklet to open council when it would get wide publicity through the press and radio.

The publicity will only create a greater demand for the booklet, the alderman said.

Delegation to Seek Bridge Clarification

A special delegation will go to Toronto to meet with Hon. R. Rhodes, minister of transportation and communications concerning the location of the proposed new high-level bridge across the Bay of Quinte.

The decision to send a delegation to Toronto was made at Monday's city council meeting after a letter from Mr. Rhodes was read stating that planning study period to be done covering various alternative locations as well as tunnel and bridge options.

In his letter, Mr. Rhodes said that representatives from the ministry's regional design office would meet with the municipalities involved to gather information and review design proposals.

Belleville is asking for the bridge crossing to be sited near the present location of the swing bridge, while other municipalities, including Sidney and Ameliasburgh Township, would like to see a new bridge at a point west of the city near the Wallbridge — Loyalist Rd.

The motion calling for a delegation to meet with Mr. Rhodes was by Alderman Paul Russell, who said the minister's letter bore out his fear that a bridge location other than at Belleville would be considered.

Meeks Urges Support Of UCS Fund Drive

Adoption of the old-fashioned good neighbor policy by Belleville residents would be a big boost to the current United Community Services fund-raising campaign.

That is the claim of Belleville Alderman Stu Meeks who, at city council Monday, stated that UCS officials are having difficulty in securing sufficient volunteers for the campaign's household canvass.

The reason, he said, is a lack of neighborliness and a lack of concern about the welfare of less-fortunate people.

The alderman said contrary to the claim of many, taxpayers should be the substitute for volunteer effort in community work. To carry out the work of minor sports and finance the programs of the other member agencies in the United Appeal would take more than $1 million in public funds, he said.

Urging everyone to pitch in and help with the United Appeal, Alderman Meeks asked that it be considered in the light of an old-fashioned barn raising bee.

Committee Formed

STIRLING — Council here has appointed six of seven members to the building committee for the proposed Stirling and district arena. They are: the Stirling Reeve, Sydney Township councillor Hadley Richardson, Huntingdon deputy-reeve Harold Thompson, and three Stirling men, Wieger Dejong, Bert Bastedo, and Lloyd Jones. Rawdon Township has to make an appointment following a grant of $4,000 for the project. The committee's mandate is to undertake a study and come up with plans and a price for the arenas.

Off to Sudbury

Belleville Alderman Arthur Keegan will attend a meeting of the Federal — Provincial — Municipal Liaison Committee on railway re-location to be held at Sudbury on Friday, Oct. 25. Alderman Keegan has been one of the prime movers for the possible re-location of the CPR tracks from its present location across the south end of Belleville. On his return, Ford Deacon, the alderman will report to council.

Parking a Problem

STIRLING — Councillor Wayne Martin has suggested that Stirling businessmen might be interested in more parking.

At his suggestion, council is prepared to buy the old Stirling Motors body shop and tear it down, providing enough businessmen agreed to paying back the cost through a special tax levied against all businesses.

Dairy Gets Contract

A Belleville firm, Reid Dairy Co. Ltd., of 17 Parks St., has been given a $15,681 federal contract to provide dairy products for the Department of National Defence, it was announced Monday by the department of supply and services. It was one of 241 included in contracts — each worth $10,000 or more, for a total value of $11,698,094 — awarded to Canadian companies during the week ended Oct. 11.

Payroll Taken

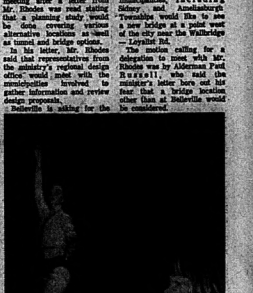
TWEED — Tweed village police are still investigating the theft Friday of the payroll of Tweed Motor Sales.

Owner of the business, Ron Way, said today the theft took place about 2:30 p.m. Friday, during a Senior Citizens' Bake Sale in the building's showroom.

He said he discovered the theft about a half-hour later when he checked the safe in his office.

The loss is believed to amount to several thousand dollars.

Mr. Way said he didn't see anyone enter his office, but said police believe two men are involved. The bake sale, over a half hour after it began, was reported to be successful and a large sum of money was raised for the Senior Citizens' Club.



Someday Maybe

Kinsmen Donate $5,000 To City's Big Brothers

The Big Brothers organization formed earlier this year in Belleville received an added boost Monday when the Kinsmen Club agreed to donate $5,000 towards their first year's operating budget.

Big Brothers is a nationwide organization which attempts to provide a male influence for boys from six to 16 without a father in the home.

Big Brothers Association president for Belleville, Roly Thomas, expressed his gratitude to the Kinsmen club for their support and said now the group can get down to the important business of matching big and little brothers.

Mr. Thomas also expressed thanks to the Tardmen Benefit Fund, who earlier donated $1,000 to the organization.

Operating costs for the first year come close to $7,000, said Mr. Thomas with money going toward such areas as a telephone answering service, advertising and the salary of a social worker, who works two days a week for the organization.

Office space for the group has been provided by the United Community Services on Victoria St.

In Belleville, said Mr. Thomas, there have been fourmatches of big and little brothers with four more close to being approved. He added that there are about 200 boys in the area who could benefit from having a big brother.

During Monday's night Kinsmen meeting, Mr. Thomas showed members a film on the decision of the donation received best unanimous approval from the Kinsmen.

Anyone wishing to learn more about Big Brothers or wishing to become one is invited to attend a general public meeting, tonight, at Corby Public Library at 8 p.m. Cliff Hall, agency representative from the group's head office in Hamilton will be on hand.

Home for Halloween

The thoughts of many a youngster is likely with this tot on Belleville market today. Halloween draws closer and with it the time to get the pumpkin home for the festivities.

It's Apple Time

Greg Wyborn offers apple to Belleville police Sgt. Bob Hall from stockpile now being distributed for the annual Boy Scout Apple Day fund-raising project this week. Both men judged posters publicizing event and selected work of Andrew Dumrell, 11th Belleville troop, as winning entry.

Place Kickers Booting Along

TORONTO (CP) — Dave Cutler isn't going to give up his single-season CFL record without a struggle.

The 24-year-old place-kicker with Edmonton Eskimos has booted 12 field goals in his last three Canadian Football League games to give him a total of 33 this season.

CFL statistics released Monday show Cutler with 133 points, four in front of Toronto Argonauts' Dave Cowens, who was expected to equal the record in the Argos' final game of the season Saturday against Ottawa Rough Riders.

Cutler, graduate of Simon Fraser University in Burnaby, B.C., set a CFL single-season record of 32 field goals in 1972. However that record has been broken this year by Gerry Organ of Ottawa Rough Riders, 34, and Jim Mankins of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, 32.

In Edmonton's 17-10 win Sunday over Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Cutler was good on five attempts, field-goal attempts including a season long one of 56 yards that was the longest ever in the CFL's history — Cutler owns the record, 56, and the second-longest, 55.

Cutler heads the Eastern Football Conference in scoring with 128 points, two more than Organ.

In totalling, Monroe Eley of British Columbia Lions and Steve Ferrugbelli of Montreal each have 1,866 yards rushing on 180 carries and Ferrugbelli's 1,866 yards on 364 carries.

They trail Larry Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders, 1, 897, who has 1,897 yards on 390 carries and Leo Harris of B.C., 1,894.

This is the second year in a row five players have gained at least 1,000 yards in one season in the CFL. Andy Hopkins of Hamilton ran that many in six if he picks up at least 106 yards in the last Tiger-Cats' remaining games.

Eley's performance enabled B.C. to become the fourth club to have two players who have gained 1,000 yards in one season. Johnny Bright and Normie Kwong combined for Edmonton in 1957 and 1958; Ron Stewart and Dave Thelen did it for Ottawa in 1966; and Ed Buchanan and Reed accomplished the trick for Saskatchewan in 1966.

The schedule resumes Saturday with B.C. at Edmonton. On Sunday, it's Montreal at Saskatchewan, Hamilton at Toronto and Winnipeg at Calgary.

Running Backs Hot in Running

MONTREAL (CP) — Four Canadian Football League running backs were among nine players named to first-round selections for the annual outstanding player award, it was announced today.

The nine players were among 40 named as possible recipients of the five awards sponsored annually by Schenley Distilleries Ltd. Two of the nine were nominated in more than one category.

Voting was conducted among 66 sports writers and broadcasters in the nine CFL cities.

Nominated for the outstanding player award from the Eastern Football Conference were running backs Johnny Rodgers of Montreal Alouettes and Andy Hopkins of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, tight end Peter Muller of Toronto Argonauts and Rhome Nixon of Ottawa Rough Riders.

Rodgers was chosen as rookie of the year in 1970, while Muller also received a nomination this year as Canadian player of the year.

Nominated from the Western Football Conference for the outstanding player award were quarterback Tom Wilkinson of Edmonton Eskimos, defensive end Georgy Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders, running back Leo Harris of British Columbia Lions, defensive halfback Paul Williams of Winnipeg Blue Bombers and defensive tackle John Helton of Calgary Stampeders.

Reed, top ground-gainer in pro football with more than eight miles rushing, is a former winner, while Helton also was a nominee in one of the two new categories this season—defensive player of the year.

First-round balloting results in the selection of five players from each club for the five different categories. Second-round voting, with results to be announced Oct. 31, reduces the nominees to 10—five from the WFC and five from the WFC.

Defensive player of the year nominees were: Mike Widger, Montreal; Wayne Smith, Ottawa; Bob Ostendorf, Toronto; also a rookie nominee; Hamilton's Fred Graham; Jim Hodgson, Winnipeg, also nominated for outstanding player award; Gerry Wells, Saskatchewan; John Helton, Calgary; John LaGrow, Edmonton; and Garnet Hunsperger, B.C.

Rookie-of-the-year nominees were: Ian Mofford, Montreal; Peter Crepin, Ottawa; Sam Deliannides, Toronto; George Campbell, Hamilton; Tom Scott, Winnipeg; Ken McEachern, Saskatchewan; Harold Hohne, Calgary; Stuart Lang, Edmonton; and Elton Brown of the Lions.

The 10 finalists will travel to Vancouver during Grey Cup week with the final decision in all categories announced Nov. 21, three days before the national championship game.

This year the over-all value of the awards has been increased by $5,500 to a $13,500 total. For example the outstanding player award will receive a Canada Savings Bond worth $2,500, compared with $2,000 handed out in previous years. The rookie award has been increased to $1,000 from $500 of other years.

Bills Stadium Tax Free

BUFFALO (AP) — A judge has ruled that the stadium of Buffalo Bills of the National Football League in suburban Orchard Park is owned by Erie County and thus not liable for town taxes.

Justice Frederick M. Marshall of the New York State Supreme Court said in his decision Monday that $7,000,000 Bills Stadium serves the public purpose.

Russia Leads Gymnastics

The Russian gymnasts finished the compulsory exercises with 192.80 points, followed by East Germany with 191.45, Hungary, with 186.20 and 184.85 points, respectively.

Canada placed 11th with 173.85 points.

Athletes Finally Get Square Deal

VIENNA (CP) — National Olympic committees will be able to pay their athletes to spend as much time as they want training under a drastically revised eligibility rule adopted Monday by the International Olympic Committee (IOC).

The rewritten Rule 26, which will be in effect for the 1976 Summer Games at Montreal permits payment to cover loss of earnings while training and reasonable money for food, lodging, transportation, equipment, medical care and insurance.

Under the old rule, athletes could be compensated for missing work—or trade only during the 30 days before the Olympics and 40 days in any one year.

Brock a Runaway In All-star Vote

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Brock, base-stealing star with St. Louis Cardinals, was a runaway choice along with Johnny Bench of Cincinnati Reds and Rod Carew of Minnesota Twins on the Associated Press' 1974 Major League All-Star baseball team, announced Monday.

Brock, who broke Maury Wills' 104-stolen record with 118 steals this season, headed a group of outfielders that included Reggie Jackson of Oakland A's and Jeff Burroughs of Texas Rangers. Brock had 390 votes, Jackson 319 votes and Burroughs 284.

Bench, a catcher who hit 33 home runs and knocked in 129 runs in 1974, was the biggest vote-getter with 394, leaving his rivals far behind.

Carew, Minnesota's star second baseman with a major league-leading batting average of .364, had the second highest vote total with 300.

The rest of the team includes first baseman Steve Garvey of Los Angeles Dodgers; shortstop Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati and third baseman Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia Phillies. Mike Cuellar of Baltimore Orioles was selected as the left-handed pitcher and Ferguson Jenkins of Texas was named as the right-hander.

Cuellar was an easy victor in his category with 235 votes to 46 credited to John Hiller of Detroit Tigers. Jenkins had a tougher battle with Jim Hunter, the A's 25-game winner. Jenkins polled 138 votes in Hunter's 117. Brock's outstanding season also included a .306 batting average, 194 hits and 105 runs scored.

The voters made their selections before the playoffs and World Series.

Olympic Flame By Satellite

VIENNA (CP) — Montreal plans to bring the Olympic flame from Greece to Canada by satellite for the 1976 Summer Games.

The organizing committee told the International Olympic Committee today the ceremony will begin at Olympia, Greece, July 4, 1976, when the reflection of the rays of the sun, carried by a "parabolic mirror," will light a flame in an urn.

This will still light a torch to be carried to Athens where it will be placed against a flame sensor.

The sensor will send a coded signal via satellite to Ottawa where it will touch off a laser beam which will light an urn.

That flame will light a torch which will be carried into Montreal July 16 and the next day it will be carried through the streets to Olympic Stadium.

Try It, You'll Like It; And Mary Watson Did

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

What was once "the role of the female" is now a forgotten ideal.

In today's society women are not restricted to one or two things in life. They are free to make their own way, travel, whichever highway they choose.

As women become more and more motivated they reach out for newer horizons, aim for higher goals. Goals which sometimes even great men can never reach.

In today's sportsworld women are leaving an increasingly deeper impression on what was once considered the dominion of men.

Professional tennis circuits are by now over the attitude demonstrated by players like Billie-Jean King and Chris Evert. The Women's Professional Golfers Association is pulling all its faith in Jeanne Carner to carve their path out of darkness.

Billy-Jean beat the male ego-tripper, 19-year-old Chris Evert in bended-for-life fascicles of tennis stardom and Jeanne Carner is nearing the $100,000 mark in winnings this year-a feat never before accomplished by a female golfer.

What these females are doing to establish the women's world of sports, Belleville's Mary Watson may also some day be doing. Only Mary will be doing it in an entirely different sport.

Drag racing!

"I love it," said 23-year-old Mary. "I think I'll be sticking with it for a while."

She tired drag racing for the first time on the weekend and came back with a first place finish in YS (stock) four cylinders.

The races were in Cicero, New York and Mary, entered them mostly because of a dare from her husband, Dave.

"He kept bidding me about it until finally I just went over and entered," said Mary, "and I'm glad I did."

When her class rumbled were called Mary bopped in the car, pulled up to the starting line and took off like an old pro.

When it was over she had clocked 97 mph in the quarter mile; a time of "about 17 seconds. Pretty good for a first time quarter run in a stock four."

The victory was a timely one coming on her fifth wedding anniversary.

"Dave knows quite a bit about cars," said Mary, "I know enough to get me by, but I'd like to take a course in mechanics so that I'll know that much more when I need it."

The real reason Dave and Mary were in Cicero was to watch Ron Jordan, a friend of theirs also from Belleville, race his car. He runs a 383 Roadrunner in SSG (super-stock), Jordan, who is looking for a sponsor for next season, also won his class.

While Jordan has been at it a long time, Mary's 17 got her licence a few months ago.

"We're thinking of dropping a bigger engine in the car (a 1972 Vega) and doing some serious racing next year," said Mary.

No matter what next season brings Mary Watson says she wants to be "on the strips."

Mary Watson, 22, proudly displays the trophy she won in Cicero, New York on Sunday. Mary ran her Vega GT in the stock four cylinder class and won. It was her first time ever on the drag strips, but now she is looking to the future for more competition.

Loyalist Ousted In Final Minutes

The whole season came down to the final three minutes of the game for Loyalist College in soccer action Monday.

Loyalist, played off against Sheridan College in Kingston Monday for the right to the Ontario College Athletic Association championships.

The game, in Kingston, that is the last for Loyalist until the final four minutes when St. Lawrens scored twice to win 5-1.

It was Loyalist's first year in the soccer league and they finished the regular season in second place.

Next year should be a good one for the local college team since most of their players are returning.

Tony Velstra was the only Loyalist scorer and Jim Dropper and Frank D'Angelo doubled singles for Kingston.

St. Lawrens now meets the west division champions (probably Fanshawe College) in a two game total goal series.

Quinte Curling Club Holds Opening Spiel

Two of Three Gas House Games Shutouts

In Gas House Hockey League action Monday night Yardmen downed Constellation 5-0, Chuckwagon Foods shut out Jim's Pizzeria 4-0 and Stanley Structures blanked Art's Esso 5-0.

Chuck Kemp led the attack for the Yardmen with a goal and two assists. Dennis Chesbro had a goal and one assist and Dick oberst, Rob Rivers and Rick Mariuschewsky each had a goal.

Steve Moore had a goal and two assists for Chuckwagon in their victory. Mark Appelwood, Bill Bunnett and Mike Evans each counted one goal apiece. Paul Smith recorded the shutout.

Ray Summers picked up four points on two goals and two assists as Stanley's picked up another victory. Wayne Lavigue, Russ Harrington and Charlie Rowbotham each scored once. Vern Whalen recorded the shutout.

Charles And Payne Are Tops

Fred Charles do e to a first place finish with navigation from Derek Payne on Sunday in the 36-mile Quinte Area Sport Club Fall Rally. The pair accumulated only 49 total demerit points over the distance of the course that sent them winding down the rough, back roads of Hastings and Lennox Addington Counties.

Second place went to driver Dave McLeod, and navigator Diane McLeod, with 59 points. In third place was the driver-navigator team of John and Susan Sim, with 87 points.

Rob Woodley Takes B Title at Ottawa

Tennis is probably the fastest growing sport in North America at the present time. In the Ontario College Athletic Association the speed of the sports' growth is no slower than anywhere else.

Loyalist College sent out its largest tennis representative ever on the weekend to participate in the OCAA Championships in Ottaa.

While Loyalist didn't win any major titles they did make an excellent showing. Rob Woodley captured the men's 'B' championship and Doug Scott and Tina Miluk went down in defeat to the mixed doubles team that eventually won the whole shot. Other members of the Loyalist team were Bill McDonnell, GaGrth Jensen and Grant Patterson.

Centennial College, Toronto, was the over-all winner of the event.

Toros Dominate Scoring Stats

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (CP) — Centre Wayne Gilles, in his second season with the Toronto Toros, is the only scoring leader in the World Hockey Association.

The Toros, in their second season, are in third place in the Western Division in the weekly statistical release of the league. Gilles leads the team in points race with three goals and three assists for undefeated Toronto.

Last season, the 29-year-old Winnipeg native was the WHA's top scorer with 46 goals and 90 assists for 136 points in 77 games. He was named to the First All-Star Team at left wing.

Tied for second on all WHA points are Bryan Perry, centre for Cleveland Crusaders, and Frank Mahovlich and Gerry Pinkerton, both of the Toros. Bourgeois and Mahovlich frequently visit the Canadian Division of the National Hockey League, each has five goals and four assists. Pinkerton has a goal and four assists and Trader five assists.

Al McDonough of Cleveland leads in goals with four.

The Roadrunners, one win over Vancouver in the WHA along with Indianapolis Racers, lead the Western Division with two wins and a .666 percentage. Vancouver, Houston, Alberta and Phoenix are tied for second overtaking the goals scored.

Derby Song Wins First

CAMPBELLVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Derby Song caught Reserved in the final stages of Monday's $2,000 seventh and trotting feature at Mohawk Raceway to record his first win on a major raceway in more than two years.

The six-year-old gelding with Larry Walker at the reins, covered the mile in 2:07 1-4 and paid $12, $4.60 and $4.

Bid that was impossible, said Francis, because the deal with Vancouver was not completed until Nelson was drafted. In the draft, each team is allowed to protect 18 players.

"In Nelson's case, there was doubt to the minute the guy was picked," he said. "There are only ten in the protected list and he's been there all year."

Nelson, 21, misses the New York crowds. The Rangers sell their 17,500 seats and, for most of the season at home. The Islanders are lucky to draw more than 5,000 a game.

Detroit Duo Lead In Goals and Assists

MONTREAL (CP) — Marcel Dionne, recently-elected captain of the Detroit Red Wings, appears to be following hockey theory that centre is primarily a playmaker.

Dionne, a 23-year-old native of Drummondville, Que., and Montreal Canadiens' Jacques Lemaire lead in statistics released by the league Monday.

He has 12 points in the Wings' first five games, but only seven of them are goals. Dionne's team-leading goals total of 12 includes five in a game against Detroit's 7-3 win against California Seals Oct. 13.

In 1970-71, when defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins set the assist record of 102 for a 78-game season, he had only three after the first five games.

Dionne, the Wings' first choice in the 1971 amateur draft, has compiled nine points in his first three seasons in the NHL. But any other player in a similar span—27 points. That total includes 20 goals and 164 penalty minutes.

He led Detroit in scoring last season with 78 points, more than right winger Mickey Redmond and tied up in 1972-73 when three feet Redmond that season.

Redmond also is off to a fast start for the Wings with seven goals, the league lead in that department. He appears well on his way to his third straight 50-goal season. Redmond had 52 goals last season and 52 two seasons ago.

Right winger Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal Canadiens is second with 10 points on five goals and five assists.

MARCEL DIONNE

Details Finalized

VIENNA (CP) — It will cost between $8 and $40 to attend both the opening and closing ceremonies at the 1976 Winter Olympic games in Montreal.

The ticket prices vary from $8 to $40 for various athletic events, although on the second-last day of the Games it will cost $12 for a top seat to watch the conclusion of the track and field events.

A spokesman for the organizing committee said the average ticket price for events in Montreal would be 30 while the average price for competition outside the city would be $5.

There are several preliminary and sur'y-round events including soccer and handball.

Canada will get 45 per cent of the available tickets for the Games, the remainder going to the United States will receive 30 per cent.

Sanderson Collects Expensive Slivers

NEW YORK (AP) — Madison Square Garden hockey fans are pointing to Vancouver Canucks' Dennis Hull as the person they'd most like to see get a stinger when he comes to town.

Hull, cheers of approval go up from the Garden galleries at those moments times The Turk hits the ice.

"I hear them all right," Hull boasted to New York by phone. "It makes me want to go out and do something to get a piece of the opposing team."

But Sanderson himself is disappointed. "I can't keep a playing edge this way. It's so awful when I'm out there and I want to go for someone to get hurt before the second period.

"The only thing for me to do is wait myself into a job."

It won't be easy, though. The Rangers already have three strong centres in Walt Tkaczuk, Jean Ratelle and Pete Stemkowski, coach general manager Emile Francis doesn't aren't the figures that go with a seven bothered.

Francis, however, is willing to wait. He signed Sanderson to a reported $175,000 salary.

There are the figures of a fourth centre, Stinger who, at present, is Derek Sanderson's exact status.

Neilson Not a Happy Man

NEW YORK (CP) — Jim Neilson never tried to be a Bobby Orr or a Brad Park in the 328 National Hockey League games he played for New York Rangers. Just a stone, defenceman who could get the puck out of his own end.

He hoped it would be enough and Neilson was traded to California Golden Seals in the off-season. Coach Fred Shero lost an valuable as anyone else.

"If only the Rangers' defence is down, it could be due to the fact that I was pretty well a main cog in the organization, too."

JIM NEILSON

The Ranger defector has indeed up after a shoddy start that left Ed Giacomin the victim of 15 pucks scored against him in the first three games.

Neilson was 30 when he came to the Rangers in 1967 and got his blueline training from Doug Harvey and Harry Howell. He was durable but flashy and didn't get the publicity the Rangers handed in, mostly because he was isolated in Kansas City.

After a dozen years he became available because the owners were working on a deal for Derek Sanderson.

Neilson of Prince Albert, Sask., was left unprotected in the intra-league draft last June 6 and the Seals, the worst team in the league last year, claimed him. A Seals' official called him the best day with the team.

After the Seals claimed Neilson, they dropped Walt McKechnie from their protected list. The Rangers claimed McKechnie and sent him to Boston for Sanderson.

What disturbed Neilson about the trade was the lack of courtesy by the Rangers toward an old hand. As a 12-year Ranger veteran, Neilson thought the least coach Emile Francis could have done was phone him to tell him what was happening.

Vaudeville Makes Comeback In Old Montreal Cabaret

MONTREAL (CP) — Dust off those top hats and canes. Vaudeville is back. Yesterday, it opened in Montreal and is about to blast off into the space age.

The rebirth is happening at a cabaret called Chez Lavalet, where sultry blondes strut their stuff beneath a third-rate chandelier and gentlemen with wide-brimmed fedoras and cigars whoop it up. Stage and eye are aligned because top dancers are agreeably scarce, not on the bigger ballroom dance floor.

The Lavalet is a curious anachronism, and a success. While the live entertainment is often the old-time variety circle jerk, the crowd is mixed in attend, a few modern dance performers have been known rewarding bare breasts, female impersonators and David Bowie disciple swinging from the rafters and screeching rock songs.

And although Andre Lavalet's showplace hopes to removate the cabaret to regain its lavish glory of the 1870s mantle he labels "vaudeville," the emphasis is ole-outrageous sound" will continue to attract the customers to the dance floor between sets.

Typical of the acts Lavalle hopes to book on its stage are the Les Ballets Dance Circus, a 16-member modern dance troupe that's been tampered with the modern, added hints of burlesque and the old-fashioned vaudeville ball.

"We will be including jazz, modern dance, mime, tape music and dancing girls," explains lanky dancer and choreographer Lee Chevalier, said Constantine Dardig, choreographer.

"We're trying to bring live entertainment to the people, only better, to give them a touch of class."

Lafleurme said the "breath of air" includes reasonable prices. He charges $1 admission on weekdays and $2 on weekends.

Darling said most people cannot afford to see the big name shows at the luxury and glamorous or hotels but that the cabaret will live entertainment after two decades of "canned music."

"What we want is a revival of Broadway, Hollywood and Paris to mix with Quebec's own style of jazz, ballet and acrobatics," said Jesse Kruse, director of the dance group.

During said vaudeville currently is the rage in New York City and he wants to bring Montreal in line at it.

"To do a live cabaret show every night is very difficult," Darling, who has appeared on television, but prefers the intimacy of live cabaret.

"We have been looking for this for two years now."

He said the interest of such films as Cabaret, The Boy Friend and That's Entertainment, all homey, flashy musicals, demonstrates that a market exists for entertainment "that just makes people feel good."

Lafleurme has been in the restaurant business for 20 years, about $10 million.

The avant-garde scene has served as an audience market study, giving state planners a chance to determine what the audience likes, said parts de-partment analyst Mark Lyons.

Lyons said the best-received offering was piano virtuoso Yan Cahen's blending - room - only afternoon rock concert one day.

The season included a potpourri of entertainment ranging from the ear-splitting rock of Rita Oyster Cut through the mellow tones of Gordon Lightfoot and on to the patter of slipovers from New York City's Jolly Boy Band.

A complete post-season review and audience analysis will be conducted in January, a spokesman said.

New York's Artpark A $7 Million Success

The reservation is not but soon chose. The Artpark's activities, perched on 97.2 million in state funds before the opening-night curtain was raised.

But since the July 25 debut, officials of the state department of parks and recreation have been pleased with public response.

"The season has been exceptional," said Charles Cinnamon, the theatre's publicity director. "It has been beautifully accepted by the audience. There's a climate, there's something in the air, when you become here you respond to it."

The theatre, a huge amphitheatre of brick, glass and steel, resembles a topless pyramid. It is perched overlooking the spectacular Niagara River Gorge, slightly more than a mile from the falls.

The facility seats 2,400, but giant steel shelters can be pushed behind the building to allow another 1,000, seated on the grassy incline, to view productions from outdoors.

There is also an artists-in-residence program.

"We've asked them to come and use the park as a laboratory for their ideas," said Dale Mcnulty, the park's executive director.

The invitation has drawn about 30 sculptors, poets, dancers, painters and architects who are paid up to $200 a week to ply their crafts before park patrons.

Jack Marsaville, a parks department spokesman, said the total cost estimates for just the theatre came to about $5 million. The complex, including two 500-car parking lots, an amphitheatre and boardwalk, is 80 per cent complete.

Now That's Sentiment

UNION, Ky. (AP) — It's home ball season in Union and Larry Loebbers is umpire, groundskeeper and, often, the only fan at his own major league ballpark.

Loebbers, 31, is the proud owner of all that is left of Crosley Field, until 1970 the home of the Cincinnati Reds.

"All I really ever wanted to do was walk on the field," said Loebbers. "Then when they mentioned off parts of the stadium, I thought I'd pick up a few seats and was thing kept leading to another."

Four years and $9,000 later, Loebbers has a full set of seats and his docks now park at the city baseball park.

"I didn't think it was right that they should just rip the stadium up and away," said Loebbers.

For one game Union year can see Loebbers' stadium up on the hill. The teams, the fold poles and the dugouts are all in place, but there are no grandstands.

Loebbers has only 400 seats, but that's enough.

"There are only 250 people in Union," grinned Loebbers.

SID FOR PLAYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The World Football League was to hold a draft of all players from the financially troubled Detroit Wheels team today and start a new team in New York in 1976, Gary L. Davidson, the league's president, said Monday. The 10 remaining teams in the league will take as many of the 37 players from the Detroit roster as are wanted, Davidson added after an all-day meeting of the league's owners and board of governors. Best-known players for Detroit are quarterback Bubba Wyche, formerly of the University of Tennessee and the Canadian Football eLeague and fullback Mike Scarcher, who played at the University of New Mexico and in Canada.

Alston Signs For 22nd Time

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Walter Alston, the dean of active major league baseball managers, was signed Monday to his 22nd one-year contract to direct the Angeles Dodgers next season.

The announcement was made by Peter O'Malley, president of the Dodgers.

The 1974 Dodgers won the National League pennant, their seventh under Alston, before losing the World Series to Oakland Athletics in five games.

Only two men, Connie Mack and John McGraw, have managed one club for a longer period of time than Alston. Mack managed Philadelphia Athletics for 50 years and McGraw the New York Giants for 31 years.

MORTON WANTS OUT

DALLAS (AP) — Reserve quarterback Craig Morton has asked Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League to be traded. Morton, who has played only three years as a backup to Roger Staubach. He has signed a contract Houston Texans of the World Football League, now located in Shreveport, La.

WENSINK DEMOTED

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues Monday sent left winger John Wensink and defenseman Don Wheldon to the National Hockey League team's Denver farm club. Wensink, put out of action by a back injury prior to the beginning of the regular season, was sent to Denver primarily to get into condition after the layoff.

RICK NAMED

ROCHESTER (AP) — The International League baseball Baseball Writers' Association said Monday it has named Jim Rice of the Rochester, an outfielder of the year and Karl Kuehl of Memphis as manager of the year. Rice led the league in hitting with a .337 average. Kuehl's team finished in a tie for the division crown.

HEADS FOR AUSTRALIA

LONDON (AP) — a 16-man English cricket team left Monday for a five-month tour of Australia, confident it would retain the Ashes. The team begins its campaign Oct. 30, with six test matches scheduled to decide the destination of the Ashes, traditional symbol of cricketing supericrity between the countries.

Soviet Documentary Parodies Arms Race

MOSCOW (AP) — In a caption segment of a new Soviet documentary film, Leo Burnett men, obviously afraid of each other, are building neighborly bonses bristling with guns.

The arms race continues until the bosses disappear in a forest of weapons. Then war is fired and both bosses are left lying on the ground in the ura world.

The neighbors, somewhat the worse for wear, climb out of the ruins and start attacking each other with axes and clubs.

The message of the cartoon, part of a documentary on Soviet foreign policy, is this: if the arms race between the Soviet Union and United States continues unabated, one shot may relove the globe to a pre-cave man condition.

The two-hour color film, entitled The Difficult Roads of Peace, is designed to convince the Soviet people that the Politburo is aware of the Communist party, especially identified with General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev, is necessary to avert such a catastrophe.

Brezhnev is the unquestioned hero of the movie, now being shown at three Moscow theatres. His negotiations with former Western leaders—Soviets Charles de Gaulle and Georges Pompidou of France, West German Chancellor Willy Brandt and President Richard M. Nixon—are shown and discussed at length.

At the time of Nixon's resignation, there was speculation that the Communist party chieftain might attend politi-

The tourists on Red Square are transformed into young soldiers, in march formation at front and sense return.

In the current days, we do not yet peer deeply enough to recollection of the past," says the narrator. "Let the dead of the future, it is impermissible and unforgivable to forget."

Showing scenes of the bustling city of Volgograd once reduced to rubble by German bombs, the narrator reminds the audience that "it was impossible to turn such a city into dust even with only one bomb or one rocket."

Despite the progress of detente with the United States, the viewers are also told that there still is danger in the form of U.S. arms.

"Along your borders, nuclear rocket planes are the narrator is told. "Over your coasts, there are submarines with nuclear warheads. In the underground mines, the missiles of destruction are targeted to your city."

The program of peace demands that the means of mass destruction be made unacceptable to humankind and blind weapon, which doesn't have the difference between an army and peaceful population, between soldiers and children."

The narrator emphasizes that Brezhnev's peace program has met with worldwide approval.

NDP Said Using Federal Act To Finance Provincial Work

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party is using the new federal Election Expenses Act to help finance its political activities in the provincial party officials say.

They confirm that NDP fund raisers are using the national party as a clearing house to channel tax deductible contributions to provincial NDP organizations.

The national Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties say they are considering doing the same thing.

Gordon Vichert, secretary of the NDP's Ontario wing, said in an interview that none of the provincial party's fund-raising activities was used in this way to help finance the NDP's provincial election campaign last year.

Mr. Vichert said NDP National Secretary Clifford Scotton said the party is using this last provision as a handy way to bankroll provincial operations.

Supporters wishing to donate money to an NDP candidate in a provincial election simply mark their payment to the federal party clerk a receipt and claim a deduction on their income tax. Money is then turned over by the party to the provincial organization.

Until the act was passed, the money simply went from the provincial to the federal organizations and others doters to claim tax deductions for contributions.

Defence Lawyers Prepared For Close Quizzing of Dean

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence lawyers in the Watergate cover-up trial are about to start trying to repair any damage done to their clients by the testimony of former White House counsel John Dean.

Prosecutor James Neal has another hour of questioning of Dean today and then defence lawyers will start their cross examination.

Leading off for the defence will be Jams Hamilton, son of H. R. Haldeman, former White House staff chief.

Following Wilson will be William Bittman, lawyer for former attorney-general John Mitchell.

It is expected to take most of the week for the remaining defence lawyers to finish cross examining Dean, trying to track down inconsistencies in his testimony.

The other three defendants are Robert Mardian and Kenneth Parkinson.

During slightly more than four days testimony as the key prosecution witness, Dean made devastating assertions about Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman.

The prosecution supplemented Dean's testimony with the playing of tapes of five presidential conversations and a recording of a telephone conversation between former White House special counsel Charles Colson and Howard Hunt, one of the Watergate break-in defendants.

The five defendants are charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice. In addition, all but Mardian are charged with obstruction of justice. Mitchell, Haldeman and Ehrlichman also are charged with various counts of lying to investigators.

In his testimony, Dean described conversations on June 19, 1972, two days after the break-in, with Ehrlichman, Mitchell and Mardian in which the conspiracy was getting control of the FBI investigation.

Dean told of several discussions that day and on the days following with Ehrlichman in which he kept the White House domestic affairs adviser up to date on developments. His testimony on that point bore on the charge that Ehrlichman lied when he told FBI agents in July that he did not know about Watergate until afterwards.

Dean described efforts to raise money to avoid growing demands from the break-in defendants and also to give them assurances of clemency.

He told of the attempt to get the Central Intelligence Agency to meet the burglars' demands and of the fabrication of a false story to explain $350,000 given to Gordon Liddy to finance covert political-intelligence operation.

And, finally, Dean told of White House meetings in which Nixon joined his aides in discussing ways to contain the Watergate investigation.

Meanwhile, in another part of the courthouse Monday, U.S. District Judge Charles Richey issued an order temporarily blocking the White House from giving Nixon custody of his White House papers and tapes.

VERY INTER ESTING!

That's a very unusual sort-out, but really, that's exactly what it is. Here's a 3 bedroom home that's very interesting to our prospects as they're looking for a home in the Belleville area. Interesting because of the outstanding location, interesting because of the fine family neighbourhood, interesting because of the fact that because it only takes a 10% down payment to get into this home, it's interesting to a lot of people. Interesting because it's priced right in the range of what they can afford to pay. Interesting because it's ready to move in to the condition you see it in. Interesting because it's a home that's interesting. Interesting? Yes, it is. Call us today.

Win at Bridge

By Oswald and James Jacoby

The average bridge player has no trouble making the heart slam. He draws trumps, takes the club finesse, lays down the ace and deuce of clubs and claims his slam after the suit breaks 3-3.

The near expert can find a way to get himself set. He draws trumps and takes the club finesse, but suppose West, East drops the king of clubs on the second club lead. Now our near expert stops, looks, tries to imitate a genius thinking and decides that if East held a doubleton club a squeeze could be developed against West.

So our near expert cashes all the trumps and the two diamonds. An alert West will play the seven, eight and 10 of diamonds while carefully retaining the four spot and his final discard will be the 10 of clubs.

Dummy, discarding after West will be done to kingston of spades and two clubs. Our hero will be sure that his squeeze has worked. He will discard the small spade from dummy, his last club and will wind up with egg all over his face as East takes the last three tricks.

CJOH Takeover Move Is Denied

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) said Monday it has denied a bid by Campeau Corp. to take over Bushnell Communications Ltd., owner of several Ottawa-area television concerns.

The CRTC, in its decision, the CRTC noted that Campeau, an Ottawa-based real estate and construction company, has no interest or experience in broadcasting, other than a small shareholding in Skyline Cablevision Ltd., one of the Bushnell companies.

Campeau was buying its subsidiary Ottawa-Carswell Broadcasting Ltd., controls CJOH-TV, the Ottawa CTV affiliate, with rebroadcasting transmitters at Cornwall and Pembroke, Ont.

With its subsidiary Laurentian Cablevision Ltd., Bushnell controls cable television systems serving Rockland, Ont., and the nearby Quebec communities of Hull, Aylmer, Lacoste, Duncheson and Touraine.

D and C Required Following Birth

By G.C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thompson: Is a D. and C. standard procedure following a vaginal birth? I had a healthy but underweight baby due to an unhealthy placenta.

Six weeks later I was hemorrhaging and had to have an emergency D. and C. to remove the remaining placenta. Could this inconsiderate (wanting to be quite kind) procedure be avoided if a D. and C. had been performed while I was still on the delivery table?

I hesitate to ask my obstetrician since I don't want him to think I'm accusing him of having a mistake, when, indeed, I'm ignorant on the subject.—N.S.

I think you might have talked with your obstetrician about your fear of embarrassing him because I believe he did the right thing.

A D. and C. (dilation and scraping of the uterus) is not a standard procedure after an apparently normal vaginal delivery. In the average case there is no need for it—but there is risk.

The segments of the placenta can at times adhere to the uterus and cause bleeding such as you described—and a D. and C. then is necessary.

In your case there evidently was no indication that any such particles had adhered. The reason for not doing it as a routine procedure is that right after delivery the uterus is soft and has not returned to its usual size and consistency.

Dear Dr. Thompson: Can you please tell me why surgical menopause is called a hot flashes, and how long I can expect to have them?—Mrs. W.A.

For precisely the same reason that natural menopause occurs—hot flashes whether they are natural or surgical, or (as in menopausal females) vaginal dryness—is no longer is getting the female hormones that the ovaries no longer provided. This fairly dramatic result is a sort of instability of blood flow in blood vessels close to the surface of the body—hence the sensation rush of circulation that you know as a "hot flash."

Appropriate dosage of female hormones, whether given by mouth or by injection, replaces the missing hormones, usually quickly. With natural menopause, the female hormone lessens gradually. With surgical menopause, the production is terminated suddenly.

Dear Dr. Thompson: We are aware of the success of operations for the relief of arthritis, and would like to know if there is anything else possible and successful.—J.S.F.

The knee is a very much more complicated joint than the hip, and knees have to support a knee damaged by arthritis has been a great deal of success. However, within the last year we have finally been told that there is no known and sure cure for arthritis. Many different kinds of drugs, and also all signs of the gouts, that you fifth toe, and the arthritis Foundation can be of help in guiding you to the right place.

Housing Officials Arrested

TORONTO (CP) — Nine present and two former Ontario Housing Corporation officials were arrested today on charges they accepted substantial gifts from developers, contractors and subcontractors.

Charles Rowell, assistant deputy attorney-general, said 16 charges were laid against the 11 men in other provinces, will be brought to Ontario.

All 11 will be charged under the section of the Criminal Code which prohibits employees from accepting gifts from persons dealing with their employer or government without the written consent of their branch head, Mr. Tyrrell said.

The accused were the result of an Ontario provincial police inquiry into crimes in the building industry, Mr. Rowell said. He expressed the hope more guilty pleas will be forthcoming and save the labor-ridden courts the time and expense of a trial.

Mr. Rowell said gifts to OHC officials at various levels of the construction industry ranged from golf clubs and a trip to the television studio, a stereo record player and gift certificates.

Police said four charges have been laid so far. Nicholas Kaiser, 51, of Mississauga, Ont., faces four counts of fraud. Joseph Kassa, 45, of Burlington, Ont., is charged with 10 counts of fraud. Stanley Pitchforth, 49, of Toronto with four counts and Albert Bodker, 38, of Pickering, Ont., with one.

Names of the remaining seven persons will be released before withheld until charges are laid.

Closer Crib Inspection Recommended

TORONTO (CP) — Crib parts should be lodged closer for inspection, an inquest into the death of nine-month-old Terry Thompson has said Monday.

Coroner A. E. Noble made the recommendation after hearing a sample package of nuts and bolts for assembling a crib similar to the one the child died in Aug. 14.

Testimony at the inquest showed the child became pinned between the side of the crib and the mattress and blood vessels in his brain were apparently pressed shut.

Dr. Thomas Rose, a pediatrician, told the coroner that a crib provided by a social services department could not be fastened at one point because a bolt and washer had been left out by the factory. He said that the failing to place a bolt and washer at that point could have enabled it behind a leg of the crib.

"As a father should have made it fun about it, but I think people on welfare get a lot of undeserved criticism . . . and they're afraid to complain too much in case it goes through to the kids," he said.

Dr. Noble said.

The jury of two women and three men which is to deliberate today and then make its recommendations.

No Big Arms Curbs Likely

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger arrives in Moscow today for another attempt to move the Soviet and United States governments toward an agreement to curtail the nuclear-arms race. But Western observers doubt any dramatic breakthrough is likely.

Kissinger is believed to have sent the Kremlin new proposals to get the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) moving again, including a schedule of suggested limits on the production of offensive missiles.

Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev has given no indication what his response might be. But the greatest, in the view of Western observers, is for more difficult bargaining in the second round of SALT talks, which opened in Geneva last month and then recessed to await the outcome of Kissinger's third visit to Moscow this year.

Also on the U.S.-Soviet agenda are the fates of Arab-Israeli peace negotiations and the possibility of a new unlimited meeting between Brezhnev and President Ford during Ford's visit to the Far East next month.

Trade Plans Made

Trudeau Pleased By French Visit

PARIS (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today he believes that France now understands that the Canadian federal government is pre-eminent over Quebec in matters of foreign affairs.

He told a news conference that in his talks with French leaders he had the impression they understand that the federal government is responsible for foreign affairs in Canada.

He said he considers his visit to France a success. It resulted in agreement to increase trade between the two countries.

He said his visit "opened a new phase in Franco-Canadian relations."

The news conference came at the end of Trudeau's visit to France. He left immediately afterward for Belgium on the first leg of his European tour.

Trudeau said the French government now seems to accept that Canada has a federal system of government which differs from the French system of government for its entire country—a unitary state.

The issue of France-Quebec relations has been a touchy one since Gen. Charles de Gaulle declared in a Quebec City visit (Long live free Quebec) during a visit to Montreal seven years ago. Since then Quebec provincial representatives have often been treated like representatives of independent countries on their visits to Paris.

Asked at his news conference today about de Gaulle's remark, Trudeau said: "This shadow did not spoil the cordiality of our talks. For us, Canadians, the page is turned and I believe it is the same for France... I believe the affair remained in Paris as forgotten as the distasteful of what the federal government of Canada, every month, this understanding exists today."

The prime minister also said today that France accepts the fact that Canada will impose controls on the use of uranium it exports to ensure it is used only for peaceful purposes.

France has indicated it would like to buy uranium from Canada, perhaps through an enriched uranium plant powered by electricity from the giant James Bay project.

Canada some years ago refused to sell uranium to France because the French would not pledge it would be used only for peaceful purposes. Trudeau told reporters Canada remains committed to its control procedures.

Trudeau said France is interested in selling air and rail equipment to Canada. France has a high-speed rapid-rail train and is a leader in construction of aircraft.

"We are interested in selling to France some of our products in transportation," the prime minister said.

"STOL (short takeoff and landing) aircraft is one of the things that would be on the agenda."

During his three-day visit to Brussels Trudeau will meet with officials of the Belgian government, European Economic Community (EEC) and North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

He will meet with Belgian Premier Leo Tindemans, Francois-Xavier Ortoli, president of the European commission, and NATO Secretary-General Joseph Luns.

The prime minister and Mrs. Trudeau will stay in Sleyswyck Castle, once the residence of Queen Elizabeth of Belgium and now the government's official residence for distinguished visitors.

Trudeau was to meet with Tindemans today and tonight he and Mrs. Trudeau will be guests at a dinner given by the Belgian government.

On Thursday, the prime minister will speak to the North Atlantic Council and hold talks with the Common Market's executive commission.

Canada seeks a formal trade agreement with the Common Market. Informed market sources said there is little chance of this in the immediate future.

Trudeau ended his talks with French leaders Tuesday and reached agreement to promote a "rapid doubling" of trade between the two countries.

News Briefs

Too Expensive

OTTAWA (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday he does not believe the domestic price of oil should be raised just to encourage oil industry rigs to remain in the country. Some rigs have left the western provinces in explorer in the United States where higher prices are being paid for oil.

HONOLULU (AP) — A major earthquake struck a remote area of the South Pacific, authorities said today. There were no early reports of casualties or damages.

Butter Lower-priced

NEW YORK (AP) — In parts of the United States margarine is no longer "the lower-priced spread." Many of the fancier margarines now exceed butter in price.

Greeks Arrested

ATHENS (AP) — Former dictator George Papadopoulos and four of his closest associates have been arrested and exiled to a remote part of Greece on charges of plotting to regain power, the government announced today.

More Aid Planned

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Rene Brunelle, provincial minister of consumer and social services, said Tuesday the government plans to increase funds to locally-operated workshops for the handicapped.

Oil Exporters Seek Simpler Price System

VIENNA (Reuter) — Finance experts from major oil-exporting countries embark today on a study aimed at simplifying the oil-pricing structure which might lead to a slight reduction in the cost of petroleum.

The study, launched by the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), aims to maintain the current high levels of revenues gained by oil producers since 1973 while cushioning them against inflation.

No Decision Yet Made On Beef Investigation

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has not yet decided whether it will launch an investigation of the beef industry, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan told the Commons agriculture committee Tuesday.

"We're trying to decide in our department whether to carry out an investigation and what form it should take," he said in response to a question from Tom Wilson Jarvis (PC—Perth-Wilmot).

Mr. Jarvis said a morning newspaper story had quoted unnamed agriculture officials as saying such an investigation is inevitable.

Mr. Whelan did announce last week that there might be an inquiry, but expressed concern at that time that producers' returns have been falling without a corresponding drop in meat prices paid by the consumer.

But Tuesday, Mr. Whelan told the story only that the department now is trying "to pull all the facts together." He added that the four western provinces, along with various producer and group groups, favor an inquiry.

Jarvis wanted an explanation for the range in beef prices across the country, the minister said.

Ottawa Applies Brakes To Soaring Immigration

OTTAWA (CP) — The government requested Tuesday in tabling immigration and labor of high unemployment with new regulations to its immigration more directly to jobs.

The regulations, announced in the Commons by Immigration Minister Robert Andras, will penalize prospective immigrants in points on the 50-point admission system if they do not have pre-arranged jobs in Canada or the skills to fill positions in work-scarce areas.

Mr. Andras estimated that the restrictions, which take effect immediately, will cause rising immigration by about 40 per cent to stabilize overall immigration at about 220,000 per-sons in 1975.

Without the new penalties immigration could be expected to reach 300,000 to 350,000 in 1975, he said. This level is far too high in face of uncertain employment rates, scarce and costly housing and burdensome demands on social services.

The crackdown will slow immigration among professional applicants and those nominated by relatives in Canada. But they will have no affect on sponsored immigrants, those joining immediate family members or fiances in Canada—Mr. Andras said.

He said the changes are designed to stabilize overall immigration increase while the government prepares to introduce a whole new immigration policy.

Corruption In Quebec Is Probed

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec Police Force has begun an investigation into the activities of certain officials and others who help administer the northern region of the province, it was announced Tuesday.

The government said in a statement that the investigation, requested by Natural Resources Minister Maurice Bourgeois, was to determine how much embezzlement was being practised in the areas overseen by the Quebec Provincial Police. Bourgeois said the force will have its own investigation into the matter in 1971 and it should be ready for public dating back to 1965, the statement said.

Oil Producers of Lumber Seek Marketing Board

TORONTO (CP) — A five-delegation representing an ad hoc group of 13 independent lumber producers met Leo Bernier, natural resources minister Tuesday and asked that a marketing board be established for the producers' commodities.

The lumber producers want assistance from the province in negotiating higher prices for logs, cited lowered and shortlogs sold mainly to large, integrated pulp and paper companies.

The small, independent companies do not have much clout when it comes to negotiating with the large integrated companies," said W. A. Seaman, president of Great West Timber Ltd., of Thunder Bay.

"Either something has to happen or we will all have to sell out," Mr. Seaman, the leader of the delegation, said in an interview.

Opposition party members have demanded that logging be stopped in the park.

Mr. Bernier said Tuesday it was decided "in the economic interests of that region . . . to maintain logging on a selective basis."

Outside the legislature, Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said: "All it means is that they're going to pig pet in a lot more picnic tables, pick up the trash and still permit logging."

Stephen Lewis MPP, continued: "It means the eventual desecration of the park." Timber was made available outside the park.

The New Democratic Party leader said he would fight the terms of reference of the authority to be established by a bill in the legislature.

In announcing the plan, Mr. Bernier said it would include the cornerstone of provincial parks in Ontario and has received the bulk of recent planning and administration attention.

Details of the plan flowed from policy decisions in July, 1973, he said.

"Now we're crossing the t's and dotting the i's."

He said 1975 budget allocations for the long-term plan have yet to be determined.

Included in the plan is a five-year review as a means of continuing public involvement, he said.

The plan designates 1.3 million acres for logging, 90,000 for natural areas, 7,655 for activity oriented areas, 168,000 for camping and canoeing in "primitive" areas, 40,000 for recreation and 5,000 for access points. An additional 79,000 acres will be designated a reserve.

Care Refused

Municipalities May Not Get Increased Aid

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Provincial Treasurer John White has told Ontario municipalities that the provincial treasury may not be able to meet increased funding money to municipalities to help finance local services.

"Provincial taxes are high enough," he told delegates to the Association of Counties and Regions of Ontario (ACRO).

Mr. White said Tuesday the province would be unable to provide funds for anything other than essential expenditures.

While the province had been tightening spending, some municipalities had been increasing spending greatly. The province had borrowed significantly to meet its obligations while municipalities asked every penny from long-term debts.

Waste Found In Water Supply

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Ministry of environment officials have ordered Trenton Public Utilities Commission to find the source of waste found in the public water supply.

Provincial officials have ordered the plant to institute regular checks of its privy irrigation system. The process followed Tuesday's discovery of processed sewer cars on fields surrounding the plant.

The plant must also build more pit pipes that feed sludge that spray the material.

The provincial workers follow the most recent contamination incident when about 100-200 gallons of waste found its way into Trenton Lake.

Operator Gordon Thom, Ralph Shaw said Tuesday the waste escaped from a 24-hour period before the spillage was discovered.

The plant processes and freezes sewer cars and pass, obtained from about 1,000 acres within a 25-mile radius of Trenton. It processes between 12-18 million pounds each year.

Reports from both ministry and company sources indicate the spillage was discovered by a worker did not shut off the flow to a sewage removal pipe after switching its nozzle to another pipe.

The resulting spillage flowed into a ditch into Mayhew Creek and then into Trenton Lake.

Gordon Thom, an officer with the ministry's industrial abatement section, said Tuesday, "It (effluent) has no affect whatsoever on the lake. It was too small a quantity over too long a distance."

Mr. Thom said the waste travelled an estimated two miles to the lake.

"If anything, it would tend to slightly activate any algae or weed growth in the lake," he said.

Trenton utilities manager Douglas Manior discounts the ministry's claim that the spillage does not have a major affect on algae growth.

Mr. Manior said Tuesday a sampling of water in the recharging pond by a private company has led the firm to conclude the algae growth was below fed by the waste. His said figures and further information will be known Thursday.

The PUC, however, said algae buildup in the lake's recharging pond prompted the call for a ministry investigation.

The pond acts as the collector of water from Trenton Lake, before it is drawn into Trenton's water supply.

Routinely, it is cleared of algae once every two years. It was cleaned out in April, 1973, but rapid growth forced the PUC to clean it again within six months.

Mr. Manior discounted the PUC's claim the waste material considerably flows into a ditch that led into Mayhew Creek. He said the ditch was dug to carry away surface water from the rear of the plant, subject to poor drainage.

Company manager Ralph Shaw could not be reached for comment on the use of the ditch. Earlier, however, he said his firm plans to install a dike on the bank of Mayhew Creek to prevent a re-occurrence of the problem.

New Majorette Corps Draws Town's Interest

TRENTON — The Murray Centennial Majorette Corps is just over a month old here, but already enrollment has climbed to 50 girls.

Kathy Adams, the corps' principal teacher, said she is pleased with its progress to date. Already, the enrollment has doubled from the 25 girls she taught while in Belleville at the YMCA last year.

Why did she leave Belleville for Trenton, where two groups already exist?

"There's more of an interest here," said the 20-year-old teacher.

In her first year here, the member of the National Baton Twirling Association and accredited teacher has been teaching twirling for approximately six years. The marching "objects of the corps' parade work is taught by Joan Claude Savoie.

With less than two months under their belts, the 50-member corps has already plans to march in nine Christmas parades.

Plans are for the corps to appear in parades in Trenton, Belleville and Kingston.

During Belleville's Santa Claus parade, Mrs. Adams has a two-year-old score to settle.

Her cousin, Lee Anne Stapley of Stirling whom she taught some four years ago, has won the best majorette corps prize for the last two years.

The corps is currently on a fund drive geared to raising enough money to buy its members majorette uniforms.

Two Juveniles Arrested

BRIGHTON — Two 15-year old juveniles are back in Midland today with auto theft charge spending after provincial police here arrested the pair on Highway 401 just west of here Tuesday.

Brighton OPP were alerted to the pair were in the Quinte area after Belleville city police reported the car, stolen in Midland, was involved in a gas theft in Belleville.

Belleville city police today said the pair pulled into Doug Rollins Shell station on Canniff St. and College St. and asked for gas. This occurred around 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The gas bill came to $8.75 but the two left without paying. They were apprehended by Brighton OPP shortly after 8 p.m.

Parents of the two juveniles and Midland police returned the pair to the Georgian Bay community.

Investigating OPP officer John Collette said the vehicle had a flat tire on Highway 401 and this may have wrecked the car long enough for police to make the arrest.

Driver Charged

TWEED — A Picton area man who drove into a highway excavation has been charged with careless driving by Madoc Provincial Police.

Wayne C. Bramberger, 20, of RR4, Picton, drove into the ditched excavation on County road 12, 7½-miles from Madoc at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday. The excavation is part of a road resurfacing program. Damage to his car was estimated at $500.

Public Confused About CAS Role

By MARG. HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Four of the Children's Aid Society as an authoritarian organization that removes children from their parents still exists to a degree says Garth Smith director of the Prince Edward CAS.

"We are not taking away children from their homes in 'utter confusion'."

"We debate at great length before a child is removed," says Mr. Smith.

He observes that in cases where circumstances demand removal of the child usually, the mother is returned to his home after the CAS has counselled the parents.

Although certain misconceptions of the CAS do exist, Mr. Smith feels its work is being generally understood and respected.

"I think over the years people have come to see we don't walk in and take children and and you don't see them again," he says.

The Prince Edward CAS now is working with 68 families involving a total of 204 children in their own homes.

Mr. Smith describes the CAS as "a program of preventive work". In which much time is be spent to keep families together with their families.

Statistics show the caseload in Prince Edward CAS care as of September 30, 1974.

To meet the needs of the families requiring help from the CAS, five full-time staff member are employed as well as one part-time social worker.

The prime case load of one of the workers concerns adoptions and work with unwed mothers.

Of the 51 children now in care with the local CAS, five were born to unwed mothers.

In 1973, at a corresponding date, there were four such youngsters in care.

Mr. Smith says the Prince Edward CAS this fall is working with more unwed mother than in the fall of 1973 and observes more of them are choosing to keep their babies.

At the end of September, 1973, there were five unwed mothers receiving CAS assistance. This fall the figure raised to thirteen.

The CAS director notes more children are being kept by unwed mothers for a variety of reasons, among them the financial help that is available. Another explanation of the changing trend is the fact society now is more tolerant of the unwed mother.

The director says several of the unwed mothers who have kept their babies discover their social life has been curbed as their boyfriends do not necessarily accept the children.

"A pretty special person is needed to raise a child on her own unless there is a substitute male figure," says Mr. Smith.

Paperback Market

Frank talk from Newton Kolts, an editor with the U.S. Bantam paperbacks company, which has plans to enter the Canadian market:

"We expect a reaction against us," he said in a Toronto interview. "After all, we're big, we're American and we have a lot of money, comparatively. But I'd like to stress we're not interested in raping Canada. We are interested in a publishing program that is to our mutual advantage. We have the wherewithal to provide Canadian authors, publishers and public with a beneficial program."

As a further sop to nationalist feeling here, Kolts said that an affiliate of Bantam in Britain was doing very well and operates with complete independence. He believes the trend will be the same here.

Kolts, who was discussing his company's plans with William French of The Globe and Mail, sees the Canadian operation as a two-way street, with opportunities for practical Canadian paperbacks in the United states. He has also been talking with Canadian publishers with a view to opening up the U.S. market to forthcoming books.

French says Bantam, in addition, is moving into the educational field here, to take advantage of the current interest in Canadian literature in the schools. As a result he expects a more encouraging product for budget-conscious school boards, but less benefit financially to Canadian publishers.

All in all though Canadian writers and the reading public should benefit greatly from this development; and even though a visit to any book store of any size — and Belleville has several — is to be confronted with an embarrassment of literary riches.

There is probably no artistic medium more amply endowed, or served by so many of such talent and industry than the literary scene. While so many Canadian paperbacks available it is one of the great bargains of the day. The only thing that is in short supply, for the average working man, is the time to enjoy it.

Fresh Light

The latest U.S. findings on drugs, and especially on cannabis which hitherto had been thought relatively harmless, should enable people to make up their minds more readily on the subject.

As far back as 1969 we had people in authority such as Judge William Little of Metro Toronto juvenile and family court saying that marijuana was less harmful than either tobacco or alcohol.

But others, members of the medical profession among them, were of contrary opinion even then. Barely a day or two after the judge's statement, the Conservative MP for Athabasca, Paul Yewchuk (who is also a doctor) advised young people to "get off the pot." While acknowledging there was no evidence as to whether it was truly habitual or not, Yewchuk said that while in medical practice in Vancouver he saw "the ravaged personalities" of heroin addicts. Most had begun on marijuana.

Well, so much has been said on the subject over the years that further observations may seem to be superfluous. But word from the U.S.A. reports a new evidence of long-term deterioration of health, and of birth defects in succeeding generations, is extremely important as far as the public is concerned.

In Perspective

Road accidents are taken too much for granted. Here is a classic example — from embattled Northern Ireland. Chief Constable of the Ulster police force James Flanagan says: "While it is understandable that we should all be preoccupied with the security situation, we must not lose sight of the fact that the greatest cause of violent death in Northern Ireland in 1973 was road accidents. Human suffering and misery are no less when the instrument of death or injury is a vehicle rather than a bomb or bullet."

Jews Shipped To Nazi Death Camps

'Gates Of The Louvre' Stirs Unhappy Memories in France

By JOHN D. HARRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The French are making another movie expose of their tragic political and social divisions during the Second World War.

The movie called The Gates of the Louvre is in many ways a blunt cruel reminder of a nation split viverally than the experts documentary. The horrow and The Fity which we saw on CBC-TV, bears the governmental stamp of Giscard d'Estaing. France were permitted to run it.

The Gates of the Louvre is all too Chamberlain's lamentable to other Frenchman, the casual, that the war in the French public is in collaboration with simple French citizens who denounced Jews to the mass shipment to Hitler's Germans and extermination.

And from the viewpoint of European history is clearly true to fact and, moreover, it points up again the passivity of many of them, quietly accepting the big yellow Star of David badge on their coat, pushing the Jews their apparently humane fellow citizens, and then turning them to anything like the ultimate fate they suffered.

Powerfully it does not a single German in this movie, no uniformed SS type, no grim Wehrmacht officer or man. Just Frenchmen.

And they are not being humane to each other. Rather the opposite. It was they themselves participated in the racial, division of French society. It was them complaint. This is part of the history of France, the bitter memories of her great historical experiences or national travails which clamped her at anti-Semitism.

In the case of World War Two's formation of pro-Nazi Vichy France, it accentuated an already lingering national sore.

The horror and The Fity which was shown on CBC-TV last year, this writer thinks, was even more true because it is again a particularly fascinating study of French-men against Frenchmen.

Again there is the apparent lack of Germans. The focus is on sad Frenchmen to the fate of their fellow citizens. It is not cast their lot with the resistance, a movement which always was ridiculed with pro-German informers.

There are the aging and retired school teachers who claim to have only the most rudimentary knowledge of a young teacher who joined the resistance, was caught and executed by the Gestapo, but who is remembered in alone in their village.

There is a long interview with a self-pitying and self-justifying anti-Semitic Frenchman, brought up in both republicanism as a system of anti-clericalism and boldabortion, who joins the German-

"Sad case . . . endangered species, you know."

inspired French Division fighting on the Russian front.

He finds out that the so-called Charlemagne Division, formed after the early medieval emperor, who the Germans call German, the French call a Frankish king, was a common fodder to hold back the Russians. They are as much collaborators as the Vichy regime. In the Fuehrer's brutal New Order in the Nazi Party Germans used to build silk trenches in the East.

These are the kinds of films Frenchmen will remember and young enough to find out only from such documentaries are sealed to the thousands as our French-Canadian prime minister makes the first such visit of a Canadian head of government to France since 1964.

These are reminders to us here who often see differences between English and French-speaking Canadians of the way a nation can be torn apart by its historical prejudices.

Higher Interest On Savings—But For How Long?

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

With interest rates starting to move lower—ever so slightly—in the United States, this could be the time for savers to take advantage of high returns that may not last much longer.

Earlier this month, a few major U.S. commercial banks announced their prime rate (the interest they charge on loans to best commercial customers) to $11.50 per cent. Previously, the U.S. prime had been 11.75 or a record 12 per cent.

Wall Streeters look the prime rate cuts as a sign that business would undertake more capital spending, and thus improve, its earning power. The New-Jersey average of 30 leading U.S. industrial stocks recorded its biggest gain of the year.

If the reductions stick, and then spread to Canada as they often have in the past, then today's high returns on savings will no longer be available.

(Forecasting trends in interest rates is always tricky. Over the past couple of years, there have been occasions when the long uptrend appeared to have ended, only to be resumed later).

Nevertheless, at the wind is the slight dip in the average yield on Government of Canada obligations due in $100 million or more from 8.57 per cent, at the latest weekly auction.

A way to ensure that you will maintain today's interest rates over a period of years is to buy the guaranteed investment-certificates offered by most companies.

An interest rate of 10.75 to 11 per cent (depending upon the individual bank) is being promoted for five years.

But if you prefer to tie your money up for a shorter period of time—in the hope of re-investing it later at a higher yield—the trust companies are selling one-year guaranteed investment certificates with interest ranging from a low of 9.25 per cent to a high of 10.75 per cent. Most firms are clustered around the 10 per cent mark.

Minimum investment in certificates is usually $500. Some small firms sell denominations as small as $100, while certain firms set a $1,000 minimum.

That's one way to have savings to invest for less than a year. It is still possible, on such a short term, to earn from 9.25 per cent to 9.75 per cent through the purchase of chartered-bank certificates of deposit.

If, on the other hand, you have a substantial amount to invest for a longer period, then your choice is naturally broader.

Not yield on real-estate mortgages guaranteed under the National Housing Act is currently 11 per cent—higher on conventional mortgages.

Some savers abhor even the limited risk and bother involved in holding a mortgage. To them, a good alternative might be the low-coupon bonds of large number of government agencies or semi-public corporations, selling at a discount to yield 10 to 11 per cent.

The secret is that the general level of interest rates decline, or as the bond's maturity date approaches, the market price of a discounted bond will rise.

And remember, too, that money-market money you have earned and saved—has a "market value that constantly fluctuates with supply and demand.

The result is that the day's seat today—although conditions can always change.

George Samis Victory

Personality And Hard Work Won Stormont for NDP

By DON O'HEARN
Ottawa Parliamentary Bureau
Thomson News Services

TORONTO — Writing from Cornwall during the Stormont by-election campaign I said that NDP'er George Samis was regarded as the man to beat but that to gain the 4,000 or so extra votes he would need would require an heroic effort by Mr. Samis.

Mr. Samis gained the votes, as we now know, but not as a result of the heroic effort still stands up.

He and his supporters, under the direction of Michael Lewis, brother of leader Stephen Lewis, were able to set their 31-year-old school teacher-trustee enough former Conservative and Liberal voters, and apathetically Conservative, to rack up a fairly easy win.

Nobody could publicly admit it, of course, but it is doubtful there were many shattered hopes in either the PC or Liberal camps.

Both knew that Samis was moving to be attractive to the voters and that chances of their own standing again were slight.

The PC's Guy Lazar, 36-year-old community college official and alderman, was a man with a fine political record behind it.

And the Liberals' 44-year-old lawyer, Paul Zolzon, while recognized as a relative new-comer to politics was in the contest was not

U.S. Publications' Readership Brushes Past Competition

...Kingston Whig-Standard

It is time to take a fresh look at American publications such as Time and Reader's Digest. Canadian readers more than Canadian magazines, but also to Canadian nationalism.

In the controversy over the special sweetheart deal which the federal Government has been continuing with Time and Reader's Digest, both of which get special tax dispensations enable them to collar a disproportionate share of Canadian advertising without being truly Canadian publications, the most simple fact is being overlooked. Which are read widely.

The fact that Saturday Night and recently became a lack of readership - and advertising support - is an indictment against these two highly successful U.S. magazines. If it hadn't been for the existence of Reader's Digest, the argument goes, the most able politician and subsidized Park Barrister, having a reputation, largely undeserved, as a French-Canadian nationalist.

Both the PCs and the Libs MPs' George Samis' record defend. On the ground you could sense it.

The only optimism they showed was that Samis and the NDP might not be able to pick up enough new votes in a riding which was probably the only industrial-based — and at least one of a few, which had never gone NDP or CCF.

And that really was the story of this by-election. It was a personality and organization contest. And the best personality and the hardest working.

In significance the election rejected the proposition many have latent in our political picture.

The NDP is well satisfied with its shot in the arm, and the biggest satisfaction would seem to be that of Stephen Lewis. Now with 29 members it is only two behind the Grits as official opposition.

The Liberals, in turn, are indulging in navel contemplation. They should have won Stormont in the election than they did—Stormont has a large Liberal background.

And the Conservatives? Well they have been there for elections. And this means a certain shakiness on the Davis record.

1976 Scenario in U.S.

Gerald Ford Out And Reagan In?

By BRUCE LEVETT
WASHINGTON (CP) — Circumstances took Gerald Ford out of Grand Rapids, Mich., and now there are signs of unease—in some quarters that other circumstances may be taking Grand Rapids and President Ford, out.

For 25 years, Ford sat in Congress and appeared to epitomize the country's popular conception of the district which sent him there—a bit stodgy, calvinistic and dull, above all, conservative.

Today, columnists and reporters on Capitol Hill, together with some key money segments of the Republican right wing, are pondering openly whether Ford is forsaking traditional stands and whether Congressman Ford—and, indeed, Grand Rapids itself—are somewhat less than stodgy, dull and conservative als along.

A possible source of such uneasiness comes from archconservative Senator James Buckley of New York, who said in a recent speech:

"It cannot change its constitution, as in the case with Canada.

But no doubt once the federal and 10 provincial governments are in agreement, the last governmental link with Britain will be broken peacefully and amiably. . . .

In a working document that gained much exposure in the media, Claude Morin of the Parti Quebecois said Quebec independence would be accomplished through a referendum following an orderly process.

Quebec And Constitutional Issues

Montreal Le Devoir: In matters of political independence, people do not follow firmly established guidelines.

In Canada, as well as Quebec, speculation is rampant about the constitution, the government of Prime Minister Trudeau wanting to repatriate the charter of Confederation during its current term, and the Quebec separatist party already having become the province's official Opposition.

The road leading to complete Canadian independence has not yet been fully travelled, because a country is when he was a representative for a conservative Michigan district, he writes,

"As a congressman, Ford adamantly opposed amnesty for draftees; as president, he . . . ordered a limited form of amnesty. As a congressman, he refrained from publicly endorsing the Vietnam war effort; as president, he supports it."

Ford, himself, has been quoted as saying:

"Forget the voting record. The voting record is about Grand Rapids."

His nomination of Nelson Rockefeller to be vice-president brought teeth-gritting acceptance from constitutionally liberal Republicans and lately, the president has indicated, there have been conservative urgings that him—even at this late stage—abandon that choice.

It is advice he says he does not intend to take seriously.

In addition, there have been reported murmurings of discontent from conservatives at approach in general since he succeeded the White House.

And these have been tied in with speculation that Ronald Reagan, conservative governor of California, might build his campaign for a new right-wing party should he go for the 1976 presidential candidacy.

Apparently abandoned in an open field east of the old Arbor Vitae plant, a large box containing two smaller boxes was discovered about noon today, large quantity of dynamite, dynamite caps and fuses yesterday afternoon. Small boys were reported to be playing around this dangerous explosive. Plainclothes Constable Izard hastened to the scene of the reported findings.

Cherry Valley Church was filled to overflowing Sunday night, when the annual Marriner's Service was held. From all parts of Prince Edward County, and from dis-

Flags and pictures adorned walls and balconies. The altar was draped with netting and flags, while models of lighthouses and schooners and freighters were used in decoration.

The Intelligencer:

Over the long weekend, Belleville's mayor has been a breath for Mayor Jeffrey's press conference regarding her election campaign.

With two years of indifferent performance and unfulfilled objectives behind her, I confidently expect a similar performance in intention to return to the kitchen. However Bellevillians have a short memory and many of us are glutons for punishment. If Mayor Jeffrey tried a stop-gap bid to be re-elected the citizens can expect much more of the same. In two years of office, Mayor Jeffrey tried to stop numerous deputations, suggested deputations should submit briefs for committee hearings, refused to have wanted to censor a young man's play script, met in secret session with the U.C.S., ignored the illegal dumping of garbage at illegal dumpsites, narrowed Victoria Avenue after backing down from one of its best remembered policies that helped some of the city's downtown.

Her worship, in an exceptional display of poor taste, suggested that dog owners should carry a bag and a brush with them while exercising the animals.

Small wonder there was a six vote loss. Let's hope that for the largesse of the Potter property which will result from the implementations of "doggie-bag legislation."

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: On a cold morning last winter my car wouldn't start and the trouble was found to be a frozen gas line. How can I avoid that experience this year?

ANSWER: It isn't the gasoline that freezes, but the small amount of water which collects in every car's tank. Even a little ice can interrupt the flow of gas to the carburetor. Keep a full tank of gasoline throughout the winter to prevent excessive moisture accumulation. To open a frozen line, place a large bath near the fuel pump and gas line. The heat radiated by the bath will usually do the job.

QUESTION: "Last winter my new car's engine sometimes would turn over, but not fire. It was very cold, but the gas line was not frozen."

ANSWER: Engines starting procedure may have been the cause. Check your owner's manual for the proper procedure in starting a cold engine. Most manufacturers advise you to depress the accelerator a few times with the automatic choke and fast idle, then turn the ignition switch to the start position. If the engine isn't started within 10 to 15 seconds, turn off the key and wait briefly before trying again. Never pump the accelerator. An odor of gasoline usually indicates that the engine is flooded. In this case, press the accelerator to the floor and hold it there while turning the starter in five second bursts or so longer. Excessive grinding will damage the starter and weaken the battery. Let a flooded engine sit at least 10 minutes before attempts at starting.

QUESTION: "How do I free a frozen lock on my car door?"

ANSWER: One way is to heat the key by holding the large end in wraps and warming the small end over the flame of a match or lighter. The hot key will free the lock as it is inserted. At home, keep a can of de-icer outside the car. A squirt will free the lock. Placing an adhesive bandage on plastic tape over the keyhole will usually keep the lock from freezing.

QUESTION: "Shouldn't I carry heavy sand or other weights in my car's trunk to improve traction on ice and snow?"

ANSWER: No. Too much weight on the rear wheels, instead of improving traction, makes steering difficult and braking. On icy road surfaces lightly and rapidly. "pump" the brake pedal. Hard, steady brake pressure locks the car's wheels and makes steering impossible. The "pumping" technique means brakes are applied for an instant and released for an instant, keeping control of the vehicle in the driver's hands.

QUESTION: "Why is it a battery can run fine in warm weather, and the first cold day it won't even turn over?"

ANSWER: More hours of driving with lights in winter, harder starting and increased makes starting difficult and a skid actually increases the danger. However, do carry salt, a small supply of abrasive cleaner, gravel, traction mats and a flat-bladed shovel.

QUESTION: "When I started to skid, I panicked and jammed on the brakes. What should I have done?"

ANSWER: Try to keep calm and don't slam on the brakes. Steer in the direction in which the rear of the car is moving. Gently decelerate, and be careful not to oversteer in returning the car to the proper direction. Keep the car in gear or the clutch engaged; use of heaters and defrosters seriously strain the battery. Complicating general loss of battery effectiveness in winter cold is the fact that improper functioning of any other element of the starting system puts an extra load on the battery, and further decreases its efficiency. Have the battery checked to be sure it is fully charged and all electrical functioning well. If the battery shows signs of weakening, or has been in service for 36 months, consider replacing it. Check battery cable condition and be sure an corrosion appears on battery post connections.

MEMO FROM HELEN GAGEN, CONSUMER ADVISOR

SOME REVISED THOUGHTS ON VITAMINS

Many of us were surprised by news from Ottawa recently that studies by our Health Protection Branch show that the average orange contains only about one-third as much as 2 milligrams of vitamin C per 100 millilitres of juice previously thought. Canned orange juice contains nearly 20 milligrams of vitamin C, three times as much as fresh oranges, and a single serving of a half cup of canned juice has 10 milligrams.

Some brands now provide 30 milligrams of vitamin C in an 8-ounce serving, enough to meet the daily requirement for adults. Enough to currently label them as "good sources" of vitamin C.

Until we can make complete tomato juice a rare morsel of vitamin C, sugar is by no definition, however, be high vitamin A, and probable vitamin C value. But to be sure of getting enough vitamin C, you should eat a generous helping of fresh citrus — such, juice, pineapple or whole fruit, or fresh tomatoes, or a raw vegetable salad, or potatoes baked in their jackets.

Skins with fat flesh, particularly of unrefined fats but also some in fat-containing foods, are rich sources of vitamin E, important in the formation of red cells, in muscles, and as a heart disease aider. It's found in vegetable oils, margarine, whole grain cereals and nuts. Unless you need more of some added nutrient, for this extra A or D, be sure to read the labels. Otherwise you need spend no more added nutrient.

Police Gazette Still Gives Stories That Hum

MONTREAL (CP) — The human race lacks only the ability to stop living to learn the true, back into yesteryear but there is still one golden oldie that's as lusty as it was the day it rose from the graveyard.

The National Police Gazette, that naughty, heavily tattoo which carted grandaddy's moustache and scorned tabloid newspapers with its nasty exposés, is alive and well and living in Montreal.

Owned by Montreal publisher Gerry Azaria, who bought the tabloid in 1968, the Police Gazette has long since done away with its famous pink newsprint and may no longer be the bible of the barbershop but it can still give its readers "a story that hums."

Advertising itself as America's oldest tabloid, it first hit the streets of New York in 1845 with a glimpse for its readers of the "marching in Pumpkin Park" and the scandalous bodice Ophelia who introduced "the Mongolian curse" to the Big Apple's young ladies.

"It was aimed at your average Joe who was interested in the goings-on among New York's low life and high life and reading a story that really hummed," said Nat Perley, the man who has edited the tabloid for the last 30 years.

The headlines still read like something out of Ripley's Believe It or Not and the stories are still telling all about fame, fortune and heartbreak — a myth-maker's paradise of sport, sex and crime.

If there is one editorial-policy the Police Gazette has always believed, it is bringing its readers the story behind the story, tales of intrigue and mystery out of America's scarlet past and "putting the scoop" on personalities.

Whether it was reporting bridge-jumping fads or introducing the first cheesecake art to America, the Police Gazette told it like it was, or at least as its editors thought people wanted to hear it.

During the Depression, so the story goes, Franklin D. Roosevelt saved it from collapse.

Its barbershop poll showed FDR would head all pickups in the 1936 election and the White House talked the Democratic National Committee into purchasing two million copies for distribution.

Songwriter Irving Berlin immortalized the "grand-daddy" of scandal sheets in a line of one of his songs about "the pretty, young beauties in the pink Police Gazette."

"It was the original chronicler of America's past before television and before all the newspapers got into reporting about the nitty-gritty," said editor Perley.

And although its "plump and pleasing favorites of the footlights" seem tame today beside the bra love goddesses of Playboy and Penthouse, the Police Gazette still manages to pack a wallop in its screaming headlines.

A sampling reveals its credo of making the humdrum hum—titles like An Unhappy Marriage Can Give You Cancer, The Mother That Talks to the Dead, The Price I Paid for Stardom and an intimate talk with The World's Top Whore.

Although its circulation may have taken a drubbing from its sancter' clerics, an estimated 200,000 readers pick up the Police Gazette each month to read about people like Fran Fullenwider, "the crippled darling who weighs 240 pounds but doesn't let it keep her out of show business."

"If you don't hear personalities, lie important to read about them, make people friendly with them because people like to read about personalities they'd like to be like," said Mr. Perley.

The old days are gone, he said.

"Years ago in Hollywood when there was the star system, you had dozens of great names to read about. Today, who cares?

"There are a lot of morning glories around but they don't become cult figures, like, say Garland or Dietrich or, even Elvis Presley. It's all a chi-chi-de-Dodole proposition."

Television, he said, has become America's myth-maker and the lurid but comic tales of the scarlet past that the Police Gazette relates always seem like the Perils of Pauline.

Changing mores, however, have done little to alter the perennial staple of the Police Gazette diet as it chronicles the ability and misadventures of the star who turned to demon rum and opium or the priestlighter who took one too many punches.

"Veronica Lake once told me that in many of the stars' lives to read about them, he failed or were destroyed by circumstances beyond the system. Sometimes they were victims of their problems," said Mr. Perley.

The Police Gazette's coverage of boxing helped to legalize the sport in the United States.

Its most famous reward was the Police Gazette Diamond Belt, emblematic of the world heavyweight championship, and it is credited with pioneering newspaper sports pages and sports magazines.

Times are changing, however, the magazine has continues to face stiff competition from the mass circulation tabloid-size publications whose coverage is more sophisticated, racy and readable.

With 1st November here, the magazine will grow to standard size in hopes of boosting its circulation in the supermarket and other mass consumer outlets.

Publisher Azaria, who refuses to bow to the trend toward subscription sales, said he believes that one small branch with the past will broaden the magazine's scope.

"We are making a four-in-one editorial package with strong emphasis on sports, current events and a half-dozen good old-fashioned Police Gazette exposes covering just about every subject," he said.

Meanwhile, the old Police Gazette lives on and the stars and other luminaries will continue to burn all.

Law Seen Instrument For Social Evolution

MONTREAL (CP) — Chief Justice John Deschenes, not about to be dormant in the cobwebs of tradition, prefers to wave the banner of "social justice."

"I think there has to be some happy medium between the law as it is, as it affects all citizens and the general social conditions in which we find ourselves," he said in an interview.

"To that extent, I believe the law can be a powerful instrument for change. That doesn't mean fostering revolution but rather an evolution of the mind, and an evolution of a way of life."

He describes the law as "a living body, a set of rules made by man for man, and while we judges are its servants, we are certainly not its slaves."

Chief Justice Deschenes refused to comment on a recent decision of his that lifted many murderers with strong convictions.

A strike by transit workers, which shut down the subway and abbreviated bus service, was going into its second month. The Montreal Urban Community Transit Commission had sent several union members to court for defying an injunction ordering an immediate return to work.

Chief Justice Deschenes rejected the contempt-of-court charges brought against the Montreal Transport Union.

Marcel Pepin, a union spokesman, told thousands of cheering transit workers at a victory celebration after the ruling that "by sticking it out as long as you did, by refusing to surrender to the force of seemingly insurmountable odds, you have obtained an historic decision, one that will have tremendous use as a weapon of the bosses for now and for all time."

Gaston Pouliot, lawyer for the transit commission, said: "We feel he (the judge) exceeded his jurisdiction," and announced plans to file an appeal.

While some editorialists supported the ruling, business leaders were outraged and evoked visions of impending anarchy, accused the chief justice of having tampered the authority of elected legislators and suggested that his resignation would be in order.

But such criticism did not shake the 51-year-old chief justice who, at his time of inauguration, stunned those present by declaring in a scathing speech on the Quebec Bar Association for its failure to discipline members "who have passed as destroyers of the administration of justice and obstacles to the orderly function of the courts."

That statement was followed up a few months later with a series of reforms aimed at streamlining operations of Quebec Superior Court.

And he is not about to stop.

"Whatever may have been the merits in former times of depicting the goddess of law as blindfolded, I don't think a judge should follow suit," he said in the interview.

Funeral Directors Could Help Co-ordinate Disaster Service

COURTEARD, Ont. (CP) — Funeral directors and ambulance operators should be up in local committees to handle disasters.

That is what Robert Scott, regional co-ordinator of ambulance services for the Ontario ministry of health, recommended to a joint meeting of the Ontario and Simcoe County Funeral Directors Association held in this western Ontario community.

Mr. Scott, who was part of the investigation team that probed the July 5, 1970 Air Canada disaster at Toronto International, said funeral directors should be prepared for a similar occurrence because they can help in identity and register victims.

He said the co-ordination the Ontario coroner's office relied on Toronto-area funeral directors to handle passenger remains. Work continued on the site and at a nearby arena where the bodies were taken for identification for 36 days.

Mr. Scott said that a Toronto area ambulance operator drove the first ambulance to the crash site.

He rode from Montreal to Los Angeles in the DC8, after an abortive attempt to land for a brief stopover, plunged into a residential area a few miles north of Toronto International Airport. Of the 108 persons killed, 43 were identified by fingerprints.

Mr. Scott said 43 victims were identified by fingerprints. Twenty-nine were identified by dental records.

Eighteen passengers were travelling under false names on the plane. But one of the victims, a businessman, seemed to have no logical reason to do so, he said.

But others apparently did.

"A man's identity were found to be used by a man officials believe was an international drug dealer and by another man, a Kodiak (Alaska) specialist out of Los Angeles and Montreal.

Police say the diamond merchant was a bigamist and had a family in both cities.

The man believed to be a drug dealer was cited by by a money-belt containing more than $100,000, Mr. Scott said.

A Montreal businessman with executive cargo was a woman with "many worth of uncut gems hidden in her brassiere.

Thousands of dollars in cash and valuables "scorched" by fire still buried in the fields, Mr. Scott added. "Money was scattered everywhere on the site."

Since the crash, the province has established mobile communication trailers at Downsview and Sault Ste. Marie air bases to handle emergencies in Ontario.

As well, a disaster handbook has been rewritten for use by the Ontario Provincial Police and local officials.

But despite these measures, he prepared for more major disasters, he said.

Only Birds Use Runways Of Japan's New Airport

NARITA, Japan (AP) — Only birds fly in and out of Narita International Airport, Japan's largest and costliest air installation, 41 miles east of Tokyo.

No aircraft has yet used its 12,000-foot runway. Its futuristic buildings and towers stand hidden, giving the sprawling facility the appearance of a spaceship from Jupiter.

Though completed two years ago at a cost equivalent to $681 million, Narita has seen eight official opening dates come and go. Because of protests by nearby farmers and militant-student activists, residents there still no opening in sight.

The government-funded Airport Corp. began work in 1966 so that Narita could eventually relieve Tokyo's heavily-congested Haneda Airport of its international traffic.

Farmers opposed the acquisition of their land and their neighbors want to keep urbanization from spreading to their peanut and watermelon farms. Radical students joined them and pitched battles were fought at Narita. Three riot policemen were killed during one clash in 1971.

But the Airport Corp.'s troubles didn't end when the necessary land was assembled and construction neared completion.

Whole new subchoruses in Narita City Chiba city mobilized to stop the laying of a jet fuel line under their streets. Yesterday objections if an earthquake shattered the pipeline, their action city authorities to force the airport to delay the project.

Work on the 37-mile pipeline is "suspended" until the city's residents and government give their approval an airport official said.

The airport then started laying a five-mile "provisional" pipeline to Narita, but this too has run into trouble.

Local residents contended that "a chemical mixed with soil as a hardener and used to bury the pipeline along a rice-field would spoil the area's drinking water. After a year of tests, the chemical agent was declared safe and work is to resume soon, an airport official said.

But the farmers still haven't been placated. So even when the pipeline is finished, opposition is expected to start all over again at the airport.

Farmers and their supporters have built two 328-foot iron towers at the end of the runway, preventing even test landings by small aircraft.

Foreign airline executives complain that the airport will have only one functioning runway for the first few years.

Strong cross-winds could considerably close the airport and if a plane were disabled on the runway the airport would be shut down for six hours," one said.

Then there is the distance between Narita and Tokyo.

"How can you expect a passenger who has just spent, 9½ hours flying from Hong Kong to spend another hour and a half to get to Tokyo from Narita?" asked another foreign executive. "I think the location of the airport is actually the biggest problem."

Women Hear About Women's Year

A district meeting of Business and Professional Women was held on Sunday at the Glen Valley Motor Inn. About eighty members, representing groups in Belleville, Brighton, Kingston, Trenton and Bellerville, gathered for a business meeting.

The theme of this special conference was "accountability". women were asked to account for themselves and their relationships to the community to the Club, and to their families and social contacts.

After much discussion, the group took a break for a smorgasbord luncheon. Seated at the Head table were Mayor Robin Jeffrey, a longtime member of the Club, Dorothy Ellis, the District Director, delegates from the five other cities, and guest speaker, Fiona Hyslop.

Mrs. Hyslop, the Chief of Conference for International Women's Year, pointed out that the average Canadian woman works about twenty years outside her home, and so, as the case used to be, just a few years before getting married.

One of her suggestions for International Women's Year was that business should have an educational program for high school girls to make them aware of the professions and their role in the labor force.

Mrs. Hyslop explained why the United nations designated 1975 International Women's Year: "to ensure the full integration of women in the total development effort, especially by emphasizing women's responsibility and important role in economic, social and cultural development at all levels."

This is what International Women's Year is all about, she said, "creating equal opportunities for order to achieve equal rights. It involves all of us — women and men who believe in human dignity."

It was announced that Christa Lockyer, of Belleville member, was chosen by the Status of Women Council to attend a Provincial Conference in Toronto covering the recommendations of the Law Reform Commission. The issues involved will be property legislation, human rights and education, all of which come under provincial jurisdiction.

Local Business and Professional Women's president Catherine Roth and Mayor Robin Jeffrey, talk with Guest Speaker Fiona Hyslop, Chief of Conference for International Women's Year Secretariat.

The Best Time For Apples Is Now!

An apple a day to keep the doctor away and an apple for the teacher are nice notions, to be sure. Even nicer are wonderful apple treats, such as cookies that favorite of favorites, Mom's apple pie, and toffee cake.

Chicken Normandy
four tbsp margarine
½ cup chopped fresh onion
½ cup chopped celery
two tbsp. chopped celery leaves one cup diced, pared, cored apple ½ cup chopped nuts
one cup finely grated bread cubes
2¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. dried leaf thyme
one tsp. fresh lemon juice four whole chicken breasts, boned and flattened Sauce
one tbsp. cornstarch
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. dried leaf thyme
2 cup fresh orange juice
2 apples, pared, cut in wedges

In large skillet melt 2 tablespoons butter. Add onion, celery and celery leaves; cook until tender, about 5 minutes. Stir in diced apple, nuts bread cubes, ¼ teaspoon salt, cinnamon, thyme and lemon juice. Place chicken breasts skin side down. Sprinkle with remaining ½ teaspoon salt. Spoon stuffing on centre of chicken breasts, fold the sides over and fasten with skewers or string. In same skillet melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter. Brown chicken breasts on both sides. Remove to baking dish.

In medium saucepan mix together cornstarch, salt, cinnamon and thyme. Stir in orange juice and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Stir in apples. Pour over chicken. Bake uncovered in 375° F. oven 45 minutes. Serves four.

Ann Landers

Be Sure - Get Your Gallstones

Dear Ann Landers: I am very upset like the greatest thing since sliced bread. I feel certain you will be deluged with letters everyone who is considering the operation be advised to consult another doctor. Please ask the doctor to save the stones. Be the patient's property, and if he wants them, flush them, or put them in the can.

Why the odd request? Because last night I was treated to a real exhibition of one man's gallstones. At a dinner party at the home of the host was the man who had removed them. They were in a plastic container and simply hideous.

These are the largest stones I have ever seen," boasted the doctor, as if he had scored some sort of personal triumph. (All this took place during the cocktail hour and it filled my appetite completely, especially for the hors d'oeuvres but the dinner was delicious.)

I don't know if this beastly custom is confined to Texas or if stones are being used as cocktail party entertainment, but I certainly hope it isn't. Please help stamp it out. Signed, Successful Living

Thanks

This doctor is a clod. It's important to save the stones. A gallstone is bad enough, but to deny the patient his is inexcusable.

So here's your letter and my response. I'm not happy either. I'm sorry for husbands who are running around like fools. But then, not everyone can be a married man. — Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Someone should expose the myth that 50 percent of over-forty marriages that go to "grey stage and he'd be all right are those that end in divorce court. I'm still married to the same man I married and stopped me from making that mistake.

Whenever I look closely at another woman, I quickly see she's not as good looking as I first thought. Compared to my beautiful, she's scrawny. Perhaps if someone else, my wife might

Marriage Includes In-laws

By DORIS CLARK

When you marry you think you are marrying just the other person. But you are not. You're marrying his family, their traditions and living patterns. Moreover you are both bringing to the marriage all the prejudices you have about your own family.

That statement by a family service counselor is to be found what might be called the "double" (or "triple" or "quadruple," for example) that makes the real difficulties that do happen. Let wife say they're dealing with their parents and in-laws.

The above is quoted from "To Have and to Hold — Before Marriage", and it stresses the point that lessons between the husband and wife, family and the families of origin, the parents, his friends) are accounting for a good deal of discord, especially where a couple has married very young.

Think about it. Understanding what gives, is the first step towards bringing about constructive change.

Dear Doris: We plan on getting married. We have been living together for two years. I was divorced four years ago, but Ralph just got his divorce.

We would like a church wedding with just the family, but they have urged us not. But would it be proper to rent a hall and orchestra and have a dance for all our friends? Seeing as we both have married before and live together, we are not sure if we should. — Not Sure

Dear Not Sure: Aside from the living-together part, a bride's second wedding is not supposed to be showy.

If you go by me, you'll invite family and close friends to church and to the house. It can be lovely. If you want a reception after for a little larger group, that can be anything under a hundred people also. But a large dance with an orchestra just wouldn't be appropriate under the circumstances.

Dear Dorf: My father remarried a woman who helped to raise the family. They lived together 30 years. We all considered her as our mother. She never had any children of her own.

Now dad passed away. The question is: Who is her next of kin? My father's family, or we her brothers and sisters?

If she has a will in favor of her sisters, do we have to accept it? We are anxious to know. — Worried Nina.

Dear Nina: Any stepchildren's next of kin are her blood relatives (her brothers and sisters), as opposed to relatives acquired by marriage (your father and Ted).

Stepchildren have no blood relationship with a stepfather, so will only inherit if there is a will bequeathing an inheritance to them.

Just how much chance you would have of successfully contesting a will leaving everything to her sisters, a lawyer would have to tell you.

(Dorf — they likely hears from readers who report success after taking the advice to get a humane education. Let her help you with yours. Write to her in care of this newspaper.)

Study Shows Smoking Speeds Baldness

MONTREAL (CP) — Threatening a loss of hair and not a loss of life, Dr. Samuel Herlich is able to persuade 40 per cent of his male patients and 30 per cent of his female patients to stop smoking.

Curious about outside factors that affect rate of hair loss among individuals with an inherited tendency to baldness, Dr. Herlich, a Montreal-area dermatology practitioner, compiled careful case histories of his patients.

He found that 75 per cent of the young men of 21 and 25 who came to him complaining of hair loss were heavy smokers and usually had started smoking at age 14 or 15.

Dr. Herlich also found an increase in the number of women suffering hair loss.

"What has it women is slower than for men, but among heavy smokers it is almost equal.

He is convinced that among both men and women "if a person is destined to fall, nicotine will speed the process."

In 15 years, Dr. Herlich estimates he has seen "about 10,000 persons, including 100 women, married and lots of hair.

The doctor said factors such as stress and possibly nutrition may cause rapid hair loss but especially advises patients to stop smoking when the hair starts to fall.

"When you mix about that with fall, "When fall cigarettes may be causing it to fall out more rapidly, many of them will stop smoking."

Such advice results in most persons stopping smoking than when patients are warned of possible lung cancer, emphysema or heart damage.

He himself is a heavy smoker. "But since I have not much hair to lose, I don't have to worry about falling hair," he said. And don't remind me about the other dangers.

Crown Firm Planned To Meet Land Needs

TORONTO (CP) — Treasurer John White announced Tuesday that the province will establish the Ontario Land Corp. (OLC) to increase employment opportunities in eastern and Northern Ontario.

Mr. White made the announcement while speaking estimates for his ministry and being debated in the legislature. The Ontario Land Corp. would enable the government for the first time to put together a significant amount of land for all purposes, Mr. White said.

A major aim of the corporation would be to provide industrial growth that would keep young persons in their native communities.

"The OLC will be able to lend money to municipalities for provincially committed or industrial parks, thereby forming a hierarchy of such parks in eastern, northeastern and northwestern Ontario."

Provincial funds for industrial parks in those areas will surpass the help currently available under the Eastern Ontario Development Corp., Mr. White said.

"I think we have to bend our back and come in with even stronger measures to increase employment for people young and old in eastern and Northern Ontario," Mr. White said.

Michael Cassidy (NDP—Ottawa Centre) chided the treasurer for not coming to the aid of those areas sooner.

"Why didn't the government do it five, 10 or 20 years ago?" Mr. Cassidy asked. "I thank the minister for pointing out that it is opposition pressure that has got things done for eastern Ontario."

During the estimates debate, Mr. White noted that Ontario now enjoys a unique credit rating—a triple A rating.

The triple A rating was given to Ontario by a major firm of New York financial analysts that establishes lending rates for governments seeking loans, he said.

"This is the first time in history . . . that a foreign government went to a market in New York with a triple A rating," he said. The reasons given for the high rating were Ontario's "sound financial condition, well-managed debt and relatively inexpensive hydro-electric power," he added.

But Mr. Cassidy countered that Mr. White's optimism and his estimate of a large budget surplus this year are inflated by the inclusion of certain pension fund contributions as provincial income.

Mr. Cassidy said the 1976 budget would actually show a deficit if Mr. White did not include sources such as the Ontario civil servants' superannuation fund, the civil service pension fund and repaid provincial loans as revenue.

Mr. White defended the inclusion of such funds and said that he has intentionally arranged that provincial income in the last several years has exceeded expenditures.

Russell Rowe Named Legislature Speaker

TORONTO (CP) — The fourth session of the 30th Ontario legislature convened Tuesday with the election of a new Speaker.

Russell Rowe, a 59-year-old former stock broker from Orkney, Ont., succeeds Allan Reuter, Mr. Reuter announced his resignation last week because of ill health.

Premier William Davis, Liberal and Opposition Leader Robert Nixon seconded Mr. Rowe's nomination as Speaker and he was acclaimed unanimously by applause.

In his remarks of acceptance Mr. Rowe said he sees a challenge offered by "this particularly difficult session" in which "two reports recommending administrative changes in this house" will be presented.

Mr. Rowe paid tribute to Mr. Reuter, who was absent on the fourth session of the 30th legislature reconvened.

In a brief ceremony Lt.-Gov. Pauline McGibbon entered the legislative chamber to install Mr. Rowe on his new duties.

Both Mr. Davis and Mr. Nixon paid tribute to the impartiality and abilities of Mr. Reuter who had served as Speaker since December, 1971.

Noise-control Bill Is Coming Shortly

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's long-awaited noise-control legislation might be introduced as early as the end of next month, Environment Minister William Newman said Tuesday.

Complaint Bureau Seen As Solution

TORONTO (CP) — Solicitor-General George Kerr said Tuesday a province-wide citizens' complaint bureau may be the answer to handling allegations against Ontario police forces.

Mr. Kerr was asked in the legislature by Vernon Singer (Lib.-Downsview) why the government is limiting its various judicial inquiries on police action to specific local areas instead of examining complaints across the province.

Mr. Kerr replied that the results of judicial inquiries now under way may well lead to the establishment of a province-wide bureau to receive and deal with complaints against police.

The alternative would be citizen complaint bureaus in every city, "but a province-wide bureau may be the answer," the minister said.

More Hurt

TORONTO (CP) — The number of work injuries reported to the Workmen's Compensation Board in 1975 totalled 418,618 an increase of more than 11 per cent over 1974.

His was responding to criticism by Ed Good (L.—Waterloo North) at a committee meeting reviewing the ministry's 1976-77 expenditure estimates. Mr. Good said the government was stalling on the legislation and had been talking about a model municipal bylaw for "years and years."

"By the end of November you can come back if I don't have a model bylaw," Mr. Newman said.

Mr. Newman presented estimates for this year of $161.7 million, up from $131.7 million last year.

He told the committee that recycling and reclamation are areas with the sharpest cost increases—are "of prime concern".

Ontario Freezes Hiring

TORONTO (CP) — The forecasted freeze on hiring of civil servants by Ontario was announced Tuesday by Eric Winkler, chairman of the management board of cabinet.

Mr. Winkler said the 1976 complement would be the same as that of 1974—71,705 civil servants. The figure does not include personnel members of the provincial police.

The management board told the legislature during its opening session Tuesday that the government could not increase both salaries and the size of the civil service.

"As an employer, we recognize the need to adjust civil service salaries to protect the purchasing power of our employees," Mr. Winkler said.

"These adjustments will add significantly to provincial expenditures. If, at the same time, we were to add new manpower complement, as our predfire growth rate would result which is unacceptable to this government."

Curtailing the growth in civil service will require program managers to find more innovative ways of delivering service to the public, Mr. Winkler said.

He said that the growth of the civil service has averaged less than three per cent for the last three years, well compares favorably with the four-per-cent average increase in total provincial employment.

Mr. Winkler also protected negotiations with the Civil Service Association of Ontario, which is demanding pay increases of up to 60 per cent.

CBC Head To Resign In 3 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — CBC president Laurent Picard indicated Tuesday he probably will step down within two or three years to make way for a new man.

"At some point in the next two or three years I think it would be time for me to go," he told the Commons broadcasting committee.

"One shouldn't stay . . . very long."

He said he has spent seven years as president and chief executive officer-president, making many of the changes he sought at the outset.

OUT OUR WAY — by Neg Cochran

Competition Bill Arouses Criticism

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet opened a suggestion box Tuesday on the government's competition bill and opposition MPs rushed to stuff it with critical opinions.

The bill, intended to protect consumers and small businesses by increasing business competition, was condemned by the New Democrat John Rodriguez as a toothless measure that would only "institutionalize" competition between buyer and seller.

Conservative Sinclair Stevens saw the proposed legislation as ill-defined and a possible threat to "aggressive business behavior" in its present form.

Both appeared to take at full value Mr. Ouellet's comment during second-reading debate that "I am open to any suggestion that can be made" on the bill.

Mr. Rodriguez, from the Sudbury-area riding of Nickel Belt, called for prohibition of monopolistic control by production, distribution and marketing. He cited the George Weston food empire as an example of virtually unfettered corporate power undermining competition.

He recited off a list of the company's holdings and called on the government to intervene "in the marketplace to provide consumers with goods of quality at reasonable prices."

Mr. Stevens (York-Simcoe), cautioning the government to hear more views on the bill, warned that it will not get away with wearing down opposing views by sheer force of numbers. He should hold further consultations with the provinces, business, labor, farmers and consumers on the bill and insert a provision "to say it won't affect small business with assets or sales below a certain level."

Mr. Ouellet, introducing the bill Thursday, underscored after not getting passed in two previous sessions of Parliament, to take into account views expressed since the government began to review consumer policies eight years ago.

The proposed legislation is the first part of a two-step competition program. Introduced with it was consumer affairs minister Herb Gray, dropped from the cabinet in August. The second part, dealing with monopolies, has not been introduced.

Jobless Insurance Rates Won't Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment insurance premium rates will not be increased in 1976 because of a surplus this year in the unemployment account, Labor Minister Bryce Mackasey said Tuesday.

Mr. Mackasey told the Commons manpower committee that premium rates in past years have not been increased because of surpluses in the account.

The premium rates have been set January for 1976 and were also raised in January, 1975.

Mr. Mackasey told the Commons committee that premiums would be increased only when the unemployment insurance program went into effect.

Mr. Andras told the committee in a statement that the government's premium rates, together with increased administrative efficiencies" have left the unemployment account with a surplus which could rise to $47 million by the end of the month.

Pay of MPs May Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Pay increases for MPs may be in the offing, Privy Council President Michael Pitfield announced in the Commons Tuesday.

Replying to Social Credit Leader Real Caouette, who complained that members face soaring living costs like everyone else, Mr. Pitfield said he hoped to "persuade the government to bring forward some proposals on the subject of salaries."

CBC Is Wary Of Filming MPs

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament should not be recorded by full-time TV cameras, Commons and Senate committees on television, CBC president Laurent Picard said Thursday.

Mr. Picard said on this to be the case in films the House of Commons — he told the House broadcasting committee.

The best method would be for Parliament itself to install television cameras and make a live and unedited feed available to networks, he said.

News editors, such as the CBC, then could use the film for newscasts and programming.

More From U.K.

OTTAWA (CP) — Shipments of the United Kingdom again far outnumbered — countries from other countries last year in leading Canadian citizenship figures released Tuesday by Statistics Canada show.

Of the 104,897 naturalized during last year, 24.5 per cent were former U.K. citizens. Italy was second with 21.7 per cent.

Indians Say Civil Servants Grow Rich at Their Expense

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Indian group says civil servants are growing rich by keeping Indians poor.

The Grand Council Treaty Number Nine Organization, in a brief to the federal government, decries what it terms the "colonial system" under which Indians are forced to live.

Text of the brief was released here Tuesday.

"A great many civil servants are growing rich by keeping the Indian people poor," the statement said. "The money made by keeping us poor is done with the encouragement and full support of both the federal and provincial governments."

Suggesting that it costs more than $400 million a year "to keep the Indian people of Canada oppressed," the group noted that in Ontario alone the federal Indian affairs ministry has more than 900 employees involved in education, economic development and other related programs.

"This would indicate that one civil servant for every 80 Indian people there is one civil servant for every 80 Indian people."

Dean's Credibility Is Being Questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic lawyers in the Watergate cover-up trial are going to press their efforts to erode the credibility of John Dean III with questions about his personal use of campaign funds and his testimony that he was instructed by superiors to withdraw the cash in hopes of using it for a honeymoon trip to the Caribbean, Hawaii and Mexico.

In Tuesday's testimony, Wilson drew an admission from Dean that while the original Watergate burglars were being tried in January, 1973, he shredded two notebooks, which Nixon can prepare his testimony, came from the White House safe of Howard Hunt.

Hunt, then among the original seven Watergate defendants, had certain names and addresses of men who had helped in the 1971 break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, Dean testified.

Dean said that when assistant U.S. attorneys began asking him about the burned notebooks he discovered they had been transferred to his own office safe shortly after he took office in 1973. burglary at Democratic national committee headquarters.

Dean has said he saw the names or addresses as recognized in the notebooks and Wilson asked why Dean placed them in his office shredder.

"I had been told there was information in them related to the individuals Mr. Hunt had used in the break-in at Dr. Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office," Dean replied.

New Case Alleged Of Police Brutality

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail quotes a 36-year-old Toronto man as saying he was chased and roughed up by police, taken to a police station and strip-searched after he was handed before being taken to hospital and then released in custody of police.

The newspaper, in one of a series of copyright stories on allegations of police brutality in Metropolitan Toronto, quotes Brian Garlick as saying the sequence of events against him started May 26 when he darted into an alley to tuck his shirt into his trousers.

The story says a policeman came along and beckoned Mr. Garlick into a cruiser, the latter is quoted as saying he refused to enter the car because the officer would not tell him whether he was being charged.

The newspaper quotes the man as saying he was finally coerced by the officer and another policeman, thrown to the sidewalk and, when he began screaming, had a night-stick pushed into his mouth.

Taken to headquarters, he was booked further and asked whether he was a homosexual, the story says. When he began crying uncontrollably, he was removed to hospital briefly and then released in police custody.

CP Train Longest Assembled

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — A CP Rail train that is believed to be the longest ever assembled in Canada arrived here Tuesday night loaded with grain from the area west of Moose Jaw, Sask.

The train was so long that it had to be split into three sections to be handled in the Thunder Bay rail yards.

A spokesman for the railway company said the 104-mile-long train, consisting of 209 cars and seven diesel locomotives, is part of an experiment in increasing the volume of goods shipped down Western Canada.

"It's being done to determine how we can increase capacity by a factor of three," the spokesman said.

High Prices Paid For Used Machinery

MILTON, (Ont. (CP) — More than 1,500 people came to Wilson's Auctioneers' 14-acre site near Milton, for the auction sale of about 200 pieces of construction equipment.

One of the buyers, Bill Smith, a supervisor with Ambert Quarries Ltd. in Windsor, purchased a second-hand power shovel for $14,000 and said it was one of the best buys of the day.

"Brand new, the new Warner Swasey 3½ cubic yard hydraulic backhoe cost about $160,000.

Bill Wilson, operating director of the auctioneering company says there is "definitely a shortage of good used machinery."

We're going pretty well so far, Mr. Wilson said during the sale. "We sold some things for much more than we expected."

One of the machines was expected to sell for $18,000, it drew $27,000.

Mr. Wilson said the strong demand for used equipment during material shortages, a lack of skilled labor and high interest rates, drew buyers from as far away as Saskatchewan and Southern Ontario.

Mr. Wilson said farm machinery had its best year in 1973 and has continued into 1974.

A similar situation had taken place in construction equipment, but not as intense.

Indian Band Plans Ever-modern Town

EDMONTON (CP) — The 880 members of the Enoch Indian band have "block busting out" with an original $200-million proposal for land development on the Stony Plain Indian reserve 30 miles away. Chief Sim, the band's land development officer.

And, despite the uncertainties of financing and inflationary hurdles, "we have no way now they're going to stop."

Currently, under the scrutiny of government departments in Edmonton and Ottawa, the scheme proposes a five-square-mile "city" and "model township" where about 19,000 homes would support a population of more than twice the band members.

The band would also oversee both the high cost of land and the inevitable skyrocketing of construction.

"Apply to homes the example of the car that depreciates through use to the point where it is of no use. The same process will take place with a home except over a longer period of time.

"The advantage will be that it will not become a slum area because the Enoch Land Development Corp. (the native company proposing to handle the development) will buy out the depreciated home at the market value and replace it with the type of home that is required in 2034."

Mr. Sim's reference to 2034 related to the hypothetical purchase of a home in 1974 on the basis of a 60-year lease on the land.

The band's proposal, which also envisages a large recreational area on the reservoir-like Lake Wabamun, part with the emphasis on job-rich industry, is seen as a way of guaranteeing the Indians' economic future.

The band has 31 oil and three gas wells, which are likely to be drained by the middle 1980s.

"The whole idea is money," said Chief Ray Cardinal, "so that when the gravy train runs we'd be looking somewhere else for a source of revenue."

The five square miles proposed for the development were previously leased to private operators for farming and ranching.

Chief Cardinal and his council agree their hereditary idea would need a new kind of home buyer, but assert that the Edmonton area's growing population base and shifting attitudes towards ownership will combine to make their plan financially viable.

The leasehold system has been a bone of contention in the band since the idea of the 1930s-era so-called Kinsmen Crescent — a "land"-took root in the late 1960s.

Land surrenders by earlier band councils have left the Indians with an economic development area bordering outright sale of the land.

Enoch council members stress that funding for the $500-million development will not come from the government. "but will be raised by other means," largely from private enterprise.

Further disclosures on funding are being withheld pending a justice department review of legal requirements for the native development corporation.

Since Indian reserves come under federal legislation, but the services that Kehewins have would have to provide, such as schools, hospitals and roads, would likely come in the provincial statute, the band development has established the possibility of legislative amendments at both levels of government.

Mr. Sim is convinced the various levels of government will eventually assess the plan. He said the government can hardly fail to see the advantage of Indian capitalism, especially in light of growing demands on urban development.

"The Indians are tired of sitting on their backsides," he said. "They've got the assets and now they're getting the know-how about what to do with them."

Ontario, Alberta Chief Sufferers In Average Year for Forest Fires

By KEYTLANNE TRACK
The Canadian Press

Ontario and Alberta were the chief sufferers in what Canadian forestry officials termed an average year for fire damage.

Conservationists, fire fighters and government officials said snow-averted precipitation is most vulnerable areas was largely responsible for the limiting fire losses.

As cooler autumn weather virtually eliminated the hazard, a total of 6,466 fires had been reported across the country, destroying approximately 3.55 million acres of wooded area, a Canadian Forest Survey by The Canadian Press reported.

The figures were a slight improvement over 1972, when some 3.69 million acres were burned in 6,677 fires.

Ontario lost 1.56 million acres in 1,291 fires. Keith Barr of the natural resources ministry's forest fire control branch said the figure was "a little bit worse than we expected." It was 1.4 times the average over 1972, when damp weather kept losses down to 1,060 acres.

However, Mr. Barr said many of the forests burned were in far-northern areas consisting largely of scrub spruce and pine with little commercial or recreational value.

Even the acreage loss was a far cry from the 3.13 million burned in 1926, the worst year since Ontario began recording its fire toll.

Alberta also reported larger fire losses than in 1972, with 99,788 acres burned in 1,469 fires as against 36,083 acres in 478 fires the year before.

Ministry officials said a delayed green-up period coupled with a prolonged dry spell and a lightning storm caused Alberta's worst fire in the third week of May, destroying 39,700 acres of prime timber in an area about 100 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Fred McDougall, Alberta forestry director, said the many cases of forest fire in the province is lightning although many result from spring burning of land by farmers in fringe forest areas.

He said the government has launched a program to persuade the farmers to do their burning in the fall when conditions are less hazardous.

Mr. McDougall said only 80,000 acres of high commercial value were lost this year, as compared with one million in 1968, Alberta's worst year.

British Columbia reported a relatively good year, losing 23,000 acres in 1,295 fires as compared with 38,016 in 2,126 fires in 1971.

W. C. Phillips, chief protection officer for the B.C. forest service, said a wet spring and more rain in July kept down the losses. The province had its worst year in 1971 when 1,800 fires destroyed 889,000 acres of forest with an estimated commercial loss of $13.8 million.

Mr. Phillips said fire-fighting methods have not changed since 1960 when aircraft began bombing fires with a mixture of water and fire retardants with they were still small.

The Yukon lost 2,000 acres in 41 fires this summer as compared with 3,360 in 108 blazes a year earlier. In the Northwest Territories 167 fires burned 80,270 acres while 1.59 million were lost in 289 fires in 1971.

Below - average precipitation brought Saskatchewan its lowest incidence of fires in 10 years, 179 burning over 60,000 acres. The 1971 acreage was even less, 59,005, but the forestry service had 324 fires to contend with. The province had its worst year in 1961 when 1.94 million acres were destroyed in 507 blazes.

The number of fires was up but the acreage was down in Quebec where 773 fires, 158 of them caused by lightning, burned 317,327 acres. The province lost 718,530 acres in 931 fires in 1972. Officials said only 4,000 acres of this year's losses were of commercial value.

Manitoba reported 681 fires, compared with 615 a year earlier, but the loss of 460,000 acres was 55 per cent more than in 1971. Electrical storms in June and July were responsible for most of the damage.

The province suffered its worst losses in 1961 when 2.72 million acres were destroyed in 707 fires.

A long dry spell in the Atlantic provinces was responsible for many of the fire warnings issued throughout the summer. In those areas, officials said.

Mr. Baker, chief of the forest protection branch of the New Brunswick natural resources department, said there were about 325 fires this year, but most were relatively small and about 2,100 acres were lost. Last year, there were 300 fires and 900 when 47,000 acres were lost.

Mr. Baker said the province was lucky none of the outbreaks during August developed into serious forest fires.

In 1964, the province lost 250,000 acres to fire but the worst record year was 1962 when 47,000 acres was lost.

Forest ministry officials in Nova Scotia said the aid of a Canso water-bomber stationed there last owned by the Newfoundland government was instrumental in keeping the acreage burned in 326 fires in that province down to 6,400, lower than last year's 9,000 acres which were destroyed in only 427 fires.

Fire warnings were posted in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island for periods of time due to unusually dry weather conditions.

In P.E.I. officials said they considered themselves fortunate this year to have kept the total fires down to 69 with less than 200 acres burned. The worst year in that province was 1969 when no rain fell for about two months and almost 30,000 acres were destroyed.

Chief Forester Joe Doyle advised that Newfoundland lost 130,571 acres in 226 fires, most of them occurring in an uninhabited scrub area of northern Labrador. No comparable figures were available for 1972.

Self-immolation Appearing Again

SAIGON (Reuter) — Self-immolation as a political weapon has appeared again in South Vietnam, with two compatriots but not making the impact that the Buddhists did in the 1960s.

A war veteran who poured gasoline over his clothes and burned to death a few hundred yards from the presidential palace here on the third to choose this extreme form of protest in a week.

The official Vietnam Press Agency said Le Quang Do, 38, died in protest against Communist aggression.

All three suicides were officially said to have left letters for President Nguyen Van Thieu condemning Communist aggression and praying for peace.

Their actions generate widespread sympathy in Saigon but without arousing public indignation.

Nigerian Signs terHorst To Write Ford's Biography

NEW YORK (AP) — High above the lush greenery of New York's Central Park sits the 31-year-old Nigerian publisher who confined all the agonies of the book world. He signed Jerald terHorst to write a biography of President Ford.

"I've got them by the tails this time," said Joseph Okpaku, president of the Third Press-Joseph Okpaku Publishing Co., Inc. "It's very clear: terHorst is somebody else's publisher would like to have."

The biography by the president's recently resigned press secretary and longtime associate will be as bookstores in early November. Okpaku expects sales to be close to $1 million.

TerHorst, who resigned in September in protest of Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon, was given the largest advance Third Press has ever given, Okpaku said. He would not divulge the amount.

"The Jerry terHorst book was no accident," Okpaku said. "It always has been my intention to make Third Press a n influential publishing house, no matter how small.

"Jerry's a very warm person and is extremely good to work with," said the publisher who said he first approached terHorst last year. "He's a far better book writer than he realizes."

Okpaku said terHorst had reservations about going to the White House in the first place.

"He went, I would say, for three reasons: (1) the President wanted him there; (2) at that time the nation needed the best people possible to serve it, and (3) he hoped to help restructure the press corps to return credibility to the executive branch.

"So what happened? The presidential pardon of Nixon violated the reasons for terHorst being there. Yes, it was a matter of conscience, as Jerry said, but it goes beyond that," Okpaku said.

Okpaku came to the United States from Nigeria in 1953. He studied civil engineering at Northwestern University and received a master's degree in structural engineering from Stanford University in 1958.

"As an African, I were brought up with a certain code of the Negro role in the development of the country," he said, as he began to explain his journey from engineering to publishing.

"Although engineering and medicine are influential, policy determines what a scientist can do and policy is determined by public opinion. Public opinion is created by the media. There was no minority input in communications—objectivity was not there.

Third Press puts out 30 titles each year. One of its best-selling books is If They Come in the Morning by black activist Angela Davis, which has sold 30,000 hard-cover copies in the three months it has been out.

Other Third Press writers include the late Israeli leader David Ben-Gurion and Robin Moore, author of The French Connection.

"I'm happy at how things have come in so far," Okpaku said. "We've the largest black-owned book company and very a lot about the state of the industry."

A Quick Lesson

Members of Belleville Kiwanis Club got a quick lesson in physics while touring Loyalist College Tuesday. Jack Andrews, electronics technologist, explains electron deflection tube, used for finding the mass in electrons. For many of the visitors it was a first glimpse of sophisticated equipment available for college's wide range of training programs.

College Can't Match Skilled Labor Demand

Community businessmen visiting Loyalist College Tuesday learned just how extreme the demand for skilled labor is.

John could readily be found for among those students of technical courses than register for training college man Paul King told members of Belleville Kiwanis Club touring Loyalist facilities Tuesday.

Such is the demand for skilled workers that the college could place 19 times or many technical students as it now graduates, Dean King remarked at the group luncheon for Loyalist's training workshops.

The chronic shortage of skilled workers involved Loyalist and other local colleges, caught up in discussions earlier this year with the Belleville and District Economic Advisory Committee. The committee, a number of community economy, expressed concern about the situation and now is surveying area industries to determine the trend of labor needs.

The Kiwanis group were involved with Loyalist training from the time they sat down to eat lunch — something local struggsnuff and cutall soup — was prepared and served by students of the college's hotel administration course.

Gerald A. Wishart, Loyalist governor said such lunch by members of the public contributed to the college's function.

The contact creates greater awareness of Loyalist's facilities and its possible programming, he said.

"We are trying our level best to determine the needs of the community and to provide for those needs," he said "and the more input we get from you the better the job we'll be able to do."

The group also was welcomed by college president Hector Tyner.

Officials Attempt Re-election Bid

MARMORA — Reeve Jack Mitchell and deputy-reeve Grant Aitchell have declared intentions to seek a return to office in the Dec. 2 municipal election.

Councillors Bill McKenzie and Les Prevost said they have decided not to seek re-election to the five-member council because of business pressures.

Reeve Reynolds said he is concerned over restoration of village property when the big sanitary sewer installation project, now under way here, ends next year. The final responsibility for ensuring public and private property is restored rests with village council.

He said he also is concerned about acquisition of senior citizen housing, a project in which the village is involved with its municipal neighbors of Deloro and Marmora — Lake townships.

Artist in Residence

Audrey Davies, Belleville ceramic sculptor, is working at Queen Victoria School this fall on an Ontario Arts Council grant. Every class at the school will have an opportunity to see Mrs. Davies create ceramics and each child will also make a clay creation of his own to keep. Mrs. Davies hopes that a teacher at the school will be able to take over elementary ceramics instruction after the grant expires, thus adding work in clay to the regular art curriculum at the school.

Signet City's Newest Industry

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Signet Distributors Ltd.'s big local addition to Belleville's industrial community, it was announced yesterday by president Rob Jack Tuesday.

The firm already has a foothold in the Belleville area through its associate company Quinte Meat Products Ltd. located in Trenton.

The Wellington operation has been carrying on a meat production facility and has doubled as a distribution outlet.

Mr. Jack said during an interview the 30,000-square-foot Belleville plant under construction in the city's northeast industrial park will open a new distribution responsibility for the Signet group of companies.

The plant with the addition of several other lines of frozen and dried goods.

He said the outlet will distribute a wide range of frozen foods from meat to poultry supplying additional accounts north of eastern Ontario.

The Belleville plant is scheduled to begin operation Mar. 1, — will cater to consumers between Oshawa and Cornwall.

Potential Signet customers include wholesale schools, hotels and restaurants.

Mr. Jack said that the newest import in the Signet group, a line of frozen dinners to construct and supply about 30 people, said Mr. Jack.

While positions in the plant will be open to the local labor force, employees from the Signet Wellington distribution operation will be given first call on the positions of new transferred to Belleville.

Gord Farquharson, sales manager at Signet's London, Ont. head office has been named Belleville branch manager and Quinte Meat Products Ltd. installed manager Darrie Boyce assured Mr. Jack.

Mr. Jack — explaining the company's decision to locate in Belleville — said the city offers a wide range of benefits and is located at the heart of his marketing area. "It's a perfect place," he said.

He said the city's industrial commission's positive and cooperation were major factors in deciding on the location.

Alderman Says 'Vested Interests' Delaying Plan

Certain vested interests may be out to "scuttle" Belleville's official plan or at least delay its approval.

This is the fear of Alderman Dr. John Stock, chairman of council's Industrial and Planning Committee, who today announced he will not be a candidate for re-election.

The reasons given by Dr. Stock for not seeking re-election on Dec. 2 is that he wants to devote more time to his wife and family and also to have more opportunity of keeping abreast with new medical practices.

The alderman, now completing his two-year term on council, said his concern regarding the city's official plan is a result of last week's special council meeting when delegations asserted more interested in delaying the plan than in having changes made.

Most requests for zoning changes at the meeting could have been handled immediately without need for delay, he said.

Council went along with the requests for delay, but even though public input of the plan is being arranged and a special public meeting and following council meeting will be held, the alderman notes that council approval of the official plan is only a first step.

Open House Saturday

Bata Footwear of Picton, a division of Bata Industries, Belleville will celebrate its 30th year in business with an open house. The public is invited to tour the Bata plant on Main St., where North Bay logging shoes for all of Canada are manufactured. The plant, opened in November, 1944, now manufactures 3,000 pairs of logging, mining and safety shoes per day. Approximately 73 local residents are employed full-time at the plant.

Field Day Planned

TRENTON — Cub packs in Trenton will be competing for the annual field day at Trenton High School this weekend. The day, will include normal track and field events, a relay and an obstacle course. The 10 cub packs in town will be competing for the Knights of Columbus trophy, now held by the eighth cub pack. Events at the school start at 1 p.m.

Arena Discussed

The councils of Marmora and Deloro villages and Marmora-Lake Township will meet soon to discuss the final study report on a new arena for the area, Reeve Jack Reynolds of Marmora has stated his council and public reaction given outlined for the project on a ballot, if there is a municipal election.

Complaint Brings Rush for Booklet

Monday, a man took his mental health over a moral indignation over a booklet about marijuana cultivation to city council.

Tuesday, Belleviliens scrambled to buy it.

"We could have sold almost two dozen copies today — if we'd had them," said Ron Hodgson, manager of Coles Quinte Mall bookstore.

But the publication had been already removed.

Mr. Hodgson said he received orders late last week from his Toronto head office to return copies of The Complete Guide to Growing Marijuana to its distributors.

The rush to buy the book, had been predicted after Clarence Young complained to council the publication would entice young people into drugs.

The newspaper and radio publicity he attracted would create greater sales, Coles Mecks rebuked Mr. Young.

Mr. Hodgson said the publication went on sale in his store about four months ago. Extra copies — "dozens at a time — had been re-ordered about three times.

"We sold quite a few — and mostly to older people, I think," he said.

Purchasers were just "curious".

"We had a lot of people ask about it, — if it was a joke or what."

Mr. Hodgson said he had received no complaints about the publication in his store. The first he heard of criticism was in a radio news report of Monday's council meeting.

Before the plan can go into effect, zoning bylaws will have to be changed and Alderman Stock fears there may also be a delay there.

Speaking of the plan's provisions Alderman Stock said he doesn't approve of council action in allowing townhousing in a proposed area division in the Elmsmith Crescent area — a move being strongly opposed by area residents.

"It is not good planning to allow townhousing where citizens don't want it," he says.

Alderman Stock also had views about the Quinte Planning area when municipalities he said, don't seem to be able to make up their minds the way they are going.

He noted that some municipalities in the west of the planning area are boycotting board meetings but nothing is being done to change the planning area boundaries.

Neither does the alderman approve of the idea of annual capabilities in the east and of the Quinte planning area — Sidney and Thurlow — also belonging to the Hastings County planning area.

"Is it sane to plan both ways?" he asks.

Referring to city administration policy Dr. Stock says he would like to see the city adopt a "true" form of city manager form of government.

"I have grave misgivings of the present committees and have council operate under the committee of the whole system.

But in looking back over his tenure as alderman Dr. Stock feels council has worked well as a team under the leadership of Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

"I have enjoyed working in work well as a team," he says.

Alderman Stock has served on council a total of four years, first in 1966 and 1967.

He returned to council in 1973 for his current two-year term but has decided to again leave municipal life.

Garden Plots One Use For Vacant Land

The proposed garden plot area on Wellington St. is in close proximity to a high-rise apartment on Sidney St., and to three senior citizens apartments further down the one or under construction. Any citizen would be eligible to participate.

The idea suggesting the parks board establish garden plots came from Mayor Robin Jeffrey and was the subject of a report and recommendation tabled at this week's board meeting.

As a condition permit fee of $15 is suggested with gardening period of from about May 15 to the end of October.

Mayor Jeffrey said she is delighted at the board action which she termed a "tremendous step".

She noted that garden plots are popular in many other municipalities and said it is one way to help cut food costs for participating residents.

Won't Bounce

Here's one cheque that the city police department will have to watch for. It's been known to bounce. But it all was in good fun as Kinsmen president, Bob Thomas, right, throws a $5,000 cheque written on a volleyball to president of the Big Brother's in Bonnie Fry, Roy Thomas. The Kinsmen agreed this week to donate the money to Big Brothers to help in their first year of operation. The Belleville Yardmen Benefit fund also chipped in $1,000. The cheque was presented during a general meeting of the group Carlaw Library Tuesday night at which agency relations director Cliff Hall from the head office in Hamilton spoke.

Shaded 7-6 in Markham

Bobcat Tailspin Continues

By MARK BRETT
Sports Staff

Markham and the Belleville Bobcat's continue to have problems. The Cats' last night dropped a 7-6 road game to the Markham Royals.

The loss was the fourth straight for the Cats and unless things change soon will be an the other end of their division standings.

Markham took control of the game right from the start firing three quick goals by centreman Bruce Clark, before eight minutes had elasped in the opening period.

Pat Morrison, Gary Dillon and Tom McLeod were the markscorers for the Royals.

The Cat's later in the first period seemed to find their legs and for the first time in the game began hustling.

Jeff Jeffrey and Gary Thompson combined for the opening Belleville goal.

Just 20 seconds later Wayne Calberry and Mike Watt clicked to put the Cats within one goal. Calberry broke through the middle of the Markham defense and potted the puck by goalie Steve Weeks.

Belleville wasted no time in the second as Watt, one of the more solid performers for the Cats, stole the puck from the faceoff and beat Danny Hildebrand who was next in to replace starting goalie, Steve Weeks.

The Royals took advantage of a Belleville defensive lag. In the dying stages of the second pumping two more goals by a helpless Cats' Clark. Doug Feashy and Dillon scored the unassisted goals, Dillon's second of the game.

Markham appeared to have things all their own way as they took a 5-3 lead in the dressing room at the end of the middle period.

Tom McLeod and Gary Dillon were outstanding for the home team as the pair combined for three of the Royals seven goals. Both showed good puck handling ability and also the skill in set up plays.

Andy Ricketts played his first game of the season in a Bobcat uniform and looked better than most of the players on his team.

Ricketts, along with handing out some solid body checks, was also able to move the puck out of the Belleville end.

Ricketts put the Belleville club within one goal again as he and Jim Richardson united for the score.

The game was scoreless from that point on until the 8:32 mark of the period when Bob Young in a scramble in front of the Belleville goal put the puck in the net.

From that point on the Cat's had several glorious opportunities as it was Markham's turn to be sloppy. But as in the past the locals were unable to capitalize on the chances.

Belleville defence were again the victims of the seventh and final goals by Markham as Stelio Zupancich scored what proved to be the winner for the Royals.

Cat's captain, Robbie Fowler, scored at 19:36 mark with assistnider Clark off in favour of an extra attacker.

Time unfortunately ran out for Belleville before they could muster another scoring threat against the Markham team.

Late in the third period just before Fowler's goals Markham forward Zupancich plunged in front of Clark deflected to level the Belleville netminder.

He managed to do that with the aid of a high stick but to his dismay Belleville defenseman Dave Taylor stepped in to continue the suspension on Clark's behalf. Zupancich will probably (sink twice) before picking on another goalie.

During the fight however Taylor received a bad gash on his wrist from the linesman's skate and had to be taken to hospital by ambulance. The injury was not as serious however, as first thought.

Both clubs were assessed the same number of penalties, eight minors and one major.

Belleville's next game is Friday night at the Memorial Arena when theplay host to Pickering Panthers. Game time is scheduled for 8 p.m.

Moscow To Host Games

VIENNA (Reuter) — Moscow today won the right to stage the 1980 Summer Olympic games, turning back a bid by Los Angeles.

The International Olympic Committee (IOC) voted in secret in Seoul to award the honour of staging the world's greatest sports spectacle. Moscow lost a similar bid four years ago.

The day was not a total loss for the U.S., however, as Lake Placid, N.Y., the only bidder, was confirmed as the site of the 1980 Winter Games.

Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, announced the results after a vote taken at the start of the third day of the IOC's annual session.

Moscow and Los Angeles were the defeated candidates awarded the 1976 Summer Games in Montreal.

The 84 members of the governing body of the Olympic movement had maintained their traditional reluctance to satisfy the vote, but Moscow had emerged as the strong favorite before the result of the voting was announced.

Dodgers' Alston Is Tops

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Alston of Los Angeles Dodgers was named The Associated Press' National League Manager of the Year today.

The stoic Alston, who guided the Dodgers to the National League pennant this season for the seventh time in his 31-year big league managing career, was first in a rout.

Alston outscored Danny Murtaugh, manager of the National League East champion Pittsburgh Pirates, 230 votes to 67. Voting by sports writers and broadcasters took place prior to the league's playoffs.

Red Schoendienst, whose St. Louis Cardinals battled Pittsburgh down to the end for the East title, finished third in the balloting with 28 votes.

Playoff Berth To Wanderers

MADOC (Special) — Belleville Collegiate Institute Wanderers had to win here yesterday in order to make the Bay of Quinte high school soccer league senior playoffs.

It took the Wanderers about 22 minutes to get into gear but when they did, there was no stopping them.

Sparked by the three-goal performance of Reagano Mutwasiro, Wanderers rolled to an impressive 7-0 win over Centre Hastings Secondary School Centurion, and a berth in the playoffs against the west division champion, East Northumberland Secondary School.

Gord Van Vliet, called up from the Junior Redgrubs, opened the scoring midway through the first half, finishing off a three-way move with Pete Crawford and Dave Langman.

Other's BCI marksmen were Gary Adams, Langman and Crawford.

Langman also played a strong midfield role, keeping Centurions' excellent right winger Peter White under wraps. Larry Woodley, Gary Doyle, Paul Vardy (returning for his first game in two weeks after suffering a leg injury) and Randy Donovan (up from the Juniors) were also solid on defence.

ENSS Tops in Cross Country

PICTON — Students from nine secondary schools in the Quinte area Tuesday competed in the annual Bay of Quinte Cross Country run, sponsored by the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority.

Maccabay Mountain course was used for the second year, as part of the conservation theme.

Starter for the races, Jim King, a physical education teacher at PECI, said runners competed in six divisions. They were Midget, Junior and Senior classes for both girls and boys.

Winner of the girls' Midget Division was Bayside Secondary School.

The girls' Junior Division was captured by East Northumberland Secondary School, and the girls' Senior Division was captured by Trenton High School.

The boys' Bantam, Midget and Junior divisions all were won by runners from East Northumberland Secondary school. The boy's Senior Division was captured by Trenton High School.

Mr. King said competition will continue Monday, October 30 when teams travel to Tweddle-field, near Tottenborough for the Central Ontario Secondary School Championships.

The physical education teacher described the Maccabay Mountain cqurse-variety she with its nature trails as ideal for the competition held here Tuesday.

Runners in the girls' divisions travelled two miles as did boys in the Midget division. Senior boys ran three and one-half miles while Junior competed over a three mile course.

The three courses used were started on County Road 1, across the Maccabay Mountain trails and up the hill leading to Prince Edward Heights.

Mr. King said the PECIA nature area was "perfect" for the race and made it possible for him to set up several different courses in the same area.

Prince Edward Collegiate Institute has qualified a junior team for the Central Ontario championships in addition to two individual runners.

Trojans Take Double Win Over Bayside

Moira Trojans, senior and junior teams, won their respective games Tuesday for the first time this year. The Trojans' senior team won on the same day yet this season, both they and the Bayside Devils of Bayside.

The Trojans upended a surprised Bayside junior club 31-30 and the Moira seniors continued their winning ways with a 32-7 victory. The senior Trojans have now won three games in a row after a slow start, dropping their first two games.

The junior Trojans got a single point early in the first quarter on a 45-yard punt by Joe Mislanki and it proved to be the difference in the game. After that Moira took advantage of a confused Bayside defence and poured through for touchdowns.

"I'd have to contribute the victory to an aggressive defence," said Moira's junior head coach Ken Smith. "They really played well."

"As for the losing coach, Gord Smith, "They were hungry. We were already in the playoffs so I think the boys let up a little. Moira needed the win and they were after it. That's what it's all about in junior football."

Doug Schoonark scored the first touchdown of the game on a long pass-run play that made it 6-1 Bayside.

By half time the score was 14-7 Bayside. Dave Schneider scored the other major for the Red Devils and teammate Ron Bell added a two point conversion. Jeff Rawlinson tallied for the Moira TD on a six-yard off tackle run.

In the second half Bayside Devils blasted 30-7 on an end zone fumble recovery by defensive back Marty Fraser.

Moira came back with a pair of extra long runs to pull in front. Larry Walsh broke through the middle for a 45-yard TD and scored another from one yard out after Jeff Runchman accumulated many yards from the play action for 20 yards. That rounded out the scoring at 31-30 Moira.

Walsh also added a two point conversion following Moira's second major.

It was a little different story in the senior contest as the Trojans chalked up a 32-7 win.

The half ended with the score 14-7 Moira.

Bayside scored the game's opening touchdown following a Moira fumble. Rich Hodgson crossed the line for the major from six yard out and Rich Kovalin's point turned out to be the final one of the game for Bayside.

Moira got back on track when Rick Barbeau scored on a 56 yard run. Ralph Kolbers got the convert.

On the last play of the half, Mike Meagher kicked the ball into the Bayside end zone for a single point that put Moira in front 8-7.

In the third quarter Rick North capped off a 75 yard drive with a 47 yard touchdown run. Ed Fisher then caught a pass in the end zone for a two point conversion that put Moira in front 16-7.

Trojans quarterback Scott Simmons combined with Finlan again, this time to put the ball in scoring position.

From one yard out, Simon drove through the middle for a touchdown and Kolbers converted 24-7.

With the score 25-7, late in the fourth quarter, Mike Meagher caught a Simon pass and went for 34 yards and a TD.

That rounded out the game's scoring at 32-7 Moira.

Opening Bonspiel Results

The week long opening bonspiel competition at the Quinte Curling Club Tuesday.

The results were Beare over Jamel, McNevin over Dallas, Hamilton over Kruger, Morrell over Dyble, Acton over Smith, McKay over Leierdy, Spinell over Ingram, Slowey over Lantz, Corke over Kennedy, Hamilton over Robson, Mamel over Nelles and Sallows over Cowley.

Tonight 24 more rinks go on ice, in all there are 44 rinks competing. Each rink is guaranteed two matches.

If a rink wins its first match it continues to play in the first event. If after winning its first match, it loses its second the rink fall into the third event, and if it loses again it is out of the Bonspiel.

If a rink loses its first match it falls to the second event. If it wins its second match as well as its first, it falls to the fourth event. If it takes any more than the rink is eliminated from play.

The finals of the tournament begin Sunday morning at 10 a.m. All four events will have separate finalists.

Two Teams Co-operate

The idea behind the exhibition contest was not to win, but rather to help to improve the two teams' weak points. The secondary effect allows both teams to progress more rapidly and helps the players better understand the basics of the game.

Tuesday night, for example, the Major Peewee wins working on skating and the Mcinery Minor Bantams were developing their passing skills.

Mark Crawford had two goals and two assists for the bantams. Greg Sproat had two goals and Gerry Bredenhof had a goal and two assists. Singles went to Shawn Mulroney, Darrel Coltman, Steve Murphy, Jeff Simpson and Kevin Cox.

The peewee starter was scored by Jim Noble.

Wings Replace Kings As Division Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Coach Alex Delvecchio said at practice the Detroit Red Wings no longer mean that he was aiming his Detroit Red Wings for first place in the division.

So far, so good. Led by rookie Bill Lesuk, Detroit defeated the Wings blanked Washington Capitals 3-0 Tuesday night and took over the division on the NHL's third division over Los Angeles Kings who suffered their first loss, dropping a 4-3 decision to Philadelphia Flyers.

In other action Tuesday, New York Islanders edged Atlanta Flames 3-2 and Minnesota North Stars beat Vancouver Canucks 3-2.

Delvecchio, after making his pre-season prediction, was asked if he wasn't being overconfident, especially since the Wings haven't reached the playoffs in four years.

"It could be, but let's face it, we're in the division with 3 clubs we want to put in their mind-we've just new for the play-offs," he said. "Detroit coach Ted said. "We're shooting for the division and not the wings."

At least some of the Wings appear to be taking their early success seriously, including Lesuk, the club's first-round draft pick of the year.

Lochead, 20, a left winger who scored 47 goals for Oshawa Generals of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A circuit last season, collected his fourth and fifth goals of the NHL season.

Lesuk, Lochead, Dennis Polonich set up Bob Adams with a breakaway pass and the rookie beat goalie Phil Myre of Atlanta for the Islanders' winning goal with just 46 seconds remaining in the game.

The win kept the Islanders in a tie with Philadelphia for the first Division lead.

Goalie Cesare Maniago stopped 35 shots including 18 in the final period and Harry Boucher scored twice, leading the North Stars against the Canucks at Vancouver.

In tonight's action, Montreal Canadiens meet the Maple Leafs in Toronto, Detroit is at Atlanta, St. Louis Blues is at New York Rangers, Washington clamp also in Ontario's provincial parks has shown a marked Chicago, Boston Bruins at Los increase over the last, few Penguins in Pittsburgh and years.

Camping Is Popular

Jim Keenan, executive director of parks in the provincial ministry of natural resources, reported Tuesday that use of the total number of campers will be up three to five per cent over the 1973 figures.

Chiefly responsible for the increase, he said, was the number of campers using the provincial facilities in the winter. Keenan said that while some provincial parks now are open year-round, a growing number of winter outdoors enthusiasts may spark the government to expand its winter camping

Toros Thump Saints

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Toros capped a four-game unbeaten streak with an 11-3 win over Minnesota Fighting Saints Tuesday night in World Hockey Association action.

The Saints had John Garrett in goal in place of regular Mike Curran who is sitting out a suspension.

At Quebec, Pierre Guite scored twice and added an assist to lead the Nordiques to their second win in as many games before a crowd of 9,230.

Quebec moved into a second-place tie with Winnipeg Jets in the Canadian Division while the Jets were last left them tied for third in the Western Division.

André Lacroix scored two goals and helped set up two others to lead San Diego Sabres a 6-3 victory.

In tonight's games, Michigan Stags are in Quebec, Houston visits New England Whalers and Cleveland Crusaders the Blazers at Vancouver.

Greyhounds Upset League Leading 67's

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, scoring four goals in the final two minutes of play to break a 5-5 tie, handed league-leading Ottawa 67s a 10-6 setback Tuesday in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A action.

Greyhounds rallied 61 after the first period and scored five goals in the second to tie the score.

Paul Woods led the Greyhounds' attack, scoring three times, and set up Jim Bailey who scored the winning goal. Mike Hordy and Doug Paleg each added two goals for Sault Ste. Marie while Tony Featherstone, Bill Bahen and Bailey had singles.

Ottawa scorers were Peter Lee, with two, Jamie Masters, Dale Rose, Norm Kajola and Tom Bailey.

Greyhounds, playing on home ice, outshot the 67s 36-31 in a game which had only three minor penalties called.

The win is the fifth in 12 games for Gerry Gregoreho. Ottawa has lost two consecutive games with Sunday's defeat by Toronto Marlboros.

In other league games Tuesday, Hamilton Fincups edged St. Catharines Black Hawks 8-6, Kingston Knights downed Kitchener Rangers 4-3 and Peterborough Petes tied Oshawa Generals 4-4.

In games Thursday, London is at Peterborough and Ottawa at Sudbury.

Fincups 8 Hawks 6

Hawks tied the score 4-4 while Fincups were playing two men short for seven minutes in the second period after a fight between Hawks Bob Cherepita and Hamilton's Archie King.

Before order was restored a Hamilton player had received 14 in major and minor penalty to Hamilton's Ron Ferone and a game misconduct to Bob Barnes of Hamilton for being third man in a fight.

Both teams got three major penalties.

Rene Peltier, Rick Selling, Greg Hickey, Dan Shearer, Dale McCourt and Glen Hicks scored for Hamilton which led 4-0 after one period.

Dave Advison, Ted Lee, Wil Plant and Greg Craig replied for St. Catharines.

Hamilton outshot St. Catharines 30-26.

Knights 4 Rangers 3

Tom Rowe's goal at the 15-second mark of the final period clinched the win for Knights before 1,725 spectators, the smallest attendance of recent years in London.

The victory moved London out of last place tie with Rangers and was its third win in nine games. Kitchener has won twice and lost 11 games.

Other London goals were by Jon Zanussi, Rick Martin, and Dennis Maruk. It was the first goal of the year for Zanussi and Martin's fifth in four games.

John Fielding, Dwight Foster and Rob Schnarr scored the Kitchener goals. The teams traded 1-0-1 after the first period and 3-3 at the end of the second.

Petes 4 Generals 4

Petes struck for three power-play goals and scored a third-period Oshawa rally in which the Generals fired three goals in a span of 51 seconds.

The score was tied 1-1 after the first period and the Petes led 2-1 after the second.

Doug Jarvis was a two-goal scorer for the Petes while Doug Halward and Stan Jonathan fired one each.

Replying for Oshawa were Glenn Resch, with two, Andy Whitby and Glenn Kirkham.

The tie was the first point on the road for the Petes who outshot Oshawa 33-24.

Canadians Favored In 2 Skating Events

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Under way Thursday and Canada-Russia games are favored to take two of national competition which be- three titles.
gan last year in Calgary, and The competition, with figure skaters from 13 countries, comprises three sections, women's singles, men's singles and dance.

Lynn Nightingale of Ottawa, sixth in the world championships earlier this year, looks certain to win the women's title, mainly on the strength of her superb free skating.

Ron Shaver of Cambridge, Ont., fifth in the world, should take the men's title.

The dance title will probably go to Irina Moiseyeva and Andrei Minenkov, the third-ranked team in Russia and fourth in the world. The No. 1 and No. 2 Russians—Ludmila Pakhomova and Alex Gorshkov plus Marina Linichuk and Gennadi Karponosov — are training in Moscow.

Few countries enter their top world-class skaters in this kind of competition, partly to keep their progress secret, but use them to gain exposure for budding talent.

Representing England will be Janet Thompson and Warren Maxwell, eighth in European competition earlier this year.

Barbara Tyrrooning and Jason MacDonald, 14, both of Vancouver, will be in the women's singles.

Canadian dance competitors are: Barbara Berezwazki and David MacLeod and Bob Knapp, both of Cambridge, Ont., and Susan Carscallen from Sudbury, and Eric Gillies, from Moncton, N.B., but resettling Toronto.

Foreign entries in men's singles are: Igor Lisovsky of the Soviet Union, Charles Tickner of the U.S., Gert Gruebner of West Germany, Minoura Sano of Japan, Robin Cousins of England, Pascal Delorme of France, Ednard Pasdiwal of Czechoslovakia and Ronald Koppelent of Austria.

In women's singles are: Ludmilla Bakanina of the Soviet Union, Wendy Burge of the U.S., Dagmar Lurz of West Germany, Emi Watanabe of Japan, Susan Girano of Italy, Gail Keddie of England, Marie Hierre of France, Marion Weber of East Germany, Liana Drabova of Czechoslovakia, Sonja Stanek of Austria and Sharon Burley of Australia.

Director Suggests Parents Stay Home

MONTREAL (CP) — The executive director of the Coaches' Association of Canada said at a hockey research institute Tuesday he would not allow parents to be spectators at sports events where their offspring are competing—except for "special occasions."

John Hudson of Ottawa told the Fourth International Symposium on Sports Medicine he'd banish parents from the sports fields "much the same way as the average parent is now not allowed to walk into a classroom and shout and curse and behave abominably."

He also said he is opposed to allowing youngsters under 13 to compete beyond their localities and those under 16 to go outside their own province except for the Canada Games where the benefit of exchanges outweighs other evils.

Gaston Marcotte of Quebec told delegates that tests he conducted showed Russian hockey star Aleksandr Yakushev had 15 per cent more stamina than any day.

Albert Taylor, a wrestling coach from Alberta and physical education professor at University of Montreal said the last World Student Games in Moscow indicated Canadian wrestlers "measured up physiologically to athletes from other nations, but not psychologically."

"We spent all our time concentrating to the officials about things we didn't like instead of devoting our time to wrestling," he said.

"The athletes from the eastern bloc countries were prepared to ignore those outside distractions and they took all the medals."

The symposium winds up today.

Peter Lorre Nightingale of Ottawa, sixth in the world championships earlier this year, looks certain to win the women's title, mainly on the strength of her superb free skating.

Ron Shaver of Cambridge, Ont., fifth in the world, should take the men's title.

Transmission Line Study for Prince Edward County

An Ontario Hydro Study team has for some months been examining alternative routes and voltages for the transmission of additional electric power into the County.

Since February, when public meetings were held in your area, the team has gathered and evaluated precise information concerning alternative rights-of-way from the mainland into the County. As a result, Ontario Hydro will recommend to the Minister of Energy for his consideration that a 230,000 volt transmission line be constructed from a point southwest of Napanee to a new transformer station near Picton. Ontario Hydro will further recommend that submarine cable be used to cross the Long Reach.

You are invited to examine the material which has been compiled and to discuss the recommendation and the alternatives with Hydro's representatives at the following information centre:

Morton, Snead Traded

Green Bay Gets Rams' John Hadl

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was open season on swapping quarterbacks Tuesday as the National Football League trading deadline passed. John Hadl went to Green Bay Packers, Craig Morton to New York Giants and Norm Snead to San Francisco 49ers.

The Hadl deal was the biggest surprise and the day's most expensive trade. Los Angeles, which benched Hadl in favor of James Harris after the Rams were upset 19-days ago by the Yankees, will get five draft choices, including two No. 1 picks, from Green Bay.

Dallas Cowboys yielded Morton to the Giants for a No. 1 draft pick in 1975, provided Morton doesn't jump to the World Football League, and Snead, Boston, was sent from New York to the 49ers for two high draft picks, one in 1975 and the second in 1976.

The other trades Tuesday:

—Defensive tackle Curley Culp and a No. 1 draft choice from Kansas City Chiefs to Houston Oilers for John Matuszak, also a defensive tackle, and a No. 3 pick.

—Quarterback Jim Marshall from the Chiefs to Denver Broncos in exchange for tackle Tom Drougas and linebacker Tom Graham.

"John Hadl's experience, ability and leadership qualities should be of great value to the team," Dan Devine, the Packer coach and general manager said of his new quarterback.

The Rams will get Green Bay's No. 1 picks in both 1975 and 1976, plus a second-and third-round pick in 1975 and a second-round selection in 1976. The second-round pick for 1975 actually belongs to Baltimore Colts, but Green Bay acquired it previously.

The trading deadline in the NFL was 9 p.m. EDT. None of the trades was announced until several hours after it had passed.

Morton had actively campaigned for a trade. He refused to practise on Monday, saying he was "tired of being wasted" and didn't "want to sit around doing nothing..."

Morton has signed with the WFL for the 1975 season with Houston Texans, who also have shifted to Shreveport, La. The Giants said if Morton goes to the WFL an adjustment would be made in the draft choice to be delivered to Dallas.

Morton, however, said he could void the WFL contract because of the franchise shift. "I have that right in a clause in the contract," he said.

Morton, 31, has been with the Cowboys since 1965. He played college football at the University of California.

Snead, 33, has been the giants' regular quarterback since 1972 when he was acquired from Minnesota in a trade that sent Fran Tarkenton to the Vikings. He is in his 14th NFL season and played for Washington and Philadelphia after college football at Wake Forest.

Hadl, 34, was acquired after the 1972 season by the Rams from San Diego Chargers. He led Los Angeles to a 12-2 record last season and was selected as the Most Valuable Player in the National Conference.

Yanks and Giants Swap Outfielders

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees announced Tuesday the trade of outfielder Bobby Murcer to San Francisco Giants for outfielder Bobby Bonds.

The announcement was made by Gabe Paul, president of the American League Yankees.

The deal was made on the first day of the inter-league trading period.

Both players are 28 years old, and both were covered by three-off seasons in 1974. Bonds is one of the premier base-stealers in baseball. He has stolen 265 bases in 325 attempts, a percentage of .809. He is one of the few players in baseball history to steal 30 bases and hit 30 home runs in the same season, an accomplished that feat twice.

Murcer hit 149 career homers for the Yankees, 77th on the club's all-time list. He has been a Yankee regular since 1969, first as a third baseman, later as a centrefielder and this year as right fielder.

Bonds came to the Giants midway through the 1968 season and has been a regular with the National League club ever since. His best year was 1970 when he batted .302.

Bonds batted .256 (his year with 41 stolen bases and 21 homers. That was a slip from .288 in 1973, when he hit 39 homers and stole 43 bases.

Murcer's best season was 1971 when he hit .331 with 25 homers and 94 RBI. He batted .274 in 1974, a drop of 56 points from his 1972 average, and managed just 19 homers after hitting 23 the year before.

Dahlia Is Just Too Much

TORONTO (CP) — Dahlia, a four-year-old filly, apparently scares her opponents.

Because of her presence in Sunday's $125,000-added Canadian International Champion-ship at Woodbine race track, two of the top grass runners in North America will be absent.

George Pitt was the Hialeah-Gold Cup last Saturday in Chicago, but trainer Allen Jerkens has told the Canadian Jockey Club that his horse will not make it to Toronto.

"He told me he didn't want any part of Dahlia," said Bruce Walker, the club's director of publicity.

John Russell, trainer of Shuja Charactor, also called from the United States with the same news.

"Russell phoned to tell me he reconsidered the situation and decided Dahlia was just too tough," Walker said.

The race, for three-year-olds and up, will be held on the Mile shall turf course and cover 1 1/8 miles. Last year's winner was Secretariat, his last race before the 1973 Triple Crown winner was retired to stud.

The race is expected to attract at least 12 horses, including Chilean-bred Protector which took an easy victory last Sunday in the $37,135 Nettie Stakes at Woodbine.

Others expected are Mesabry, from France, Big Spruce and Louden Canadien, both from the U.S. and Carey's Point, Fleet Replay, Good Part and Sam's Own, all representing Canadian interests.

Bobby Murcer

NEW YORK (AP) — Millionaire sportsman Nelson Bunker Hunt said today that Ron Turcotte won't be aboard his Triple-crown filly Dahlia in the national at Laurel race course on Nov. 6.

Hunt, speaking by telephone from Dallas to a New York orchestra in honor of Dahlia, the first fifty ever to win a million dollars, said he hasn't decided for certain who will ride the horse but it will not be Turcotte.

Turcotte, a native of Grand Falls, N.B., and one of the top riders on New York area tracks, rode Dahlia to victory Oct. 12 in the Man o'War Stakes at Aqueduct, but trainer Mac Bellew Jr. has apparently was unhappy with the jockey's performance.

Sale of TV Rights To EBU Is Held Up

VIENNA (CP) — Now that the Montreal organizing committee has had its progress report approved by the International Olympic Committee (IOC), there remains one major problem for the organizers of Canada's first-ever Olympic games to solve.

Montreal has yet to reach an agreement for the sale of television rights to the 1976 Summer Olympics to the European Broadcast Union.

Commissioner General Roger Rousseau told a news conference the EBU has offered $12 million to the Montreal group for the broadcast rights to 23 nations but the Montreal committee feels that it's not enough.

He said the Montreal committee had worked out a formula with the IOC to determine how much the television rights are worth in each country. The formula is based on the per-capita income in each country and the number of television sets in the country.

Thus far, the Montreal committee has a contract with the American Broadcasting Corp. of the United States worth $25 million. The Canadian rights were sold to the CBC for $1 million.

Rousseau said the IOC was fully satisfied with the report on general progress turned in by the Montreal committee Tuesday morning.

"We came out with applause," he said. "I don't think we could have done better."

The report contained information of ticket prices, the Olympic village, security, games financing and other general information of the Games.

Meanwhile, Dr. Karl Heinz Klee, general secretary of the organizing committee for the 1976 Winter Olympic Games in Innsbruck said there is a possibility that Canada will have a hockey team competing in the Games.

"We are negotiating with the International Ice Hockey Federation (IIHF) and the Canadian Olympic Association," he said, adding the Innsbruck group had also talked to some Canadian hockey people.

There has been some speculation in Canada that the country would participate in Olympic hockey competition for the first time since 1968. If Canada does send a team to the 1976 Games, it is possible that the standard national team, comprised of the top university hockey players in the country, would be the representative.

John F. (Bunny) Ahearne, president of the IIHF, said Canada would be welcome to come back. He did not elaborate.

Canada withdrew from international hockey play in 1970, the year the world championships were scheduled to be held in Winnipeg and Montreal. Canada had gained permission to have nine minor professionals on its team but were later told they could not use them and pulled out.

Today, the IOC was to announce the sites of the 1980 Winter and Summer Olympics, Lake Placid, N.Y., was the only city bidding for the winter event following the withdrawal of a bid by the Vancouver-Garibaldi area of British Columbia, Oct. 4.

Los Angeles and Moscow were the cities vying for the Summer Games.

Sabres Rebound To Tie Flyers

WELLAND (CP) — Welland Sabres snapped a two-game losing streak in the Southern Ontario Hockey Association-Senior Hockey League Tuesday but had to settle for a 4-4 tie with Niagara Falls Flyers. It was the only scheduled game.

The Sabres, undefeated until last weekend, dropped two road games in succession, bowing to Detroit and Chatham, respectively.

Tuesday, Welland started out on shaky ground again by trailing 2-0 after the opening period. But in the second the Sabres bounced back to carry a 4-3 margin into the third period.

However, an unassisted goal by John Harrison near the mid-way mark of the final period gave the visitors the stalemate. Murray Markin, Dutch Dupuis and Reg Lahey scored the other Flyer goals.

Randy Montgomery, Gerry Bordeleau, Norm Elster and Doug Adams replied for the Sabres, who outshot the Flyers 33-30.

Evans to Play

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Redskins bolstered their injury-riddled running back corps on Tuesday by calling upon Charlie Evans, who was on the injured reserve list with a pulled hamstring muscle. He replaces Larry Smith, who suffered a broken bone in his foot Sunday and was placed on the injured reserve list.

No Transfer - No Play

SASKATOON (CP) — Calgary Centennials and Victoria Cougars have been instructed not to use two players whose transfers from other hockey leagues have not been obtained, Western Canada Hockey League president Ed Chynoweth announced Tuesday.

Chynoweth said his league had been informed by executive director Gordon Juckes of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association that use of Greg Neeld by the Centennials and Gord Roberts by the Cougars is against the rules.

Rangers and Bears Easy Winners

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There was no question or doubt about who were the goalers in two Central Junior Hockey League games played Tuesday.

Gloucester Rangers flattened the already-sagging Raiders 9-1 in the Nepean Sportsplex and Smiths Falls Bears battered Brockville Warriers 8-4 in Smiths Falls.

Rookie Mike Egan set a blistering pace for Gloucester, scoring four times against Nepean goalie Steve Wellman.

Wellman, who handled 27 shots compared with 23 fired by the Raiders, allowed the first four Gloucester shots of the game to go in. He settled down comparatively, after that, but by then it was too late.

The other Gloucester goals were scored by Bruce Guthrie, John MacKnight, Dave Dixie, Louis Lortie and Larry Parks. Steve Blandin scored the lone goal for Nepean, wheich got a total of 12, while Bob Vervaeke'd added the other.

It was much the same at when Pembroke Lumber Kings were in Brockville and Rockland Nationals are in Smiths Falls.

Next league action is Friday

DeGaulle's Humor Cool, Devastating

PARIS (Reuter) — The late Gen. Charles de Gaulle's icecool, big-thrusting brand of personal humor, often exercised on the exposed sides of statesmen, is said to be a trait that is fast becoming the talk of Paris.

Claude Pelieng, a historian and wife of former French government minister Jean Sainteny, says in the book that one man who suffered from the general's biting criticism was former prime minister Pierre Mendes-France.

She writes that after a coup d'etat in the West African republic of Togo, closely linked to Paris, de Gaulle commented to Mendes:

"Do you mean to tell me we are paying all these generals and all these colonels in the Gabon army when the coup was carried out by non-commissioned officers?"

In the book, entitled Daily Life at the Elysee Palace in the Time of Charles de Gaulle, Mrs. Pelieng tells of a cabinet meeting at which a minister announced the sale of French-made Caravelle airliners to Austrian Airlines.

According to the book, the minister reported the company's sales several times.

It was apparently forgetting de Gaulle's aversion to the Caravelle, the only English language aircraft in the world.

De Gaulle finally boomed out: "Austrian Airlines, Austrian Airlines. What's the matter with the Austrians? Can't they make Coca-Cola like everyone else?"

At another cabinet meeting in 1962, de Gaulle listened to ill-concealed rapture to the west bearding British minister John Profumo, then secretary of state of the British war office, was at the centre of a sex and security scandal.

"Well, gentlemen," the general said, "France is ready at any time to receive the rest of Europe. We can receive the young members with sympathy."

But setting a severe pace on one minister known for his harshness is for beautiful women, he added: "Unless there is a Profumo in our midst."

The general regarded with contempt politicians who brought their private lives into the public eye and extended this rule to his entire family.

The first—and last—member of the family to incur the general's wrath for infringing this cardinal rule was his favorite grandson, Charles, then aged 14.

The young de Gaulle had permitted a press photographer to take his photograph sitting at an outdoor cafe with a popular singer.

Early next morning, the general himself was interviewed in the Elysee Palace where visitors admiring the drawings young man into de Gaulle's study had a photograph of the general standing by it behind the desk, looking the offending picture with his fingertips as if it were contagious.

De Gaulle refused to have his salary increased during his tenure with the result that when he stepped down in 1969, he was receiving hardly more than his chief cook.

He always made it a point to shut off the lights after leaving his office and refused to have his private apartments at the Elysee renovated "because there is no reason why the republic should pay enormous amounts for my comfort when I am only passing through this house."

Price, however, was the least of concerns when the reputation of France was at stake.

Asked once to choose from among a number of presents for a visiting head of state, de Gaulle immediately replied: "France is offering the gift... just make sure it is the most expensive."

Mass Begrial

SHEFFIELD, England (CP) — A local brewery dumped 8,000 gallons of unsaleable beer on a rubbish tip by mistake, it was disclosed yesterday.

Bass Charrington Ltd. said that many persons were carrying the armchairs of their homes in ho-hum fashion. Finally a bulldozer was called in and made sure the defective beer was safely out of reach by burying it in the dumping cans under tons of earth.

Six Young B.C. Women Slain When Moon Full

VANCOUVER (CP) — The bodies of six young women have been found in the British Columbia interior since the moon was full on the night of October 29, 1969. Some of them had been sexually attacked and mutilated, and all the cases remain unsolved.

The dead are: Colleen MacMillan, 18, of Lac La Hache, who disappeared Aug. 9, an unidentified woman between 20 and 23 whose body was found near Penticton June 24; an unidentified woman aged about 20 found nude in halves near Valemount, May 26, Pamela Darlington, 19, of Kamloops, found Nov. 17, 1971; Gale Weyand, 19, of Clearwater, who disappeared Oct. 13, 1970, and Gloria Moody, 27, of Salt Cooke, found near Williams Lake Oct. 26, 1969.

Where time of death can be established, all are thought to have been killed during the hours of darkness and in the late summer and fall months.

Injecting Tablets Fatal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Photographs of tissue from the dead man's lungs showed thousands of tiny talc particles, each surrounded by a tough membrane which choked the tiny air spaces of the lungs. The man was a victim of the drug practice among drug addicts of injecting into a vein a tablet containing ground-up drug tablets.

The man's death, reported in the British Columbia Medical Journal, was caused by the talc powder carried by the blood to the lung and becoming trapped in the minute blood vessels where oxygen and carbon dioxide are exchanged. The powder is commonly used in pills as a filler and compacting agent.

The technique, known to drug addicts as "west coasting", has been used with antihistamines, central nervous system stimulants, barbiturates and natural and synthetic narcotics, says author Dr. J. H. Butterhill, director of the TV Stationary Chest Clinic in nearby New Westminster.

About 35 cases have turned up at the New Westminster clinic in the past two years. Five are reported on in detail in the article. Two of these died.

Many policemen figure crimes of sex and violence increase during a full moon. Where a date of death has been assumed, all were killed within a week of the full moon although only the Moody woman is known to have died on the day of a full moon.

Most of the investigators assume that all of the girls except the Valemount one were the victims of sex murderers either because of positive evidence at with the Darlington and Moody women—or because they were found nude with most or all their clothes missing.

Causes of death vary. Miss MacMillan, police believe, was strangled. Miss Darlington was bludgeoned with rocks but died of drowning in shallow water at the edge of the South Thompson River.

No cause of death could be established with Miss Weyand, but Constable Mel Weisgerber says: "There was blood in her inner ear, which is indicative of a drowning victim."

Miss Moody died to death after an artery was ruptured internally. However, she had been brutally beaten about the face as well. With both mutilated bodies, no cause of death could be determined.

Where the bodies were found shortly after death, there was evidence they were not murdered.

Only with Miss Darlington and Miss Moody were the women known to have been killed where they were found. In other cases, particularly the one near Valemount, it is more likely the women were murdered elsewhere and then dumped where they were found.

The women, when last seen, had said they intended to hitchhike.

There are many similarities between Miss Weyand and Miss Darlington—in fact they looked alike. There are also similarities between Miss Weyand and Miss MacMillan, both of whom were killed on Friday nights one week after a full moon.

Pam Darlington, father of Pamela, said: "We feel that the murders of Gale and Pam are related."

To most of the RCMP men here investigating the murders, however, the question of whether they are related seems irrelevant. Most of them are working on the latest murder—that of the MacMillan girl—and when that one is solved they will concentrate on the others.

Unlike murder investigations on television, it won't be all wrapped up within an hour, a week, a month, or even a year.

'30-and-Out' Employees Leaving Auto Industry

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The increase in pensions for workers with at least 30 years of service in the auto industry has brought a number of early retirements.

Oct. 2 was the day the pension kicks for such workers reaching a qualifying age of 55 years increased to $600 a month from $550. The pension will climb to $700 for those retiring Oct. 1, 1978, and after.

David C. Collier, president of General Motors of Canada Ltd., said about 140 hourly paid employees over the age of 55 had taken advantage of the early retirement plan negotiated by the United Auto Workers.

He said the company expects another group of more than 35 workers eligible for the plan to retire by early January.

Although an accurate figure of the number of eligible workers is not yet available, estimates seem to range between 750 and 1,200 at GM, Wm. Dutfield, a UAW service representative said in Oshawa, Ont.

He said it is possible some of those eligible will prolong their days with the company so that they may have dental work done while still covered by a new dental plan, details of which are still being thrashed out.

Apart from the dental advantages, Mr. Duffield said some GM workers may elect to postpone retirement in order to build up 1,000 hours of work time so they may get full vacation pay.

Mr. Collier said GM employees were first able to take advantage of an early retirement plan in 1971 at age 58, adding that the normal retiring Oct. 1 is nearly three times the number that retired early under the 1971 plan.

GM has an hourly-rated force of about 30,000 with 2,850 retired workers and their survivors receiving company-paid pension benefits. The company continues to pay benefits for life insurance, hospital and medical expenses for their retired employees.

At Oakville, Ont., Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. said 211 of its employees had taken advantage of the "30-and-out" option.

Al Liddell, financial secretary for UAW Local 200 in Oakville, said he expects many workers to retire by next summer, adding he feels many are holding off for the extra week's vacation with pay at the Christmas-New Year's period.

He said the dental issue is also a major criteria in the early-retirement question at Ford.

Chester Allen, who retired Oct. 2 at age 55 after 34 years of employment with Ford in Windsor, Ont., said he "figured it was time to get out."

"Too many people are dying young."

His job of driving a yard truck hauling material at Ford's Windsor plant earned him $5.86 an hour, including a cost-of-living allowance and an afternoon shift bonus. He also would have received an additional 15 cents under the latest increase for a total of $22 for a 40-hour week.

At Chrysler Canada Ltd., where the $625 pension becomes effective Nov. 1, 70 of 300 eligible employees have applied for pensions. The next increase in the Chrysler pension is on Oct. 1, 1978, when it goes up to $650.

The pension plan, negotiated with the new contract in 1973, is for a thirty-per cent and seventy termination of the remainder of the contract.

However, the plan is open in 1978 on two matters—union demands for removal of the age qualification of 30 and for an increase in the survivor benefit to 65 from 50 per cent of the pension.

Sochi Copies Riviera

SOCHI, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Sochi is trying to act like the French Riviera, with each watering havens as Vichy and Baden-Baden — thrown in. It has come a certain distance, but Coney Island-style crowds are choking up this workers' paradise.

A visitor from Moscow has to look closely to realize he's still in the Soviet Union. The spreading acacia, palm and magnolia trees along the well-tended streets and sidewalks hide much of the Communist party eloquency and the inevitable presence of Lenin.

The air is tropically soft and the Black Sea is inviting after a painful struggle across stone-strewn beaches.

You might prefer a meal of fresh fish to leathery beef, but fish is mysteriously hard to come by in Sochi.

Striking stone buildings, some with Corinthian columns, distract the eye from traditional Communist-modern high-rises, which look better here in the meridional sun.

An official guide book notes that pre-revolutionary Sochi was a "paradise in chains" and virtually neglected by Tsarist authorities who let malaria run rampant.

It was Lenin who "devoted special attention to the development of health resorts," including Sochi. And Stalin, who used to have a street named after him here, had his Black Sea dacha in Sochi.

The resort area stretches about 90 miles along the southeastern shore of the Black Sea; at about the same parallel as the French Riviera.

The "Pearl of the Black Sea" boasts numerous hotels, 400 restaurants and cafes and some 40 sanatoriums offering rest and medical cure in the chilled treatment at hydrogen sulphide springs originating from the lower levels of the Black Sea.

One of the sanatoriums, which is said by its officials to offer "average" facilities, is an elegant stone structure with Greek-columned facade, luxuriant gardens, chandelier-hung salons, a well-furnished library, theatre, dining room and spacious rooms. This is reserved for metallurgical workers, who can get a 24-day cure for as little as 46 rubles (£30).

Sochi has an off-season population of 364,000, which is sometimes nearly doubled in the summer. Normally, because of limited accommodations, reservations are made well in advance but other holidaymakers come to Sochi without any guarantee of sleeping space. Local residents often rent out rooms to the "wildcat" trade.

The biggest and newest hotel is the 26-storey Intourist Hotel Pearly-located in a valley giving onto the sea. Spread out for several blocks along the seafront is a sprawling beach house with a partly open roof and concrete flooring where bathers can lounge on mattresses—avoid lug the rocky beach.

This is the most luxurious beach area and it caters mainly to tourists from Communist-bloc countries. Other more famoed beaches are located up and down the coast.

Sochi has growing pains. Hotel building can't keep up with the demand. The picturesque road winding along the coast is not sufficient to carry the traffic back and forth to the area's only big airport, at Adler. A new, straight, wide-laned highway is being built through the coastal bluffs, scarring the view.

Lawyers Try to Block December - May Wedding

LONDON (AP) — The Evening News says that lawyers for Happy Rockefeller and Rachel Filer offered Welsh barman Michael Wilson $40,000 not to marry the millionaire's nearly 30 years his senior.

The News says Wilson told it he refused—"I got my self-respect and told them I am not a fortune hunter"—and that Miss Filer called at her home near Philadelphia.

"I have no intention of changing my mind. The News Paper prese me, the more determined I am to marry Mr. Wilson."

The newspaper says Miss Filer's lawyers "were expected to make one more attempt tonight to get the couple to call it off."

"I think it is because I met a minister's son that they feel I am not fitted to marry Mike Filer," said Wilson, a handsome 30-year-old who is visiting his mother in the Welsh town of Llay.

Wilson said the difference in their ages is irrelevant because their relationship is based on companionship.

"As the 77[?] he asked. "I'd never have thought she was as much as that and, of course being a gentleman, I never asked."

The former chubroy announced through a newspaper Monday that he was going to marry the aunt of Vice-President-designate Nelson Rockefeller's second wife, the former Margaretta (Happy) Filer.

Mike Filer and Mrs. Rockefeller are joint heiresses to the Filer fortune, at one time valued at more than $8 million.

Parks Council To Give Advice

TORONTO (CP) — A 12-member Ontario Provincial Parks Council will be set up to advise the government on planning and development of provincial parks, it was announced Tuesday.

Leo Bernier, minister of natural resources, told the legislature the government wants to see that "changing recreational needs" are reflected in park management systems and planning.

Alberta Sterilization Act Had WASP-ish Implications

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's Sexual Sterilization Act, repealed two years ago, was "clearly an attempt to put a WASP-ish definition of normality on the province," says the author of a study on the act.

Tom Christian, a law student who computer-analyzed the cases of 30 per cent of the 2,832 people presented for sterilization under the act, said Indians, Ukrainians and Alberta's powerless were its chief victims.

The act, passed in 1928, allowed a four-man eugenics board to order sterilization, without their consent, of people judged mentally deficient. The board could also authorize doctors to sterilize mental patients if they or a husband, wife, parent or guardian requested it.

Although 4,300 people were suggested to the board by mental hospital superintendents or relatives as candidates for sterilization, only 2,832 of them were actually sterilized, Mr. Christian said.

Of those sterilized, 64.7 per cent were women, his study showed.

"A disproportionately large number of Roman Catholics were sterilized, he added.

Indians and Metis made up 25.7 per cent of the sterilized from 1929 to 1972, when they represented only 3.4 per cent of the total population. Those of British descent made up 45.8 per cent of the population at the time but comprised only 23.9 per cent of those sterilized.

Eastern Europeans made up 25.1 per cent of those sterilized in the period of 1929 to 1945, when they constituted only 11.4 per cent of the total population.

"It's clear it was much healthier to be Anglo-Saxon," Mr. Christian commented.

He said the usual test — mental confidence was an IQ test which has been shown to be unfair to ethnic minorities within the dominant culture.

Dr. Charles Hellon, director of the province's mental health division, says the IQ test today is considered useless for anything but measuring the ability to write IQ tests.

The Sexual Sterilization Act was meant to prevent the mentally ill or the mentally deficient from passing mental illness or mental deficiencies on to their children.

But the act was scientifically unsound," said Dr. Hellon, explaining that few mental illnesses are known to have any genetic basis. Retarded people tend to have normal children and probably 40 per cent of the mentally ill are naturally infertile, he added.

There's also no evidence that the retarded necessarily make bad parents, Dr. Hellon told a forum sponsored by the Alberta Human Rights and Civil Liberties Association.

But although the theory behind the act was unsound, Dr. Hellon said, he "wouldn't want to attack the integrity of the panellists (on the eugenics board)-I believe they thought they were doing right at the time."

He said if the theory now being put forward by some scientists that schizophrenia is passed from parent to child by a recessive gene is correct, then it would take 100 years of sterilizing all schizophrenics in order to halve the incidence of schizophrenia by three per cent.

Dr. Hellon conceded that, as superintendent of the Alberta Hospital before becoming director of mental health, he was involved in the operation of the act.

"I don't feel proud about that, but it was the law at the time and it was done."

Mr. Christian told the forum that one of the most controversial of his findings was that the board authorized castrations on male patients "deemed to have an excess of libido."

"The operation was prescribed to make their sex drive excessive and sexually deviant."

The act gave the board authority only to sterilize mental patients that it believed would procreate and bring more mentally deficient or mentally ill persons into the world, Mr. Christian added.

Although he said he was generally done by means of vasectomy which sterilizes but doesn't alter the personality, he said.

He said that in the early years of the board's operation, many of those sterilized had been diagnosed as sexually deviant. Such practices as masturbation, promiscuity and 4 talk bearing of illegitimate children were considered deviant.

Mr. Christian attributed the passage of the act to a lack of moral leadership among politicians of the time.

Students Parade MP Astride Ass

BOMBAY (CP) — When Umed Singh Rathia, a member of the Indian Parliament from Madhya Pradesh state, visited a town in his constituency recently, he was not prepared for the type of reception he got.

"A popular politician, Rathia is accustomed to being greeted by enthusiastic villagers during his tours.

But the students of Kharsia town invaded the government rest house where Rathia was staying, blackened his face with boot polish and placed a "garland" of old shoes round his neck.

The MP was then asked to sit on a donkey and paraded through the streets.

The local student union said the punishment was meant to "force our elected legislator to serve his constituency better."

The students alleged that Rathia had done nothing to remove famine conditions in the area.

When policemen tried to rescue Rathia from the students, he said: "Please don't interfere. These people elected me. Let them also have the joy of punishing me. I am, after all, a servant of the people."

Report from various states show that attacks by students and workers on legislators are increasing.

Student unions and workers' councils argue that voters have the right to force the resignation of legislators who, in their view, have lost public confidence. They also want the right to "recall" them if they are found unfit.

A large number of legislators in Gujarat state were recently forced to resign from the legislature by a student organization called Nav Yuvik League.

Hundreds of slogan-shouting students lay siege to the homes of legislators, literally forcing them into resignation.

A similar campaign is under way in Bihar state, though the legislators there are standing firm.

Ruling Congress Party Chairman Shankar Dayal Sharma has described these actions as "unconstitutional" and "a real threat to the democratic system."

But some opposition parties say that democracy can only be revitalized by throwing out legislators who have lost public confidence.

Atal Vajpayee, a senior leader of the Jana Sangh, a Hindu right-wing party, is quoted as saying: "People need not have to wait till the next election to reject unwanted legislators."

The militant-Marxist Communist Party is also backing the protests.

Starving to Get Help

UN Scours World For Gifts of Food

OTTAWA (CP) — Emergency international talks are taking place to speed food aid to starving countries, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Wednesday.

He told reporters outside the Commons that the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization (FAO) is "scouring the world" for donations to ease food shortages "in areas of real need."

Canada, among the nations asked to help, could provide cereal grains but is considering a donation of high protein foods such as milk powder and white beans, he said. These products would be less bulky and easier to deliver than cereal grains.

However, he indicated that no decision on a Canadian donation will be made until after a UN-sponsored world food conference early next month in Rome. The government has said Canada will play an active role in the conference.

Mr. Whelan made the references to emergency FAO discussions with food-producing countries when food shortages were brought up in the Commons by former prime minister John Diefenbaker.

Mr. Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) urged the government to press for establishment of a world food bank along the lines proposed by his government in 1962.

At that time, Canada tried to set up a food bank in conjunction with other member countries in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). But the project failed.

Canada contributed one million bushels of wheat to start the bank and a second contribution was made by Norway, Mr. Diefenbaker said outside the Commons. The food was stored in facilities in Europe for distribution to needy countries.

But other NATO members, including the United States, opposed the program, arguing that massive starvation was not a threat, he said.

"Well, we see today they were wrong."

A recent report said wide-scale starvation is facing 22 countries around the world.

Mr. Whelan said in the Commons that he agrees with Mr. Diefenbaker that a world food bank should be established. But the prospects "hinge on the Rome conference.

Meanwhile, External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen announced Wednesday that Canada will give $1.5 million to farmers in Bangladesh for crop losses in low-lying, flood-stricken areas.

Some Laughter, Then Anger

Some of the jostling (top) was good-humored between reserve police and group barring Tyendinaga community centre to Mohawk council Wednesday. But the crowd wouldn't move and, when provincial police were called for help, there was a sharp, brief melee (bottom) that saw one man arrested. For details, see first page, second section.

Supreme Court Judge Heads Brutality Probe

TORONTO (CP) — A royal commission into police allegations of police brutality by the Metropolitan Toronto police force will be led by Mr. Justice Donald Morand, Solicitor-General George Kerr said Wednesday.

Mr. Kerr said the Ontario Supreme Court judge, acting under the Public Inquiries Act, will look into "recent allegations made in the Toronto press" and whether such methods are commonly used by the force.

Mr. Justice Morand also may investigate "any other allegations that he deems relevant," the solicitor-general said.

The inquiry will not investigate complaints involving other forces in the province, he added.

However, "I think that recommendations he will be seeking as to the use of force in the arrest and detention of persons will apply across the province," the solicitor-general said. He hoped to have the commission's report early next year.

Mr. Justice Morand, 56, formerly of Windsor, Ont., now lives in Toronto. He will wind up his court duties this week.

The commission is to have the full powers of a court to summon lawyers, investigators and other staff and proceedings are to be public.

Mr. Kerr also said he expects the inquiry will touch on allegations of mishandling of complaints involving the Metro Toronto police force.

That area, not spelled out in the terms of reference, likely will be investigated "extensively", he said, because of other inquiries under way.

Toronto lawyer Arthur Maloney is heading an investigation into the means by which the force handles complaints.

A similar inquiry is under way into the RCMP, Mr. Kerr said.

CIA Watch Is Forecast On Any Joint Pipeline

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — The head of the Committee for an Independent Canada says any joint Canada-United States pipelines built to carry oil or gas out of the Mackenzie Delta will be controlled and constructed by U.S. security forces.

Robert Page told an audience Wednesday that "the Pentagon and the CIA (Central Intelligence Agency) will consider it crucial to American industry and security." It would be like the Panama canal.

He said most of the oil and gas would go to supply an energy-hungry U.S., at Canada's expense.

Overaged Hamburger Stirs Row

OTTAWA (CP) — The food prices review board has become involved in another disagreement with the Liberal government, this time over inspection of ground meat.

Board Chairman Beryl Plumptre, fresh from a tiff with Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan over the rotten egg scandal, said Wednesday the government has virtually given meat merchants a licence to sell substandard hamburger.

Health Minister Marc Lalonde replied that Mrs. Plumptre should become better informed and that germs are no problem if hamburger is well cooked. He recommended cooking the meat at 100 degrees C or more to destroy any health hazards.

"That's fine if everyone likes to eat hamburger well done," Mrs. Plumptre shot back at a news conference.

She said inspection services for Mr. Lalonde's department are inadequate. The government and meat makers were not doing enough to see that hamburger is safe to eat.

But Mr. Lalonde replied in an interview later that to strive for food products without bacteria would be "horrendously expensive."

"We have to have realistic standards."

Resource Taxes To Be Fixed Soon

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal budget provisions for taxation of resource industries probably will be decided in early November, Finance Minister John Turner said Wednesday.

Mr. Turner left Ottawa for the oil and mining industries as well as some provinces, said in the Commons he will finish his talks with the provinces before deciding what tax measures he will take.

He declined to say whether the government will reintroduce last May's proposal that royalties paid to provincial governments are not deductible from federal corporation tax.

Oil and mining companies say that higher provincial royalties and the federal proposal will come close to taking 100 per cent of their profits, leaving little to finance exploration and new production.

The federal budget is expected to be presented by Nov. 15 and as the date nears the resource companies are stepping up their lobby against the tax.

Full-page advertisements in major papers outline damage to the companies say will be inflicted on the industry.

Mr. Turner said Wednesday he is holding discussions and not negotiations with the provinces.

"They have to decide whether they're going to do and I'll decide what I'm going to do."

He said he hopes to have an appraisal of what the provinces will do after he meets next week with premiers during a federal-provincial discussion on inflation.

Mr. Turner said the federal position on the budget will not be changed after he meets with finance ministers in the Atlantic provinces early in November.

Clement Asks Cut In Credit

TORONTO (CP) — John Clement, Ontario's minister of consumer and commercial relations, urged Wednesday that consumers reduce their credit buying.

"The supply of goods is very short and credit purchases add to the shortage by creating an artificial market," Mr. Clement said in an interview.

In 1973, credit purchases rose by 18 per cent, but total sales rose by less than 15 per cent, he said.

Consumers "must learn to slow down the rate of increase in consumption," mainly as a counteraction on credit, Mr. Clement said.

The belief in a promised land of continuously rising incomes making all things more available is going to decline," he said. "The consumer ... will need to learn to exercise his power of choice and even rejection."

Asked how long credit buying should be curtailed, Mr. Clement said "the next three or four years", with a "flexible" period.

"But people are starting to cut back on their own. I think they are starting to look at their own priorities without wanting everything."

Oil Firms' Profits Said High

OTTAWA (CP) — Oil companies are making exorbitant profits and a review of taxation affecting them is needed, Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party parliamentary leader, suggested Wednesday.

Mr. Broadbent said in the Commons that Imperial Oil Ltd. had profits of $223 million so far this year, an increase of 44 per cent over last year.

Imperial also has deferred payment of $226 million in federal income tax, he said suggesting the company should at least pay interest on the amount.

But Finance Minister John Turner said MPs will have to await budget night before finding out what tax measures are planned.

Fuel Curbs Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government's still-secret Project Independence energy study strongly supports mandatory fuel-saving measures, coupled with accelerated U.S. oil production. It suggests mandatory conservation measures might include a gasoline-mileage standard for cars, and lighting and insulation standards for buildings.

Jobless to Be Checked

MONTREAL (CP) — Between 20 and 60 per cent of persons who receive unemployment insurance benefits will soon be checked to see there are no job opportunities for them, Jean-Pierre Goyer said Wednesday. Whenever there is a shortage of workers in a particular field, all UIC recipients who qualify for that field will be called in to report "physically" to the nearest UIC office.

Five Convicts Escape

Woman Smuggles Revolvers to Dangerous Montreal Prisoners

MONTREAL (CP) — An allied police search is under way for five convicts, described as extremely dangerous, who escaped from the Laval maximum security prison Wednesday with the help of a woman visitor who smuggled in three revolvers.

The escaped prisoners were identified as Jean-Paul Mercier, 29, Richard Blass, 29, Pierre Vincent, 29, Edgar Roussel, 28, and Robert Frappier, 27.

Minutes after the escape, police took a 32-year-old woman into custody for questioning. She was described as a friend of Mercier and Vincent.

The prisoners escaped in a car from the prison parking lot and drove to Montreal North where they switched to another vehicle, taking the driver hostage.

The driver of the second car, Claude Ouellet, 32, a post office investigator, was locked in the trunk of his vehicle when the convicts abandoned it after a 15-minute drive.

"They told me to keep my mouth shut and everything would be fine," said Mr. Ouellet after he freed himself from the trunk with a tire iron.

He said two of the men had bleeding hand wounds and the convict at the wheel drove fast.

"We almost crashed into the rear of a couple of cars and several times police cars crossed our paths."

Four of the men—Vincent, Blass, Mercier and Roussel—had escaped from area penitentiaries before.

In Ottawa, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said he was surprised as well as "disgusted" at the escape.

He said he could not explain how the woman got the gun past the usual checks and why the five convicts were in the visitors' room at the same time.

Police said one of the prisoners pulled a knife on a guard while two others smashed their fists into the glass partition separating prisoners and visitors.

One convict reached through the broken glass and picked up a bag containing three revolvers.

"That's when all hell broke loose," said Laval Grondin, assistant director of the penitentiary.

The convicts started shooting in the visitors' room to intimidate the guards, forcing them at gunpoint to open doors. There were about 15 persons in the visitors' room. Women were screaming and crying.

Mercier was serving a life term for murder, bobbige, attempted murder and escaping from prison. Blass has 15 years for armed robbery, attempted murder, holdups, assaulting a police officer and car theft.

Vincent was serving 15 years for armed robbery, possession of an offensive weapon and escape. Frappier was serving 12 years for armed robberies, conspiracy to commit armed robberies and kidnapping.

Roussel was serving seven years for holdups and escaping

Election Traditions Seldom Change

By CHRISTOPHER ALSBEY
Staff Correspondent

There are two thoughts on everybody's mind these days — will there be a depression and who will be elected to the local municipal council after the December election?

With nomination day just around the corner we decided to interview a councillor from each city, town and township.

Joe Wickens, now 81 of the 8th Concession, Huntingdon, virtually remembers the entire second election time. Unlike today where the aspiring politician takes a nomination form around and has 10 taxpayers sign it, Mr. Wickens said he innocently went to a nomination meeting and found himself running for office.

In December, 1893, just before Christmas, the people made their way to the township hall which still stands in Frankford on Highway 14.

Out on the hustings for Mr. Wickens stood blocking up the horse to a cutter after a blizzard and visiting voters in the surrounding area.

"I had it over the other people running for council," he says. "They had cars, and there were no snowplows.

Election day was always just after New Year's Day. People took voting seriously then. "One chap on his way to vote was taking a shortcut across fields. He was walking on a tree over a frozen creek, fell off and landed in water up to his hips. He went home, changed his clothes, and made it to the polls just in time to vote," Mr. Wickens recalls.

January, 1894, saw a brand new Huntington Township council, with the exception of one member. Mr. Wickens topped the polls, getting two more votes than the new reeve. Then, as now you got elected when and if you were running for. The council stayed intact for three terms, the last two by acclamation.

In those days women did not vote unless they were property owners.

Mr. Wickens was on the committee which looked after welfare. All he could give a family of 10 was $1.50 a week. He lived in a log cabin at the time. The area had no hydro, but he had a telephone. He said he was called by a doctor one night and told to get some food for one family "or he would be burying them in the morning.

There was no such thing at a department of public works in the 1890s so council had a different task than their counterparts today.

Councillors "pathmasters" to look after "a beat."

"It was called statute labor working for the king" Mr. Wickens notes. "Depending upon how much your property was assessed for, you had to do six or nine days roadwork.

"If you didn't do it, you were charged for it on your taxes.

"If you had a horse and wagon, they would count for two days, and yourself for one. People worked like brutes, just as if they were getting paid for it."

Mr. Wickens political life he ran against the incumbent ended three years later when reeve. He actually beat the reeve by a few votes poll, and was ahead in his own, but did not pick up enough support overall, and never ran again.

Museum Attracts Educators

PICTON — Prince Edward education director John McNeil, principals from county elementary schools and members of a student liaison committee Wednesday met at the county museum to discuss its potential as a resource centre.

James Musgrove, chairman of the Prince Edward County Museum management committee explained student tours, in the past, have tended too rushed and disorganized.

If the museum were kept on a year-round basis, it would be possible for pupils to tour in small groups.

Mr. Musgrove also suggested the information compiled by the county historical society for preservation by the museum might be used for reference in student projects.

He said it would be possible for the museum curator, Rosemarie Metcalfe, to take small groups of artifacts to the schools should they prove relevant to study programs.

North Marysborough school principal David Lockwood remarked, "Anytime we can get outside people in the school it is good."

Mr. Lockwood added it is best if there is a focus to a specific area of study, such as the county's apple industry. Presentations are often effective when limited to a single topic at a time.

Mr. Musgrove said there are facilities at the museum for two or three students to use the archives at a time preferably by appointment. For tours, several guides could be used to show classes of about 30 students the museum displays.

Education director John McNeil remarked it is his job to establish communication between the museum management committee and the schools. He said use of the museum's resources would depend on the decisions of school principals and staff.

The 12 students attending Wednesday's meeting are members of a liaison committee with the Prince Edward County board of education.

Lake in the Making

When Salmon River dam at Shannonville is completely plugged with concrete, there'll be a new lake in the community. Crew from the federal fish Lamprey Control Centre at Sault Ste. Marie finishes work in about a week. Permanent dam — with no stop logs — will keep lampreys from going upriver to spawn and is part of program to eliminate the parasites from Lake Ontario.

Rifle Results In $100 Fine

TRENTON — In provincial court here Wednesday Robert Cosbey, 26, of 198 Queen St. was fined $200 by Judge R.C. Jackson after pleading guilty to a charge of use of a firearm dangerous to the safety of an individual.

Court was told Cosbey threatened a woman with a rifle during a July 2 argument in a Queen St. building.

In another case, Brian Cameron Speck, 19, of no fixed address was sentenced to six months in jail after he pleaded guilty to a charge of break and enter at the Red Shark clothing store on Dundas St. west Sept. 16.

An 18 1 Trenton man, William Ralph Orr, 20, was fined $100 after pleading guilty to a charge of careless driving that arose from a Sept. 4 accident.

Court was told, Orr was southbound on Sidney St. when he crashed into the narrow Sidney St. subway and subsequently struck another northbound vehicle.

New Dam Curbs Lamprey Eels

SHANNONVILLE — This hamlet will have a new lake and lamprey eels will have no place to breed in the Salmon River when a six-man crew from Sault Ste. Marie finishes work in about a week-and-a-half.

The crew, from the federally-operated Sea Lamprey Control Centre at the Soo, is completely damming the Salmon River with a solid concrete structure at the site of the old dam just south of Highway 2.

Two Charged In Theft

BLOOMFIELD — Police report two persons have been charged following a break-in Wednesday of the home of a Bloomfield area woman.

Mrs. Ken Stonagle of RR1, Bloomfield, reported her home had been entered and about $20 taken in addition to a quantity of old coins.

Charged were a Bloomfield area juvenile and John Struthers, 18, of the Coach House Motel, Bloomfield.

The old dam, with repairs, is the base of the structure and sluiceways are being plugged with concrete. There will be no stop logs in the structure.

"We've found we need a drop of four feet to keep the lamprey from going upstream to spawn in the spring," Frank Green, project supervisor, said. This will be the minimum at the middle of the dam, with higher wings at the sides.

The dam will create a small lake above it, which delights Shannonville residents. It will improve the scenery and add to the recreational value of the river.

"In the spring, runoff will go over the middle section, and desirable sport fish will be able to get over the dam to spawn, but the lamprey won't," Mr. Green explained. "This will save the cost of greasing the river with chemicals each year."

Mr. Green said that while the lamprey is pretty well under control in the Upper Lakes, "there's a lot of work still to be done in Lake Ontario".

After Toffler?

The recent visit of author Alvin Toffler to Belleville prompts the thought that other celebrities of our day might be attracted to our midst. After all, why not?

In an earlier time, Oscar Wilde came to Belleville. Now Toffler, a writer and personality of a different stamp to be sure, but each in his own way a man of genius.

In any event it would give further momentum to our community, as well as enlivening things for all of us if on occasions personalities of note were to be invited here.

Not long since we suggested actress-comedienne Beatrice Lillie might be asked to revisit her schoolgirl haunts. Of course she might have difficulty recognizing the place, but would that matter? Miss Lillie attended school at St. Agnes Manor, one-time executive mansion, lately an apartment building, and now the site of a modern high-rise in the last stages of completion.

Shouldn't there be a historic plaque there at least, when it comes to giving substance to the history of that corner on Bridge Street? And, might Miss Lillie be invited to attend any opening ceremonies?

Still on this theme, who else might be invited here. After all this is supposed to be The Friendly City — and let's not forget the Centennial celebrations scheduled for 1978.

In the medical sphere the scourge of cancer continues to take its toll, although certain well-publicized operations in the United States of late indicate that, detected early, chances of recovery are good. And, as many will have noted, the chairman of the American Cancer Society's 1975 crusade is movie actress Raquel Welch.

Now whether Miss Welch ever comes to Belleville is a moot point, but there is no reason why she should not be invited here, given the far-reaching significance of the new task to which she has been assigned. Cancer and its treatment are a form of public concern and Miss Welch clearly is prepared to do some campaigning to solicit support for the continuing battle against the disease.

As we have said, she may never see Belleville, but then why not? And why not other well-known people of our time, in this that or the other field of endeavor? .

Necessary Economies

It is encouraging to learn that no cuts are foreseen in the CFB establishment at Trenton in the wake of Defence Minister Richardson's defence budget statement. Economies are being made however and these are being effected by scheduling fewer flights and limiting recruitment.

It is a sign of the times. The government has at last wakened up to the fact that we can no longer continue to live grandly beyond our means," as a former Bank of Canada once put it.

But the armed services represent one area which we cannot afford to curb more than is necessary. Our defence establishments, both at home and abroad, are too important to be weakened too much. Savings should be possible in other unproductive sectors of the government machine, including the ten percent that is allocated to "junk art," tropical plants and all, in and around government buildings.

When it comes to making necessary savings, and we know they must be made if branches of government operate throughout the land, the emphasis should be on increased efficiency and on elimination of wasteful practices.

Unseasonable

It is tough playing tennis in a wind and amidst snow flakes which blow up all of a sudden and cause an abrupt end to the game. Weather reports later indicated it was, at 37 degrees, the coldest for that day since 1936, causing one of the players to reflect that that was the year of his birth, that he played a lot of tennis in his younger days, but now is lucky if he gets a handful a year. This Thanksgiving Day one was his first of 1974; so much for our so-called age of leisure!

Quebec Bill Compounds The Situation

Ottawa's Big - Fist Bilingualism Policy Angers Liberal MP

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — When three-term Ottawa West Liberal MP Lloyd Francis openly attacked his government in the House of Commons the other day on its language policy, a loud, long standing ovation from the rest of the party organization, bolled over in public view.

It involved the long-standing and often outspoken opposition of Mr. Francis to what he terms biased application in the federal public service by the government of bilingualism.

His opposition has become even more vigorous since Quebec's Bill 22 has deepened the language division.

He cited a case to the Commons involving an English speaking supervisor in the Government Printing Bureau in Hull, who, after 30 years, now finds it necessary to speak perfect French in order to speak to his own language.

Mr. Francis reported Mr. Francis to the Commons, "that Quebec Bill 22 has been a factor for them to speak English at work."

Prime Minister Trudeau has said that Bill 22 has no application to the bilingualism of the public servants working in the air or seven buildings the government has erected in Hull in its drive to make over the National Capital into a two province, Ontario-Quebec establishment.

But Mr. Francis is not reassured and has told the Commons it is beyond understanding that, because of Bill 22, the federal language policy "can be different in Hull and Ottawa than in Ottawa and Ontario." He has "case after case" to substantiate it.

Usually these differences are fought out in the privacy of the Treasury Board.

But not this time because the dispute is too bitter and has gone on too long.

Mr. Francis, before he was defeated by since-beaten Conservative MP Peter Reilly in Ottawa West, fought the government for four years on its implementation of bilingualism on grounds it discriminated against English-speaking public servants.

His opposition to the "government-imposed policy" has been outspoken and protracted that he frequently is, and some of his associates claim, tried to block his renomination for the July election.

Mr. Francis and a number of his colleagues say that Quebec Liberal MP Red Blaker of the Montreal riding of Lachine-Lakeshore sent in a crew of political organizers to beef up the campaign of a rival for the Ottawa West nomination.

Mr. Blaker denies the scheme, according to their version of the story.

Long - Term Solutions To Oil Needs Awaited

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

One year has passed since we in the Middle East Oil Producers Countries declared a shortage of crude oil and a sharp rise in its price.

Since then, there has been much talk about the need to conserve energy in all its forms, and to develop new sources of energy supply.

But what has been achieved? Not very much.

On the most basic level, there have been government appeals to the public to drive less (and more slowly, when it is necessary to drive), to form car pools, to keep the thermostat down and to turn off lights.

Symbolic energy-saving may have conserved some power, but that would otherwise have been wasted, not be hardly a long-term solution to the problem of a permanently international shortage of oil.

New techniques on a much bigger scale—and less dependent upon volunteerism—are badly needed, if we don't flounder in the threat to world peace that is posed by the profound economic change created by the current energy crisis.

Fortunately, some progress is being made by researchers dedicated to the new—and alternative—sources of energy.

Unfortunately, progress is slow, sometimes expensive, and often impeded by human inertia.

Promising new processes are being tested in the production of aluminum, for example. These require only about two-thirds of the electricity that the aluminum industry uses so very-much-needs now to produce bauxite, and are cheaper as well.

Experiments with new ways to produce cement have pointed to the possibility of reducing the energy-input (which represents 30 per cent of the cost of the finished product) by one-quarter.

Still largely in the early experimental stage are techniques to extract worthwhile volumes of energy from such low-grade sources as the wind, the sun and the geothermal steam trapped beneath the ground in certain locations.

Old sources of energy are also being employed—but again, at a terribly slow pace.

Coal, for example, used to be our major heating fuel—until it was discarded in favor of cheaper oil and gas.

Today, it appears that coal-handling can be made cleaner and easier, and that it will be possible some day to re-convert it cheaply over long distances by converting it into a liquid or a gas.

This is an intriguing prospect because of Canada's abundant deposits of coal—either proved or indicated—but it remains only a prospect, while technical and financial planning go slowly forward. The problems of raising capital for a coal pipeline, at today's interest rates, are appalling.

Garbage, that inevitable by-product of human existence, offers new energy possibilities through recycling. Experts say that urban garbage is equivalent to 20 per cent of the total of energy content when burned in conventional generators.

But its future as an energy source still seems remote, and confined to densely populated areas.

With its vast resources of conventional minerals, Canada can wait until the new techniques are proved. The question is whether the rest of the world can.

Patchwork Welfare—Or Guaranteed Income?

Brockville Recorder and Times

What this country needs is a system of guaranteed income with a built-in work incentive to replace the patchwork welfare system we now have. As it stands in this province, welfare regulations discourage people to work. And they pose an attraction for some neighbors who are on welfare.

The point was stressed in a recent address by Brockville's welfare commissioner, Rene Morel, Mr. Morel's plea for local service club that a man on welfare was only often better off than his counterpart who worked for a living. He cited examples. The man on welfare, with a wife and six children, can get $500 a month to make ends meet. He knows about how much he can earn then he needs to meet his obligations. That is, he can get free OHIP, free drugs at prescribed rates, family allowance and is eligible for free dental, optical, homemaker and other services.

A fully employed man, with a wife and six children, will take home pay of $100 a week—gets roughly $443 a month. If he is unlucky and doesn't have health coverage, he has to pay for most or all of that out of his salary he goes without. He has to pay for his own meals that the man on welfare gets and despite the fact he cannot meet a budget deficit of $60 a month he cannot get welfare assistance. By Brockville's figures could be in debt for the rest of his life.

In Toronto recently there was a clamor over the case of a mother on welfare who was penalized for working at a part-time job. She was making a few hours a day while her children were in school. And with the price of everything today who can blame a mother for trying to earn extra money. And earning that extra money often means the difference between the family meals a day for the family or the same meals three times a day. One can also mean that the children cannot take piano lessons or participate in activities enjoyed by other children.

Just as the man working for $100 a week looks upon welfare with a jaundiced eye, the mother on welfare, or the father for that matter, is frustrated by government rules in a desire to work for a few extra dollars and thus raise the family standard of living. The rules say she cannot earn more than $25 a month plus $12 a month for each of her children without giving up some of her welfare entitlement. For $1 over the allowable amount she loses her benefits are cut by 75 per cent. Then Mrs. Reed's candidate's station for a desire to work.

The rules are most unfair and the system is unfair to the man who works for minimum wages as compared to the man on welfare. The Ontario government has been stated to review the rules and the system to make it possible for welfare recipients to earn more before their benefits are cut. The present policy is very short-sighted. The government is, in effect, encouraging people on welfare to take part-time work, especially if they have children. Those children are grown she will have sufficient incentive to take a full-time job and then get off welfare rolls. Isn't that what the government wants?

It would seem that the government should devise a policy that would provide assistance for those who want to work, part-time or full-time, and make it more equitable. The man who works full time to the fellow on welfare should be encouraged to get off and go to work. He should at least get all the benefits now available to a person on welfare. And if it takes $60 a month for a family of eight to subsidize that should be paid that amount whether or not they work. There should also be more incentive for those who would take part-time work based on the present rules. For every $1 earned $100 a month before the benefits are reduced then the reductions should be minimal.

No Sign Of Spending Curbs

Health And Education Could Absorb Total GNP In Canada

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Money, Over the next five or six weeks that this session should run we probably are going to hear a great deal about money.

Recently there has been an obvious campaign by the government to tell us about money troubles.

Treasurer John White in virtually every speech he has been preaching the need for belt-tightening.

And, backing him up, Health Minister Frank Miller added to the making a series of speeches viewing with alarm the public bill for health.

This talk is not idle.

A look at the future of government spending in Canada can be scary.

As just one example, statisticians can produce figures to show that if health costs continue spending keeps growing at this rate of the next few years, by the end of the century these two fields alone will absorb the total gross national product.

And in other ways a sober look at the future presents a grim picture.

The most disturbing facet is that while we are talking restraint and will be talking about it even more out of all the talk there is little promise of realistic restraint.

In fact there is practically no suggestion of what form such realistic action might take. There are plenty of warnings but no real solutions.

We are told we are spending too much now but still the spending increases.

We are told there is a grave practical end to the growth in sight!

The public demands more and better service and the politicians have to provide the goods.

Today the demand is for more and more day nurseries.

Tomorrow it will be for a dental program.

After that, who can say?

How can it where does it all end?

Talk is fine. But action is needed.

And as of now there is little prospect we will get it.

Quebec And The French Fact

Quebec Le Soleil: The federal and Ontario governments have reiterated their intention to accentuate the French-language presence in Canada—Ottawa in federal affairs and Ontario in education.

Gradually, often too slowly, the rest of Canada is becoming aware of the need for bilingualism if it wishes to strengthen the French fact in this country.

Strengthening the foundations of the two great Canadian cultures is what those who want Canada to fulfil its historic and political destiny call. It is something that goes beyond the strict cultural domain.

As he did after the 1972 federal election, Prime Minister Trudeau has devoted his first speech after the speech from the throne to a defence of the two languages in federal institutions. He has offered to

We must create an irreversible situation so that, at all federal levels, the French language and French-Canadians are introduced in a degree sufficient truly to reflect our historical responsibilities.

The Ontario government, for its part, established a committee that has recommended that French be given extraordinary status in Ontario, a province which, after Quebec, has the largest French-speaking population in Canada.

Ottawa and Ontario are thus following the path traced by Quebec in its Bill 22 on the French language.

Bill 22 is not perfect. It is not even adequate. But it is a step in the right direction.

Ottawa and Ontario are following that path.

Their action is not only necessary, it is urgent.

United Way Contributions

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

The United Way Campaign ends October 31, but there is still time to make a contribution.

Because of the financially assisted programs are: swimming instruction for those who cannot afford it, Red Cross Braille teachers for the blind, all organized sports, Meals on Wheels, the Navy League homemakers for ailing mothers and children, blood transfusion service, Cerebral Palsy Association, arthritis, aid for fire and other disaster victims, Christmas stocking, safe camping, summer bursary, furniture exchange, meals-on-wheels for senior citizens, first-aid training, home nursing courses, home counselling services for convalescents, prenatal and post-natal classes for mothers and babies. Less than 10 per cent of contributions go to administration and administration costs.

It will readily be appreciated that all of us are touched at one time or another by United Way services so there should be better insurance than to keep the fund strong.

Donations large and small are greatly appreciated, presentation departments are happy to accept and process pay-roll deductions and will issue receipts for income tax purposes.

To those who have and will contribute, may we offer sincere congratulations on behalf of the directors of the United Way agencies and people your dollars will assist through 1974-75.

To conclude, perhaps we might rename this slogan "Divided we fall — United we stand ". The United Way is Worthwhile.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

October 24, 1944

Intimation that the Weed Act and its several amendments passed during the past year will be more strictly enforced, and the program of eradication will be more thoroughly carried on is contained in a notice being sent out by William Dilling, agricultural representative for Hastings County, that the annual meeting of the county weed inspectors will be held in Shire Hall this city.

40 YEARS AGO

October 24, 1934

Its glare visible for miles, a roiling fire, which swept and crackled up a steep hill at the rear of the residence of Sherman Moore, Hallowell, at 4 dock last evening, attracted considerable attention. Taking advantage of the stillness of the night, the owner of the land fired the tall grass and weeds of the pasture but and allowed it to burn to the top of the hill where, after it had caught on the thick undergrowth and small trees it flared like a beacon. Nearly an acre of fire visible for over an hour.

Criminal's Escape Is Termed Scandal

TORONTO (CP) — Crown Attorney Stephen Leggett said Wednesday that the escape last June of a man—whom he described as an organized crime figure — from an Ontario penitentiary is nothing short of a "scandal."

Mr. Leggett said that Charles Angelo Spataro, 38, of Buffalo, N.Y., escaped from Warkworth minimum-security honor Campbellford, Ont., while out on a weekend pass in June.

The Crown attorney said in an interview that Spataro was serving a 14-year sentence for arson. He was convicted in May, 1970.

Mr. Leggett said Spataro is believed to have returned to Buffalo.

Stand Up Now Or Lose Land Hurtig Warns

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Mel Hurtig, Canadian nationalist and publisher who helped form the Committee for an Independent Canada, told the Canadian Club Wednesday that Canadians must stand up for economic sovereignty or risk becoming tenants in their own country.

Mr. Hurtig, who has been travelling the country pleading for economic independence, said Canada's greatest asset—"the ability to determine our own future"—is being surrendered.

If that continued, future generations would be faced with being tenants "in the country that should be their own."

He lashed out at foreign corporations, saying Canada faces a capital drain of $500,000 every hour.

He suggested that government intervention could prevent that drain.

Man Who Had Promotion Refused Gets Life Sentence

A man who had received the maximum sentence as a message to organized crime that we in Toronto cannot be treated lightly," Mr. Leggett said.

He said it was "really scandalous" that "a professional torch with his connections with the Mafia could get a weekend pass."

Penitentiary officials said Spataro received three or four weekend passes to visit his wife in a nearby motel before the escape, June 15.

Metropolitan Toronto police said they did not know of the escape until FBI officials asked them why Spataro was free after serving such a small portion of his 14-year sentence.

A prison official said the justice department is to decide whether to seek extradition of Spataro.

Mr. Leggett said such an extradition process could cost up to $20,000.

Mr. Leggett said Spataro, convicted in connection with an attempt to set fire to a building on Yonge Street, is married to the niece of the late Steffano Maggadino.

Corrosion Alleged
Laval Firm's Anti-freeze Is Seized

HALIFAX (CP) — The Atlantic Industrial Research Institute says it has found that an anti-freeze being marketed in Quebec and parts of Ontario is almost a saturated solution of calcium chloride, a chemical that quickly causes corrosion in aluminum block motors.

Dr. Thomas Gray, director of the institute, told The Canadian Press Wednesday the corrosion would be "incredibly rapid and disastrous to the car because of the combination of metals in the system."

Most anti-freeze is ethylene glycol with inhibitors to prevent corrosion.

Dr. Gray said the anti-freeze was taken in the institute for analysis by a Halifax automotive dealer who wanted to have it checked before deciding whether to sell it. The dealer had received a sample of the anti-freeze from an agent in Montreal earlier this month.

The institute has notified the department of corporate and consumer affairs.

In Montreal, a police spokesman said a company in nearby Laval was raided Friday and about 2,000 gallons of anti-freeze seized.

The company, which manufactured and distributed the product, was immediately closed and "will be charged soon."

The police spokesman did not know when the company would anti-freeze which showed it to be arraigned or the exact be "highly corrosive," he said. charge which would be laid. He did not know how much of The raid followed tests on the the anti-freeze had already been sold.

Marchand Enrages Opponents

OTTAWA (CP) — An experiment in parliamentary chemistry exploded in Transport Minister Jean Marchand's face Wednesday night when the Commons started studying some 1974-75 spending estimates.

Between 9¼ and three hours had been allotted for consideration of Mr. Marchand's estimates. The House spent three hours dueling with him, but most of the time went up in unproductive smoke.

It began when Mr. Marchand was like returning in the House after the two-hour dinner recess.

It simmered for a while as several opposition members questioned the minister, subdued at first, about federal freight rate subsidies paid to the railways.

It blew up when Progressive Conservative transport critic Don Mazankowski (Vegreville) had his 30-minute question period cut short by Albanie Morin (L—Louis-Herbert), chairman of the House committee.

"We've got a good bench here tonight," Mr. Stanfield observed, his voice sharp with sarcasm. "I've been in the legislatures for about 25 years and I've never seen such a farce as this!"

The situation got worse as the night went on and the end result was that few of the opposition questions were answered by the transport minister.

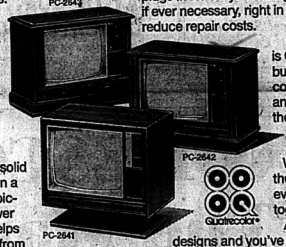
It's the perfect way we put everything together that sets Panasonic Quatrecolor apart.

Perhaps our way works so perfectly because it's so uncomplicated. Every model in the Quatrecolor console TV line starts with four basic features.

First, the Ultra Pana-Matrix picture tube. It has a negative guard band black matrix screen and is driven by a powerful 30,000 volt chassis to give you sharp, bright pictures.

Then we add the dependability of 100% solid state circuitry. We put in a circuit that keeps the picture steady if your power fluctuates. One that helps keep out interference from other channels. And another to cut down interference from things like household appliances.



These and most other circuits that make up Panasonic Quatrecolor are grouped into 5 modules, our third feature. Each module plugs in for easy servicing or replacement, if ever necessary, right in your own home. To reduce repair costs.

The fourth feature is Q-Lock. A single button that keeps color, tint, contrast and brightness just the way you like it on every channel, automatically.

With features like these it's no wonder everything goes together perfectly.

Economic Policies Can Stop Racism

OTTAWA (CP) — Sound economic policies that stress jobs and housing can restrain Canada from the potential threat of racial conflict because of high immigration, New Democratic Party member Andrew Brewin said Wednesday.

Mr. Brewin, MP for the Toronto riding of Greenwood and the party's immigration critic in the Commons, said in an interview that Canada can be a non-white immigration state and still avoid racial tension "provided we don't have situations where people can complain that immigrants are taking over their jobs."

He said he agreed with Immigration Minister Robert Andras that government immigration policies have not led to strong racist feelings. In his home riding he hears "only fragment rantings" of resentment against newcomers.

Both have said that the race issue will emerge in the coming public discussion on a new immigration policy. The government will publish a "green paper" outlining policy alternatives early next year on which to base a new Immigration Act to be tabled after hearing debate on the green paper.

When he introduced new regulations Tuesday to ease the rising flow of immigration, Mr. Andras said the government will continue to pursue a policy of "universality and non-discrimination."

He said this means penalties for prospective immigrants who do not have pre-arranged jobs in Canada will apply equally to immigrants from all countries.

Mr. Andras told a news conference, there is some concern about racial tension in Toronto and Vancouver where a large proportion of newcomers settle, but there is no evidence to indicate it has become a serious problem.

Defence Contends Dean Saves Self

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence lawyers at the Watergate cover-up trial are trying to portray star government witness John Dean as a person willing to sacrifice anyone to save himself when the cover-up began unraveling.

William Hundley tried Wednesday to get Dean to admit he tried to get Hundley's client, former attorney-general Mitchell, to play forward and take responsibility for the Watergate break-in.

"You didn't have any information that Mr. Mitchell was responsible for the bugging," Hundley told the former White House counsel. "Yet you joined in a plan to have him step forward because that would save you."

Hundley was the second defence lawyer to cross-examine Dean, the first government witness in the trial of five former Nixon administration and campaign aides accused of conspiracy to block the investigation of the Watergate break-in.

John Wilson, lawyer for H. R. Haldeman, former White House chief of staff led Dean to relate how he took $4,850 for his honeymoon from a $350,000 cash fund kept by Haldeman in the White House.

"Didn't it lay on your conscience at all that you spent money that didn't belong to you?" Wilson asked.

"I was prepared to account for it at any time I was asked to," replied Dean.

During the cross-examination, Wilson accused U.S. District Judge John Sirica of being "palpably unfair."

"Now listen, Mr. Wilson, you're a smart man, you've known me for years," the judge replied. "I'm not much interested in getting the truth out of you or not."

At issue was whether tapes of conversations about which Dean's memory was unclear would be played for the jury.

The lawyers agreed to play the tapes, but later decided that playing them would be pot-luck for some time, if not indefinitely.

Successor Appointed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney-General William Saxbe appointed Henry Ruth to succeed Leon Jaworski as the special Watergate prosecutor, it was announced Wednesday.

Ruth, who has been the deputy prosecutor since the special force was created in May, 1973, takes over the top job Saturday.

Highland Fling And Irish Jig Taught by Rob Roy Dancers

Until recently, if children wanted to learn the intricacies of Scottish dancing their parents had to drive them to Kingston for weekly lessons.

But this fall the skirl of pipes echoes in the Harry J. Clarke Public School gym, as two of the Rob Roy Highland Dancers teach the ancient steps of the highland fling every Monday evening.

Tired of driving the 100-mile round trip, five mothers got together and organized themselves into a group that approached Wilma Sommers of the Belleville Recreation Department. She found the school space for them, and now the dancing classes have begun, in co-operation with the Parks and Recreation Programs.

Two hour-long classes are given, one for children between five and nine years old, and one for those over ten. The instructors, Janet McLeod and Susan Sutherland are in Grade 12 at Regiopolis College in Kingston. Janet has studied highland dancing for nine years, and Susan, daughter of the Rob Roy Band's pipe major, has been dancing for five years.

They teach the traditional dances, the fling, the sword dance and the sheean trubhis, that require perfect balance and skill of the dancer.

"These dances go back so far in time, and they've been passed along unchanged for centuries," explains Susan.

"A lot of the satisfaction in highland dancing comes from being part of the tradition. That's why it's so important for dancers to hold themselves proudly as they do the steps that tell a story."

In dances such as the Irish Jig and the hornpipe, the dancers are expected to bring their personality to the dancing, so that the style of a performance is influenced by what the dancer "puts into it." Children have a chance to express their individuality.

Unlike ballet, highland dancing does not require a particular physical type. What is important is that the child feels an enjoyment and appreciation of tradition, not prestigiey, several of the children taking lessons now have parents or grandparents from Scotland.

"Highland dancing is really good exercise," says Janet. "It strengthens and improves muscle tone. Besides that, it gives children confidence. As they learn to do the dances proudly, they lose their shyness."

The Rob Roy Band and Dancers are known in the area through their participation the past three years in the Belleville Kinsmen's Highland Tattoo.

The band was begun more than 30 years ago, and since then has developed close ties with several Kingston organizations for whom they provide music and entertainment. There are presently 19 senior dancers and 40 others in training to preserve the folk art heritage of Scottish Canadians.

Parents interested in enrolling their children for this season's classes can contact Lois Abey at 966-3054 or Gayle Burroughs at 968-3329.

At Home

Tom, Doug and Phyl Paterson extend a warm invitation to attend a "Open House" Honoring their Parents, Mr. and Mrs. R.A. (Bob) Patterson, on the occasion of their 50th Wedding Anniversary. Friends will be welcomed at 200 Front St. W., Stirling, between the hours of 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. or 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 3 Please, No Gifts.

In the Photos

Right, Susan Sutherland teaches Karen Williamson and Kim Peake the way to step out lightly. These young students take the 7 p.m. lesson, while those older than ten years old dance from 8 to 9 p.m. The dancing classes will continue through the winter.

If your family is rough on floors (and what family isn't),

you need NEW ERA™
The TOUGH FLOOR from Armstrong

Floors don't lead a soft life—especially if there's an active family around your house. Everyday scratching, scraping, scuffing, and gouging can do in any floor after a while.

That's why Armstrong created New Era . . . the tough floor. New Era is made of vinyl, like many other floors, but it's manufactured differently to give it extra strength . . . strength to resist gouges and heavy traffic wear let alone ordinary scrapes and scratches.

But don't take our word for it. Come in today, and we'll show you just how tough (and good looking) New Era really is!

Loneliness Afflicts Middle-aged Men

Middle age is a state of mind.

It can hog a man down anywhere between 30 and 60, though there are some who never succumb. For those who do, middle age often proves fatal, destroying the joy, spontaneity and curiosity of youth, replacing them with routine, safety, and finally, boredom and woe.

These are the conclusions of Lilly Jaffe, Vancouver YMCA instructor in personal communications. Working with students with a class called "middle-aged," she is finding patterns of behavior she calls the "problems of communication".

There is a tendency, she says, for men who regard themselves as middle-aged, to communicate only on safe levels, talking about impersonal things like sports, business, politics.

"They prefer to discuss something that doesn't involve them deeply as human beings.

"The middle-aged man will tend to be cautious and not care about the feelings of others, feels anger or fear of displacement, for example, if new chances are his won't talk about these things directly. He'll use substitutions about what he's feeling."

These men tend to develop routines that deepen into ruts until there is no room for surprises, no place for challenges or direct, personal confrontation. Consequently, they often suffer from a sense of aloneness, solved by their own inability to communicate freely.

Too often, men who have bored themselves in by this kind of behavior use booze as an aid to break out of their stifled environment. You know the sort: proper, diligent, rather boring business men who "cut loose" at out-of-town conventions.

"In Lilly Jaffe's circles, men who recognize the symptoms of middle age are trying to change the direction of their humdrum lives. They are learning communication skills — both talking and listening — and are starting to open up and relax.

No, women? Do women not suffer from middle age?

Of course they do, but their problems are not the same as the masculine "up-and-down" syndrome. Perhaps the reason is that the social expectations for females to be "more emotional" also allows them to communicate and receive messages more easily. There is less chance that they will develop the shield against feeling that "stiff upper lip" upbringing causes in men.

What do you do if you recognize that you (or your husband, or father) are slipping into lonely middle age?

Lilly Jaffe recommends that you break the rigid pattern with exposure to new ideas, new people, new places. Often this is just a matter of looking at the familiar in a new way.

There may be some who find it amusing to see middle-aged men bedecked in colorful two-youthful fashions. There may be patronizing chuckles at a 50-year-old jogging, doing yoga exercises, taking macrame instruction, reading philosophy, learning Spanish or playing a guitar.

But how much better to endure the occasional snicker than to let life become stale and lonely. How much better to take a new road from time to time along the usual path, until your rut deepens into a grave.

Day — Newton

Bridge Street United Church was the setting October 5 for the wedding uniting Heather Elizabeth Newton and Stephen James Day in marriage.

Rev. George Ward performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Newton and the groom is the son of Allan Day and Mrs. Allan Bushell.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-line empire-style gown of organza over taffeta, with a mandarin neckline, long fill sleeves with lace puffs, and a chapel train edged by a large wide bow. Swiss lace trimmed the bows and mantilla veil caught by a cluster of pearls and rhinestones. She carried red roses.

The bride's sister Cyntia Nicholas was matron of honor in a floral pink organza gown over taffeta sheath. She carried a fan of pink carnations and wore three flowers in her hair.

Bridesmaids Vicki Cook, Jack Sennett and Karen Scott wore gowns and coats like the matron of honor but in shades of lilac and purple. They carried mauve carnations and wore them in their hair.

The bride's niece Annett Nicholls was flower girl in a pink gown trimmed with lace, carrying a basket of pink and mauve carnations and wearing flowers in her hair. The ring bearer was John Lake.

Larry Newton, the bride's brother, was best man. Ushers were Larry Nicholas, Barry Jones and John Scott.

After a reception at the Elk's Lodge, the newly-married couple travelled to Hayden Lodge on their honeymoon. They now live in Belleville.

Inflation Hits Santa

EAST DUNDEE, Ill. (AP) — Even Santa has been affected by inflation. One of his summer hangouts, Santa's Village, has increased prices on its animal rides. Each ride costs a dime, it now says. Rads' act lasts about 20 cents. Santa signals a live chicken to dance on a small table top, up a hill to play a little piano with his bill, or a rabbit to hop into a fire engine and set off the siren. Each act lasts about 10 seconds.

SEASONAL SALE

The mammoth bake and vegetable sale, sponsored by the Tweed Ladies' Citizens' Club No. 300 recently was called a decided success by the committees in charge.

A committee of 16 women headed by the members of the Club, arranged and looked after the foods.

Everything was sold in less than 20 minutes.

Cracklin, pumpkins, dried leaves and yellow and rust mums transformed Holy Rosary Gym into a fall home during the recent Catholic Women's League tea. Past presidents of League powered tea while guests were greeted by General Convener Portia Blocha, then seated at tables by tea room Convener Theresa Hogan. A display of handicrafts under Shirley Cain were offered for sale. Francis McCould raffled an antique "Agnes in the Garden of Gethsemane" which was won by Mrs. Gerald F. Farley St. Belleville.

ARCH MEETS

The Association for Early Childhood Education of Belleville has resumed meeting from their holiday. The A.E.C.E. of Belleville and Quinte branches in Ontario are working toward the continuance of quality standards, set by the government, in Day Care and Nursery Centres.

This month's meeting was held at Loyalist College Nursery School with member Esther Kemar showing slides of her trip to East Germany. Mrs. Kemar and two other colleagues were granted permission by the East German government to observe their educational system and discuss philosophies.

It is planned to alternate meetings at different schools in the district so members can observe the setting and equipment at each school. Membership is now at forty and open to those concerned, with the welfare of the young child.

Quinte Sewing Centre in the Mall is already to help you prefore the Hallowe'en costume of the neighborhood! They have patterns, materials, such as inexpensive flannelette in a leopard pattern, guaranteed to raise extra shrieks — and candles — fairy numbers perfect for Hallowe'en; hats, all kinds of trim, supplies and netting for instant fairy godmothers and princesses, and lots of fun for tots. Mothers or grandmothers who sew are great assets anytime. But now is even more the time to whip your own imagination and the help of the Quinte Sewing Centre.

Pumpkins — Any Size You Want

This weekend would be a good time to take your family up to Sidney Inn, 265 Medra St. W. and choose the pumpkins for Hallowe'en at your home. There are all sizes available for the porch; the living room and kitchen windows and maybe one to keep your cat company — especially is she's black. (She deserves it, being such a Hallowe'en type!) There is a plentiful supply of pumpkins this year but the prices are still reasonable — from 49 cents /lb $2.00 at the Sidney Inn. Scare a few people.

An Advantage

I know you probably don't like raking those leaves any more than I do. But our trusty mower, without some, or all, of their foliage here and there, is no delight as a mower to work before. You can see cottage properties a lot better at this time of year. The roads are still good and the countryside, and lakes, sides still beautiful. And Gord Rollin's Mobile, 707 North Front St. has just the cottage properties you'll need to make the summer previous you made to yourself a reality. Go see your next summer — and the next — at Gord Rollin this fall. Call 962-6475 for details.

Getting Around

One of the many advantages of taking your travel aspirations to Davison and Davison Travel, 188 Front St., is that you can get as much information gathered together by one of the competent staff members. For instance, owner Tony Warren has just returned from a trip to Moscow and Leningrad via Air Canada and a Russian jet. And he assembled information on the diverse publicity of the recent Russia-Canada Series with the same tone as did Bobby Hull, his new great centreman, heard and appreciated superb ballet and opera, ate very good food, drank good Georgian wine and will tell you first hand anything you want to know about his trip — and your own. See him soon.

The Carol Barnes Show

That's what you'll be able to see this week (until Saturday night) in the John Cabot Lounge of the Hotel Belvedere, 369 Front St. The show, country and western in flavor, is performed by a trio, Carol Barnes, Mike Lee and Ron Lee. They combine performance on Saturday afternoon from 3 til 6 too. If you're a country music fan, or just looking for an enjoyable way to spend a Saturday afternoon, drop down at the Hotel Belvedere this weekend.

A House Present

Some families have a Christmas tradition by which a gift is given to the home, something everyone can use and which will also contribute to the comfortability of all. Call Glassview Glass and Mirror, 254 Pinnacle St. has a unique suggestion — a beautifully-designed, insulated steel door from Ronco. "Insulated" and "steel" and "door" may not be words which kindle romantic images of beauty, but wait until you see the door designs themselves. Ronco manufacturers many fine steel home improvement products, all of which can can be seen by stopping by at Belleview Glass and Mirror and picking up a brochure.

For Our Out-Of-Town Readers

The Really Fine Points

For the past four months, this column has been lauding the fine points of an Aquaflo. Water Softner from Moira Heater, but telling you about it isn't enough. If you experiencing dull, soft, suds-saving water at your house, You're going to have to do something about that yourself. And it's nothing very complicated. Just pick up the phone and dial 962-4944 and the nice people at Moira Schuster will do the rest. You just have to turn on the tap.

Choosing The Chair

Wrays Home Furnishers, 366 Front St. have a good selection of chairs from which to choose a Christmas gift. There are chairs which rock and swivel, or rock and recline, or rock, recline, and swivel — or just plain rock. Coverings include cloth and vinyl combinations, all vinyl, all cloth. There are wood or metal back and occasional chairs. Or the classic and comfy Boston rockers which range in price from $49.00 to $139.00. You'll find just the right one for the right place — and person — at Wrays.

Traditional Treatment

On our journey through basic decorating concerns with interior designer Paul Bernard of Bernard Interiors, 67A Campbell St., today, we'll discuss the more traditional treatment of windows. Cotton chintz is one of those marvelous creations which never goes out of style, printed or solid color, glazed or unglazed. Chintz can be very formal or informal, and dress a room up or down says Paul. Copies of original old designs are particularly pleasing and versatile. And of course, there's linen, plain or printed which also can be very traditional. Paul'll give you help with your decorating to be effective, call Paul at 962-6976.

When You're Asked

There is only a little over a week left in the official campaign of the United Way. And many companies and offices are still conducting their internal campaigns, so you may not yet have been asked to contribute. But don't worry, you will be. And when you are, think! What would we do without the 14 participating agencies of the United Appeal? Haven't you met the parties of the Red Cross, or the YOW, or the Volunteer Bureau, or the St. Johns Ambulance? Help these agencies in funds. They'll be ready and waiting for you.

Canada's Proposal For 'Women's Year' Criticized by Groups

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government and its plans for International Women's Year (IWY) were the target for a series of resolutions during a two-day weekend conference that ended Sunday.

The representatives of 34 women's groups, including 19 native women's delegates, also protested the dismissal of Pauline Findlay as head of the women's program in the secretary of state department, and objected to the expenditure of $300,000 for an advertising program the women heard both ineffectual and offensive, and asked that the $1.5 million budgeted for the IWY program be scrapped.

They want "a healthy proportion of the money now allocated to the conference diverted instead to publicly programs at the local level."

They also want Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde, responsible for implementing legislation on the status of women, to take the lead not only on the federal level, but also on the provincial and municipal levels to have legislation and bylaws affecting women either changed or initiated.

Letters outlining their demands were sent to Mr. Lalonde, Privy Council President Mitchell Sharp and other ministers.

Successful Living

We Take Good News for Granted

By DORIS CLARK

In 1971 a paper called Good News was launched in California to print all the bright, happy doing which most newspaper cannot spare room for. After 16 months it had to throw in the towel, thousands of dollars in the red. People did not want Good News.

Royal Bank Letter for July.

Is this because we have been treated to so much sensationalism, so much blood-and-thunder fiction and fact that nothing good seems important enough to record?

I prefer to think that it is because we are in an orderly universe; that the good things that happen are taken as a matter of course. When youngsters are raised in happy homes, when communities provide what is outdated need, be they young or old; when countries make possible that great freedom which fosters self-expression, this is considered the order of the day. It is not "news".

And I would say that it is up to every last individual of us to keep the ball rolling — find a way!

Dear Doris: I am enclosing $1.00. Please send me your poems for 25 cents and the Prayer "Two Shakers Long Then" and whatever you can find that would lift me up and strengthen me.

I have been on "Death Row" so often these past 16 years. We are broke but I am sure this $1.00 will help me.

Cathy.

Dear Cathy: For part of your money I am sending you my "collection of Six Old Favorites" of the prayer "The Shakerites" and throwing in the down Laughter". Perhaps you can make good use of the 75 cents I am returning.

If taken great pains indeed to live with the feeling that death is hovering near. The greatest comfort many people get is from reading the four Gospels again and again and getting to know the personality of the Hero, Jesus. Among other things, it will gradually dawn on you that He made a definite promise to "prepare a place for us" when we are through with this world.

Do make every day count right now. If you feel you haven't much time, doesn't this make it all the more important to make prayers every single day in giving love and kindness to someone else? That is the way to get love and kindness back in return.

Sometimes the return comes from an unexpected source — not from the one we gave it to at all.

Take time to meditate on things of the spirit; realize that you are never alone, and you will get peace of mind.

Dear Doris: Please send me the leaflet "Why Smoke?" Not for myself, thank God, but for some of my family.

Please find enclosed 25 cents.

Sister of Smoker.

Dear Sister: I'm sending the leaflet and I hope it helps. But do be careful not to throw your literature down in front of the addict. This only makes backs rise or excuses bandy forth.

I have found that people have to want to quit more than they want to smoke. Then they will listen to suggested techniques and try them. They can make it, if they want to badly enough.

(Leaflets mentioned in Doris are available to readers for 25 cents and a large, stamped self-addressed envelope. If you have not received a leaflet requested, it may be that you have neglected to include the necessary eight-cent; take the necessary eight-cent of this newspaper.)

Dear Aunt Something has been preying on my conscience and I need to know what to do about it.

As a secretary I make out my boss's expense account reports. I am aware that he puts down false expenses and charges personal expenditures to the business.

I have a strong sense of morality and feel this is wrong. I realize the practice is rampant but still it doesn't make me feel any better about doing it.

If I confront him he will probably tell me it's none of my business. Is it? (P.S. He is a V.P. and has hundreds of people under him). Sigh — too Guilty Conscience

Dear G.C.: Confront Mr. Chiselic and ask him to give his expense account "work to another secretary, or do it himself. (P.S. Have some job prospects lined up before the confrontation. You may be handed your walking papers, if your conscience matches your integrity, you have nothing to worry about. You'll do just fine, Bravo, Lady).

Dear Ann Landers: I was divorced a few months ago and my ex-husband is driving me batty. He has the key to the house and gives me only part of my alimony and child support because he says I am not competent to handle that much money.

The man walks in on me whenever he feels like it. He rummages around in my closets and drawers, goes through my telephone messages, letters — whatever. He makes a general search and questions the children as to what's going on.

What burns me up is that he is always making vulgar passes and obscene remarks. He thinks that, because he pays alimony he is entitled to the privileges of a husband. The last time he tried to drag me into the bedroom I gave him a black eye.

The court granted him visiting privileges (to see the children) on Saturdays and Sundays, but he spends those two days harassing me and paying no attention to them.

I've told him I don't want him around but it does no good. Will you please tell me what to do about this pest so I can lead a normal life? — A Married Divorcee

Dear M: Go to your lawyer and follow his instructions. There are several things you can do. First, you can have the locks on your doors changed. Second, deliver the kids to him and make it clear that he is not to set foot in your home. The law will protect you on this one. If he shows up, he is in violation and you can call the police.

The lawyer can demand that he give you the child support and alimony, in total. If he fails to do so, he is again in trouble with the law.

You have the right to be left alone, and if you put up with any more of his shenanigans subconsciously enjoy it.

Ann Landers

Only Three Frosts a Year In Mediterranean Climate

NICE, France (CP) — Before the First World War, winter was the Grand Season on the French Riviera and wealthy Europeans swarmed there. Then the Americans turned the focus of society around to the Roaring Twenties and summer became popular.

But the climate in winter is as pleasant as it ever was. It has an average light around 60 degrees and low of 45 to 50 and only frost about three times a year. And there are fewer false-lovelies to colour winter.

The Mediterranean is a bit chilly for swimming. But the Promenade des Anglais stretches some five miles along the seafront, ideal for a brisk walk, and there are sightseeing launch excursions plied easily by car or bus.

There is Nice itself to explore. In spite of its sophistication, it is one of the most ancient cities in Europe.

Founded by the Greeks in the fifth century BC, it was called Nike, meaning victory. They settled on the hill that rises abruptly from the Mediterranean and their hilltop palace-citadel remained until it was destroyed in 1705. The site now is a public garden.

Beautiful buildings dating back to the 17th century remain below the hill and along the quai are rows of low 19th century galleries topped by a terrace.

There are also a few old buildings in the modern city. The most impressive is the palace built in 1900 in the style of Napoleon's empire by the grandson of one of his generals, Marshal Masena. It survives as a museum and the palatial garden grounds are open to the public.

The real historic interest lies in the fortified towns, mainly perched on hills. The nearest is the fortified castle built at Cagnes-sur-Mer by Renoir. Colette lived in the early 14th century and converted by a descendant into a family chateau in 1925.

The Grimaldi family was rewarded for its loyalty to the French crown in troubled times and came to live in the castle until the French Revolution. The castle changed hands several times and was eventually sold to the town in 1927 as a museum.

Incidentally, Prince Rainier of Monaco is descended from another branch of the Grimaldi family.

In the castle's ballroom is the original fresco ceiling showing the Fall of Phaeton. Below are painted columns. Standing in any corner of the room produces the optical illusion that they all slant in different directions.

The second floor, once the private apartments of the family, is an art gallery of painters who were born or worked on the shores of the Mediterranean. The tower offers a splendid view over the red-tiled roofs of Cagnes to the sea and the Alps.

At Antibes, farther west along the coast, is another castle occupied by the Grimaldis from 1385 to 1608 and also converted into a museum. Picasso lived and worked there in 1946 and left the museum everything he created during his stay, the largest collection of his work in any one museum.

The fortified town of Saint-Paul-de-Vence was founded by the Ligurians and invaded by the Phoenicians in its early days. New ramparts, erected in the 16th century, are still in excellent condition.

A flourishing free city in medieval times, Saint-Paul sank into oblivion after the French Revolution but interest was revived after the First World War when it became a mecca for painters whose depictions of the old houses began to attract tourists. None has been torn down and the streets are so narrow there is no room for cars.

A charming restaurant, La Colombe d'Or, was opened by Paul Roux some 40 years ago as a sanctuary for his fellow artists. On its walls are paintings by Utrillo, Braque, Chagall and Picasso.

Only 15 miles from Saint-Paul is the ancient bishopric of Vence, where a Dominican chapel was constructed and decorated by Matisse. The walls, floor and ceiling are stark white and the artist's three stained-glass windows throw striking color designs on three white ceramic tiles.

Only two hours' drive from the pleasant warmth of Nice are skiing resorts like Valberg, reached by a spectacular route past craggy mountains and deep gorges, with perched villages dotting the scenery.

Mines Oppose Monitoring Health Perils

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government's call for independent monitoring of health hazards in the province's mines has met with opposition from the group Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier had hoped would conduct the monitoring.

Norman Waigh, executive director of the Mines Accident Prevention Association of Ontario, said in an interview that the proposal by the minister is completely contrary to our philosophy.

"I draw a line between routine testing of our environment and policing," he said. "I don't feel for the government to take over and police and do every test . . . Well, it's like putting a policeman in every car on the highway."

Monitoring is currently done by the mining companies, and union locals have periodically charged that the companies misrepresent conditions of air quality faced by workers.

Mr. Bernier said he has had no reports of inaccurate monitoring by the companies, but said the independent monitoring would allay criticism and suspicion.

Bit of England?

Rhodesian Reservoir Becomes Recreation Centre

LAKE McILWAINE, Rhodesia (CP) — A 10-square-mile lake originally built to supply Salisbury with water has become one of the most popular recreation spots in Rhodesia.

Lake McIlwaine, built in the early 1950s, was formed in a natural basin where the Hunyani River cuts through hills west of the same name about 20 miles from Salisbury.

The drive from Rhodesia's modern capital city to the lake takes only a few minutes, but the scene is to move into another world.

The area surrounding the lake was declared a national park in 1953 and the result is the area has been left as natural as possible.

Yacht clubs dot the shores of the lake and camping grounds merge with the surroundings.

A major part of the lake foreshore has been set aside as a game park and for a quarter such game as zebra, giraffe, sable, wildebeest, a variety of deer, ostrich, baboon and the rare white or square-lipped rhino can be viewed.

The variety of bird life around the lake seems endless. One survey identified 235 species including knob-nosed duck, Egyptian geese, black duck, red-knobbed coot, jacanas and many egrets, herons and guinea fowl.

There's year-round fishing in the lake for tigerfish, bream, yellowfish, banyard salmon, bottlenose and barbel. A fishing licence costs about 20 cents a day.

In a number of areas there is the legacy of the now extinct bushmen, the rock paintings. Found in caves where these people once lived, these paintings depict fish, elephant, man, deer and lion. The colors probably are still as bright as the day these early painters first started their life like works of art.

Apart from the caravan camps, the national park authorities provide chalets with electricity and lodges with shariffe lamps for cooking. The cost is unbelievably low. Three or two-bedroomed chalets with bedding and refrigerator cost less than $2 a night per person. The lodges, including bedding, refrigerator, crockery, cutlery, cooking utensils and the services of an African servant are less than $5 a night a person.

But the park is unique in that it has the only privately owned hotel in a national park in Rhodesia.

The Hunyani Hills Hotel looks like a little piece of rural England transferred into the African countryside. It is located on 21 acres of land and accommodation is in modern cottages hidden among the trees, but each still with its own view of the lake.

The main building, housing the dining room, lounge and bar facilities, is thatched and rustic.

Single accommodation with three meals a day is but under $11. It's a price that is hard to find, currency is most travel resorts in other parts of the world. Even the honeymoon suite with lounge and bedroom costs only about $16 Canadian.

The meals are varied and good—ranging from exotic roast duck to the famed, perfectly cooked Rhodesian beef.

At times the winds on the lake can put whitecaps on the water.

In the upper reaches of the small creeks draining into the lake crocodiles make their homes, but they dislike the deeper water and stay close of the main body of the lake.

Somewhere under the lake is a complete railway bridge. Before the lake was built the main line south to Bulawayo ran through the valley. When the dam was built the line was lifted and the plan was to demolish the bridge.

The planners figured they had two years to complete the work before the lake filled, but an unusually heavy rainy season saw the lake fill in three months and the bridge had to be abandoned. The lake is about 90 to 100 feet at its deepest points.

Cruising the lake near the shore of the game park in the early morning or late evening gives visitors the chance to see the animals come down to the water's edge to drink. During the heat of the African day they are often hard to find.

But it's in the evenings that, perhaps the area is most appreciated. Warm winds carry the scent of countless flowers and the stars seem close.

The soft calls of the birds carry through the night as they seek assurances of safety among themselves.

It's a different world from the cliff in miles away of flashing neon signs, swinging nightclubs and the hum of traffic.

Accountants Consider Additional Courses

By JIM SHELLE
Staff Reporter

How can the chartered accountant best serve the public? Should he be required to take compulsory courses in professional development to keep up with changing trends and maintain his status?

These were some of the questions dealt with Wednesday evening during a meeting of the Quinte chapter of Chartered Accountants. On hand to speak and answer questions was Ken Hurdle, a volunteer member with the Ontario Institute of Chartered Accountants and with the firm of Touche, Ross and Co., in Toronto.

Mr. Hurdle was in Belleville to hear the opinions of local chartered accountants on whether they would be in favor against compulsory professional development as is currently done in such places as California.

In California, chartered accountants must take 40 hours of upgrading courses a year for two years to maintain their professional status.

Some discussion arose as to what form such upgrading would take, whether it would consist of large courses in a place such as Toronto or smaller informal ones in small communities.

Another area of discussion was the division between those accountants in industry and those serving the public, each with different needs and changes.

Mr. Hurdle said after the meeting there might be some apprehension among local chartered accountants in light of the fact that many here are with smaller businesses and may feel they are being pushed by larger firms into agreeing to compulsory professional development courses.

"Chartered accountants are in a privileged position," said Mr. Hurdle. "Now, to keep their CA degree they become self-policing."

The subject of mandatory professional development has been under study by a special committee of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants "for more than a year.

The committee will, begin formulating its recommendations and presenting a presentation to the CICA Board of Governors this year.

During Wednesday's meeting, local CAs were given a chance to voice their opinions on questionnaires distributed to them by Mr. Hurdle. The results and those from around the country will determine the decision on the matter of development.

City's Cleanup Early Next Month

The city will launch its fall cleanup program Nov. 4, a spokesman for the city department of public works said Wednesday.

The program gives city residents a chance to discard bulky articles that would not normally be picked up by garbage collectors.

Keith Costain, superintendent of the works department, said the type of articles picked up by the crews range from leaves to broken refrigerators.

"We'll take away any refuse that the city residents can bring to the roadside . . . as long as they don't work a house over or something," said Mr. Costain.

Leaves will be a major item of the cleanup and while it would facilitate the work department job if leaves were boxed or bagged, this is not necessary, said the superintendent.

"As long as the leaves are raked to the roadside that's alright," he said.

Because the leaves on the west side of the city fall earlier than on the east side, the east side of the city will be picked up first. Mr. Costain leaves a chance to fall, said Mr. Costain.

Library Offers Shut-in Service

The librarians of Corby Library have begun a service for Belleville residents who are "shut-ins", at home through illness.

The book service started when some elderly book-borrowers explained that during winter months it was too difficult to, travel to the library. Last year the service was extended to a few individuals, as well as to the Women's Christian Associates and Victoria Lodge.

This year there's been a campaign to include more than a dozen persons who cannot get out. Invalids, whether recuperating, chronically ill or disabled, are sent a form to fill in, showing their preference for certain types of books.

Ann Richards, librarian, and Charlotte Lockyer, former librarian at the East Branch Library, are in charge of choosing books according to the categories indicated. Then, every second Wednesday, they load up with as many as 50 books and spend the afternoon delivering.

"I think people enjoy the visit as much as getting the books," says Mrs. Lockyer.

As the book-reading continues, the women expect to learn more about the individual tastes of people they visit which will make the process of selection easier.

The names of those now receiving books at home were obtained from the "Meals on Wheels" list at the Central Volunteer Bureau — those who is unable to travel to the Library is eligible for the new service. For more information, phone Miss Olive Delaney at the Corby Library, 968-7236.

Protester Arrested

OPP Called to Reserve In Mohawks' Dispute

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

TYENDINAGA — The dispute dividing the Quinte Mohawks hit more turbulence Wednesday as provincial police were called in to disperse reserve protest demonstration against this reserve's elected council.

One man was arrested as police moved to clear demonstrators barring the council from holding a meeting at the reserve's community centre.

Wesley Hardy, 42, a prominent figure in the protest movement, was charged by provincial police with assaulting an officer. He was released on his own recognizance to appear in court in Belleville, Nov. 12.

Before the incident was over close to 50 police were marshalled at the scene.

Wednesday's events were the latest in a series of confrontations in the controversy. The current dispute originated from a protest over an Indian-owned tobacco on the reserve. Opponents have charged that the council be dissolved.

The latest incident centred on a regular council meeting called by Chief William Brant.

A small crowd of protesting Mohawks had gathered outside the reserve community centre to bar council from entering for the 1 p.m. meeting. A group of 21 women wedged themselves in the main doorentrance.

There was intermittent shoving and pushing between the group around the doorway and the group of uniformed police.

Several times the group was told by men prominent in the dispute that the council was dissolved and that the entire issue would be put to an election now called by council's opponents. But the women refused to budge.

"We're getting tired of giving in to these fellows constantly," said a protesting woman. "They won't listen to us and they won't listen to us."

Chief William Brant and Councillor Carl D. Brant — president of the controversial corporation — came under a barrage of insults from the crowd.

The group resisted repeated attempts by the reserve's three-man force and provincial police were summoned. The impasse was broken as provincial police moved in to clear the main entrance and unlock the door.

One of the first to enter the building was Hardy and a tussle ensued between the attacker and police officer. Protesting Mohawks surrounded the officer and Hardy involved in a tugging match before Mr. Hardy, in handcuffs, was hustled outside to a police car.

Councillors then entered the council chamber and began their meeting — with one member absent.

Cleli Maracle said he was barred from entering the meeting by a provincial police officer.

"He refused me entry. I stated who I was. But, he said 'no' and slammed the door," said the councillor.

It was the second time in five weeks the OPP had been called in. They were called Sept. 16 — when protesters first faced the council — but left without incident.

Cleli Maracle claimed council had keys of other doors in the building and could have used them.

He said the Indian affairs department is "pushing" council because Ottawa doesn't "want the people to drop the corporate structure".

Brant Maracle, another leading protester, said the attorney-general's decision to only "harden the determination of our Mohawk people."

The protesting Mohawks have wanted to keep the controversy an internal matter, he said.

Mr. Ellis said council is trying to make the reserve progress, but is being opposed by "a small group who don't, I suspect, have an ulterior motive".

"We don't re trying to disrupt any government. If you do, there's anarchy," he said. "And those who try usually have something other than the good of the people as a whole in their minds."

He said he supported Chief Brant in the dispute.

Chief Says He Won't Quit

TYENDINAGA — Chief William Brant said Wednesday he has no plans to carry on the office to which he was elected.

Meanwhile, in Ottawa, Lloyd Ellis, MP for Hastings, said opponents of the reserve's band council are trying to take the law into their own hands.

The reactions came after council's opponents declared they would hold their own council election Nov. 30.

The move was announced in a telegram to the federal Indian Affairs department hours before another confrontation there that saw provincial police called in.

The announcement was read to reporters during the council from meeting, by Cleli Maracle, dissident councillor and spokesman for protesting Mohawks.

Mr. Maracle read a list of grievances against council members linked to formation of an Indian - owned business corporation which triggered the current controversy. Those included "numerous" referendum on the corporation and a conflict of interest — a reference to Carl D. Brant, a councillor who became president of the company.

Later Chief Brant said he felt he had been elected and that people supported him through his election.

"I feel I have a duty to this reserve as an elected person, to carry on," he said. "We're just going to continue to do the job we were elected to do."

"Many of our people now are demanding that our brothers and sisters across North America come in and help us," he said.

Chief Brant said the protesters fear the corporation . . . now manufacturing shoe parts for Bata Footwear — poses an infringement on Indian rights. Opponents fear it would open the door to taxation.

"If I felt it was an infringement I would do everything in my power to do away with it," he said. "But now it looks like it's going to benefit the reserve."

Firehall Opens

COE HILL — A former Coe Hill medical doctor and his daughter, both of whom gave a lifetime of medical service to the community, have been commemorated with the opening of the new Wollaston Township firehall.

The new firehall, named in honor of Dr. J. R. Harding and his daughter, Miss Mattie Harding, was dedicated last week.

In attendance for the ceremonies were Hastings MPP Clarke T. Rollins, Clyde Pope, Chief Adviser for the Ontario Fire Marshal's Office from Belleville, villages councillors, volunteer firemen and residents.

Considerable volunteer labor went into the construction of the new building with the first work to be in September, 1973. Funds for the building were aided by draws sponsored by the fire department. Dan McCaw is chief of the township volunteer department.

Local Liberals Gear For 1975 Election

MADOC — Liberals in Hastings provincial riding Wednesday night began organizing for a 1975 election.

The riding has been proposed for redistribution, which would add a chunk of the neighboring Peterborough constituency to Hastings.

Here to elect new executive, the Liberals chose a president involved in both ridings.

Dave Hobson works in Bancroft — in Hastings — as a high school history teacher, but he lives at Apsley in nearby Chandos Township on part of the Trent Peterborough township proposed for amalgamation to Hastings.

Mr. Hobson warned the Liberals, who met at the area elementary school here, that a provincial election could be called some time this winter.

Premier Davis, he said, now is seeking an issue and current problems with government employees could produce — if civil servants strike.

Mr. Hobson succeeds Melrose farmer Charles Bates, now the Liberal party's vice president for eastern Ontario.

While such redistribution expands an already big riding, Liberals shouldn't protest too strongly, Charles Bates, Melrose farmer and ex-police president, said.

The additional townships are territory similar to Hastings — rural and Conservative. But Peterborough riding already is too large, he said.

There were about 30,000 voters in Peterborough at the last census, compared to 22,000 in Hastings, said Mr. Hobson. The redistribution involved about 7,000 voters.

Also elected to the executive were Jim Watson, Madoc, vice-president. Don Hodgins, Tweed, secretary; Pauline Hughes, Tweed, secretary; Michael Fitzgerald, Maple Leaf, youth representative; Helen Carruthers, Derryville, women's vice-president.

A First for Ranger Winger

Fan 'Caps' Fairbairn's Effort

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When a Rangers player scores his third goal in a game, New York fans usually litter the ice with hats to commemorate the feat sometimes called a hat trick.

When Bill Fairbairn scored his third New York goal in Wednesday night's 6-1 National Hockey League triumph over Toronto Maple Leafs, Chicago Black Hawks defeated Washington Capitals 8-3, Boston Bruins and Pittsburgh Penguins tied 3-3 and Kansas City Scouts by a 4 the against California Golden Seals.

YVON LAMBERT

Fairbairn wasn't excited about his biggest single-game goal output in five NHL seasons.

"It wasn't much of a hat trick", the quiet right-winger said. "The only part that was any good was the second one."

Fairbairn's first shot had centered the St. Louis net after bouncing off the chest of Bluesgoalie Ed Johnston and hitting St. Louis defenceman Barclay Plager in the forehead. The third one also went in off a Blues defenceman.

But the second goal was the kind that brings fans to their feet. New York's Steve Vickers had the puck in the corner and let it to Fairbairn about 30 feet in front of Johnston, who had no time to get out for the right wing's rising wrist shot.

That gave the Rangers a 3-1 lead at 1:20 of the middle period, after the Blues' Billy Collins had tied the game with a 5 v 3 unleashed goal midway through the first period. Then Jerry Butler added a breakaway score, Vickers deflected a Walt Tkaczuk pass into the goal, and Fairbairn scored his third at the sight.

"I never even scored three goals in the Central League," said Fairbairn, who added that he was just as happy the Rangers had given up only one goal so he was with scoring three of his own.

"You can't fault the goalie," Fairbairn said, further belittling his effort. "One goes in off his defence, then another does. When I get a good, honest hat trick, then I'll have something to be really happy about."

Toronto coach Red Kelly said it was a "cheap" goal, scored by Yvon Lambert at 17:27 of the third period, that gave Montreal the victory over the Leafs.

Lambert had fired a weak shot from the corner that dribbled into the net off the heel of goalie Doug Favell's stick.

"That's what's happening to me lately," said Favell. "Even if I play well, I still end up getting beat by those sort of goals."

At Atlanta, the Flames scored their biggest goal total ever in one game, with Curt Bennett and rookie Eric Vail each scoring three. Another team record was Tom Lysiak's five points, four on a goal and four assists.

Boston's Bobby Orr scored three goals but it took another score by Carol Vadnais in the last minute at Pittsburgh to secure the tie against the Penguins.

At Chicago, the Black Hawks outshot Washington 45-13 and managed the narrow win as Cliff Koroll's goal early in the third period.

California ended a three-game losing streak after Ron Huston's third-period goal gave the Seals a 4-4 tie against the Scouts who picked up their first-ever point in six games.

As Howes Go, So Go Aeros

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

In other action Wednesday Vancouver Blazers, 4-0 losers in Houston in the opener a week ago, beat Cleveland Crusaders 7-1 and Quebec Nordiques whipped Michigan Stags 6-2.

One of Houston's problems appears to be a lack of punch from Howe family—Gordie and sons Mark and Marty. The senior Howe provided one assist Wednesday night for the family's only point.

New England outshot the Aeros 40-31 with Peter O'Donnell, former Boston Bruins winger in the National Hockey League, providing two Whalers goals.

Detroit's Ray Scott Didn't Miss Anything

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Ray Scott of Detroit Pistons says he never thought of protesting his ejection from Wednesday's National Basketball Association game. In fact he's happy he didn't have to stick around to watch the final period.

Scott's club, usually explosive on offense with Dave Bing and Bob Lanier, went for more than four minutes in the second quarter without scoring, and Phoenix wound up winning the contest 109-98.

Again in the third period, the Pistons suffered through three minutes without a point, allow Gar Heyman and Phoenix to build up a 78-63 lead going into the final set.

That apparently was enough for Scott.

Toward the end of the third quarter, he drew his second technical for deploring the Suns' focus in a zone defence and was ejected.

In other NBA games, Cleveland edged Boston 105-107, Washington beat Houston 99-96, Seattle dropped Portland 107-97, and Kansas City-Omaha got by Chicago 99-96.

In the American Basketball Association, New York beat Memphis 104-96, Indiana defeated St. Louis 123-107, Kentucky downed Virginia 134-107, Denver beat Utah 130-126 and San Antonio defeated San Diego 122-119.

Charlie Scott got 22 points for Phoenix Suns and Curtis Perry added 18 before fouling out with about six minutes to play. Lanier had 26 points for Detroit and Bing had 22.

Austin Carr was responsible to a great extent for Cleveland's victory, scoring 16 points in an 18-point Cleveland surge in the second half after Boston had drawn to within a point at 86-85.

Carr wound up with 28 points, and John Havlicek led Boston with 24.

Undefeated Washington got a boost from Phil Chenier in his first start of the season as he scored 27 points. He has had back trouble.

Gaudaur Looking Ahead

EDMONTON (CP — Commissioner Jake Gaudaur says the Canadian Football League has remained healthy since the World Football League was removed by federal government action and he is optimistic about the future.

"It was one year ago that the WFL announced plans to move into Toronto and Gaudaur was mapping strategy to fight what was considered a threat to the Canadian league. However, the federal government stepped in to block the WFL franchise.

"We've ridden out this first year and now I think we have every reason to be optimistic," he said Tuesday.

"It's kind of interesting to look back and see what everybody said at the time."

After 56 games, national attendance at CFL games this year is down 3.7 per cent but, Gaudaur said, "even in 1967 this league has set attendance records in five of the last six years and we were up by 180,000 with those playoff races that went down in the last game in both conferences last year."

Revenue was "a way up" this year because ticket prices in many cities were increased.

"In many pre-season games this year, crowds were down 17,000, he said.

"The increased prices, negative publicity following the government legislation, player-club relations and the London franchise all probably hurt us," he said. "But the inflation also was a factor that had affected the league.

Johnny Miller Tops

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Johnny Miller, the all-time leading money winner for one season with $351,521 in 1974, has been named the Professional Golfers' Association Player of the Year.

The PGA awards committee said Wednesday that Miller, winner of eight tournaments co-sponsored by the PGA this year, received 82.5 points. Runner-up Lee Trevino had 48.5.

Miller, who has won 10 tournaments over-all this year, became a professional in 1966.

Packers Will Wait For Hadl

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — John Hadl, the 34-year-old quarterback traded Tuesday from Los Angeles Rams to Green Bay Packers, was given time Wednesday by his new coach to push up his mind on whether he'll report to his new club.

"John is a very old friend of mine and I wouldn't do this for anyone else," Packer coach Dan Devine said. "He's just asked for time to go over this whole thing."

"He says he wouldn't consider leaving Los Angeles for any other team but the Packers. He likes our ball club and he thinks he can play another three or four years."

Devine said the team was not renegotiating contract terms with Hadl.

"I would think his other alternative would be retirement," the Packer coach said.

Devine scoffed at speculation that Hadl has arm trouble.

"I'm not the least concerned about his arm," he said. "We've checked him out very thoroughly with people I can trust."

Muller Up to Old Tricks

By REUTER

Gerd Muller, who scored West Germany's winning goal in the 1974 World Cup final, piloted up two second-half goals as European champion Bayern Munich rallied to beat East Germany's Magdeburg 3-2 Wednesday.

Bayern sat behind 2-0 when Hans-Juergen Sparwasser scored for Magdeburg in the second-round, first-leg European Cup-tie.

But, cheered by a crowd of 78,000 in Munich, Bayern hit back after the interval. Muller scored twice and Wunder got the other goal for Bayern.

Greek champion Olympiakos Piraeus, winners over Dalkie in the previous round, lost 5-1 to Anderlecht. Dutch World Cup star Rob Rensenbrink scored three of the Antwerpians goals.

English champion Leeds United survived the early expulsion of star striker Johnny McKenzie to overcome Hungary's Ujpest Dozsa 3-1 to virtually guarantee a place in the quarter-finals.

In the Cup Winners' Cup, PSV Eindhoven of Holland swamped Gwardia Warsaw 5-1 and Portugal's Benfica, twice European champions, should reach the last eight after drawing 1-1 away to East Germany's Carl Zeiss Jena.

British clubs had a bad day with not one of the four teams playing at home managing to win.

Leyton Orient, the only team to have won the grand slam twice, sweeping all four championships in 1962 as an amateur and again in 1969 as a pro.

Leyton, 36, is the only player when he was barred from playing in the French Open because he wasn't a member of the Association of Tennis Professionals.

Laver, 36, is the only player to have won the grand slam twice, sweeping all four championships in 1962 as an amateur and again in 1969 as a pro.

Laver, Connors Sign

NEW YORK (AP) — Rod Laver and Jimmy Connors signed Wednesday to play a challenge match Feb. 2 in Las Vegas in a best-of-three competition.

The match will be worth $100,000 to the winner.

Connors, 22, said he suggested the challenge match following the United States Open because he has never played Laver before "and I think we should meet before one of us retires."

This year, Connors won the Australian Open, the U.S. Open and Wimbledon singles titles, losing out on a grand slam bid

Heirs Apparent Not Complacent

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Dave Porter and Barbara Berezowski may be heirs to the throne in Canadian dance figure skating competition; but that doesn't mean they're complacent about this season's competition.

"It's always encouraging when some of the leading skaters stand by you, right?" says Barbara. "It gives you a new enthusiasm to go out and perform just a little better."

The Toronto couple will get their chance to show how much they may have improved in Skate Canada '74, under way today.

Dave and Barbara have placed second in the last three Canadian championships behind Vancouver couple of Barry and Louise Soper who now have retired. That leaves the Toronto couple now favored to take the Canadian crown but in Skate Canada, a yearly international competition, they'll have a tough battle against Jean Musseivera and Aimbel Minskov, the favored couple from the United Union.

The Soviet couple drew seventh spot in the draw for order of competition announced Wednesday night. Dave and Barbara drew eighth spot.

Skate Canada this year has drawn competitors from 12 countries.

The four-day event involves only men's and women's singles and dance competition. Men's and women's compulsory figures were the only competitions scheduled today.

The draw for men's singles competition put Zdenek Pandl of Czechoslovakia first in the order of skating. Two Canadians are among 11 entries with Stan Bohozuk of Toronto skating fourth and Ron Shaver of Cambridge, Ont., drawing the sixth spot.

Shaver is favored to win the men's title. His forte is free skating which is scheduled for Friday and Saturday night.

In the women's singles, Gail Keddie of England drew the first spot. There are 13 entries in this event including three Canadians. Susan MacDonald of Vancouver drew the fourth spot; Barbara Terpenske also of Vancouver, 16th ; and Lynn Nightingale of Ottawa, the favorite, drawing the 18th and final spot.

Canada has two other entries in the field of 19 in the dance. Susan Carscallen and Eric Gillies of Toronto will be first on the ice. Shelly MacLeod and Robert Kenney of Cambridge drew the sixth spot.

BILLY WILLIAMS

1 for 3 Trade

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Cubs announced Wednesday they have traded slugging outfielder-first baseman Billy Williams to Oakland A's for three players, including veteran relief pitchers Darold Knowles and Rob Locker.

Williams, 36, a long-time Cub batting mainstay, hit .278 this season and .322 in 1972. He hit .333 in 1970. He had been tried at first base as the Cubs groomed fop youth and speed in the outfield.

Locker, 26, is a former Cub drafted by agency in 1974, and Knowles, 33, was 3-3 this season with three saves. The A's also gave up second baseman Manny Trillo, 25, a .261 hitter regarded as fast and capable with a glove. He spent much of 1974 with Tucson.

Because of his veteran status, Williams, under league rules, could have blocked the trade. Third baseman Ron Santo refused to be traded to San Diego Padres when the Cubs started 1973 youth-oriented house cleaning before the 1974 season. He later went to Chicago White Sox.

Replying for Niagara Falls were Mark Dumouli, with two, John Flynn, Reg Lahey, Terry Sobchuck, Mike Pierentine.

Chatham outshot Niagara 49 to 27 before about 80 spectators.

IN MEMORIAM

SHARP — In loving memory of a dear husband and father who died on Oct. 24, 1968.
I am not lost, only a step ahead of you.
We belong now, to our beloved.
Where you are, is the touch of yesterday.
Just a thought away.
When I would give if I could say, I'll be with you on your way.
Where you are, I cannot be.
We have his home and God within.
Sadly missed and mourned by daughter Joy, son-in-law Ken and family.

The hand and cherish and never forget.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by daughter Jean and son-in-law Ken.

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere thanks to everyone, the Metro Nurse Clinic, relatives, friends and relatives for the cards, flowers and visits I received while I was in hospital. Also my wife in the hospital, for the cards and flowers sent to her and received by me. Special thanks to Dr. Hall, Dr. Ferguson, Dr. Bell, Dr. Stock and Dr. Briggs and Dr. Hall for their visits while I was in hospital. Also to Dr. Ferguson for his visits to my wife while in the hospital and returning home. I must also mention the Ambulance Service for their kindness. Thank you all very much.

Stormy Political Days Ahead in Saskatchewan

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan appears to be in for several months of stormy political weather, starting this winter when the fifth session of the 19th provincial legislature begins.

With a general election expected soon after the session ends next spring, government and opposition members will be out on the stump with the electorate.

In a sense, the campaign is already on, as party leaders have already nominated many of their candidates, who are busily learning vote-getting techniques and doing preliminary canvassing.

And if the party leaders are right, the major issues that will dominate legislative debate and campaign oratory are already known — government's role in society and long - term development strategy.

Hallowing the struggle between New Democrats and Liberals will be a host of new political factors including redrawn constituency boundaries, a resurgent Progressive Conservative party, a collection of independent-minded candidates, new election-spending restrictions and an expanded effort to attract independent native candidates in this province's northern constituencies.

Although many observers predict the NDP, which now holds 44 of 60 legislature seats, will take the election handily, Premier Allan Blakeney is not so sanguine.

"A government, particularly a government of the Left, is always the target of losing an election and I and my colleagues have to keep telling our people that.

"We must assume with a high degree of predictability that all major news media will oppose us, that all of them will oppose us editorially, some of them will oppose us more vigorously in the form of election leaflets and the like and the implication is that we have to be organized.

"And there will be a good deal of other organized opposition to the party. We cannot expect all corporations to love us; we cannot expect outside labor companies to love us.

"The lack of love from oil and timber companies—go-cart could be added—arises from government moves during the last year aimed at getting more revenues from provincial resources and putting resource industries under closer government control.

No similar dramatic moves are expected during the coming session, although Premier Blakeney says legislation will be introduced to give the province potash production and expanding education and job-incubation programs may well come before the legislature.

Nobody can be forsure government action on what could at some future date be a major new industry — restrictions on farm size to try to maintain rural population.

"I think that it is interesting that the large natives of people in Saskatchewan which I am not sure the public has made up its mind on, and therefore while we are considering the general problem of trying to keep the largest possible number of family farms in operation, we have no plans at this time to attempt to do this by limiting farm size.

Despite opposition criticism of his government as "arrogant" and unable to attract large development projects, Mr. Blakeney stands firmly behind the concepts of economic development through smaller, locally-controlled projects and of what he calls "high-service government."

He says the Liberal policy is "to put the resources of Saskatchewan at the disposal of major resource development companies."

"Our position is to see whether we can generate a similar amount of employment by processing them ourselves—as I've termed them in the past, less glamorous—industries.

Liberal Leader Dave Steuart puts the philosophy somewhat differently: "If you can't get large developments, then you make the excuse that you don't really want them.

In his view, the premier is ignoring the facts of life:

"As far as getting any large projects such as potash mines, pulp mills, oil refinery most and so on, they'll almost always be owned by outsiders.

"You know, there are very few people in Saskatchewan who have got either the money or the inclination at the present to make a $100,000 plus potash mine.

"But, he says, is one reason why the province's population growth will be a major political issue:

"People went through hell, I think, over the 30s and what difference does it make if our population declines?

"They're beginning to realize now that we must have at least a million and a half or two million people if we want to be able to afford good roads, good schools, good hospitals, a good social lending, good ballet, good theatre and so on.

"If we slip down to 800,000 or 600,000 people, we'll just be bypassed. We're beginning to be bypassed now.

Mr. Steuart sees the second main political issue as a "general feeling of uneasiness across the province" over the way the government is expending its operations—buying farmland to rent to farmers, setting up a compulsory hail insurance system, forcing cities to use the ward system for council, taking away petroleum oil and timber rights and passing legislation that Mr. Steuart says makes union members slaves of their union bosses.

Although the premier says he has detected no such uneasiness in the province—but rather gratitude for government programs—the question of big government is one Mr. Steuart has easily got jobs, general bad administration in some areas and high government spending.

His development policy reflects his concern with local power:

"I don't want my life controlled in New York or Toronto any more than I want my life controlled in Regina. The fact of the matter is that I don't want my life controlled.

"And as far as the development of our province is concerned, if you provide an atmosphere and rules that are fair then it's not necessary to go chasing after big major multinational corporations in New York nor is it necessary to go to your government ministers for risk capital."

Although the Conservatives were shut out in the 1971 election that put the NDP in power, with 45 seats to the Liberals' 15 in the 60-seat legislature, Mr. Collver says he will form the next government.

Whether or not his party wins seats, it seems clear he has brought new life to it:

"For 25 years the PC party has never fielded even one candidate before the (election) writ was issued and in that same space of 25 years has yet to have one single contested nomination and we've already had three contested nominations. We have 13 nominated now and six more scheduled in the next three weeks.

Both Mr. Blakeney and Mr. Steuart say the Conservatives will be a factor when the next election comes, but that the party will be lucky to get one or two seats. The major-party leaders, however, disagree on the effect the Conservative campaign will have on their votes.

Mr. Steuart says: "Both sides, the NDP and the Liberals, think it's going to help them. Obviously, we can't both be right."

New Democrats, however, may have more cause to worry if they consider past election statistics.

In 1971, the Liberals got almost exactly the same vote as they did when they won the 1967 election.

The added votes that made the NDP victory in 1971 were about equal to the increase in votes received by Social Credit in Conservative votes, from 41,384 in 1967 to 8,385 in 1971. The NDP would suffer if those votes returned to the Conservatives.

Another new factor, the attempted political unification of the fact that at least five New Democrat and four Liberal MLAs will not seek re-election. Another newcomer will come in the seat vacated by Liberal Cliff McIsaac before his election to the Commons.

The redistribution of provincial constituencies, which saw 11 boundaries changed and several seats created or abolished, has shaken up party organizations.

It has also meant that in many ridings, one MLA will face another.

New Set of Parched Throats Assembled for Egypt's Beer

CAIRO (AP) — The arrival of British and American troops to help clear the Suez Canal has added a new but familiar set of dry throats for Egypt's booming beer business.

Until their evacuation in 1956, British soldiers guzzled nearly three-fourths of Egypt's locally produced light, pilsner, according to the brewery. But in the last 18 years, despite a Moslem ban on alcohol, Egypt has built up a mighty thirst of its own.

The nationalized Egyptian brewery, founded in 1896 stakes the thirst of British soldiers stationed in hot, humid Egypt, last year sold 8.5 million gallons of beer. This year production was targeted for a 10-per-cent increase.

The beer industry has captured a market among young, middle-class Egyptians who no longer frown on alcohol as their grandfathers did. Brewery production manager Ramsis Awad also said a large number of narcotics users are turning to beer rather than face life jail sentences.

Crowds of Egyptians line up outside the company's stores to purchase bottles of Stella—the best selling of the company's four beers—at 15 piasters (35 cents) a bottle.

The government has no control over beer prices outside the stores. Once bottles arrive at grocery stores and restaurants, demand frequently doubles the brewery price, Awad said.

The editor of the English-language newspaper Egyptian Gazette recently complained in an edit of varying price of Stella but also of its varying quality.

Awad said a shortage of barley, imported from abroad, the company cannot guarantee constant composition.

Stella's shortcomings do not seem to deter Egyptian and foreign beer drinkers. One German reader shot back to the Gazette after saying that Stella rashed soonest only to the Pyramids in the things he liked most about Egypt.

The brewery is reputed to be the oldest in the Middle East. It was founded by two Swiss brothers in 1896. Heineken of Holland bought 20 per cent of the company's shares in 1923. Then the government nationalized the business in 1963.

Last year the company made $4.8 million Egyptian pounds or $15 million plus another 68,000 pounds from the 12 per cent of its production exported—about one-third of it to the Soviet Union.

The company is importing some $2 million in new equipment to increase its production. Some of the new beer is aimed at the roughly 40 American and British troops, living along the canal.

"We are currently sending about 4,000 bottles a week to the canal area," Awad said. "We hope to double that quantity because of the heat. Beer is essential for boys."

Electrical Car

LONDON (CP) — The electrical car may be on the brink of a technical breakthrough. Tests in Britain of a new type of sodium-sulphur battery have shown it is possible to extend the limited range of such vehicles between battery charges to at least 65 miles, says the Electricity Council.

Cummings of 'Guess Who' Sees Little Future Here

TORONTO (CP) — Energy, the musical talent in Canada, bolstered by exposure from the government's Canadian content ruling in broadcasting, has not substantial support from media critics during the last few years. The result, of course, has been a healthy shot in the arm for the fledgling Canadian industry.

How well can it take a single kick in the teeth?

Burton Cummings of The Guess Who, himself somewhat of a pioneer in Canadian rock music, says he sees little future for Canada in the international pop music scene.

His group made it. The Guess Who sprang off from the Winnipeg group, Chad Allan and the Expressions, in 1966, and in the nine years that followed it became one of the most respected rock bands internationally. Much of the group's success has been due to the group's remarkably solid vocals of Cummings.

Yet he is pessimistic about the chances of another home grown act doing as well on a long-term basis outside Canada.

Cummings said in an interview there is little Canadian product on the market today that he cares for. Many musicians now can't give the soul of their music because they are playing out of their league, he said.

"The guy in Fort William who has never been to Texas in his life is still content to sing about 'I bet got back from Texas, baby.' There's no credibility."

That's where The Guess Who have been lucky, Cummings explained.

"As you travel you are influenced by everything you see, everyone you meet and every kind of music you hear, since we've become globetrotters we've been influenced by a broader spectrum of ethnic cultures."

Asked about chances of development of the Canadian sound in music, Cummings said:

"I don't think there's any such thing as a Canadian sound. It doesn't seem to me that any trend in music has ever been born out of Canada.

"For instance, there's jazz—the home of Dixieland jazz. There is a New Orleans sound. There's definitely a classical sound in Europe.

"But Canada has never really done anything at that level.

Since the groups initial hit record, "Shakin' All Over," The Guess Who has had numerous changes. In personnel. But the present lineup of Cummings, Garry Peterson and Bill Wallace, all of Winnipeg, and Domenic Troiano of Toronto, now living in Los Angeles, is still Canadian.

Not so the group's style. Cummings said The Guess Who's music "is probably a melting pot of a bunch of things."

His ears ribbed on a new brand-down version of AM radio in Winnipeg which came in from North Dakota and places like that, so there was a little bit of country, a little bit of jazz, of hard rock 'n roll—a big-city American fo-r said.

"Winnipeg was a crossroads of music."

How then was an unknown Western group with no solid musical backing able to succeed?

"Anybody who signs with a record company in Canada is an attempt to break into the United States is a fool," he said.

"We signed with RCA in New York."

The Guess Who has been striking high since These Eyes sold several million copies in 1969.

Now Cummings has found a diversion—the lead role in a feature film about, naturally, a highly successful rock singer.

"I'm still going to stay with the band, but I've always wanted to act, always wanted to try a good role," he said.

"If this is a big film, obviously I'm going to get offers for more films and I'm going to take the offers."

"But I can only take so many and still remain active in the band. Mostly I'd like to do both, but I'd be a very old man in a very few years if I did that much work."

If Cummings were to leave The Guess Who, would it be irreparable harm to the group?

"Probably, because I've sung all the tunes for 13 albums. So probably it would mean quite a difference," he said.

"That day is long from here, I hope. But I'll be with the band for quite a while yet."

Gemini (May 21 - June 20) — There is a good market for your knowledge, but you'll have to tell people so they know what you have to offer.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) — A today is attending to business matters while conditions are favorable. Later, relax with friends.

Opening lead—K♦

By Oswald and James Jacoby

The bidding and early play of today's hand was discussed yesterday.

South won the first trick with dummy's ace of spades, cashed the ace of trumps, played dummy's ace and king of clubs, ruffed the last club and led the jack of spades.

West was in with the queen and had a problem. Should he lead a diamond and hope that his partner would hold the queen or should he lead a third spade and hope that South would have to ruff over?

We asked, "What did he do, and why?"

The answer is that he led a third spade. The reasoning is that East's spade plays had told him what to do.

On the first spade East had played the deuce. On the second spade lead East had played the seven spot.

This left the six and four of spades unaccounted for. Could East hold both those missing spot cards?

Not on your tintype. That play of the seven spot had to be designed to show exactly three spades and to tell West to play a third spade if his suit were a firecarder.

W·CARD, Sense·M

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
	1♥	Pass	2♥
Pass	3♥	Pass	3♠
Pass	4♥	Pass	4♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

You, South, hold:
♠ A K 8 5 4 ♥ K 7 3 ♦ 6 4 ♣ Q 5 6

What do you do now?

A—Bid five hearts. This bid clearly tells partner you are afraid of two diamond losers at a heart slam. If he can take care of the second round of diamonds he will be glad to bid it.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You do bid five hearts and your partner bids six diamonds. What do you do now?

Wave Power

LONDON (CP) — Britain is exploring the possibility of using tidal power to produce electricity. The Central Electricity Generating Board said in its annual report: "One of the difficulties of tidal method is to match the output, normally demand, to the state of the tide, to the load demand which depends on the time of day."

To Your Good Health

Has Emphysema, But Still Smokes

By G. C. TOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thesteson: Last fall a doctor found that I was suffering from the early stages of emphysema and he said I must stop smoking.

I find this nearly impossible. I used to smoke two packs a day. Now I smoke half to one pack a day. I cannot stop entirely although I have tried every way possible.

I have pains in my chest and the breathing is very difficult. My son tells me I am not fully aware of the serious danger ahead. Is there a solution? Can you help or advise me?

Your son probably told you the most important fact: that you are not aware of the danger ahead. You have trouble breathing now, so it will become more difficult to breathe as you go on smoking. Let us hope that you do not someday find that you must stop smoking in order to keep on breathing—and then have to tell yourself: "I could have stopped smoking when I didn't I?"

There are various things that can be done to help you if you stop smoking. There are medications to help clear the bronchial tubes; positive pressure breathing equipment can be used; periodic use of oxygen can help. Breathing exercises help. But giving up smoking is the only way you can reduce the progressive damages to your lungs.

Dear Dr. Thesteson: All my life I have had the misfortune of tiny breasts but not until now have I been able to afford an operation of this kind. Now, than anything in the world I would like a breast implant.

My husband says it's up to me. He makes very good money and I also work and have saved more than enough to pay for it myself. I helped put him through college so I really think I deserve this since I want it so badly, but my girl friends tell me it's very dangerous and could give me cancer. Is this true?

I am 38, attractive and well built except I look terrible in clothes I like wearing because of my small breasts.—M.P.S.

I tend to discourage the frequent requests I get about this because so many of them are from young girls who erroneously think all they have to do is to walk into a doctor's office and get "shots" of some kind.

But you aren't a youngster. You ask about "implants." Is that correct, and you evidently realize that it involves surgery in a hospital.

So my answer to you is different. There is no sign whatever that such surgery causes cancer. It is not a dangerous operation (although obviously it must be done by a plastic surgeon who understands precisely how to do it). I see no reason whatever why you should not go ahead with it. Your girl friends are misinformed.

Dear Dr. Thesteson: Would you explain sciatica unless you're a doctor? What causes it? Is surgery the only relief?—D.I.

The sciatica nerve is the one that runs just off center in the back—goes from collar bone to side of the skull. The outcome or problem - developes if this muscle puts pressure on the artery under the collar bone or on certain nerve trunks.

It causes discomfort in the back of the head or between shoulders. Surgery to remove the pressure gives relief, but that is the only solution so far as I am aware.

Ombudsman To Watch Computers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Have you ever tried to deal with a computer that persists in sending you bills you have already paid and for which you have sent numerous letters explaining your predicament?

Beginning Monday in Vancouver computer service will operate to help the victims of computer monoliths.

"It should help relieve a major frustration of society," says Dave Hicks, of the Consumer Association of Canada (CAC), which joined with the Canadian Information Processing Society to introduce the service.

It is believed the first of its type in Canada and possibly in North America.

Personal Income Taxes to Be Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — About 225,000 persons will be dropped from the tax rolls and all other taxpayers will receive higher personal income tax exemptions in the 1975 tax year, Finance Minister John Turner said today.

The savings result from the tax-indexing plan introduced in the 1974 tax year, designed to prevent inflation from being pushed into higher tax brackets because of inflationary income rises.

Changes in allowable personal exemptions and in the tax rates will produce an overall increase of 10.1 per cent in exemptions and tax bracket limits next year, the finance department said in a news release.

The cost to the government in reduced federal income tax revenues will exceed $750 million.

The indexing plan allows ma-

for personal exemptions and deductions and tax bracket limits to be raised each year to reflect changes in the consumer price index. Finance department officials note the plan is not fully indexed, but it does allow for a substantial adjustment to allow for rapidly-rising prices.

The adjustment for 1975 is obtained by dividing the average consumer price index for the 12 months ended September this year by the corresponding average for the 12 months to September, 1973.

This results in major personal exemptions and tax bracket limits being raised 10.1 per cent from current levels, or by 17.4 per cent from the levels of 1973, the last year before the indexing scheme was introduced.

The higher exemptions will not apply until taxpayers begin filing out their tax forms for 1975 for submission before the deadline date of April 30, 1976.

New Liquor Laws Coming

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government will introduce a "completely new act" in about three or four weeks to revamp liquor legislation in the province, John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations, said Thursday.

In a legislature debate on spending estimates for his ministry, Mr. Clement said the new act will replace existing legislation dealing with both the Liquor Control Board and the Liquor Licence Board.

Under questioning by Jack Stokes (NDP—Thunder Bay), the minister said he cannot reveal the nature of the legislation now being drafted, but stressed that it would "not be amendments; but a completely new approach."

Garbage Processing Planned

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario plans a network of reclamation and waste processing facilities to be constructed in major populated areas of the province in the next 10 years, Environment Minister William Newman told the legislature Thursday.

The first six plants are to be established as soon as possible in London, Kitchener-Waterloo, Peel-Halton, Metropolitan Toronto and the Peel-Metropolitan Toronto areas, the minister said.

He said the first million used for the first six plants will be paid initially by the province with 50 per cent to be recovered from municipalities over a 40-year period. Mr. Newman also told a news conference that some of these plants and additions of others in communities across the province by 1980 or thereafter will cost $200 million to $300 million in 1973 dollars.

Mr. Newman said a network of transfer stations and transportation facilities will be established throughout Ontario between 1980 and 1985. These will permit additional plant construction.

Mr. Newman said the first six plants, to be at least a year in construction, will range in capacity from 300 tons to 1,000 tons daily.

Developing Nations Must Feed Selves

OTTAWA (CP) — Developing nations are going to have to start feeding themselves, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Thursday night.

"Canada cannot feed the world," he said in a speech to the local chapter of the Institute of Public Administration. "Nor can the United States or Australia or New Zealand or all of the major exporting countries rolled together.

"The simple fact is that the nations of the world are going to have to take steps themselves to feed their own people."

He said he intends to press his case when he attends the United Nations' food and agriculture Organization conference in Rome Nov. 5-15.

Railway Wage Talks Near Critical Point

OTTAWA (CP) — Railway contract talks affecting about 75,000 workers will be at a critical stage in the next week to 10 days as union and company negotiators tackle the delicate wage question.

Until now, the Montreal-based negotiations have had a "good climate," a union spokesman said Thursday. Talks began earlier than usual this year.

But the parties are just starting now to talk about money, which in view of recent inflation is expected to be the key issue.

"Within the next week or so, we should know if there is to be a quick settlement or not," a union source said. "Discussions are just coming to a head now."

Should negotiations break down, the parties could ask the federal government for appointment of a mediator or a conciliation board in the coming

A settlement before the end of the year would mark the first time the parties have agreed to a contract before their current agreement has expired. The existing contract for the bulk of the 75,000 workers ends Dec. 31.

Canadian Cattlemen Plead Their Case on Meat Quotas

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Canadian Cattlemen's Association today stoutly defended the Canadian government's program of restricting beef imports with quotas and surcharges.

In a brief presented to a special hearing on livestock trade, the association defended Canada's right to restrict imports of beef.

The hearing was called by the White House office of special trade negotiations to determine if the U.S. should retaliate against Canadian import restrictions.

The Canadian cattlemen said Ottawa imposed import quotas and an import surcharge to protect the Canadian beef industry from being swamped.

The association told the hearing on the U.S. price freeze in 1973, which reduced U.S. cattle marketings, then prompted a surge of U.S. cattle into Canada.

The brief said that in the fourth quarter of last year about 124,000 head of cattle flowed into Canada from the U.S.

"This rate of northward flow exceeded by four- or five times the 'previous record rate of flow,'" the brief said.

The association said the lower prices in the U.S. forced a surge northward and left Canada to absorb many times more than its historical level of imports at a time when the U.S. market was absorbing far less than usual.

"In other words, Canada was doing more than her share to overcome the difficulties in the American market while the U.S. was doing less."

The association said that 1973 cattle imports into Canada from the U.S. totalled 269,000 head, or nearly eight per cent of the annual Canadian slaughter.

Present Canadian import levels are not restrictive because they adhere to traditional import patterns rather than the greatly-inflated figures of 1973, the brief contended.

The flood of imports in 1973 did not represent a normal trade pattern but was the result of a sustained boldness in the U.S. due to the price control program there.

Ottawa Reports Budget Surplus

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite sharply-higher spending, the government has posted a $586 million budget surplus for the first half of fiscal 1974-75, finance department figures showed Thursday.

The surplus is more than seven times the $82 million surplus in the same period last year and seems to show results of an effort to curb spending programs.

In the same April-September period spending in all federal departments was up by more than 25 per cent—$11.335 billion, compared to $9.0 billion a year earlier.

Revenues from taxes, investments and other sources were $11.721 billion in the six-month period this year, compared to $8.982 billion a year ago.

Treasury Board President Jean Chretien told a Commons estimates committee recently that federal departments have been instructed to live within existing budgets and virtually all requests for supplementary funds had been turned down since August.

Trudeau said he told the officials Thursday that "We are designing our policies and if you want to get in there we must define the nature of our links."

The EEC officials told him that the Canadian proposal for a trade agreement was "banal," the prime minister said. If that was the case, he had replied, what specific suggestions did they have?

They responded with some suggestions which Trudeau said he could not divulge.

Trudeau, who returns to Ottawa today, said the federal government is seeking ties with the community because it is changing rapidly.

As one Canadian official said earlier, Canada wants to be in "lock-step with the EEC."

Retaliation Is Demanded

WASHINGTON (CP) — A wide section of the United States livestock industry is briefs prepared for filing before a special hearing today calls for stiff and immediate retaliation against Canada for her meat-import restrictions.

Trudeau Uses Raw Materials As Trade Bargaining Weapon

BRUSSELS (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has used raw materials as a bargaining weapon to launch trade negotiations with the European Economic Community (EEC).

He said at a news conference today that he had EEC officials to effect that "You may think you're going to be able to take you eat our raw materials—you ain't."

The prime minister said he informed the community that Canada is developing energy and resources policies and it would be wise for the EEC commission to help define these policies.

Canada did not want to work out these policies with only the United States, Japan and other individual countries in mind.

Cider-making Time

Hillcrest Public School pupils in Belleville chose apples as a theme for the last two weeks and carried the project through to the making of cider in an old press donated by their principal, Jack Dixon. They put six brushels of apples which they had gathered themselves through the press and served it to their mothers at a party today. Holding the basin in which the juice is collected are Vikt MacDonald and Kelly McMurter. Operating the press with teacher Mrs. Elaine Lawlor are Jeff Thrasher, John Akey, Bobby Deline and Shawn Lumley.

Trenton's Water Supply To Get Monthly Check

TRENTON — Monthly monitoring of Trenton Lake will be started shortly for boring discharges of the most recent discovery of high pollutant counts and organic waste materials in the lake, Trenton's main source of drinking water.

The Trenton Public Utilities Commission decision Thursday was prompted by concern over what was termed rapid algae growth in the lake and its recharging pond.

Confusion, however, arose over the precise cause of the present-day growth.

A study by an independent consulting firm revealed sketches, a derivative of raw processing wastes, were feeding the algae and causing the unwanted blossoming.

L. A. Lowe and Associates Ltd. of Brampton were called in by the PUC to sample Trenton Lake water in September. The utility claimed Produce Processors Ltd. was processing wastes had the effect whatsoever on the lake".

Mr. Hillon has requested a meeting with pribidery officials to iron out the different statements: "We're waiting time writing an report," he said. "There's no better way than talking to them."

A contributing factor to the PUC's decision to monitor the lake was the recreational use water was, on at least one occasion in September, more polluted than the Trent River.

Manager Manlow produced figures that showed what was called a "drastic jump" in fecal and coliform bacteria and background colony counts between Sept. 4 and Sept. 26. The MOE, that did the water analysis, did not attribute the high counts to any cause.

Mr. Manlow said the high counts did not pose a danger to Trenton residents. Bacteria are killed by the additional use of chemicals at the water treatment plant.

Candidacy Announced

PICTON — Picton lawyer Richard Byers has stated he will seek a seat on town council in the coming election.

Mr. Byers is a native of Ontario, and holds a BA degree in law from Queen's University. He was called to the bar in 1970 and practised in Brantford before moving to Picton in 1972.

He purchased the practice of lawyer Thomas Forbes and is now in practice with Christopher Williams in the firm of Byers and Williams.

Offending Algae

Trenton Public Utilities Commission Manager Doug Ian Manlow exhibits a Thursday a sample of algae pulled out of Trenton Lake water. The PUC claims rapid growth of algae was caused by a local industry's organic wastes that found their way into the town's main drinking water supplies.

Liberals Wind Up For Next Election

MADOC — Conflicts of interest involving Conservative government members will be an issue in the next Ontario election, Liberals in Hastings provincial riding were told Wednesday night.

Compared to Watergate "the plan" of the Davis government may pale, but they still can make a dash, said Sylvia Sutherland, Liberal party director in eastern Ontario.

"We simply can't afford to have our policies devalued to the extent that decent people will have no part of them," she told the Liberals' annual meeting at Madoc elementary school. "Whether the Davis government likes it or not the behavior of its members will be an issue in the next election — regardless of whether we make it one or not."

The Conservative government has been in power so long it no longer understands the issues facing the province. The electorate still wants a say in the way it's governed, she said.

Regional government must be stopped because it is not responsive to local needs and is costing "far, far too much money".

In Waterloo, service costs have risen 36 per cent in the first year of regional government, Ms Muskoka, some taxpayers have had a 300 per cent increase.

Few people in Ontario can now afford their own homes. While inflation is a factor, the provincial government refuses to remove sales tax on home building supplies. It has refused to provide serviced land and is slow in approving subdivision plans, even land severances.

Charles Bates, immediate past president of the constituency association and federal party organizer in eastern Ontario, criticized Agriculture Minister William Stewart for insufficient initiative.

Provincial government inaction has left farmers without concerted policies at a time when agriculture calls for big investments. As a result, hundreds of farmers will quit the land.

In the end, the consumer will be the loser.

"For the consumer's protection we need a more aggressive agriculture minister in Ontario," said Mr. Bates.

Citizens Bureau Staff Scrambling for Funds

TRENTON — Citizens Bureau staff are again scrambling for funds to keep the consumer help group in operation in Trenton.

Money is needed to offset expenses until a $2,000 United Community Services contribution comes through Jan. 1. The date any additional funds come from a recently requested Local Initiative Program (LIP) grant is unknown.

Spokesman for the bureau, Charles Hart, said Thursday, "We're worried about the money angle. As of yesterday, we were in a hard-up position."

He said rent of the Dundas St. West office for December must be paid as well as heating and telephone bills till the end of the year.

Mr. Hart appealed to the public for donations, like the bureau ever until other funds become available. Already, a $100 donation has come in and has been applied to November's office rent.

He added that the volume of donations will also indicate to bureau staff its popularity and usefulness to the community.

"If they don't answer then we'll know we're not so popular. Then we might as well close the door."

Closing down the bureau often now and then opening doors again said Mr. Hart, would "cost both money and a lot of extra work".

Earlier estimates placed the cost of restarting the operation at $1,000.

To date the history of Citizens Bureau funding has been checkered. Originally, it opened its doors in September under a LIP grant sponsored by the United Community Services. Once the grant and an extension ended, the Opportunity Help Fund provided some dollars for a few months but the year before it folded, and subsisted in another period under a LIP grant.

The second federal government grant was sponsored by the Quinte District Labor Council in Trenton, where bureau offices are now located again.

Most recently, it has come under the umbrella of the United Way, a UCS operated fund-raising drive, January to...

Home Near Completion

PICTON — The H.J. McFarland Memorial Home for the Aged should be completed in early December, Prince Edward County councillors were told Thursday.

Chairman of council's works services committee, Allan Anderson, said the new county home for the aged is "progressing in good fashion" and added trail runs for kitchen equipment would be required before the building is opened for use.

George Rose, administrator of the county home for the aged, observed the present facility is full and there is a waiting list of more than 40 persons. He commented 85 per cent of the new furnishings have been delivered to the home now in completion stages.

"We may be in by Christmas", said Mr. Rose, referring to a move to the new building.

Entertaining Questioned

PICTON — The costs of wining and dining industry were questioned in county council Thursday by Picton deputy-reeve Larry Richardson.

He referred to a dinner meeting held in Belleville when several Prince Edward industrial representatives met.

The deputy-reeve asked the cost of the dinner and details of the meetings agenda.

He was told by Sophiasburgh reeve Gordon Ellis chairman of council's economic development committee, the cost for the dinner had not yet been tabulated.

Reeve Foster said although there was no guest speaker, George Hees, MP Prince Edward—Hastings, and James Taylor, MPP, Prince Edward — Lennox did attend to answer questions.

He added the periodic dinner meetings have been a common practice for several years.

Big New Employer To Be Announced

PICTON — A new industry expected to employ more than 100 persons in the coming year, will locate in Prince Edward County.

Prince Edward economic development director William Hagan Thursday told county council the industry, described as "a large undertaking" will hire many workers in the next nine to 12 months.

Details of the industry will be outlined at a press reception at Prince Edward Yacht Club next Wednesday.

Mr. Duggan's written report to council mentioned negotiations with a mobile home building company in September. Discovery officials, the economic development director and the owners of Loch Sloy industrial park negotiated for a week.

He did not state that this is the new industry coming to Prince Edward but in his report, did note "an official release of the details of this large undertaking will be made as soon as it is cleared by the executives".

Hercules on Way To Aid Hondurans

TRETON — A Canadian armed forces Hercules is today bound for Honduras loaded with 11 tons of medical supplies and powdered milk for victims of Hurrican Fifi which struck Central American earlier this year.

The flight, piloted by Capt. David McNair of Belleville marks the second airlift of relief supplies by 436 Squadron based here at CFB Trenton.

The current relief shipment has been gathered by the Help Honduras Foundation of Cobourg. It is destined for the Children's Village, 15 miles outside San Pedro Sula, the aircraft's destination

Another 80 tons, mostly clothing, will be transported by sea.

A defence department spokesman said Thursday the Hercules aircraft will return to Canada once it is unloaded. The last flight, under similar instructions, did not leave Honduras for eight days.

He said the need for distributing supplies to the stricken country kept the plane in Honduras from Sept. 27 to Oct. 4. Over 125 tons of supplies and 129 passengers were handled by the single aircraft in its 13 flights.

Absenteeism Criticized

PICTON — Sophiasburgh reeve George Foster, pinch-hitting for Wellington reeve Robert Boyce at Thursday's meeting of Prince Edward County council, criticized absenteeism.

Reeve Foster, who read a report of the finance and personnel committee meeting for October, delivered it in place of committee chairman reeve Boyce.

He observed there had been a small turnout for the committee meeting and said he felt elected officials should be prepared to schedule personal plans so that they do not interfere with public service.

Absent from the committee meeting on October 17 were reeve Boyce and Prince Edward — Lennox MP Flora MacDonald.

Both men also were absent during Thursday night's session of county council.

Roadwork Stops

PICTON — Prince Edward County council Thursday put a halt further construction on county roads for 1974 because of fund shortages.

Road committee chairman and deputy-reeve of Hillier Allan Pettingill, told county council the projects affected will include reconstruction of Allisonville Bridge, improvements on county roads and installation of curbs and gutters in Demorestville and removal of a curve on county road four.

He explained the fund shortage saying some projects had been more costly than anticipated. The budget is running low and further construction could lead to overspending.

When asked if the projects already begun would be completed this year, deputy reeve Pettingill replied it would be "foolish of any road committee" to refuse to proceed, with studies already completed on several projects.

Sluggish Election

Belleville's municipal election campaign is notably lacking in steam.

Indeed, the campaign — or non-campaign — has barely got off the ground. Mayor Robin Jeffrey is running again, that we know, and there are a number of possible mayoral candidates, but as yet no one from the latter group has declared his hand.

A municipality the size of Belleville, and one that is growing as fast as this, should not lack for potential candidates for council. There are a number of vacancies arising out of the city's governmental set-up to be asked if any of them are considering more active roles than those of critics-at-large?

Already there is one vacancy, with the announcement by Dr. John Stoner that he is finishing a second-term two-year-term (the last was 1956-57), that he does not plan to seek re-election.

Belleville should expect greater momentum on the hustings than it is now experiencing. It is time the candidates started getting the message across.

What's Best?

It's the great education debate. What is best for our children? In no sphere is there so much talk, and so little in the way of clear answers.

The system doubtless is adequate enough for the student who knows what he is about, and wants to work, who has that magic quality of motivation. But what of the others? Has the per cent of the student body are interested: that is the estimate of one high school teacher who was broached on the subject recently.

Should there be more parental involvement in school activities and concerns, as some suggest? Or would parents represent simply so much more clutter. And in an era, when both parents markedly are working, what could they contribute? In an era too of neglect, alienation and young people left to their own devices, isn't the future that parents are most needed — at least when the youngsters return from school — the home?

"They have to have a challenge . . . without a challenge, they vegetate." This is John Smithson of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews speaking. As for young people afforded such a challenge, he told Belleville Rotarians at the start of a conference his organization held in Bancroft. There were some 80 young people, aged 16 to 25 from Ontario and the United States. The Canadians were 90 percent white, the Americans white, black, and Puerto Rican in equal numbers.

It was a week-long conference and in three days, Mr. Smithson enthused, they had pinpointed the five major concerns of the world today — inflation, conservation, nuclear control, education, and pollution.

In talking from the platform, somewhat rose-colored perhaps, but challenging in itself, Mr. Smithson noted: "I never fail to marvel at young people. They are the most fantastic thing on this earth."

Something of the same line of thought was expressed by NBC anchor man John Chancellor in recent days. A committee of four youngsters from Boston, two of them white, the others black, boys and girls, had gone to Charlotte, N.C., on the invitation of students of a school there which had gone through the busing parade. The southern kids wanted to show the Bostonians that whites and blacks could get along together harmoniously.

Said Chancellor: "If the kids can handle it themselves, they might do a better job than the grownups."

Yet when all is said and done, people need each other.

Parents and offspring need each other too, the trick being to work out a relationship that avoids getting in each other's hair.

Let's take the advice also of noted churchman Dr. Robert McClure who says urbanized society can learn lessons on living from primitive people of the kind he has seen and worked with around the world. For instance, on returning from overseas recently, he encountered children arguing on a bus, something relatively unknown among primitive peoples. Education then, and behavior, and lifestyle, all are interwoven.

International Outlook Fostered by Late Premier

New Zealand Pioneered Latter-Day Social Democracy

By JOHN D. HARKINSON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

New Zealand is further away from us than from anywhere else in China, yet she remains a more controversial as well as loyal member of the British Commonwealth than Canada appears to be.

The New Zealand premier always was considered to be there by Canadians, but rarely seen. (When you buy New Zealand mutton as cheaper than Canadian lamb, look fresh and blood red) last year he the contribution of the late prime minister Norman Kirk at the 1973 London Commonwealth Heads of Government Conference.

Mr. Kirk, who died unexpectedly, combined the bearded style of earlier days that dated to the ruling Labor party and had somewhat faded in the years since with Australia's Prime Minister Gough Whitlam for example about the world-wide dominance of multinational companies.

Mr. Kirk's promise in Ottawa in the summer of last year also reminded us that the pioneering work in creating a modern social democracy has been the far-off New Zealand and not in much-touted Sweden.

Mr. Kirk's death, the memorial and representative government he has been honored in the years and the appointment of Wallace Rowling for years the country's finance minister and a 45-year-old native of South Island, to succeed in this post as New Zealand prime minister.

He is of course, completely unknown in this country. But Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and members of his cabinet will get together for the next Commonwealth Heads of Government Conference in Kingston, Ontario in 1975, will meet and work with him.

Mr. Rowling however will probably prove to be a world figure as did the late prime minister Mr. Kirk if the French start another series of nuclear tests in their lingering Pacific Ocean Island colonies. In mid-repeat Mr. Kirk's threat to send a Royal New Zealand Navy frigate into the test zone challenging the French on their ban against entry to the test zone.

Certainly if he does, he will show more life than the foreign policy than did Mr. Sharp in the Western Conservatives Preparing

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Of the 95 Conservatives now in the Commons, 49 are from the West, the Prairies and B.C. and some of them think the new leader of the party should be a Westerner.

They have candidates.

Perhaps the most obvious, if he can be drafted, Alberta's handsome young Premier Peter Lougheed.

But they have other candidates, too, several from the membership of the parliamentary caucus.

"And who is to say that by the time the leadership convention is held, other contenders won't emerge from the wood and range lands or from the big timber country west of the Rockies?"

There is a feeling of urgency building among the 49 Conservatives from west of the Ontario-Manitoba border.

For some of them think that sooner than he has said, Conservative Leader Stanfield will be announcing the timing of his retirement.

It would not surprise them if it came early in the New Year, giving a good lead-time of, say, March or May to lay on the arrangements — an immense job of big decisions and little details for a national convention next Fall.

Such scheduling would cut by half the two years Mr. Stanfield has said he might remain as leader, bringing on the convention in the summer of 1975 or two a few months before the next election.

Those Westerners-in-a-hurry can advance a strong case for choosing a leader from the West.

One of their most convincing talking points is that, generally, Western Conservatives are more conservative than those from Ontario, Quebec and the Atlantic Provinces.

This, the way they see it, makes a conservative Conservative leader, only the two Westerners, Richard Bennett of Calgary and John Diefenbaker of Prince Albert, have represented leading the party to power.

Mr. Stanfield is regarded as Atlantic Provinces ever became Prime Minister.

Bennett took 28 Ontario seats and achieved the impossible by raising the party's popular representation from four to 30 in the first win in 1867, Diefenbaker increased the party's strength in Ontario by 26 to 61 and in Quebec from four to nine.

In his second victory, the record sweep of '58 Diefenbaker swept up 67 and took 208 of the 265 seats.

Whatever claim Ontario might have it had on the leadership was forfeited, say the Westerners, when it was in the province, with the dropping of 15 seats, that the Conservatives made their decline.

Losers, they add, don't make winners.

Will The PCs Win Carleton East?

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The Carleton East by-election is shaping up as not too much of a contest.

In terms of interest at least the Nov. 7 contest is growing hardly a ripple.

The feeling here is that the election is already won.

It is taken for granted that Mayor Pierre Benoit of Ottawa, the PC candidate, will be a shoo-in.

Both opposition parties appear to be putting up token candidates.

Evelyn Gigantes an Ottawa CBC news announcer is running for the NDP.

Neither is given a chance.

The main question that observers ask themselves is what the consequences might be if the worst happens.

What if Mrs Gigantes or Mr. Taylor happened to win the seat?

After the Stornont by-election Premier Davis said governments in power frequently lose by-elections.

Mr. Davis was doing some wishful mirror looking in saying this.

For the fact is that for 20 years, from 1943 to 1963 the Conservatives didn't lose a by-election in the province.

Under Drew and Frost they won every time. It was only under Roberts they began to lose.

The Carleton East by-election record. He has fought three by-elections and he has lost them all.

"Boys" was the subject of a most interesting talk by Charles J. Plewman, executive secretary of the Boys' Work Board to members of the Kiwanis Club on Tuesday at their weekly luncheon. Eddie Shafer presided while Frank Pickle acted as song leader and Chester Smith as sergeant-at-arms.

It does look, however, as this time he will win one.

He has an extremely strong record in his against a pair of relatively weak men.

And while there doesn't appear a chance that the government can lose the by-election, there still is some slight possibility.

With Prices Down Will Whelan Launch Probe Into Industry?

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

With beef prices being marked down at your favorite meat counter, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan may soon find it politically wise to launch the investigation of the beef industry that he said he is considering.

When and if he does set up an inquiry, it could well pave the way for another of those marketing bonanzas that the public loves so dearly.

(Examples: The Canadian Egg Marketing Agency, the Canadian wheat Board, the Grain and Oilseeds Program).

An investigation a few months ago would have been much trickier, in political terms.

Consumers like to blame the whole system—government, producers, retailers and others for the sharp summertime rise in beef prices.

The primary producers were just as unhappy. Ranchers were saying that with so much feedgrains as they had just a year or two earlier, and receiving the lowest price for slaughter cattle in years.

Strikes at major packing plants in Alberta, from one time to mid-July, curtailed the supply to Canadian markets, just when barbecue and steak tourist season was pushing demand for beef to its annual peak.

Ordinarily, U.S. beef would have been shipped into Canada to alleviate the shortage. But Canada banned imports between April and early September to protect herd breeding stock, danger from U.S. beef raised with DES, a growth hormone.

In resolving that controversy, Whelan showed himself to be a first stops toward setting up a beef bureaucracy. It established an import quota equivalent to the average imports of the five previous years. It also introduced a deficiency-payment program that guarantees the producer a minimum of $45.42 per hundredweight for top-quality steers.

"It is expected that, at the end of the current beef cycle period, large numbers of cattle may be marketed in both Canada and the U.S. to avoid feedlot and speculative losses throughout the winter," says the food prices review board in its report for the third quarter.

"Given the current supply situation, there would be a continued easing of beef prices to the end of the year."

The governments of the provinces involved hoped to stem the flood of cattle to market by offering short-term cash advances to farmers who maintain the size of their breeding herds. It remains to be seen that these efforts will be enough to keep a growth herd.

What is clear enough is that consumers are somewhat mollified by price reductions at the meat counter and beef producers somewhat mollified by floor prices for slaughter cattle.

To the federal politicians and bureaucrats that may well look like a golden opportunity to build a framework for the methods to creating yet another government marketing monopoly, not in the mould of "orderly marketing" and "price stability," of course.

Loyalist Union States Its Case

Editor:
The Intelligencer.

As written to one of your reporters after he originated, at my request, a rather inaccurate article about our union and its activities, I have informed the members of the Loyalist College C.A.A.T. Academic Branch believe that it is the intent of the "Intell" to report accurately and objectively and in an unbiased manner, and that is why we have come to believe until you prove us wrong.

We become rather difficult to keep this faith particularly after reading your report of the results of the study session we conducted on Friday, October 18 against provincial management of the Community College system whose bargaining unit we largely responsible for negotiating the contract expiring on 31 March 1975. We invited you to be present to see some of the facts straight.

1 - Our bargaining unit's correct name is C.S.A.C. — C.A.A.T. BRANCH 0697-14. There is no such thing as the Quinte Branch of the Civil Service Association of Ontario. There are several C.S.A.O. branches in the Quinte area besides the one which represents Loyalist College faculty.

2 - The information which you referred to as a walkout took place as planned and certainly was not a walkout.

3 - The "few teachers" you reported as picketing numbered the entrances to the College constituted a considerable contribution at first. Both teachers and teachers would have been thoroughly confused on Tuesday morning under those circumstances, attendance at the College would have been spotty at best on Tuesday, and the study session would have fizzled in fact.

Full membership suggests that you slanted the news in such a way as to not only make the Loyalist Union look like a "good guys" but also make the Loyalist College look like a successful "bad guys", when neither implication is at all true.

The Loyalist C.S.A.C. — C.A.A.T. Academic Branch believes that management is made up of a group of people, and bargaining groups are made up of a group of people, and that people are prone to error, and also believes that there are made up of a group of people, and that people are prone to error, and also believes that there are more than one, and because we each have responsibilities to our constituents and their respective interests, for their encouraging and mutual support. We feel we deserve at least a fair hearing and support next to us last week.

Lang Accused of Promoting Personal View on Abortions

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Otto Lang was accused Thursday in the Commons of attempting to persuade hospitals to clamp down on abortions.

Stewart Leggat (NDP—New Westminster) said the minister of a Roman Catholic father of seven, and a lawyer by many hospitals urging that "his personal view on the subject" be followed.

And Flora MacDonald (PC—Kingston and the Islands) criticized him for trying to interpret the meaning of the Criminal Code amendments which allow hospital committees to approve or reject abortions.

Miss MacDonald said, he should have the moral courage to introduce legislation to eliminate any confusion caused by the amendments.

Mr. Lang often accused of taking a hard line on abortion, decided new general stance to influence abortion committees.

He acknowledged sending a memo to hospital committees in the Yukon and Northwest Territories, where he functions under law as territorial attorney-general, but said he hasn't drawn his comments to the attention of other provinces.

PCs Say Forces Being Neglected

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservatives attacked the government Thursday night for allegedly not providing the armed forces with adequate men and equipment.

Their spokesmen in the Commons said the forces are suffering from the neglect of successive defence ministers and are not able to fulfil their commitments.

Patrick Nowlan (PC—Annapolis Valley) said the forces are unable to adequately patrol the coasts and that shifts, changes, reversals and cutbacks in general defence ministers of the last 10 years have left the forces despondent.

New Democratic speakers attacked the government and the Conservatives, whom Stuart Leggat (NDP—New Westminster) said are sabre rattling. He said Canada is not part of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto) said Canada should get out of the North American Air Defence Command (NORAD).

The remarks were made during a debate on the estimates of defence expenditures for the 1974-75 fiscal year.

Defence Minister James Richardson's remarks in the debate largely were reiteration of statements that the forces have been reduced by about 5,000 persons because of inflation. He repeated that he is looking for an edit force that is better equipped but smaller than the 82,500 authorized strength.

Because the size of the force has been reduced, the tasks must be reduced, he said. But he gave no indications when these reductions will involve.

He said Canada should appreciate that the services provide more than just fulfilment of their main commitments to the Secretary of State of North America, NATO and peacekeeping.

The taxpayer benefitted through everything from the payroll spent by personnel in a community to vocational training, cadet programs, environmental and other assistance and even contributions to such sporting events as the Pan-American Games and the Olympics.

But Allan McKinnon (Victoria), conservative military critic, Mr. Nowlan and other Conservatives were not impressed.

Mr. Nowlan said because of pending restrictions the forces' aircraft are not patrolling the Atlantic as often or as far as in the past and joint exercises with U.S. troops have been stopped.

"This minister is a fraud as he pretends Canada is fulfilling its four stated objectives," he said. "A country can't patrol its own borders it cannot survive as a state."

Increased Meat Check Is Refused

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Marc Lalonde refused Thursday to order any government stepped-up meat inspection program that might afford consumers more protection against contaminated hamburger.

His refusal came at the end of an exchange with several opposition members during the daily Commons question period. It was the second time in as many days that the issue arose in the House.

Jim McGrath, Progressive Conservative consumer affairs critic, had suggested that more government inspectors should conduct wider random meat sampling programs so consumers would "get a more clearer picture of just how serious this matter is."

But Mr. Lalonde said Canadians eat hundreds of thousands of pounds of ground beef each year "and there are limits to what can be done in a realistic way."

More than 1,000 samples of ground beef will be tested by federal health inspectors and scientists in a special three-week program initiated because of reports the product is often contaminated.

The testing will begin immediately in a new laboratory of the Atlantic regional office of the health protection branch in Halifax. Dr. Albert Lepage, acting chief of the branch, said Thursday in an interview in Ottawa. About 30 technicians will be involved in the program.

Dr. Lidon said the program is designed to provide data on the quality of ground beef and to set quality-control guides for meat processors. New mandatory regulations would not necessarily follow immediately.

Beware Glue

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet urged parents Thursday to heed a warning by Krazy Glue manufacturers that the heavy-duty product should be kept away from children.

He made the comment in the Commons after being asked what action his department is taking to restrict use of the glue, which is reported to have sealed shut for one week the eye of an eight-year-old Montreal boy.

Manipulating Economy By Housing Opposed

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will not solve the continuing housing crisis until it stops using shortages and other artificial devices to manipulate the economy, Progressive Conservative James Gillies said in the Commons Thursday.

Mr. Gillies (Toronto Don Valley), one of the party's financial critics, complained to Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson that housing shortages and tight mortgage money periods are a "terrific problem" in Toronto and the big cities.

He said he is astonished that Mr. Danson is told this is a good housing starts of 250,000 units across the country this year in response to criticism about shortages and costs. More housing starts alone would not solve the problem.

No real impact will be felt until the government stops using housing shortages to stabilize the economy, he said. Builders would not moderate prices unless they were confident that housing programs themselves would remain stable.

Mr. Gillies spoke during a Commons committee of the whole debate on $378,440,000 in Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. expending estimates for the 1974-75 fiscal year.

"We won't get stability in the housing market if builders' prices are up and down like a yo-yo," he said.

Dan McKenzie (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) said the $100-million program announced last spring for experimental urban development projects would be better used to finance cheaper housing lots and lower mortgage rates. He said Canadians should look to relatively cheap mobile homes as a housing alternative.

Dracula In Charge?

TORONTO (CP) — Putting mining company officials in charge of mine safety is like putting Dracula in charge of a blood bank," Elie Martel (NDP-Sudbury East) said Thursday.

He made the comment in the legislature while NDP backer Stephen Lewis was questioning Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier on mining safety.

May Be No Ontario Beef Unless Farmers Get More

TORONTO (CP) — There may be no sources of beef in Ontario by 1977 if farmers don't get higher prices for young cattle, Agriculture Minister Wilson Stewart predicted Thursday.

He was responding in the legislature to opposition charges that the government is dragging its feet in the area of aid to beef farmers.

"If these present prices continue for feeder cattle I'm afraid the cow slaughter will take place to such an extent there will be no sources of beef for 1977-78," Mr. Stewart said.

The agriculture minister said the government is looking into ways of aiding the beef farmer.

Edward Sargent (L-Grey-Bruce) said his area, which has the largest concentration of beef farmers in Ontario, is particularly hard hit.

"Many farmers are going to lose between $100 and $150 a head this fall," Mr. Sargent said,

, added later that "I know they have been hard hit and are going to lose between $30,000 and $50,000 this year."

Lewis Says Profiteers Endorsed

TORONTO (CP) — John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations, rejected Thursday charges by Stephen Lewis that the Ontario cabinet is of one with the profiteering in the food industry.

During legislature debate on the ministry's estimates, Mr. Lewis, NDP leader, said that the province has failed to act as an ombudsman to protect consumers from price-gouging by supermarkets.

Mr. Clement replied that government policy is to educate consumers to protect themselves by switching discretion in the marketplace.

Mr. Lewis criticized two reports on food profitability, released following ministry studies of 16 food companies, for "siding with the industry in proclaiming that price gouging does not exist."

The first profitability survey deliberately set out to demonstrate that an excess profit was not possible," Mr. Lewis said.

The second survey concluded that profiteering does not exist because the ministry looked at profiteering as existing only on a company basis within a particular industry.

"The assumption is that profiteering can take place as a company basis, rather than industry-wide," Mr. Lewis said. That argument is used in the report to prove that there has been no profiteering by individual supermarket chains.

Mr. Lewis said the second report recently released, stated:

"No attempt was made to conduct interviews with the companies to obtain additional information. Everything that was used was based on the annual financial reports of the companies."

Mr. Lewis said the two surveys demonstrate industry-wide profiteering, but the ministry refuses to identify it as such because all the companies involved are sharing equally in profiteering.

Mr. Lewis said the ministry is attempting to cover up the content of the second survey by issuing a misleading news release stating that "neither profit increases for the food industry do not appear necessary for this year."

He nowhere in the report does the ministry make an actual statement to that effect, Mr. Lewis said. The news release was "the a public relations attempt by the ministry on behalf of the food industry."

Adoption Patterns Change

" I see at least four reasons for changing adoption patterns here and across the province," says Margaret Baile, director of the Hastings county adoption department.

In the last few years, adoption has become more socially acceptable and the stigma of "illegitimacy" is disappearing. In short, it is hardly bear the word anymore - and there is nothing shameful, or embarrassing about adopting a baby born out of wedlock.

The changing attitudes also mean that many single mothers decide to keep their infants, so that fewer babies are available for adoption.

" As a result, the focus can be on those children who, for special needs, who require homes."

Another reason for the new direction in adoption is immediately traceable to the success of Helen Allen's "Today's Child" column. "It has been very effective," she says. " Combined with the local media, it enables them enable readers to see the children as little individuals rather than as faceless taking care of.

The possibility of adopting children of mixed racial parentage, although a problem, no longer seems remote."

Another factor influencing adoption is the awareness of "population explosion" and its resulting danger's has motivated many couples to limit their natural family to one or two, and then adopt children in need of a permanent home.

" This thinking is not to be found in young couples, who feel strongly about zero population growth," says Mrs. Baile.

The fourth reason that Mrs. Baile cites is the greater commitment, on the part of both the adoption department workers and the public, to find homes for children who are wards of the Children's Aid.

" We believe it is the right of every child to have a home, a family to call his own. Our responsibility is to the child; to find the best possible parents," Mrs. Baile says.

" It's not a matter of finding children for parents, but rather of finding parents for children."

In the Belleville area, there are parents who are well-suited to adopt a child with hearing problems, because they've already been involved with the Centre for the Deaf. Others are able to take Indian children, because they are Indian or part Indian themselves.

" We do try to find parents of the same racial background as the child if we can," says Mrs. Baile, "but we no longer try to "match" a child. It really boils down to what kind of a child potential parents think they can offer.

" Some people are under the misconception that the adoption study done by our workers, is to give approval, or disapproval. But really the home study is done to help parents understand themselves and their motives for adopting, to discover what kind of child they could best care for."

AUTUMN ADVENTURERS

"A landscape is literature on the earth."
— Chang Ch'ao.

Each year, as Time's hostess for earth), throws a colorful farewell party ere her successor takes over, which you and I know as Autumn — needless to say!

This current one my husband and I set out among the guests to pay ourselves an hour's service. Taking short drives around the countryside. Collecting and making a collage of Autumn impressions, fun and enchantment.

Such fun when you're retired, but just a bit east of Belleville, a lonely road, aflame with color, and came unexpectedly upon a School Bus which had just deposited a small boy before a lane leading to a little white farmhouse home. It was a corridor of pure gold — lined with a long double-row of trees fluttering leaves of red and gold which also paved the entire pathway. For the moment the little boy-child had left a memory of a sunny-haired lad who lifted a hand before entering his fairyland kingdom. As a man will he had recall his boyhood days, years and joy!

On a stop we made in the Murray Hill's where squares of plowed fields edged with golden hedgerows lay in the freshly laundered on the gentle slopes to dry. A farmer was cultivating a nearby field by tractor, with one eye on a minister that man needs a God to discover the secrets of earth. All the while, as I snapped a bit here, a chipmunk on the rail fence there, and the leonard leaves scaled lazily to the ground, I was thinking and endearing curiosity.

Then again, further west, in the distance, a vision like a giant watercolor, of a white-Church-steeple — a mere dot before a bit of brilliant color of Autumnville.

The black-and-white cloud-filled sky-day when we found ourselves entering the park of Presqu'ile, laying beside dancing lace-edged green blue waves of the lake, serenely quiet. The pine groves filled with the aroma of summer campers with their gaiety and laughter, and deciduous trees ablaze with crimson and gold.

"But Oh!" exclaimed my husband. "Look! Look! Look there!" as he pointed to huge monarch, with large green-leafed nuts scattered over the road.

"It takes me back when as a youngster back home. About this time of year we would gather bushels of hickory nuts put them on top of the furnace to dry until before Christmas, when we would de-husk and crack open the nuts that we'd collected for the Christmas Candy. There's no tree like a hickory tree!"

As we looked about the park we enjoyed with some who feels that enjoyment of trees is not "only in and for themselves" but in association with other elements of nature, such as birds, clouds, birds, flowers and human beings." But in regard to the last, though fashion may change, for some time it seemed:

Women were a bonus and a tree
There must be some affinity,
In summer, as one feels
The other quilted leafage reveals.

In winter, ladies' necks and trees
And the trees go bare.

Family Services Expand

SCOTT ORFALD

Scott Orfald heads the family services department, one an area of the Children's Aid Society that is rapidly changing its public image.

Statistics show that almost half of the cases handled by the department are self-referrals. It is in this regard that this is a good place to go for help.

Operating under an Act that grants the Children's Aid Society the right to remove children from a home for their own protection, the department's goal, nevertheless, is to keep the family together wherever possible.

" The majority of cases we work with are those where the children are kept in the home," Mr. Orfald says.

" Out of 181 families being worked with at the end of August, there were 104 children involved. Only part of those children were in the care of the society."

More and more, however, the stress is placed on assisting people to deal properly with specific problems. Helping families get financial aid, or arrange accomodation all personal counselling of individuals is the responsibility of the social worker assigned to a case.

" We are moving towards the ideal of being more preventative," Mr. Orfald says.

Mr. Orfald "I expect in years to come that 95 per cent of our cases will be voluntary referrals.

" There is a trend, in Belleville and elsewhere, to recognize and seek out social aid. Life becomes more complex, there's more problems to deal with."

The bulk of our referrals are for neglect of children," says Mr. Orfald. "Inadequate supervision, lack of good parental guidance, child abuse can be the reason a family is reported by neighbours, relatives, or by teachers.

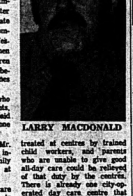
" Actually, 67 per cent of the children in our care are in foster homes. We have fewer young children than we used to, mainly because family units with difficulties are caught sooner now by other social services in the county. There's more community support to prevent families from hitting rock bottom.

" Still, it doesn't take much to make marginal income families break down.

One area of family services is shrinking in size. Since last year, the job of dealing with unmarried mothers has shifted from a full-time job to a half-time position. Social acceptance has meant that fewer girls consider giving up their babies for adoption.

" Studies show that children of single parents have no more incidence of problems than those in two parent families," says Mr. Orfald.

Included in the ten social workers of the family services department, are a social assistance officer who deals with finance, and a court worker who deals with family and juvenile court.



LARRY MACDONALD

Located at centres by trained child workers, and parents who are unable to give good all-day care could be relieved of that stress by the centres. There is also a city-operated day care centre that provides help in this area, but is already needed, says Mr. MacDonald.

More Foster Homes Needed

"You might say that I represent the second layer of the Children's Aid Society," says Larry MacDonald, head of the child care department.

"Scott Orfald is the first layer the public sees, of protection and intake, and I'm the next one, providing alternate care for children in our custody.

"Joy Womacott is our homefinder, locating suitable foster homes. We have a constant need for homes that will take children on a temporary basis, some times we realize is quite difficult to find.

"But in order to effect a good placement, you need many homes to choose from, to get the best possible family for a child. At the present time, 81 of our 99 foster homes are in use, which means we have only eight available in the entire county. That's not enough."

What Mr. MacDonald and his staff look for are parents who can give children high quality care, physically, mentally, emotionally.

"Religious affiliation isn't a prerequisite," says Mr. MacDonald, "but we usually find that foster parents are the kind of giving people who have a disposition for commitment and involvement. And I believe me, needs to do it for money. The amount they receive per child is very small, especially considering the total care they give."

Looking into the future, Mr. MacDonald can see new areas for his department to cover.

"Families that might have remained borderline are now crushed by overwhelming economic pressures. I think we have to get to families before they break.

"Intervention by social workers can be used more as a preventative measure. Also, I'd like to see more education given to parents and potential parents."

Being a parent under any circumstances is a task needing a lot of knowledge, patience and commitment. Training for the specific job of parenting should be available to all parents, and required for foster parents, according to Mr. MacDonald. People who are already "naturally" good parent would become even better equipped with training.

"I believe there is an important role for trained foster parents, who would graduate from a family course as community workers. These professional parents could then handle the "difficult" children we now send to Kingston because regular foster homes can't handle them.

"We have enough now who work as group home parents, but only one parent is paid for the job. The other parent works outside the home."

Another project that Mr. MacDonald is working to investigate is a series of family education courses, starting at the high school level.

Also, he sees day care centres as a useful tool in keeping families intact.

Stories By Isabel Huggan

Baby Sold, Price — $5

VANCOUVER (CP) — An eight-month-old boy who was sold for $5 in the care of Children's Aid Society, and the woman who bought him says she would like to adopt him.

"I fell in love with him," said Katherine Pelletier, 42. "He's adorable."

She said her two children, aged 9 and 13, also want to keep him.

Mrs. Pelletier and her husband Charles, 50, met a woman Tuesday who said she was the baby's mother.

The couple admired the baby and jokingly asked the woman what she would take for the baby.

"She said $5 and my husband pulled out his wallet, still thinking it was a joke, and said he'd pay it," Mrs. Pelletier. "He half pulled out a $5 bill and the woman grabbed it and pushed the baby into my arms."

The woman handed them a paper bag with four disposable diapers and a half-filled bottle of milk and hurried away.

The couple waited a few feet away and turned back and said: By the way, his name is Samuel,' but the rest was gone.

The couple took the child home and kept him overnight before calling police Wednesday. Police said the child was in good condition.

Simple Dignified Burial —Just Like Her Cat

Dear Ann Landers: Our dear little cat was killed by a car last evening. My son brought the still warm body home, wrapped in orange plastic. I held it in my arms for the last time while the children prepared his grave in the backyard. Our son, Jeff, lowered the body beside him. We substituted bronze for gold on the plaque. My body would turn to dust as soon as possible.

We each planted a handful of earth in the grave and then he was buried. The children are going to plant 25 marigolds on the grave tomorrow. That's the color he was and that's the number of toes he had.

We conversed in low tones. A simple, unostentatious burial it certainly was. I asked him for myself when the time comes. To be buried quickly, close to where he is now—forever. And with only my loved ones present. No mourners with mockery smiles, hearses, music, etc.

Is this legal? Does one need to obtain a death certificate before burial? Can my lawyer override it? Do you suppose having a grave on one's own property would be psychically harmful to whoever continues living?—Buried in Boston

Dear Wesleyan: My funeral director in Chicago tells me you can have as simple and unostentatious a burial as you like. If you can't, why bury loved ones present, but tell your next of kin that you don't want a big funeral. And don't forget to put it in writing with the help of a lawyer. Cremation is the most economy, unless you die from a communicable disease.

Most cities do not permit burials in backyards. If you live in the country it might be allowed. The local health department has complete jurisdiction.

There is no legal requirement that a grave be marked, but a death certificate is mandatory and must be signed by a physician and produced at burial. Most health departments for a burial permit. My local embalmer-funeral director must also sign and be responsible for the final disposition of a human body.

In answer to your last question: Would it be psychologically harmful to some to have a loved one buried so close? It depends. Some might find it comforting, others wouldn't be able to get a decent night's sleep.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I do not smoke. We decided several months ago to not ask them to refrain from smoking in our home. We wouldn't you think they would take the hint when they see no ashtrays? Should we do something?—Irked

Dear Irked: MCP-1 Nicotine addicts are often deaf, dumb and blind, also incredibly insensitive. When it comes to hint, do I suggest you be realistic and put out the ashtrays and open the windows.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 61-year-old man and I'm going to marry a man 67. He is in good health, goes through at least two medium-sized heart attacks. Sexually he is somewhat slow, but when it comes to companionship he is super! But I don't mind. I've had enough sex to last me a lifetime.

Here's the problem is, he wants me to sign a pre-nuptial agreement settlement for 30 per cent of his holdings, plus the home and cars. His children will get the rest.

If I give this man seven years of happiness I think I'm entitled to whatever he has. His children are both married and financially well off. My two daughters married home and could use an inheritance. What do you say?—Practical In Philly

Dear Philly: See a lawyer and learn what the law in your state says about a wife's legal share of a husband's estate.

If you are 44 and he is 67 and has had two "mediocre-sized heart attacks" (whatever that means), I don't know how many years of happiness you can give him. But, I hope you don't come off as crass and commercial to him as you did to me.

Dear Ann Landers: This is a champagne plea on behalf of a great institution, the free public library. Many people don't know of the valuable services we offer—the records, the scriptures to dozens of popular and technical magazines—we have phone books for the larger cities, photocopy machines (10 cents each), "how to" books on become tax, consumer guides—information that can save thousands of dollars.

We also answer questions. I have been asked such things as: "How do you spell Chautauqua? Who are my ancestors? Does a flower grow anything under the Hilo? (No). My washing machine is broken. Fix it. Where do I complain? Who led the Charge of the Light Brigade? When is National Pickle Week? How do you say Merry Christmas in Polish? What diseases can people get from turtles? Are there records of the custom of shaking hands begin? Why do cathouses have a half moon on the door?

Please print this letter and let your readers know that we have for them.—M.M., A Happy Librarian

Dear Happy: Here's your letter and I'm glad you wrote. But what you'll probably get is flooded with phone calls from people who will answer all some more of these questions, plus those who are too lazy to pick up a dictionary.

Successful Living

Should Husband Stay Home To Nurse His Sick Wife?

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My husband and I have been having a disagreement. I was sick recently and asked him to stay home with me, as I'm not a very good patient.

He owns his own business and could have stayed home. He said I should keep our oldest daughter from school to care for me. She is 12.

Who is right?—Sick

Dear Sick: I find myself asking questions like these: Was the business so busy that he felt he had to go to it first? Does he feel so inadequate around the home that he dreaded the thought of staying with you and the child? Has the state of affairs been so good that just a mute assocrasy in which you now have him thoroughly spoiled by waiting on him?

Daughters do sometimes stay home from school to nurse sick mothers, and thoroughly capable of doing so; and of catching up on schoolwork later. But this does not always, it too, and if she is in one of those types who gets ill every hour at school, perhaps she gets the priority — or should better have.

A happy compromise might be worked out for Shirley to pay for a visiting housemaker to take charge for the time when your illness really called for it. Then, if she's about equipped with a bit of practical nursing thrown in, I can't settle your problem, but you and your husband can ask yourselves and find all the questions I suggest here.

Confidential in Fifty and Feeling a Hundred: Oh come now. It can't be that bad. I suggest: Take a good walk every day. Study nutrition and make a revolutionary change in your eating habits to get the extra weight off.

Manage to get five every night; learn how to use today's make-up to bring out nature. Buy one good dress that fits the new line — when you have taken off 12 pounds.

In meeting people, after tiptoeing to look at a child think about them, not you. You know enough about feeling bashful to enter into the other fellow's feelings. Put him at ease. Be not afraid to be what he is doing and thinking. Not easy to do all these new habits. But I am throwing you a life belt. Grab it and hold on!

'Canadians Short-Change Children'

TORONTO (CP) — Patricia MacKay, president of the Canadian Council on Children and Youth, returned from a visit to China more convinced than ever that Canada is short-changing their children.

Mrs. MacKay, a 30-year veteran of volunteer work, said that the Chinese system for integrating children of their work ethic of an early age is a more realistic approach than the Western concept of idle children compared from the work world until their vocational training is completed.

"That isolation," she said, "often lasts 25 years until a child finishes university."

Mrs. MacKay, 59, who visited schools in Shanghai, Nanking and Kwangchow with 30 representatives of the Canadian Association for Adult Education, said Chinese children are taught self-reliance at an early age.

"They are also taught the value of work—academic work, along with their academic learning."

She said she was shocked at first to see five-and six-year-olds spending part of their school day doing simple assembly work, until she realized that what they were doing was no different from the children at play who assemble blocks to play houses.

"Only the work the Chinese children were doing was valuable," she said. Once Chinese youngsters reach the age of 10 they have to spend a half day a week in factory production.

Widow, 60 Swindled

TORONTO (CP) — Elder Flo. kinson, a 60-year-old widow from Toronto, lost $9,000 in the latest fraud-money swindle, police said Thursday.

Mrs. Finkelman told police she had two women who showed her a package they claimed to have found and said it contained $20,000 in cash and a $20,000 bond.

One woman said she would split her loot with Mrs. Finkelman the first and returned to say each of the three should get $6,000, but the lawyer would need cash as collateral to get the bond cashed.

Mrs. Finkelman withdrew $5,000 from the bank and arranged for $4,000 more loan with her bosses as security.

All three returned to Mrs. Finkelman's apartment and one woman left with her $9,000 in the money to her lawyer. Later, when the other woman left, Mrs. Finkelman realized she had been duped.

Scouts Prepared

ST. CATHERINES (CP) — The local district council of the Boy Scouts of Canada followed closely the motto "Be prepared," in beating inflation at their annual meeting Wednesday.

Bob Metcalfe, district commissioner, said the scouts decided to prepare food themselves and hold the banquet at their lodge at a cost of about $1 a person, after they learned a catered banquet would cost about $3.35 a head this year.

Appointed

OTTAWA (CP) — Gordon Lockhart Bennett of Charlottetown, a former member of the held several provincial government portfolios, was appointed Thursday as lieutenant-governor of Prince Edward Island.

Prime Minister Trudeau's office announced the appointment Thursday.

Coins Stolen

OTTAWA (CP) — Three Montreal men are being held in connection with the theft of a rare coin collection at Stittsville, Ont., on Oct. 12, police said.

The three were arrested late Wednesday in a Montreal home and brought here by Det. Insp. William Broyles of the Ontario Provincial Police criminal investigation branch.

Edward Bawden, 31, Gilles Thomas Landers, 26, and Steven Vasilaeomopoulo, 22, face charges of conspiracy to commit armed robbery, armed robbery and abduction.

CLAUDE BENNETT

Danger Seen

TORONTO (CP) — Claude Bennett, Ontario minister of industry and tourism, said yesterday a federal law giving preferred tariffs on automotive parts to 160 countries might harm the Canadian automotive parts industry.

In a speech to the Automotive Parts Manufacturers' Association, Mr. Bennett said duty-free access for auto products from Brazil, Argentina, Venezuela and Mexico is a potential threat.

Project Doubted

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. (CP) — Allan Rodgers, president of the New Glasgow and District Building and Construction Trades Council, said Thursday he feels the Shabeen refinery proposed for the Strait of Canso will never be built.

Mr. Rodgers, whose labor group has been trying for months to reach agreements with SNAM Progetti of Italy, the prime contractor for the refinery, said industrialist John Shabeen and the provincial government are being evasive about the $200 million refinery because they realize it will never proceed.

Study Plan

HALIFAX (CP) — Studies are progressing on a major hydro-electric development proposed for Wreck Cove in Cape Breton despite a trend to nuclear power, Premier Gerald Regan said Thursday.

In an interview, Mr. Regan said the Wreck Cove project is still a government priority and work will definitely go ahead.

Bishop Quits

Bishop Maguire, 51, became one of the youngest Anglican bishops ever in Canada when elected at the age of 39.

Lawyers Bicker, Annoying Sirica

WASHINGTON (AP) — Exasperated by bickering among lawyers, the judge at the Watergate cover-up trial has threatened to act to prevent "a carnival atmosphere."

"I mean it," U.S. District Judge John Sirica said Thursday. "If I don't get the co-operation I want, I'm going to have to do something about it." What that something is, he didn't say.

But it might include censure or a contempt-of-court citation.

Sirica lectured the lawyers as former Nixon counsel John Dean was in his seventh day on the witness stand. Dean was expected to complete his testimony today after some final cross examination and then return to prison.

As for second witness, the government plans to call Herbert Stans, the former CIA agent and White House consultant, who pleaded guilty to being one of the principals in the Watergate break-in.

But pointing out that Dean co-operated with the investigation "only grudgingly after he was given immunity," the government asked that the court — rather than the prosecution — adopt Stans as its witness.

In such a case neither the prosecution nor defence vouches for a witness's credibility and it allows both sides to ask leading questions.

The trial of H. R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman, John Mitchell, Robert Mardian and Kenneth Parkinson, all charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice, was in its 19th day today.

Dean was the first witness called.

The arguments and objections had increased in frequency in the last few days, involving at times the judge and one or another of the defence lawyers, prosecution and defence, and even defence lawyer against defence lawyer.

"There is finger-pointing in this courtroom, there probably will be more of it," Sirica's man's temper, William Frates said at one point.

He wasn't long before the statement was borne out.

Frates attempted to ask Dean a question based on a tape recording of a meeting he had with former president Richard Nixon and Haldeman Dec. 21, 1972.

That was the conversation to which Nixon agreed with Haldeman that the FBI should be ordered away from investigations of the Watergate break-in, which Nixon said "could open the whole can of worms."

The jury had not heard the tape and Assistant prosecutor James Neal objected to the question. He warned that if the questions were permitted he would play the tape.

"We want that tape in here right now," Frates shouted, banging his hands on the judge's bench.

"We do, too," said Neal. Hurriedly, the judge sent the jury from the room.

"Mr. Frates has an obligation only to represent the defendant Ehrlichman," Neal said. "How-

Labor Minister Halted Dismissal of Official

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Labor Minister Jean Cournoyer intervened two years ago to save the job of a provincial government construction official in charge of hiring at the James Bay hydroelectric power project, an inquiry into construction union freedoms was told Thursday.

The inquiry was set up last March following a series of violent labor incidents at the LG-2 camp on the project in northern Quebec.

Claude Morineau, assistant deputy minister of labor, said the inquiry, headed by Judge Robert Cliche, that he fired Yvon Bergeron from the job but Mr. Cournoyer rescinded the order three days later.

Mr. Morineau said he wanted Mr. Bergeron removed "because I didn't think he was capable of doing the job and we had a more qualified and experienced man for the position."

Mr. Bergeron was described ever, as a representative of the United States I have an obligation Mr. Frates doesn't have. I have an obligation to see to it that every defendant in this jury gets a fair trial."

"Keep your blood pressure down, keep cool," said the judge.

John Wilson, Haldeman's lawyer who had his battles with the judge earlier in the week, agreed to the tape being played. The judge looked at Mitchell's lawyer, William Hundley.

"I'm neutral in this," said Hundley. Laughter both around the air.

Shaking his head, Sirica said: "The problem with you lawyers is you like to try your cases in opening speeches and that is not the way to do it."

Friday: Who are you referring to, Mr. Neal?

Sirica: All of you.

He then called a recess.

Returning to the court, with the jury still out, he said he wanted to make a statement. He talked about the trial being a serious case and said: "I don't want this case to have what they call a carnival atmosphere to it. We ought to try it like any other case, not just because it gets a lot of publicity all over the world, so to speak."

Business Groups Worried About High Rates of Wages

OTTAWA (CP) — Wage rates, considered to be too high, emerged as a central element in a campaign to brake the economy presented to the finance minister Thursday by the two largest business associations in the country.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce in its brief suggested the government prepare a detailed study to sort out how much of inflation is caused by domestic conditions and how much is imported.

The Canadian Manufacturers' Association (CMA) endorsed the approach already outlined publicly by Finance Minister John Turner.

The CMA had been advocating earlier this year a so-called summit conference of government, business and labor on inflation but this was not mentioned in the new brief.

The presentations from the two largest associations representing business contained their ideas on what should be in the federal budget due next month.

The CMA is seeking measures to hold down wage levels and consumer protection from competition. It is seeking a study of

Not Gamblers

LINCOLN, Ont. (CP) — Town council has rejected a proposal that might have given it $1 million—with a great deal of luck.

Ald. John Vdoviak suggested Wednesday that council buy three Olympic lottery tickets with tax money. The cost, he said, would be $30 and the town stood to win $1 million if one of the three tickets was drawn as first prize.

Ald. Gladys Huffman said the idea was "just plain silly" and Ald. Russell High said the proposal might cause "too much flack."

Study Conservation

Rhodesian Children Attend First Conservation School

PORT VICTORIA, Rhodesia (AP) — At a unique school in nearby Matusadonha National Park conservation courses are held for children in their last year of primary school.

The Rhodesian Courses for the Conservation of the Environment, started in January, 1972, provide the world's first nature-conservation school for children.

The children are provided with a practical knowledge of the inter-relationship of all living things and the government hopes that as they come to recognize the need to preserve their heritage they will also influence their parents.

The school is operated by the ministry of education and the department of national parks and wildlife management. Each child pays a nominal fee to attend the school.

The park is considered ideal for the school. Never a high-density tourist attraction, it is accessible from Rhodesia's major centres and is both healthy and safe for the children.

It is free of dangerous animals but abounds in other wildlife. Antelope species include sable, waterbuck, kudu, impala, reedbuck, blue steenbok, grysbok and klipspringer. There are also a number of small carnivores such as mongoose and side-striped jackal.

The variety of bird life is fantastic. The eagle population alone includes seven different species.

The Mushandike Dam also gives the children the opportunity to study the many species of waterfowl as well as fish as bass, barbel, eels, bream, mudsuckers, dwarf tiger and the Limpopo yellow.

There is a wide variety of vegetation and examples of bushmen's paintings can be found in caves in the park. The rock types bear traces of such minerals as gold, chrome and asbestos.

An old rest camp on the shores of the dam has been modified to meet the requirements of the school. There are separate dormitories for boys and girls and 30 children are taken on the week-long courses. Since the school began, several thousand children have attended.

The children arrive on a Sunday and the classes divide into two groups, for most of the field work. There is little formal study, but a definite work schedule is followed.

On Tuesdays, for example, a conservation and extension department official gives a talk on the soil-grass animal relationship. Pupils then go into the field for a practical assessment of what they have been told.

In the afternoons there is outdoor activity such as rock climbing or boating. Monday and Tuesday evenings see the class broken into small groups for night expeditions. Wednesday there is a full day's camping trip into the bush.

The children visit the Zimbabwe ruins—a monument to a people still unknown who in the past built with the stone buildings.

The week ends with a braaivleis (barbecue) and the next morning the children and hosts will discuss topics which will be used for exhibitions at their own schools.

The instructors have found the school has made a contribution to the children far beyond the confines of conservation. Many with a record of difficulty in studying have made astounding progress after attending the school. Tinidi children have finished the course with a tremendous pride of achievement and greater self-confidence.

Officials plan to have children as young as 7 or 8 attend similar courses and also to give the opportunity to high-school children.

The plan is to extend the school so that it can take 100 pupils. Children are accompanied by a master and mistress from their own school and two student teachers.

Every homeowner concerned about the cost of heating should read this booklet.

It's free at building supply dealers who sell Fiberglas* Insulation.

It tells you everything you need to know about insulation. Where you need it and where you don't. How to order it. How to put it in. What tools you need. Even how much you can expect to save on your fuel bill.

The booklet takes about 15 or 20 minutes to read and if you follow the suggestions made, it could save you a lot of money on your fuel bill. In case you can't get hold of one immediately, the basic story goes like this.

1 You need at least 6" of insulation in your attic. Heat rises. If you don't have enough insulation in the attic, heat will rise through the ceiling, into the attic and be wasted.

At today's fuel prices that's expensive waste. It's going to get worse. The price of fuel is going up even more, according to both the Government and the energy industry.

Now is the time to do something about your insulation, so you can heat your house with less fuel.

2 Even if your home is brand new, it may be under-insulated. Most houses in this country don't have 6" of insulation in the attic because the building codes don't call for 6".

Those codes were set in 1965 when fuel cost much less than it does now—and a fraction of what it's going to cost tomorrow.

So don't count on your present insulation to protect you. It won't, unless you have at least 6" in the attic.

3 Yes, you can do it yourself. Your local Building Supply Dealer has Fiberglas* Home Insulation products that you can install yourself, very easily. If you have no insulation at all, you need Fiberglas Kraft-faced batts, which have a built-in vapour barrier. If you're adding to your present insulation, you can do the job easily with Fiberglas Friction-fit batts or Fiberglas Pouring wool.

Our how-to-do-it booklet will give you full details and your building supply dealer will help you figure out exactly how much you need.

If you're not the do-it-yourself type, an insulation contractor can do the job for you.

Either way, you're not talking a fortune, because insulation is not expensive material.

4 Insulation won't do it all. There are some other things you should do to cut down the amount of fuel you use. Make sure your storm windows and doors fit tightly. If you don't have storm windows, cover the outside of the windows with lightweight poly. Caulk cracks and chinks around doors and windows and put weather stripping around all outside doors.

Change your furnace air filter at least 4 times during the heating season and replace with Fiberglas* DUST-STOP Filters. Install a humidifier. And turn your thermostat down at night or when you're out for the day.

But the most important thing of all is to stop that heat loss through the ceiling, into the attic, and that means at least 6" of insulation.

One last thing to remember. When you decide to add insulation, make sure you get the "Real McCoy", glass fibre insulation that's coloured pink and made by Fiberglas Canada Ltd.

Harbor Projects Proposed

With water levels at or near their autumn low, the city's Harbor Improvement Committee has agreed to seek permission from city council and other concerned bodies to proceed with a number of projects that can only be done in the fall.

Committee chairman, Alderman Sin Meeks, emphasized that the proposed work would be done with the funds already allocated to the committee and it was savings on earlier job that made the proposed projects possible.

First on the list is a permanent concrete pier and launching ramp behind and beside the Wharf Street Boating Club, with a floating dock.

Second is replacement of the wooden hydro poles on the yacht club access road with concrete poles and removing them away from the waterfront.

Also on the books is cleanup of the north end of the inner harbor and installation of wired rock gabions such as those along the river.

Finally, to be recommended is the addition of more floating docks on the west side of Victoria Park.

Visitor on the Mend

Great Horned Owl is recuperating at the Elmwood Drive bird sanctuary of George Woodhouse. The bird was found wounded by conservation officers at Point Petre and turned over to Mr. Woodhouse for treatment. "He's coming along fine," said the Belleville fire captain. "He'll be flying in a week."

Mohawks Critical of MP

TYENDINAGA — The comments of Jack Ellis, MP Hastings on the dispute among the Mohawk here, today were called "spoiled and unfair". The criticism came from Brant Maracle, a spokesman for the protesters, who was elected council on the Tyendinaga reserve.

Mr. Maracle also said there would be no Mohawks appointed of the reserve community centre. In recent weeks such action had led to the deterioations between the Mohawk.

However, he said Mr. Ellis had only heard one side of the issue.

Mr. Ellis had not conferred with Mohawks appointed council Mr. Indian-owned corporation on the reserve, said Mr. Maracle. He questioned how the MP could "take such a strong position" and "put position" in the dispute.

Thursday, after provincial police had been called in the reserve, Mr. Ellis said he supported the elected council led by Chief William Brant.

"This is an internal problem for the Indian people to settle," said Mr. Maracle. "We don't want the OPP or Jack Ellis to settle it for us."

The group's battle was with the Indian Affairs department and the federal government which is "pushing corporate structures on reserves" and "dealing" with the non-controversial 1969 White Paper.

He denied a statement by Mr. Ellis that the group was trying to take the law into its own hands.

"We are opposed to violence per se and have demonstrated for months through peaceful means, trying to get attention to this issue to the satisfaction of the majority of the people we've serve's Mohawks," said Mr. Maracle.

"We have made our point and it is not our present intention to block further meetings of the self-appointed band council," said Mr. Maracle.

He said the council has been dissolved by "the will of the people". The Mohawks will vote in an election — called by the group Wednesday — on Nov. 20.

"Let the Mohawk people decide the outcome of this present crisis by the voting booth."

He said the group was in favor of progress on the reserve. But it is progress without surrender and "the intrusion of foreign bodies and government under the corporate structure.

Rehabilitation Week — the week-long, seminar-and-an annual project is professional and community education at Belleville General Hospital — will be held Nov. 11-15.

The presentations this year range from sports injuries to alcoholism to learning disabilities.

Professionals from universities, health and education agencies join local doctors and members of BGH's various departments for the five-day program.

The presentations include films, discourses by experts and panel discussions in which the public can question the professionals.

Programming for each day follows a similar schedule. Afternoons and afternoons will involve professional seminars with public programs at night.

Public schedule for the week at BGH's Education all:

Nov. 11, 8 p.m., Sports Injuries — Panelists from Queen's University job local doctors and therapists for discussion.

Nov. 12, 7.25 p.m., Epilepsy — Participating include experts from Ontario Epileptic Association and Metro Toronto and the community and social services ministry.

Nov. 13, 7.25 p.m., Arthritis — Panelists include doctors and therapists from Kingston General Hospital, Queen's and BGH.

Nov. 14, 8 p.m., Alcoholism — Discussion will include officials from the Addiction Research Foundation, psychiatric and rehabilitation experts.

Nov. 15, 7.25 p.m., Educating the Handicapped Child — Hospital and school psychologists team on panel with doctors, government and community association representatives.

Delegation On Bridge Proposed

PICTON — Prince Edward County council will contact James Taylor, M.A. Prince Edward — Lennox for advice concerning the advisability of representation to the minister of transportation and communications regarding the proposed relocation of the new Bay Bridge.

The decision followed debate after acting warden Russell Thompson, reeve of Ameliasburgh, read an intelligence memo from Ottawa offering to the Belleville city council delegation planning to meet with John Rhodes.

The acting warden said he considered the new bridge more important to Prince Edward County than to the city of Belleville.

"We appear to be left out in the cold," said North Marysburgh Reeve Jack Wells.

Reeve Wells said Prince Edward is "more vitally interested" than Belleville about why the city has been considered first in so many occasions.

County clerk Thomas Walter pointed out the ministry is planning a study and will eventually meet with the municipalities. He suggested, in future, council should permit the study to take place without sending a delegation.

"I think you would just be delaying the thing," he observed.

Picton Reeve Ross Crookshank thanked the clerk for contact stating, "Too often we've been quiet and a squeaky wheel outside the county has gotten the grease."

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters had only one call in the 24-hour period ending at 8:30 a.m. today.

Thursday, Oct. 24, 8:30 p.m. — 494 Bleecker Ave., grease on kitchen stove on fire.

Get Ready, Metres Are Coming

By the year 1978 a person travelling by train from Belleville will have about 200 kilometres ahead of him, driving at a speed of about 130 kilometres an hour.

Confusing? It would have been perfectly clear to those attending the public seminar Thursday night at Centennial Secondary School, sponsored by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, the local chamber, by doing this because the first one in Ontario to sponsor a similar on metric system.

By 1977-78 Canada is expected to begin implementing the metric system now in the investigation stage.

By 1978 the country will be in the planning stages of the system and the year after in the actual stage, with implementation set for 1977-78.

Explaining the system before an audience of about 100 was H. R. Shaver, assistant Director Engineering Industries Plans, who came in from Ottawa.

Mr. Shaver explained by means of slides and a film how 80 per cent of the world is now using the metric system and how 20 per cent of world trade is carried on under that system.

In fact, he said Canada and the United States were the only two major countries not to use the metric system.

Mr. Shaver explained during the meeting that Canada's first mention of the metric system came in an 1871 textbook but it wasn't until 1970 that the country first began considering it.

Already he said many road signs in Canada are in kilometres rather than miles and grocery stores use weight measures in grams as well as ounces.

To make things easier, he said that the metric system works like the decimal system, using multiples of 10 that figures would be rounded off.

Mr. Shaver after the meeting said that although would be difficult for some people "especially for the technical field person who will have more work to do".

"But once the change is implemented it will be a lot easier. It's not really all that complicated," he said about the metric system.

"Once the initial period of learning is over it will be much easier. For one thing cross comparison shopping will be easier and can be done right in the store.

"And it may be expensive for some industries or businesses who will have to bear the cost. But they will soon find that they are working with something more efficient than before," said Mr. Shaver.

"World trade has increased since the Second World War and with 80 per cent of world trade being done in the metric system, Canada will benefit from the change."

Mr. Shaver said it was in 1970 that the Canadian federal government came up with the white paper on the metric system. He said government will not make the decision on the timetable when conversion will be implemented in various areas, such as education and agriculture. The various factors will decide themselves.

He said that there will be a gradual process of changing over equipment. Something such as changing miles per hour to kilometres per hour on a car's speedometer will mean just putting a decal over the present reading and adding the new one.

The metric system first came into use during the French Revolution in the 1790s and has since spread to such an extent that 95 per cent of the world follows such a system. Australia was the most recent country to convert to the metric way of doing things.

Drinking Problem Nets Six Months

55-year-old man was sentenced by Judge J. L. Clendenning in provincial court Thursday to six months in jail and order to pay a month on a separate charge for theft under $200. Both sentences, to run concurrently with time served in Minden, along with treatment for an alcohol problem.

Mr. Osmond Woods was charged with break and enter after he and another man broke into the Lazy Eight Steak House and Tavern on Dundas St. W., on Aug. 14.

Testimony revealed that the door leading to the basement had a small hole in the bottom and when Constable Gary Lester arrived at about 11:30 that evening, he found the back door slightly ajar.

He was joined a short while later by Constable William Bowen. Constable Lester said that Mr. Woods was found sitting on the floor inside with the steak house. Constable Brock revealed he was drinking a beer straight from the bottle.

The other man found with Mr. Woods inside the steak house was sentenced to 30 days in jail.

Mr. Woods inside the steak house was set in court Thursday.

Testimony from Constable Dave Thomas, who arrived to take pictures at about 4 a.m. revealed that missing from the place was a quantity of liquor, cigarettes and frozen meat which were found in a shrubbery box near the front entrance.

Mr. Woods pleaded guilty to being in Fape's Steak House but said he didn't remember how he got there. He said the last thing he remembered was being on the road.

He told crown attorney Glenn Deline that he had been drinking on the day of the incident "about four or five bottles of wine and a bottle of whisky".

Prior to pronouncing sentence, Judge Clendenning said he wanted Mr. Woods to get treatment for his drinking problem.

The conviction on the theft charge relates to a June 19 incident in which Mr. Woods was found guilty of stealing a painting from Belleville General Hospital.

Undercover Work Works

City police chief Douglas Crosbie revealed to the Police Commission Board Thursday that undercover work by a city policeman working in cooperation with an RCMP officer has resulted in 29 persons being charged with 100 counts during a period of four months in the Hastings Prince Edward area.

Chief Crosbie made known the fact that the person including one juvenile charged with drug-related charges ranging from cultivation to trafficking resulted from work of the police officer between June 1 and Oct. 4. The charges were made from June 20 until the present.

In one incident 770 marijuana plants (about 36 pound) were seized. There were two cases of cultivation being instigated by the two and a large raid was made in the Colborne Peterborough area this summer.

Chief Crosbie said he was pleased with the results and stressed the close cooperation between the city police officer and the RCMP production of such an outcome.

He said that the undercover officer worked under the RMCP and all charges were laid by the RCMP.

School Delayed

Nature has conspired against Foxboro Senior Elementary School, the latest construction north of the village.

The well, which tested as "very good" adequate after it was drilled, went dry this fall when it was put into use for construction workers at the site. The Hasting county board of education is now searching for an alternate site for drilling of another well.

This month, the foot of wall, weakened by a strong windstorm, collapsed. The collapse is no liability to the board, but it will delay the project by five days.

The school is being built under a construction management scheme for a total cost of $989,821

Police Car In Collision

A collision between a city police cruiser and another vehicle resulted in close to $1,000 damage to the two vehicles.

Constable David Leavey, 22, was travelling south on N. Front St. and a car driven by Randall J. McGarvey, 21, of Lemoine St., travelling east on College St. collided at the intersection.

Mr. McGarvey, and two passengers, Laurie Cheever, 20 and Jerry Donavan, 17, were all treated and released from hospital.

Damage to the police vehicle was to the front while the left front, rear and side of the McGarvey vehicle were damaged.

The accident occurred about 11:10 Thursday night.

Land Experiment a Success

Since last spring, seven new industries have located in an experimental development in the city's northwest industrial park.

While industrial commissioner Fred Bemis has no truly firm commitments from a couple of industries, he believes last winter that the city will not be catering to just large industry but also to the smaller type which required less land.

After approval from the city and the industrial commission, 20 acres of land were designated in the park as a cul de sac — granted to handle small, industrial sites.

Since the area was serviced this spring, it has been completely sold — a transaction in return for the city's and the industrial commission's good planning," said Mr. Bemis.

The seven companies are A. Armstrong Ltd., Signal Foods Ltd., H. Ryder (signed an option) each for the final parcel of land), Molient Foods Ltd., Dixie Lee Foods Ltd., Olivetti Ltd. and Canadian Beach Industries Ltd.

The main benefits derived from these industries includes 151 jobs for Quinte workers that will generate a annual income of $1.1 million.

"This annual payroll is calculated on the most recent statistics available from the Canada Manpower, that is $143 a week in the manufacturing field.

In addition to this, the city receives $146,000 in tax revenue from the cul de sac.

"There is no tax burden on the general ratepayer for the provision of land or services to the park," said Mr. Bemis. "All costs connected to the development have been or are being recovered through the price of the land as it is sold to the companies. According to the most recent transaction between the city and J. H. Ryder, land is selling for $6,500 an acre.

The cul de sac has been completed and we (the commission) will likely be developing the opposite side of Bell Blvd. in a similar fashion in the next few years, said Mr. Bemis.

"I had no idea the property would move so quickly," said Mr. Bemis, commenting on the experimental project.

While the plants are in the small to medium size range, the majority are considered as "growth" industries.

According to Mr. Bemis, five of the seven are expected within the next few years to increase their operations in terms of both employee and space figures.

"There are indications that there will be considerable growth within a few years," he said.

A prime consideration in the new industrial park is development in the relation of a park atmosphere, said the industrial commissioner.

Where possible, trees are left and construction takes place around them, said Mr. Bemis. "We want to make the parks aesthetically very pleasant."

"As well as maintaining the parkland appearance, the commission asks that buildings constructed be a pastel blend harmoniously and be compatible with both the landscape and their neighbors," he said.

"A good, clean, well-planned industrial park does a lot for employee morale."

As far as the cul de sac goes, he foresees no terrific sales — "but the commission is very pleased," said Mr. Bemis.

Making Music

About 70 teachers gathered at the education centre Wednesday to participate in a music workshop based on the new curriculum guides drawn up this summer. Music is a regular part of all elementary school classroom instruction and the new course of study builds on the Kodaly method and threshhold to music charts in use here for some time. Jim Kowalski, Carol Fulton, Rosemary Spalding and Heather Grant make teaching aids in a "make and take" session at the workshop.

Plant Under Way

Walls are beginning to form for Signet Foods Ltd., the latest addition to Belleville's northwest industrial park, announced earlier this week. A company spokesman said during an interview the plant is scheduled to begin operation in March as a distribution outlet for eastern Ontario.

Goals Pour in on 67's

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Despite having had 34 goals scored against them in their last three games, Ottawa '67's cling to a two-point margin atop the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A standings.

The '67s were humbled 11-4 by Sudbury Wolves for their third consecutive loss in one of two games Thursday.

Peterborough Petes and London Knights played to a 3-3 tie in the other contest.

The '67s, who now have allowed 74 goals in 13 games—six more than they have managed, last 10-4 in Sault Ste. Marie Tuesday and 13-1 Sunday in Toronto. They now have an 8-2 record for 16 points, two more than Kingston, Cornwall, Hamilton Fincups and Sudbury.

Randy Carlisle, Rod Schutt and Bobby Russell each had two goals for the Wolves who hold a 3-1 lead after one period and then added seven unanswered goals in the second. Mike Crosilla, John Walker, Randy Burman, Paul Crowley and Geoff Green got the others.

Hal Pearson, Peter Lee, Dan Blair, Dale Ross, Jamie Masters and Tom McDonnell scored for the 'Pts who were outshot 46-43.

At Peterborough, Dwight Schofield's goal with 1:51 remaining in the game salvaged the tie for London.

Doug Halward gave Peterborough a 1-0 first-period lead and Red Laurence put the Petes ahead 2-0 midway through the second.

However, Terry Martin and Rick McIntyre tied it for London before the middle period ended with Mark Perras putting Peterborough ahead early in the third.

London outshot Peterborough 30-25 and took six of the game's 11 penalties.

League play resumes tonight with Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds in London, Kingston playing host to Kitchener Rangers and Toronto Marlboros entertaining the Fincups in Brantford.

Terriers In First

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Orillia Terriers moved into sole possession of first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series Thursday night with a 4-3 victory over Whitby McDonalds.

The Terriers trailed 1-0 at the end of the first period before scoring three goals in the second to tie it and win it in the third.

The winning goal was the result of a gamble by Whitby netminder Bruce Gibson who came out of his net and fanned on a clearing attempt. Dave McCullough picked up the loose puck and tucked it into the net at 9:47 of the final period.

Carnachia got the game's only penalty midway through the first period.

Gibson turned aside 22 shots while Bill Anderson stopped 31 on the Orillia net.

Vachon Baffles Sabres

By Now, Even Punch Must Be Impressed

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

If any doubts remained to Punch Imlach's mind about Rogatien Vachon, they should be gone now.

It was Imlach who several years ago, when he was still coach of Toronto Maple Leafs, downgraded Vachon, then a member of Montreal Canadiens, calling him a Junior B grade goalie.

And it was Imlach's Buffalo Sabres who bombarded Vachon with 35 shots Thursday night and still lost 7-3 against Vachon and Los Angeles Kings.

In Thursday's only other NHL match, Boston Bruins tied St. Louis Blues 4-4.

Don Kozak scored three goals and assisted on scores by Bob Berry and Yuha Wiking to lead the Kings scoring before a home crowd of 9,305.

SCORES TWO GOALS

Wiking had two goals and Bob Berry, 24, scored his sixth goal of the year.

Gil Perreault, with his seventh goal of the season, and Jerry Korab scored for Buffalo.

Garry Bruckley faced only 25 shots in the first two periods in the Sabres' goal but gave up five goals and was replaced by Rocky Farr who stopped another 15 shots in the third period.

Vachon, who now has given up only 17½ goals in four games, faced 21 shots in each of the last two periods.

The win moved Los Angeles into the lead in the Third Division, with 11 points out of eight games.

At Boston, the Bruins earned their second tie in as many nights by pulling the goalie in favor of an extra attacker in the last minute of play.

The Bruins now have only two wins and three ties in seven games.

On Wednesday night, Boston ousted Pittsburgh 42-40 but had to rally a 5-5 tie.

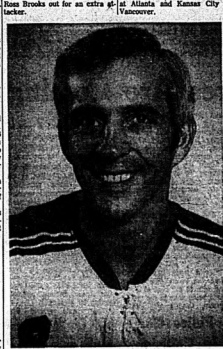
The Bruins had a 47-24 advantage in shots Thursday night but still had to rally from a 2-0 first-period deficit and gained the tie on Bobby Orr's goal with 34 seconds remaining and goalie Ross Brooks out for an extra attacker.

Boston coach Don Cherry said St. Louis goalie John Davidson "was fantastic, but I'm beginning to wonder if it's the goalies or us."

"We had 61 shots in two nights, but we didn't put it in. Two nights in a row we've pulled the goalie and scored. Wow. How many times do you see that."

Pierre Plante scored twice for the Blues who now are only two points behind co-leaders Chicago and Vancouver in the Second Division.

Tonight's schedule has Philadelphia at California, Minnesota at Atlanta and Kansas City at Vancouver.



Ed Giacomin

Ranger Goalie Has Problems

NEW YORK (CP) — Ed Giacomin's world is a troubled place to live in.

The 35-year-old goalie of New York Rangers admits he hates to let it all up inside. And it's been beating his mind into the ground.

Giacomin began his 10th National Hockey League season with the Rangers this year boasting a lifetime goals-against average of 2.96. That's why it's hard for him to understand how he could let 15 goals by him in the first three games of the new season.

The Rangers have been trying out a lot of experimenting with new combinations and in one game three goals were scored off Eddie's own defencemen.

Gillies Villemure spelled Giacomin during the weekend, allowing five goals.

Eddie was back in the nets Wednesday night when only one goal got by him in a 3-1 victory over St. Louis Blues.

Despite the win, Giacomin was deep in the dumps.

"I'm not happy at all with my playing," he said. "That's the whole thing."

Not even against St. Louis?

"No, I just don't feel good. The two games of rest didn't help."

"You have to look at it this way. Sometimes the game is mental a lot of times. A lot of goals west in on me the first three games.

"So when I did sit it out, it had me thinking an awful lot during those times on the bench. I'm not the kind of guy to express himself. I hold it inside.

"When you sit it out for whatever amount of days it takes, you sort of throw your own game off. I found myself out there not feeling good and fighting the puck. It's just not my style. I hope it's over now."

Racers Give Saints Battle

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Minnesota Fighting Saints, a semi-finalist in last season's World Hockey Association playoffs, finally have reached the victory column after a couple of embarrassing losers.

But it was a less-than-glorious 3-2 victory Thursday over Indianapolis Racers in a game that went right down to the wire.

In Thursday's only other WHA game, San Diego Mariners beat Phoenix Roadrunners 2-1.

"We're a long way from the way we can play," Minnesota coach Harry Neale said.

"But we're also a long way from the way we were Tuesday (in an 11-2 loss to Toronto).

"These players are just not playing with the skills they possess. We won this one because we played as hard as they (the Racers) did, but they showed their lack of experience.

"If I didn't know how good they really are, but they gave us all we wanted tonight."

Minnesota now head for a Saturday night game at Houston where the Saints will meet the team that eliminated them from the playoffs in six games last spring.

"It's been a great rivalry with Houston over the years and that's why we wanted to be sure to win this one. I never thought I'd see these two teams (Minnesota and Houston) battling for last place, but Houston has had its problems, too, and that's just what we're doing right now."

Indianapolis, a first-year entry in the WHA, outshot its opponent for the fourth straight game and came up with the same result — another loss.

Indianapolis coach Gerry Moore said: "Again we outshot them and had its problems, too, and that's just what we're doing right now."

Indianapolis coach Gerry Moore said: "Again we outshot them and had its problems, too, and that's just what we're doing right now."

"We've got to learn to score three or four goals some night and we'll win."

"I hope we do it soon."

The young Racers were again hurt by power play goals, as both Tommy O'Brien and Finn Buck scored with Indianapolis a man short. And Murray Hanley spoiled the pitcher early in the third period, giving the Fighting Saints a 2-1 lead.

The Saints got good protection from reserve goalie John Garrett, who was hit with a barrage of 37 Indianapolis shots, while the Racers continued to get good goaltending from Andy Brown, who stopped 29 shots before a penalty shot by Wayne Connelly.

JOHN GARRETT

Norm Ferguson's power-play goal with less than five minutes remaining at San Diego gave the Mariners their third win in four games and they now lead the West Division, one point ahead of Phoenix.

The Mariners worked hard in the victory, pumping 40 shots at the Phoenix goal, protected by Jack Norris. Ross Gilbert made only 23 saves for the San Diego goal.

Tonight's only game has Winnipeg Jets visiting Toronto Toros in a clash of two Canadian Division underdogs.

Tremblay's Counter Nips Americans 2-1

HALIFAX (CP) — Marie Tremblay's goal with 36 seconds left to play Thursday night lifted Nova Scotia Voyageurs to a 2-1 win over Rochester Americans in an American Hockey League game.

Tremblay, who scored the other Nova Scotia goal in the first period, carried the puck from end to end, lost it and then steered it ahead from Bill Nyrop into the net.

Craig Sarner got the lone Rochester tally by banging the puck past goaltender Dave Elenbaas after picking it up in the Voyageurs' end.

Tremblay scored an errant Rochester pass and drifted a 30-footer past Rochester goaltender Dave Reece for his first goal.

Reece was superb in the third period, when he faced 22 Nova Scotia shots. The game, which had been a close-checking contest, opened up when Sarner scored.

The loss was the first of the year for Rochester.

Discuss Series

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Hockey League's board of governors Thursday discussed the possibility of renewing a series with the Soviet Union in 1975 or 1976.

President Clarence Campbell said the one-day session was "very informative and interesting," including work on a constitutional amendment dealing with termination of franchises.

The board also reviewed operation of the Oakland franchise, California Golden Seals, purchased by Mel Swig from Charles Finley last February.

PITCHER DEMOTED

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Pirates sent left-handed pitcher Juan Pizarro to their Charleston farm club Thursday and placed Wayne Simpson, former major league right-hander, on their active roster. Pizarro, 37, was signed as a free agent Aug. 28. He had a 1-1 record with a 3.86 earned-run average in seven games during the club's stretch drive in baseball's National League East Division title.

Senior Saints Blanked But Juniors Rolling

Home field advantage meant little to a year old Bay of Quinte High School football league contender Thursday.

Playing at home, Quinte Secondary School Senior Saints were trounced 28-0 by Trenton High School Tigers who capped an undefeated regular season with their sixth straight victory.

In Trenton's high powered Junior Saints' backfield sqaushed the Trenton side 34-6 as the Quinte team remained in the hunt for a first place finish by bringing its record to 5-1.

First place in the junior section will be decided today when Matra Trojans meet Memorial Chargers. A win for Chargers will give them an identical record to that of Quinte's. Contenial will take the rest by virtue of a superior point spread in games with Quinte.

In the Thursday senior match, Saints had a chance to finish in a points tie with Trenton for the top rung. Quinte went into the game at 4-1 while the Tigers were 5-0. But the Tigers wrapped up first place in convincing fashion.

Tiger coach Tom Nigro praised a rock-ribbed defence led by corner Rookie Bob Cameron, for bowing his team's win.

Steve Secord put a pair of Trenton majors on the board while running mate Mick Alexander, and quarterback Dave Lewis each scored one. Rob Oliver connected for a field goal and three converts for Tigers whose other two points came when Quinte's Gord Male conceded a two-point safety.

Saints' longest run of the day was a 45-yard ramble by Steve McCracken on a punt return.

Neither team two teams took up in semi-final action, Wednesday.

Although the Junior Tigers threatened at times, Barry Thurley's Saints had the upper hand, rolling what looked like promising drives.

Quinte's defence forced fumbles and came up with timely interceptions to kill any hope Tigers had.

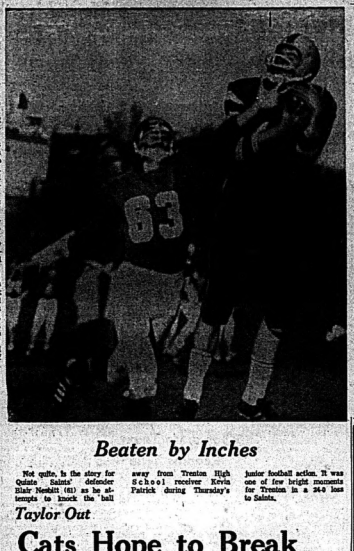
Saints' Paul Bannerman and Ken Revoy sailed the game away for the visitors in the fourth quarter. Bannerman broke loose for spectacular touchdown romps.

Bannerman's sped 90 yards for his major as Trenton defenders were unable to overhaul the speedy back. Revoy counted his second major of the game on a 60-yard gallop.

Saints' other touchdown was scored by Steve London.

The running of Revoy, Bannerman and London buoyed the winners' offence. Late in the game, Mike Burke also rolled up some impressive yardage on several carries.

After Revoy's second quarter TD, had put Saints in front 13-6, Tiger halfback Steve Paterson lugged the ball 30 yards on the kickoff. Saints took over on the next play, converting a Trenton fumble. That was the tale of the Tigers over most of their season as the club finished with a 5-0 record, and out of the playoffs.



Beaten by Inches

Not quite, is the story for Quinte Saints' defender Blair Nesbitt (61) as he attempts to knock the ball away from Trenton High School receiver Kevin Patrick during Thursday's junior football action. It was one of few bright moments for Trenton in a 34-0 loss to Saints.

Cornerstone Loses, Stinson Can't Win

Cornerstone Construction took their first loss in Quinte Hockey League action Thursday night. They went down 7-5 to Belvedere. Thursday night's results are: Merrell over Johnson, Alton over MacKay, Storey over Spinelli, Corke over Hughes, Krueger over Dyke, Letersky over ... Smith, Spare over Last, Kennedy over Rolston, Goodwin over Mengel, McCorquodale over Sullivan, Clare over Coutts, and Gilhero over Boyd.

The finals of the 44-rink event will begin at 11 a.m. tomorrow.

EPIDEMIC COSTLY

The last serious cholera epidemic in Canada occurred in 1854, claiming more than 1,800 lives in Montreal and Quebec City.

DAVE TAYLOR

This is the weekend for the Bobcats to start playing up to the form they are potentially capable of reaching. With two home games in a row there will be no problem with fan enthusiasm.

Unfortunately the club will be going with a slightly different lineup than they have been. The circumstances surrounding the lineup changes are what make the situation unfortunate.

Defenceman, Dave Taylor, will be missing for the next several games in the last contest, Tuesday in Markham, Taylor was slashed on the wrist by a linesman's skate during a fight. The solid Belleville Bluesliner took 13 stitches.

Another big question mark is Danny Lapensée, due to act of town work commitments the Bobcat center has no idea when he will or won't be available to the team.

It looks as though the club will be going with anoculated lineup for the next few games.

Two Canadians On Their Way

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Two Canadians were well on their way today to international singles victories at the Skate Canada international figure skating meet, but native couples trailed after preliminary dance competition.

Ron Shaver of Cambridge, Ont., led the men's figures circle, while Lynn Nightingale of Ottawa was second after the women's singles compulsory figures.

Tonight's competition features the compulsory free skating in the two singles divisions and the set pattern dances. Finals in all three divisions are set for Saturday.

Both Shaver and Miss Nightingale are regarded as exceptional free skaters and Shaver is expected to maintain his lead while the Ottawa skater could take the lead from Anets Poznanski of East Germany who was third in the compulsory figures.

In dance competition, however, Eric Middleton and Val Mousseau of Montreal and Toronto were locked in a close battle with the Toronto skating pair of Colleen O'Connor and James Millins while the best Canadians—Barbara Berezowski and Dave Porter of Toronto—placed fourth.

The Soviet couple had a narrow lead with 12 seconds while the Americans had 12. The Soviets collected the first-place votes on a third and a fifth while the U.S. couple managed two firsts, a third and a fifth.

Berezowski and Porter were fourth with 26 ordinals. Third was Janet Thompson and Warren Maxwell of Great Britain, with 25½ ordinals.

Fifth spot was captured by the U.S. pair of Judy Genovesi and Kent Weigle with 24½ ordinals.

Canada's Shelley MacLeod and Robert Knapp of Calgary-Bridges were seventh in a field of 18 with 40½ ordinals. Lise Cassacellan and Eric Gillies of Toronto were eighth with 50½ ordinals.

Eva Pastova and Jiri Fejfar of Czechoslovakia placed sixth with 46½ ordinals. In ninth place was the Austrian pair of Susi and Peter Handschmann with 62½ ordinals.

Although he is considered the favorite to win the men's singles gold (62½ Shaver's closest showing in the school figures was assessed a 5.9 while he collected six firsts, two seconds and a third from the five judges for 12 ordinals. He was well ahead of Zdenek Pandrich of Czechoslovakia, who had 27 ordinals.

Two other Canadians also competed. Robert Rubens of Toronto was fourth with 37 ordinals. Stan Kwiecien, the last to compete, placed 11th with 91½ ordinals.

Miss Nightingale collected 20 ordinals to Miss Poznick's 15.

Barbara Turpenning of Vancouver placed seventh with 50 ordinals. Another Vancouver girl, Susan MacDonald, was 12th with 100½ ordinals.

It's Risky Business

WASHINGTON (AP) — Football causes an estimated 28 deaths and 200,000 injuries each year, making it the most hazardous sport to play in the United States, the Consumer Product Safety Commission said Thursday.

About 40 per cent of the injuries occur among boys aged 15 to 19, the commission added.

A commission-sponsored study of North Carolina high school football players revealed that about a quarter of all injuries were caused by a player receiving a blow from a helmet, shoulder pad or shoes of another player.

Japanese Team Regains Title

VARNA, Bulgaria (AP) — The Japanese men's team regained its title in the world gymnastics championship Thursday night, the Bulgarian news agency BTA reported.

According to unofficial tabulations, the Japanese finished with a total of 571.40 points, followed by the Soviet team with 567.25.

Canada wound up 17th with 554.20 points.

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Giants acquired on waivers Thursday running back Mickey Zofko from Detroit Lions and defensive lineman Gary Pettigrew from Philadelphia Eagles. The Giants also waived running back Ed Jenkins and defensive tackle Andy Rice.

BILLY MARTIN

Martin Shades Virdon

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Martin, who turned Texas Rangers from a loser into a winner in one year, was named by Associated Press' American League Manager of the Year Thursday.

Martin, who drove a last-place team into pennant contention overnight, won a bid race with Bill Virdon of New York Yankees.

Sports writers and broadcasters gave Martin 195 votes to 183 for Virdon, who kept his Yankees alive in the East Division race until the end of the baseball season.

Bert Weaver, manager of the East champion Baltimore Orioles, finished third in the voting with 44 while Jim Dark of major league baseball's champion Oakland A's had 13 for fourth. Votes were taken before the playoffs.

Martin, who gained a fiery reputation as a player with the Yankees, joined Detroit in 1971 after bringing a West Division pennant to Minnesota in 1969, and managed the Tigers there, winning an East Division flag in 1972.

Colonels Control Boards for Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

San Antonio Spurs handed it to Kentucky Colonels—Saturday night by not being able to handle the rebounds.

The Colonels controlled the offensive boards and thus controlled the game, beating the Spurs 113-102 in the American Basketball Association.

Said Kentucky coach Hubie Brown:

"We had 38 off the offensive board and they only had 18. That's the difference right there."

Dan Issel's 31 points, Artis Gilmore's 28 and Bobby Smith 22 to lead Colonels over Atlanta.

Bob McAdoo scored 32 points and Jim McMillian added 24 to lead Buffalo over New York before a crowd of 5,901 at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Bird Averitt scored 29 points each to lead Kentucky's victory, giving the Eastern Division-leading Colonels their fourth straight success this season. San Antonio, leader in the West, dropped to 3-1.

A basket by Freddie Lewis with 1:01 left snapped the fourth tie of the final quarter at 102. Memphis ended a three-game losing streak by beating Virginia.

Fred Boyd pumped in 25 points and led a second-half surge to bring the Texas chain victory. The game was played in New Orleans before a crowd of 4,426 and was the first home game for the new NBA entry.

Austin Carr scored 25 points and Bobby Smith 22 to lead Cleveland over Atlanta.

In the only other ABA game Thursday night, Memphis Sounds defeated Virginia Squires 89-86.

In the National Basketball Association, Philadelphia 76ers beat New Orleans Jazz 125-99, Cleveland Cavaliers beat Atlanta Hawks 118-97 and Buffalo Braves defeated New York Knicks 111-91 in a game at Toronto.

Hadl Says 'Yes'

GREEN BAY, Wis. (CP) — Quarterback John Hadl, obtained by Green Bay Packers from Los Angeles Rams in a controversial trade for four draft choices Tuesday, said Thursday he will report to his new National Football League club.

A Packer spokesman said Hadl called coach and general manager Dan Devine and told him he was reporting to the team. The spokesman said Hadl will be given a physical examination today and probably will be activated for Sunday's game at Detroit.

Hadl, named most valuable player in the National Conference last year, originally balked at the trade, saying he would join the team "only if the numbers are right."

In exchange for Hadl, the Packers gave the Rams their first, second and third round draft choices in 1975 and their first-and-second picks in 1976. The Packers said the trade would be nullified if Hadl refused to report.

WFCHE TRADED

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Quarterback Bobbie Wyche, obtained by the World Football League's Philadelphia Bell this week in the dispersal of players from the defunct Detroit Wheels, was traded Thursday to Chicago Fire for a No. 2 choice in the 1975 draft. Wyche, 6-foot-1, a 195 pounder, was a former backup quarterback to Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Canadian Football League.

The Great Britain-Ireland team ended the day even with Italy in second place at 477. Twenty-two teams are competing in this sixth annual tournament for the Espirito Santo Trophy which the U.S. has held for the last four years.

Trailing the top three were Spain and Australia at 481; South Africa at 482; Sweden at 488; France at 493, Japan at 495, and Canada at 416.

Dutch Artists Receive Subsidies

AMSTERDAM (AP) — The land that gave birth to the great Flemish school of art has been busily developing a sense of acute social responsibility for the artists.

The process started soon after the Second World War and has reached the point where hundreds of artists are directly subsidized by the Dutch government to the tune of millions of dollars annually.

The system appears to ensure that no budding Rembrandt need starve in an attic.

Many Dutch artists now sell their best work directly to the state. They are normally those unable or unwilling to sell their output to private buyers.

The state acquires the work for the equivalent of a Social Security cheque and then lends it out to a variety of causes.

"The government subsidizes that the artist is an important part of the fabric of society," said Rik van der Grijn, an official of the 135-year-old Amsterdam Society of Artists. "There is no doubt in my mind that their measures have been beneficial.

"A pyramid has been created. At the foot of the pyramid are many people who otherwise could not have been artists. Because the foot is so large, there is a greater chance of more people getting to the top."

Van der Mey said well over half the estimated 2,500 artists in the Netherlands benefit from public funds in one form or another.

Glitter Freaks Meet in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's glitter freaks may soon be able to wear their sequins in a more patriotic manner.

Although Randy Bishop traded his green hair for some blonde waves, the bejewelled fans of David Bowie, the sex-ambiguous wonder, and Bette Midler, the saucy queen of camp, are beginning to follow the career of this Montreal pop singer.

At a recent performance at the Old Montreal's Nelson Hotel, a popular youthful watering hole, Bill Mann of The Gazette said: "It was, then, like a camp-ade. A site for camp, that is.

"It was nice. I mean, Bette Midler's never been to Montreal ... but we have our own strange people and a lot of them hang around with Bishop and most of them were lurching around last night."

When Bishop sang with a group called The Wackers, he sported green hair, wore cover-girl makeup and dressed in a blinding array of sequins.

His David Bowie look, however, has been exchanged for more casual apparel.

Recently, The Bay announced that Bishop and francophone balladeer Richard Huot were not appear in concerts at its stores.

However, there are not many rich artists around. About $3,700 a year is regarded as average income and $5,000 is "very good."

In 1973—the last year for which complete figures are available—a total of about $5 million was paid out of Social Security funds to acquire art that had not been sold in the private sector.

Under the system, an artist submits his work to a regional board made up of fellow-artists, museum officials and laymen. If the work is accepted by the board, the Social Security office is advised and the money is paid out, sometimes in substantial sums. However, the system is regulated to ensure the artist receives no more than the rough equivalent of the national minimum wage, now close to $112 a week.

Van de Mey said the system does not provide a free ride for everybody calling himself an artist. "He doesn't get the money for nothing. His work comes before the jury and must be selected. Many works are rejected. What the artist does with the money is his own business."

In addition to the social payments scheme, the Dutch government spends substantial sums on a variety of other measures aimed at encouraging art. These include the award of specially appointed commissions; stipends for talented artists who are helped to study abroad or work for a fixed period on particular projects; and "true gold" (honor money). The latter is basically paid to mark outstanding artistic achievement but it is also granted annually to artists aged 65 and over who have fallen on hard times.

There is also a so-called 1½ per cent rule, which stipulates that 1.5 per cent of the construction costs of every government building is allocated for the beautification of the building or for commissions to artists. A similar one per cent rule applies to new schools.

Symphony Here Monday

In recent years this city has been favored with performances of the Kingston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Dr. Alexander Brott.

Once more this distinguished orchestral ensemble will appear here at Centennial Secondary School on Monday Oct. 28 under Dr. Brott's baton, and featuring at the same time the brilliant young American pianist Jeffery Siegel in his debut performance in this area.

The programme is being made up of four of the best known items of the popular repertoire. Included with be Haydn's masterful Symphony No. 104 in D. Major (The London) and the Sir Hamilton Harty arrangement of Handel's Water Music. The soloist will be heard in Franck's operative Symphonic Variations for piano and orchestra and Ravel's Concerto in G. Major. Music buffs will thus enjoy a most pleasant and enlighting evening when this musical aggregation comes once more the Belleville. If you want to overbid as do most bridge players, it pays to have a little bit of luck to go with your overbidding.

South's new minimum call was really optimistic. There just wasn't any suit available to bring in nine tricks. In any event he'd 1 and West overcalled the three of spades. East rose with the ace and led the ace and king of hearts. West won with the jack and led a third spade which South took.

It was obvious to South that East held the king of hearts and that an attack in that suit would leave South down one before he ever got around to taking tricks. So he decided to play his ace of clubs to see what would happen. The queen fell and now South's overbid was ready to pay off.

He led a club to dummy's jack and cashed the ace and king of diamonds. Then he ran the rest of the clubs, stopping in his own hand.

Finally he threw East in with a spade. East cashed two spade tricks and then had to lead away from his king of hearts up to dummy's ace-queen.

The bidding has been:

What do you bid now?

A—Bid six hearts. Your partner is showing the ace of diamonds and willingness for you to bid six hearts if you believe he is very conservative yes might try the grand slam but we would be satisfied with the save six.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Instead of bidding three hearts your partner has jumped to four hearts over your two spades. What do you do now?

Anglican Roof

LONDON (AP) — The last church in Communist eastern Europe and Russia is in danger of being lost by neglect, says the Bishop of Fulham and Gibraltar, Rt. Rev. John Satterthwaite. There used to be 15 churches and now there is only the Church of the Resurrection in Bucharest, Romania. The bishop has appealed for donations for extensive repairs to the church roof which are beyond the capacity of the local community.

Ear Ache Sign Of Real Trouble

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any way of telling the difference between an ear infection and an ear ache?

My son, 8, has had a number of ear infections diagnosed—most recently he had fluid in his ears and his hearing was temporarily impaired.

If the pain is very severe (to fever) but leaves after several days, would the old home remedies, is it safe to assume that the remaining clogged up" hearing will be temporary and not the result of any damage? We do not believe in running to the doctor for every minor ailment, but do not want to be neglectful—C.W.

First and foremost, an ear ache is a sign of trouble.

Usually, but not always, it is due to ear infection. Fluid can come with the infection which puts pressure on the ear drum, helping it seal impairing hearing.

The pain in such a case can subside if the ear is lanced to let the fluid escape, or if the ear drum ruptures. Less dangerous likely if in such cases the drum is lanced. Likewise relief is quicker than waiting for the drum to rupture.)

In the particular instance you describe, no, you can't assume that the clogged feeling will be temporary. It implies that something is still wrong—possibly scar formation, perhaps a plugged Eustachian tube, possibly even chronic adenoid or tonsil infection.

The use of heat (such as warm oil drops, or a heating pad) may help, but do not think of an ear ache as a minor ailment. Only too often, bad ear aches are flare-ups of a smoldering infection that fluctuate in intensity—but not chronic infection is the most likely to cause increasing impairment of hearing until fantastic trouble is identified and treated effectively.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've been constipated most of my life. My wife uses no animal fats in cooking, and has a list of all polyunsaturated vegetable oils.

I noticed that olive oil is not in her list. Is olive oil different from other vegetable oils?—F.G.

Olive oil is a sort of in-between—not a completely unsaturated vegetable oil. It is called a monounsaturated type, in contrast to the polyunsaturated fatty acids found in other vegetable oils.

Lalonde Yields

Ground Beef To Be Tested

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Marc Lalonde yielded Friday to opposition pressure over continuing ground beef, announcing that a three-month monitoring program is being instituted.

He told the Commons there are no "data to associate ground meat with human illness in Canada," but said 36 people in the health protection branch are being reassigned to investigate allegations that extraneous and unacceptable contaminants have been found in some meat.

The experimental program could be enlarged and expanded if the survey, where more processing, packing and retailing safeguards are needed, be said outside the House.

An implication in a CBC television program Sunday night that meat, ground beef samples tested for the program were unfit for human consumption did not jibe with his department's studies.

However, the facts of the CBC study stood, probably because the meat tested was improperly stored and "unsanitary handling may have occurred," Mr. Lalonde said.

Mr. Lalonde said outside the House the 39 inspectors are being diverted temporarily because of consumer concern about ground beef and vaccination charges on the matter.

The survey was mainly to "allay their fears, even if they're totally unfounded."

In addition to reassigning the 39 employees, the health protection branch is opening a 25-person microbiology laboratory in Halifax to analyze food, Mr. Lalonde said.

There were also 1,225 beef inspectors in the agriculture department, 195 inspectors in the consumer affairs department and various provincial and municipal health inspectors.

200,000th Document

Pattie McKnight — acting for the 89-year-old Belleville law practice of the O'Flynn family, represented here by Jack O'Flynn and Stephen Weese — brought her firm the distinction of administering the 200,000th document in the Hastings County registry office this week. While the number of documents processed through the office since it was founded in 1812 surpasses the million mark, the 200,000 represent documents processed since 1954 when a new numerical system was introduced. Shown with legal staff is county registrar Steve Geneja.

Puerto Ricans Bomb 4 Banks

NEW YORK (AP) — Four bomb explosions directed at major banks hit mid-Manhattan early today. A militant Puerto Rican group claimed responsibility for the blasts.

The bombs exploded within a half hour of each other in a five-block area, the first at 2:35 a.m. Jagged glass flew for hundreds of feet, but no injuries were reported, police said.

Police said that all the explosions were caused by bombs placed on outside window ledges.

"It was a bomb—definitely a bomb," said Police Lieut. Howard Cash at the scene of the first blast at the Banco de Ponce at 58th Street and Rockefeller Plaza.

Police said there was no advance warning.

The three other explosions hit a Chemical Bank branch office in the Exxon building at 48th Street and Avenue of the Americas, the Union Carbide Building at 48th Street and Park Avenue and Level House at 53rd Street and Park Avenue.

A fifth bomb, placed in a car in the Wall Street area, destroyed the automobile and blew out plate-glass windows in five nearby banks. No injuries were reported.

Police would not definitely link this explosion to the other four, but said that a connection was likely.

A woman who did not give her name told The Associated Press in a telephone call that the explosions were the work of a Puerto Rican nationalist organization.

"We have just bombed imperialist banks," she said, "Free All Puerto Rican political prisoners."

Liquor Law Changes Not Major

TORONTO (CP) — There will be no major relaxation of Ontario's liquor laws when new liquor guidelines is introduced next month, an official of the ministry of consumer and commercial affairs said Friday.

Although the new legislation is expected to be introduced within three or four weeks, Russell Cossitt, executive assistant to Consumer Affairs Minister John Clement, said it will be mostly "housekeeping" legislation.

The Canadian Press erroneously quoted Mr. Clement as saying the legislation would have a completely new approach to liquor laws.

Bishops Censured By Pope

VATICAN CITY (CP) — Pope Paul today voiced strong censure yet to a world assembly of Roman Catholic bishops, telling them he cannot accept all they have said in their month-long debate on ways to deal with the church's problems.

Describing himself as an "overseer" in an address at the closing session of the fourth World Synod of Bishops, the pontiff said:

"We praise the spontaneity and the sincerity that has been shown, yet not all the elements are to be retained.

"We could not allow false directions to be followed. We would be negligent in this fundamental obligation of ours to confirm our brethren."

Warrant Is Issued For Spataro

BUFFALO (AP) — A U.S. federal judge has issued an arrest warrant for Charles Spataro, 41, a Buffalo native who escaped from a Canadian penitentiary last summer.

Judge John Curtin issued the warrant Thursday charging Spataro with being a fugitive from a foreign country, the FBI said.

Spataro was sentenced in 1970 to 14 years in prison for trying to set fire to a Toronto gift shop. He did not return to Warkworth penitentiary near Campbellford, Ont. last June 15 after he was granted a pass to spend the weekend with his wife.

Kissinger Admits Arms Talks Tough

MOSCOW (AP) — United States Secretary Henry Kissinger acknowledged today he is involved in tough bargaining with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev but said he is "optimistic" that still unsettled issues can be resolved.

Kissinger said Brezhnev met for more than five hours in two sessions Friday and were to begin a final round of talks today, but the meeting was delayed for two hours.

Kissinger said that the talks were going about as he expected. He said he believed there is a chance a meeting will be arranged between Brezhnev and President Ford.

Kissinger, who flies to New Delhi Sunday, is trying to break the negotiating logjam on a new treaty putting further curbs on each country's offensive nuclear arsenal. U.S. sources described the atmosphere as "very friendly and very cordial."

Kissinger and Brezhnev issued a joint statement in which they said the "detailed exchange of views" given to offensive nuclear weapons was "useful" and might lead to further measures limiting them.

TransCanada Pipe Ltd. Can Double Gas Price

OTTAWA (CP) — TransCanada PipeLines Ltd. has been given permission to double the price of natural gas sold in Eastern Canada to an average 44.51 cents a thousand cubic feet.

The National Energy Board announced Friday it accepts TransCanada's estimate of what the average cost of gas purchased in the western provinces will be and asked the company to file new rates to reflect the increase.

The higher prices, effective next Friday, will add $250 million to the gas bills of eastern distributing companies buying supplies from TransCanada.

Gas Price Will Be Set By Federal Government

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government reintroduced Friday a bill that will give it the right, if necessary, to set domestic prices for natural gas and oil.

The Petroleum Administration Act, given routine first reading by the House, would allow Ottawa to set prices if an agreement could not be worked out with the producing provinces.

When first introduced last spring, the bill gave the government only the right to set the price for crude oil. That bill died on the order paper when the House was dissolved for the July 8 election.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said the extension of that power to cover natural gas prices also is the only major change in the legislation.

The federal government could step in if no agreement was reached or if Ottawa felt an agreement "is not effective or is not capable of being effective."

Negotiations on the amount and timing of future domestic natural gas price increases are continuing with the producing and consuming provinces, Mr. Macdonald said.

Face Facts UN Told By Canada

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada's leading disarmament negotiator told the United Nations Friday it should "call a spade a spade" and face up to the "catastrophic" consequences that the spread of nuclear weapons might bring to the world.

Calling for greater support of the treaty on the non-proliferation of nuclear weapons, W. H. Barton said the single overriding issue is "the rapidly-escalating danger of nuclear proliferation and consequent escalation of the risks of nuclear war."

No Pact But PM Happy

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau returned here Friday after a five-day trade tour in Europe without a firm new contract but apparently happy with nibbles from France and the European Economic Community (EEC).

Before leaving Brussels with Mrs. Trudeau on a Canadian Forces jet, the prime minister told a news conference that a commonly proposed broadest economic talks has "forced us to put our thinking caps on. Up to now, only Canada had been making suggestions on ties with the commission."

He said he told EEC officials Canada has muscle in the discussions—natural resources. If the commission wanted a hand in "defining" Canada's new energy and resources policies, he might make "a suggestion between the two sides."

The first agreement to launch discussions about formal ties is considered important by Canadian officials. They say there was no plan to reach a formal agreement on this trip.

Daylight Time Ends On Sunday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It's time for that extra hour of sleep again Sunday as daylight time ends and standard time begins.

In those parts of the country following daylight time, clocks should be set an hour earlier at 2 a.m. Sunday.

However, the extra hour is lost next April 27, when daylight time resumes.

Somebody Goofed

OTTAWA (CP) — Five dangerous prisoners escaped from the Laval section of St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary, because "somebody in the institution" and maybe higher up" was negligent, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand said Friday.

He refused to get to the bottom of it and said those responsible will have to take the consequences. He told reporters outside the Commons,

He said there is no evidence that guards at the Montreal penitentiary helped the men escape, but he does not rule out the possibility.

He confirmed that the director at the penitentiary was warned in advance by Quebec Provincial Police of a possible escape bid.

Milk Subsidy Not Passed On

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal dairy milk producer subsidies are not being passed on to consumers in a number of cities, the food prices review board said Friday.

The board said in a statement it had recently discovered instances where the full benefit of the 34-cent-a-pound subsidy was not reflected in retail prices.

Faceless Advisers' Flayed

SASKATOON (CP) — Former Progressive Conservative leader John Diefenbaker won rousing applause from more than 500 Saskatchewan Conservatives Friday night as he delivered a stinging attack on what he called "faceless advisers" in Ontario who dominate the Conservative party.

He told the annual meeting of the Saskatchewan party that the federal party must quickly choose a leader to succeed Robert Stanfield and must ensure that the next leadership convention is not manipulated by the Ontario group.

Mr. Diefenbaker, referring to former party president Dalton Camp, said he calls the group "the Camp incubus."

"An incubus is an evil spirit supposed to descend on sleeping persons."

He received a standing ovation as he closed his speech by declaring: "I want to see them uncamped so this party will once more take its place as the government of this country."

PCs Cool to Suggestion

OTTAWA (CP) — John Diefenbaker's proposal that the next federal Progressive Conservative leader be a sitting federal MP met with cool reaction Friday from at least two caucus members.

James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) said the idea of excluding from the party leadership race candidates who are not MPs is outdated, and Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris) said the restriction would be too severe.

Mr. Diefenbaker said no one outside Parliament should run as a candidate when Robert Stanfield steps down as leader. A convention to choose a successor should be held quickly by next July 31 at the latest. The former prime minister recommended.

Mr. Diefenbaker's advice, if followed, would exclude two major potential candidates—premiers Peter Lougheed of Alberta and William Davis of Ontario. Both have indicated he will run but both figure strongly in speculation.

Brainwashing Booklet?

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

We're all subject feeling about a little booklet that recently fell into our hands.

It's called Students' Rights and Responsibilities and 40,000 copies have been distributed to students by the Toronto Board of Education.

"The booklet is published," says an introduction, "as a result of the report (May 1971) on the proposed civil bill of rights."

To head them off at the pass, the Toronto board had its public relations officers compile all the pertinent statutes, regulations and board policies relating to students' rights and issue them in a 32-page booklet.

Having it all down in a handy pocket publication is great for us. It's good, for every statute, regulation and policy it seeks to interpret.

The basic premise, known to everyone, is "students must obey the classes regularly and obey their teachers as they would their own and judicious parents" has thousands of interpretations. It is fact, in a flexible school, there are as many variations on that theme as there are students.

So having it all down in black and white (at considerable expense to the board) doesn't accomplish much after all.

It conjures up pictures of students in rigid, authoritarian schools rushing down the corridors checking the appropriate pages of the booklet every time a teacher tells them his views.

"Thank goodness it hasn't come to that here. Good school's good teacher and good principal is prepared to handle most students' "rights". When disinterest is casually to rampant, it takes more than a booklet to define them.

A second compilation put out by the board's legal staff is a straightforward outline of policies, intended for parents and ratepayers. It gives the convential lists of trustees and names of every officers, and information on such things as how to approach the board, and how its latitude community school programs. It's a helpful little booklet, but its title is somewhat misleading.

It's called "moving and bending" and at first glance appears to be a physical fitness program for trustees. Since the introduction says the Toronto school system are moving "increase flexibility" — maybe it's only a matter of time until trustees in Metro will be called upon to limber up their muscles as well as their minds before they sit down at the board table.

Best 'Fess Up

Everyone is prone to larcenous temptation.

That's why the federal income tax department has voluntary disclosure.

No one likes paying income tax, admits an official, and maybe that's why some people either forget or don't bother to report all taxable income.

But, apparently remorse is as big a deterrent as penalties.

"It's surprising the number of people who get guilty conscience and turn up at district tax offices to confess before they're caught," said the official.

Belleville is site of a district office, administering a territory from Napanee to Bowmanville, Lindsay to Trenton-borough.

The department encourages owning up by the voluntary disclosure process.

Persons who has filed a false return, and later admits it, can settle the liability incurred by paying the tax and interest due without being prosecuted.

The department checks to see if it has been told the whole truth.

If the disclosure has been incomplete, the taxpayer could be liable to penalty or prosecution.

The message from the taxman. Don't wait until the department starts its audit or inquiry. By then it's too late and disclosure won't be considered voluntary.

When disclosing small sums, information can be submitted by mail or in person to the Belleville district office. Any disclosure involving more than $25,000 should be made to the chief of special investigations at the office.

United Way Donations Don't Become Hand-outs

By JOAN FINNIGAN

Hand-outs?

You're out-dated and future-shocked if you think your United Way donations go to hand-outs. In Canada we have moved forward into a period where the aim in social service is to help the person in a long-range plan to help himself; not to apply emergency hand-aids.

Out of all 16 United Way Agencies in Belleville only one can be designated under the heading of handout: Civic Action does provide emergency assistance to transients and residents.

The Volunteer Bureau also provides help to the needy.

Go down the rest of the list of our agencies and you will find a different philosophy of prevention, philosophy in social work: The Red Cross collect blood. The CNIB through its recreation, training and rehabilitation programs, works to prevent the blind from becoming reclusive and unproductive because of their handicap. The CNIB runs an eye bank to prevent other people from becoming totally blind; through their examples of courage and adaptation the blind of CNIB training homes help our community give other blind people the inspiration to become worthwhile citizens, prevents them from becoming depressed vegetables.

Now in its 75th year, the Victorian Order of Nurses with its programs of homenursing care, mother and baby care, health instruction, serves to prevent all sorts of health problems from blowing up and becoming institutional problems.

United Community Services "listens with the third ear" to prevent a break-down in communications between husband and wife, between parents and the young girl threatening to leave home with her irresponsible boyfriend between square father and long-haired son. The Citizens Bureau provides counselling service for consumers.

The Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children runs sheltered workshops (ARC Industries) to prevent the mentally retarded and disabled from becoming burdens to themselves and the community.

Quinte Easy Riders provides social and recreational activities for the handicapped.

All wise and mature parents know that young males, especially in urban areas, must be presented with escalating challenges and new forms of adventure if they are to become mature and responsible men in their own time. Creative challenge and adventure seem to be much easier to discover in rural areas; negative challenges and destructive adventures seem to abound in the urban area. We have three United Way agencies which function to provide urban teen-agers with reaching out and growing experiences.

The YMCA, the Minor Sports Association and the Navy League with their programs of hard work and achievement, channel masculine energies in constructive directions. In plain English, in any urban setting, agencies like these function to prevent juvenile delinquency patterns and growing up aimlessly.

The Arthritic and Rheumatism Society provides treatment for patients. And the work of St. Johns Ambulance is widely known.

We know, too, of course, that parents who really love their own children in a truly mature manner (with a mix of wisdom, patience, acceptance, trust and discipline) do very much tend to love all children. That is, Everyone's child. Many, many of these people, thinking of their own children and what they would want for them, give to the United Way Agencies with the single thought in mind, "if only one child is salvaged, the whole thing is worth it".

If you could see them together you'd believe in the preventive aspects of your United Way agencies.

'Down Under' Visitor Finds Methods Similar

By CAMI MARAFFET

Neil Marriott, who farms about 4,000 miles south of here - straight through to Australia - was surprised when found North American farming techniques very much like those he is familiar with.

"I expected to find some really advanced technology and automation here," he said. "But, apart from the obvious difference in climate, there is very little difference in techniques."

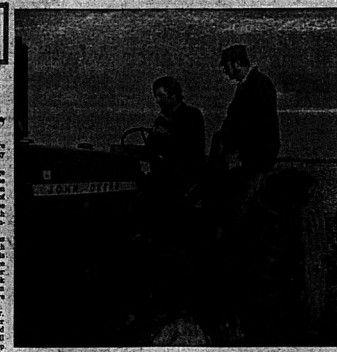
Neil, on a exchange junior farmer from about 31 miles south of Melbourne, in Victoria province, has spent the last six months in the United States and is completing a month in Canada before returning to Australia by way of England and Scotland.

The junior farmer exchange is sponsored in Victoria by the Junior Farmers Association and the Reserve Bank of Australia. In Ontario the situation is handled with the United Co-operatives of Ontario sharing sponsorship.

After a week each at farms in Essex and Wentworth counties, Neil is spending one week at the farm of Prince Edward County junior farmer Wayne Wallbridge. Next week he goes to a dairy farm in Stormont county before heading for England.

At home he's a beef farmer. He, his father and brother raise about 600 head of Hereford cattle. The cattle graze all year. The only forage crop they raise is oats, which is baled and fed in the field in the months of July, August and early September.

Their specialty is beef between the ages of baby beef stage. "We sell our cattle at about 18 months, at 770 pounds, right off the mother - and prices to farmers are low in Australia, just as they are here."



Plowing 'Up Top'

Virus Usual Cause If Mares Abort

When your mares abort, you have reason then blame a virus for no apparent reason frustration is added to your load.

The most common cause of abortion in mares diagnosed at the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food's veterinary services laboratories is equine viral rhinopneumonitis," says Dr. A.A. van Drunen, veterinary pathologist with the Guelph laboratory.

"Mares that abort because of this virus usually look normal," he adds. "There are usually no complications during abortion, no afterbirth retention, and no infertility problems with the mare later. However, examination of the fetus and afterbirth at the laboratory may reveal that mare was infected with the virus during pregnancy. Sometimes as early as one to four months before abortion. Abortions usually occur during the last half of pregnancy."

Young horses, housed in groups, are particularly susceptible to virus viral rhinopneumonitis. When infected, they develop cold-like symptoms, such as high fevers, nasal discharge, loss of appetite, diarrhea. Although pneumonia sometimes develops from the infection, most horses recover completely within two to ten days.

Other horse viruses can cause similar symptoms, but this is the only one in Ontario known to cause abortion. Older horses can be infected, too, and sometimes become carriers while displaying no symptoms.

To avoid virus infection, separate pregnant mares and horses from infected animals for at least 21 days. Keep only those that have been properly vaccinated. Clean and disinfect the stables after an abortion. Although this disease is transferred mainly from horse to horse, the virus may live for several days on walls and floors.

A more practical approach is to have your horses vaccinated twice every year against equine viral rhinopneumonitis. This will not prevent infected abortions from the virus, but it should reduce the incidence by 70 to 75 per cent. It is important to have a veterinarian vaccinate mares early in pregnancy. For more information about regulations controlling vaccination for this disease, contact your local District Office, Health of Animals Branch, Canada Department of Agriculture, or your veterinarian.

Soil Test Can Save On Costly Fertilizer

Tight fertilizer supplies and price increases for agricultural nutrients have forced many Ontario farmers to take a second look at their fertilizer programs and at the benefits that can be derived from soil testing.

"If you think your fields need additional fertilizer, soil test now and be sure," says Professor Ralph Bates of the Department of Land Resource Science, Ontario Agricultural College.

The number of samples sent so far this year to the Ontario Soil Testing Laboratory operated by the Department of Land Resource Science for the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, has increased by over 40 per cent of 1973 totals. The technology is here to provide farmers with the information and data they need in order to fertilize where needed and in the right amounts," says Professor Bates.

In addition to recommending soil testing, Professor Lane points out that there are other methods of adding nutrients. Two tons of cattle manure to an acre, for example, will provide at least the equivalent fertilizer value in the first crop year. On the same basis, 70 tons per acre of swine manure provides an equivalent of 120 fertilizer value, and two tons of poultry manure provides an 80 equivalent. In cases where soil fertility is already high, farmers can apply manure in sufficient quantities so that additional commercial fertilizer is not required," he says.

Crop rotation, using a nitrogen-fixing crop such as legumes, also offers a good solution to nitrogen shortages. A legume-grass sod with 20 per cent or more legumes will return 100 pounds per acre of nitrogen when plowed down. While not always practical, such a rotation can help reduce your total nitrogen costs.

Economical fertilizer use starts with the soil test. Reports from the samples are mailed back in about two weeks from the laboratory; so farmers who take soil samples early can order their fertilizer requirements in plenty of time for the 1975 crop year.

Dundas Bridge Haunts Town

By AL ZARAS

TRENTON — It's been in the grist mill of conversation for years.

The old Dundas St. swing bridge — Just, it fix it, cave it. This summer's question and cups of coffee later, town council have still not come to any decisive conclusion.

Until the present council — maybe.

Can't Trenton do without it and its accompanying labour of rehashing? It's doubtful.

Where would Dundas St. End simply if not into Dundas St. West? It just wouldn't do to have cars plummet into the Trent River.

Today's council is thinking about replacing the half-century monstrosity with an arched-back modern structure. The "hard look at the situation" is in.

Put that matter, so is the calculated risk. Council has lobbied a corps of engineers on the family-looked-upon span of mother Trent.

The study will provide councillors with an idea how expensive it will be to repair the bridge as opposed to replacing it.

If repairs cannot be economically made, Trenton will march down to Queen's Park and say: Look chaps, it doesn't make sense to shell any more money into this thing, let's talk about replacement.

If the province says no, council is left with no option: Repair the bridge, or it slowly rusts.

Definitely, Mr. Fix-It is needed, at least if reports from the town's consulting engineers can be believed. The bridge is unsafe, if not to the general public, then to the swing bridge operator.

Electrical circuitry that should be enclosed isn't. It serves, like a tetanus-tester, at the centre. Brakes? What brakes. Slam it into reverse, it can't do the trick.

Obviously it's a situation that needs remedy. Though a question does pop to mind: How was it allowed to fall into such an abominable state of disrepair in the first place?

Council, one must hope correctly, is calculating this year will contain the province a new bridge is needed. If it's right, more money will be coming from the town's purse.

Traffic flows must be looked at, say the engineers. Will a new bridge be two-lane or four-lane? And a study will reveal what the future holds. Land will probably be required for a stationary bridge similar to the MacDonald Bridge.

The final question: Will this be the last time the grist mill turns? Is the town anywhere close to seeing a new bridge?

Or will another column-ful hammer away at the same typewriter keys on the same subject years from today? One would hope not.

Picton Bureau

Town Washroom Would Be Nice

By MARG HATLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Picton electors need a candidate like Harry Evans, the ABC councillor who once campaigned with a promise of fresh toilets for the township hall.

Although Mr. Evans was defeated in the ballot bid for office, he did bring a twin-seated throne to the attention of voters still using the outhouse at the hall.

Picton town council recently received a letter from the Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce noting one women's complaint that there is no public washroom on Main St.

The visitor, who arrived by bus, pointed out there is no public washroom between the depot and no restroom or washing area.

Council took no action on the letter forwarded by the chamber of commerce.

Although there may be inconvenienced by the lack of a public washroom, the principal complaint should belong to town residents who combat this problem every time they open the door.

Main St. restaurants sell countless cups of coffee to shoppers who hurriedly give the matter then rush to the restroom. These are the only washrooms on Picton's main street.

Picton merchants continue to bolt out that old refrain of "stop and shop" but have had customer comfort does not rate high on their list.

Surely the merchants, in cooperation with the chamber of commerce, could discover a rest room for shoppers and tourists.

Although it may appear an asset to be billed as "sleepy Prince Edward" as tourist literature and vacationery does less with the cozy world around it, it could consider public wash rooms.

Bloomfield Park does offer new wash room facilities for holidayers' convenience but, as they note, said Bloomfield have not imitated this provision.

There a the old argument of how difficult it can be to maintain public washroom facilities but it is outweighed by the needed need for the service. If the restrooms were open only during store hours vandalism probably would be nothing new.

A number of senior citizens with errands down town may find shopping lessons and might welcome a restroom where they could sit down for a few moments.

Mothers, stopping with young children frequently bemoan the lack of public washroom facilities. Most merchants, indeed, do wait until after their season of rest on before reaching a decision.

But an election scheduled in December, surely some enterprising candidate like Mr. Evans' campaign promise. Picton may never have lower taxes or greater job opportunities at any town offices but maybe a public washroom lies in the realm of possible dreams.

Breeders Form Swine AI Group

The properties gained in artificial insemination programs for dairy and beef cattle has been successfully used in the farming of the Ontario Swine Al Association, whose facilities were officially opened October 11 in Woodstock.

The farmer-owned group, with setup facilities for swine AI organizations, is without share capital. Its objectives are to be used for improving services provided. Unlike the programs offered to cattle producers, Swine Al is an "owner Insemination program: producers are trained in swine AI in order to handle their own insemination. For $25 lifetime membership has been set for members, selling their boars at $15 service fee, involving a double insemination approach. Non-members can also take advantage of the services for a $15.50 service fee.

"Al affords us the opportunity to introduce new bloodlines to our swine herds without the risk of introducing new diseases," says A.N.Watson, agricultural representative in the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food's East County office. with setup facilities for blood-tested for diseases transmitted by semen. The synthetics are included in all semen examined."

Inheritable factors such as carcass length, back fat and loin eye area can be improved upon by using several breeds trained in swine AI breeding program.All boars in use at the unit will be BOP-tested animals, offering producers the maximum value for genetically superior lines. The 21 boars now in service include Landrace, Hampshire and Duroc.

An Oktoberfest Here?

What with all the Oktoberfest celebrations going on in various places, Belleville might be excused for feeling a bit out of things, and envious at least.

There was the bash in Kitchener-Waterloo for one; the activities included various sports events ranging from archery, cycling and a "kinderjog" for the youngsters to a 26-mile marathon.

The event is becoming well-entrenched elsewhere too. For example in Cambridge, and this despite the fact that the city and surrounds are not predominantly German. According to The Cambridge Reporter, the "boisterous and fun-making event which had its origins in Munich, has come to the society this year in greater measure."

Indeed the Canadian events may have an edge on the great Munich blast. That's the word from Kurt Seger, leader and founder of the Munchner Kindl Dancers, an 11-member Bavarian dance group who take time off from their jobs to dance at events such as these.

Seger said of the Kitchener-Waterloo event that it had a "lot more spirit than at Munich." He particularly likes the more personal involvement in the festival in Kitchener-Waterloo.

Another event that has caught our eye has been a multi-cultural day at the Woodland Indian Cultural-Educational Centre in Brantford, with performances by Filipinos, Africans, and Indians among others.

All of which is indicative of the sort of thing we are missing in these parts. About all Belleville rises to at this time of year is the Christmas parade and let's hope we can look forward to that again, at the very least.

Is this all that we can expect though? And not forgetting the Quinte Fall Carnival which has had its ups and downs.

For another year, it would be worth thinking about putting together an Oktoberfest or our very own, something in the ethnic culture tradition. Sometimes things can get too dull, and something of the kind is needed to revive the place.

Alert Police

A recent survey of law enforcement where impaired driving is concerned indicated that the city of Brockville led other Ontario communities in the number of charges laid per head of the population.

Brockville police are also demonstrating that they are not above dealing with those pesky and hard-to-get tire squealers.

Two men were fined a total of five days in jail for squealing the tires of their cars.

The people who indulge in this carsplitting and obnoxious practice deserve all they get and a severe penalty is a step in the right direction.

Another man was fined a similar amount for operating a vehicle with a faulty muffler. This is another instance of alert police work, for cases of this nature are not easy to pin down.

Enforcing the law in these instances, difficult as it may be, is important. It is not so long ago that former Environment Minister James Auld, a Brockville resident who is now in charge of colleges and universities, was talking about legislation restricting noise level.

Whether such legislation has ever amounted to anything is one thing, but Brockville for one is setting a good example where the operation of motor vehicles is concerned.

Picture Gallery

Fascinating are the old pictures which appear in newspapers from time to time: a typical class of the year 1908 for instance would be typical of the styles of the time; students and teachers smartly suited, the girls in dresses, hair flat and parted, fringe on the neck, not a beard or a sideburn in sight. Not a hint of a miniskirt among the girls.

Closer to our own day was the 1964-65 cheerleading squad at Trenton High School, and pictured recently in The Trentonian. In sweaters and short skirts, hair perhaps shorter than present-day styles they were, and doubtless still are today, pretty as the proverbial picture.

What a treasure a picture can be, to recall, nostalgically, the past, and to give added significance to the present.

Relations with France Warm Up Slightly with PM's Visit

By JOHN D. HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

English-speaking Canadians cannot, viewing the situation coolly, be blamed for wishing that Britain would remain cool for 10 years, but what is more, also be impossible for a Canadian prime minister to visit the Queen or for her to come here.

And yet this is what has happened between France, our other founding nation and Canada since General de Gaulle delivered his stupid but dangerous "Vive le Quebec Libre" (long Live a Free Quebec) speech in 1967 in Expo' 67 year.

Mr. Trudeau made his French four just concluded, is the first visit by a Canadian leader to Paris since 1964 and the long cool relations between the two countries may be thawing again appreciably by his visit.

Quite the same time, it's very hard to tell whether the prime minister's visit to France was what it appears to be, a polite relations and a face-mending junket, or that it was home to stay on our relations with the European Common Market.

Mr. Trudeau told the press there was much talk with both the French premiers and prime minister about common problems in the times of economic inflation, high fuel costs and of growing interdependence between nations in these ongoing economic crises.

The luncheon and all-used word of Mr. Trudeau, the counter-weight against the heavy Canada-U.S. trade and cultural imbalance was used again by Prime Minister Canada could plug into Europe in a big way where trade was concerned, it might do something to offset our very large trade with the United States.

The prime minister was talking in Paris about a year ago in both Japan and the People's Republic of China and was quoted as saying as if and when he returns to Britain some day.

Our efforts to diversify trade to use the old-fashioned term or establish counterweights to use Mr. Trudeau's, have never been very successful.

One recalls the very early attempt in former prime minister John Diefenbaker's then-new government in the fall of 1957 to switch 15 per cent of Canadian foreign trade to the United Kingdom.

Nevertheless the French may have indicated earlier co-operation is such a move by Canada, given the fact they mounted a small but well-integrated science and technology fair in Toronto, the centre of Canada's industrial heartland.

Mr. Trudeau has been a tougher time with the NATO folks in Brussels, since many Canadians probably favour a renewal affairs and the armed forces are overjoyed if he had had his way in early 1969, we would have pulled out of NATO completely.

And that message, the real view of Canada's anti-militaristic prime minister about military alliance, has long since filtered through to the NATO

Avis (Rent-a-Car) Man Shows How to Criticize the Boss with Impunity

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Economic Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Is the world ready for Shared Participation?

One man thinks it is—and because his name is a household word, his system of decision-making-by-consensus is attracting wide attention.

Warren E. Avis, the man who founded Avis Rent-a-Car Systems (and lost $1), has developed a highly structured plan to overcome communications among people in organizations.

Although he is not a scientist in the formal sense, he heads the Avis Research Centre for Behavioral Science in Ann Arbor, Mich.

Because it is founded on the sharing of knowledge and experience, Avis contends, Shared Participation is the key to improved efficiency in any organization that participates in it.

Over the last seven years, the Avis system has been accepted by a number of organizations, ranging from a religious community to a group of police officers in his home city of Detroit. Avis was in Ottawa recently to address a meeting of the Canadian Association for Corporate Growth and to demonstrate Shared Participation to a federal government department.

Shared Participation is a "structured" meeting, the basics of which he has found remembering during our interview.

"If two heads working together under a proper working structure are better than one," says Avis asks, "why not put 10, 20 or 50 together?"

The Avis technique is to bring people in the organization together in a "structured" communications session. Participants write their ideas on cards in a form that ensures anonymity, then discuss them openly until a consensus is reached.

"If you know you can get fired for criticizing your boss's ideas, you will think twice," Avis says.

"If you are a boss, you will be much more inclined to accept suggestions when others are not sure of, because perhaps every idea you've ever been taken away from you."

Objective set for the meeting, agreement on the five best ideas. "The art of brainstorming ceases to the fact that nobody in the group knows who suggested what," explains Avis.

"The system will work in any situation, from a family discussion about where to go on a 16-year-old should have his own car, to whether a union should ask for another raise, or a business should expand into another field."

Avis, in forthcoming paperback book, The Art of Sharing (Doubleday, $1.95), Avis suggests a simple way for any business leader to know whether his organization is functioning efficiently as a team:

Ask the person in charge of each operation—marketing, finance, and so on—to describe the company objectives in writing. Chances are that each will have a completely different goal.

But when their ideas—stripped attribution — are discussed openly in a group, he says, a consensus about the corporate objectives can easily be agreed upon.

"I believe this should be done every six months—even certainly not on every problem."

Avis adds: "If 80 or 90 per cent of your decisions, or more are by consensus, the corporation will soon be better and for the 10 or 20 per cent he must make in authoritarian style."

Labor "Contract" Coming Unstuck

By ROD CURRIE

LONDON (CP) — Less than two weeks after Britain's general election, dangerous cracks are appearing in the much-vaunted "Social Contract," the consensus scheme that was the principal plank in Prime Minister Harold Wilson's successful election campaign.

With Britain already facing the second-worst inflation in Europe, after Italy, the country is in the grip of another flood of wage demands ranging up to an incredible 35 per cent increase demanded by some construction workers.

The opposition parties, alarmed over Britain's future as an investment and balance-of-trade figures plunge and unemployment rises, take little satisfaction from the apparent vindication of their campaign predictions that labor's Social Contract would hold together only until after election day.

Indeed, it is no secret that the representatives of one million construction workers will deliberately hold back on the 27.5 per-cent wage demand during the election campaign because of its gross incongruity with the blueprint of the Social Contract between Wilson and the unions. Nevertheless, Wilson still remains outwardly confident that Labor's respect with the union will serve the country better than the spirit of confrontation at the last Conservative government that led, to last winter's state of emergency and three-day week.

While the construction men's bold bid to double their pay has caused a furor, there also are dozens of other hefty wage demands in the pipeline. The engineering industries alone consists suggest, probably would have to give an incredible 30 per cent increase demanded by some engineering

How We Use Our Gifts Fundamental Decision

BY DR. GORDON C. SMITH

All the temptations (Matthew 4:1-11) relate to our personality, the very seeds of power of which he could not bid in a were. Here was this acute awareness of capacity in him with its wonderful, have been misapplied, or get glory.

Such a life is like a fish swimming into the labyrinth of a river-dam. The liberty to that temptation. They go on trying to direct their talent to the glory of personality, wealth, or authority. They reach that goal only to find that it is no goal, that their lives, which should have been satisfying, have become meagre and unfilled.

Such a life is like a fish swimming into the labyrinth of a river-dam. The liberty to return to the lake grows less and less. At last, in the very element which is its life, the fish is in fact a helpless prisoner.

On the other hand, you turn lives that have given themselves to service. What do you see? You see their capacities enlarged. You see small gifts multiplied.

Few sights are more impressive than to behold men and women who, by nature, are not extraordinarily endowed, achieve highest attainment and satisfaction by the sheer dedication of mediocre gifts. They lose themselves in helping others and thus find themselves.

These folks are inspired not by the size of their gifts, but by the criterion of being do-gooders" that the sincerity of motive, purity of heart in Christ. Yet, like their Master, they learn how to chart the other course is put behind them.

In that decision their conflicts once develope. The angels of God's grace have come and minister to them.

Former Belleville Resident Now 'God's Quartermaster'

TORONTO (CP) — The man who calls himself God's quartermaster and who now heads Canada's Salvation Army will celebrate after Sally Ann a diet of change.

Change is nothing new for Commissioner Arnold Brown, 61, recently appointed territorial commander of the Salvation Army for Canada and Bermuda. A reputation for shaking army traditionalists has gathered around him since he started his life through the ranks of the army in Belleville, Ont., in 1931.

When Mr. Brown was the head of public relations at the army's international headquarters in London, he caused an uproar in 1965 for launching the advertising slogan, "For God's sake, look up."

Mr. Brown finds nothing disrespectful in the slogan, which raised flacks for a lot of army social work.

His next changes placed a long-standing tradition when he replaced the high-necked collar on the army officers with an open-necked style with tie.

"The worst perspiration locked in around the neck," he explained.

When Mr. Brown became chief of staff in London, he saw the British Salvation Army take on increasingly more social work. Under his leadership, it is thusly the Canadian organization will do the same.

"The head of the army's 125,000 Canadian members has been on a search-to-seek and will follow with a trip to Bermuda to see things for himself.

"We're all expecting him to make changes," he said, adding forward to them although not everyone will agree with all of them," said Major Vivienne Green, who works in the army's Toronto headquarters.

But Mr. Brown's flair for innovation doesn't mean he plans to join Sally Ann's structure beside pat.

"The 'a' prefix Brady old lady," he said, "if she is at all old, then she has certainly had fits across the bonnet."

At present, Mr. Brown said, he and Mrs. Brown at the No. 2 enemy and hopes more Salvationist soldiers will be seen in Toronto taverns to spread the message.

He also said any one of four rock-opera productions written by the British Salvation Army officers may become a box office success.

While Mr. Brown's bookshelf is filled with classical authors and poets, he has little time for leisure with his heavy workload.

But he said he manages to read best-sellers like The Godfathers occasionally or sadly, though, "wishing the author would take his talents to something better.

Carnival Midway Has Priest

OTTAWA (CP) — It lacks the altar linens and the religious statues but the carnival midway is a familiar sight to Father Shewchik are his parishioners.

Msgr. Robert McCarthy is simply Father Mac to about 30,000 carnival workers who call on him to bless ceremonies and perform marriages, baptisms and other religious rites.

A former midway barker, the priest is the head of the Showmen's League of Prayer and chaplain for seven United States-based carnival associations. He is based at St. James parish in Watertown, N.Y., and travels thousands of miles a year to look after the spiritual needs of the carnival workers.

Msgr. R. J. McCarthy

He worked as a carnival hand while attending college and, after his ordination in 1948, found that he missed the people and the sights and sounds of the midway. So he asked to be assigned to the carnival circuit.

He said he has been doing his thing for 25 years, introducing himself to the carnival people by delivering copies of the showmen's bible to rides, booths and trailers.

Despite the fact that most of the carnival migrants, Father Mac said he does not consider the carnival a difficult parish.

"They're just like the people in any other parish."

He said carnival people have been affected somewhat against slow, the depression when midways attracted some undesirable types as workers. But today, the carnival people are cautious about the people they hire.

Carnival people who know Father Mac speak affectionately and enthusiastically about him.

"Sure I know him," said a midway fiddle operator at the Central Canada Exhibition here. "He's a damn good friend."

"I'm not a religious person but it's sure good to know he's around when you need him," said another.

"Sometimes I just talk to him—you know when you just need to talk."

Father Mac also is an international contact for many of the travelling workers. He brings news of friends and relatives to persons working in other centres.

"Something like a hometown newspaper," said one barker.

New York Church Unable To End Parishioner's Vigils

NEW YORK (AP) — For nearly a year now, church authorities have been trying to get Veronica Luekens to stop it. But she still keeps holding her vigils in the church yard. And the people keep showing up.

"It's a problem to the parish and to the neighborhood," says Msgr. J. Emmett McDonald, pastor of St. Robert Bellarmine's Roman Catholic church in the city's Bayside section of Queens.

Mrs. Luekens, who claims she has been visited by the Virgin Mary at the site of a stone on the parish grounds, holds regular gatherings there, attracting visitors from many states.

She reports messages from the Virgin and saints, and blessings for them in her hand.

But church officials, from the local parish to the diocesan and national offices, have decided that the gatherings, one cluded there is nothing to it, and urged a halt to the hoopla over it.

Catholics should "accept this informed guidance and direct their energies and interest to more appropriate areas of religious concern," says Bishop James S. Rausch of Washington, D.C., secretary of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

This recent admonition was simply the latest in a prolonged church effort to put a damper on the affair.

Msgr. Msgr. McDonald says Mrs. Luekens continues to attract, on holy day evenings and later afternoons on Sundays, crowds estimated of 50 to 200 to the outdoor gatherings.

"It has created many difficulties in the way of noise, the sound of the speakers, the traffic congestion; the trampling of residents' lawns, the invasions of people's rights," Msgr. McDonald says.

A "carnival atmosphere" it was termed by the chancellor of the Brooklyn diocese, Msgr. James F. King, noting that visitors leave debris on the yards of surrounding homes as well as the parish grounds.

The Brooklyn diocese investigated the alleged visions last fall, declared them spurious and forbade priest members from attending the vigils.

The investigation indicated that the alleged miracles are "nothing but the product of a fertile imagination," Msgr. King says, adding that "chasing around the country in search of the recent apparitions is hardly an exercise in religion or true devotion to Mary."

Several photographs submitted by Mrs. Luekens' supporters were examined in the investigation and images on them were found to have been caused by double exposures or more "misadventures in per ing, suggesting involvement of spiritual forces to exploit the affair for material gain.

Mrs. Luekens, mother of five children and a member of the parish, claims she began having the visions about four years ago at a shrine on the parish grounds, and that they have continued.

The parish removed the shrine, a statue of the Madonna, in efforts to get her to end her meetings, but this didn't deter her. She now brings her own statue.

Msgr. McDonald says that in his view, "nothing supernatural is happening there," and he adds:

"She should obey her bishop and desist."

Orthodox Church Aids Immigrants

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Russian immigrants would have had nothing to hold their community together without the Orthodox Church, says Andrew Dimkow, a professor teaching Russian at the local University of Waterloo.

Mr. Dimkow, a Yugoslav immigrant of Russian and Serbian parents, has studied the role of the Russian Orthodox Church as social and cultural life of Russian immigrants.

He said the unhappiness with the Soviet system, following years of Czarist domination, left the Russians with a weak sense of nationality and a traditional "need for someone to watch over them."

Many Russian Immigrants still profess some faith, he said.

The church still had a social role in assisting new immigrants but the tools had come to include credit unions, boy scout troops and a summer resort on Lake Simcoe.

The Consumer — Sharon Airhart

Robots Read Price Tags Now

The Canadian Retail Grocers Show this week in Toronto is featuring a new kind of check-out counter that takes most of the work out of being a cashier. The counter includes a small steel window over which a clerk passes the groceries. Each item bears a postage-stamp sized coded label which is scanned by a bend of invisible light beams from the window. The gadget automatically registers the item's price on an electronic cash register.

The robot counter purportedly will ring up one item per second, about twice the current speed of an experienced cashier.

What's behind the little window? A laser beam and a computer.

Installation in an average store would cost at least $125,000.

As for the labels, manufacturers are already beginning to print them on their products. The price is not printed on the label but the code number is immediately recognized by the computer and translated into the store's price.

I haven't quite figured out how the consumer is informed about the price — perhaps its considered a personal matter between the computer and the store.

Carrole Wright, food specialist for the Prince Edward Milk Producers, has suggestions for proper storage of dairy products which saves not only money but nutrients, too.

Delivered milk should be taken in promptly and stored in the coldest part ofthe refrigerator, Wright says. Light destroys riboflavin, so keep your milk stored in the refrigerator until actual use.

To store small pieces of cheese, wrap tightly and refrigerate. To store a large block of cheese over a period of time, wipe the cut surface with a coating of melted paraffin. If it is to be used daily wrap in a clean kitchen towel, dampened with a vinegar solution of one teaspoon vinegar to one quart water.

If mold forms, remember that mold on natural cheeses is not harmful to the cheese. Simply cut or scrape the mold away and use the cheese as usual.

As for butter, it should not be stored in heated "butter keepers" or compartments for more than two days.

Some new refrigerator ads advertise seven day "meat keepers". The Consumers' Association of Canada, however, warns that Agriculture Canada says only current meat can be safely stored unfrozen for seven days.

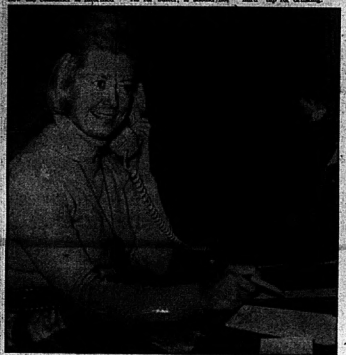
A study by a British doctor links the drinking of soft water and the incidence of heart attacks and strokes. In the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Alex Cree G. Sharpe said that statistics indicate that death rates from heart attacks and strokes are higher in soft water areas. He concluded he said that for years after the Water Supply of a Florida town was changed from soft water to hard water the death rate from cardiovascular disease dropped from the 306-700 range to the 200-300 range. The doctor says it's premature to suggest soft waters be hardened but he does urge those who want to soften their water to keep a "hard" tap for drinking.



Civic Action Chairman Lou Halpin does much of her work by telephone

Civic Action Helps Out

The Civic Action Committee is the kind of group you seldom hear about.

It is a small group, six a core of no more than six women, and possibly 12 others who help when asked.

Even the amount of money it receives from the United Way — a little over $2,500 — is small.

But with that money, the few workers there can provide essential service to the city. Set up to assist people in emergency situations, the Civic Action people help meet crisis whenever they're called.

And according to new chairman Louise Halpin, that happens more often than you'd think.

"Until I got involved with Civic Action, I just had no idea how many people in Belleville are in dire need," she says.

The help that comes from the group is usually in the form of money, when small bills need to be paid, or light being cut off. Sometimes the need is for drugs and medicines during illness, and sometimes families need temporary shelter. Often the call is for food or clothing for which collections are made from the St. Michael's Catholic Women's League cupboard are supplied.

In fact, St. Michael's CWL was the starting point for the Civic Action Committee, which began several years ago when a few concerned women decided to do something positive to help others in the community. Although these founding members are still involved, the group has no religious basis, and assists non-Christians and Christians alike.

"Usually the people who call us have exhausted all other means of help," says Mrs. Halpin.

She has already noticed that those with the greatest needs are often the ones who are looking after others. And many who do need help, such as the elderly, are too proud to ask or accept.

"Since a good deal of our work is done by phone, I've found myself busier than I've ever been. We're had a second phone installed, so that my Civic Action work won't interfere with family calls.

"Some days, there'll be as many as ten calls, and then there'll be periods when everything seems fine.

"But the important thing is that we're available when the calls do come."

Civic Action Committee members may recommend that children need winter boots, that a father needs transportation to get a family needs food, that babies born to single mothers need layettes.

"Former chairman Betty Jones had at her motto 'Never say no.' But I'm afraid that because of our limited resources, and because we can't afford to be taken advantage of, there may be times when I have to say no," says Mrs. Halpin.

"The Store" Opens

There's the Flea Market and The Flea Market and now there's The Store.

If you're a little confused, don't be surprised. So is Marcella Svoboda and she helps run all of them.

It started, three years ago with The Flea Market, a Mississauga Road antique and collectables store run by Marcella Svoboda and Sundance Ritter.

Later they expanded their operation to the Flea Market in Stirling, where, in a barn on the Fairgrounds, they and 15 other dealers bring goods to sell every Sunday from May to the end of October.

Now there's The Store in Belleville, where Marcella Svoboda and Sundance Ritter have opened up a new shop with Lynn and Alf Link.

The Links, who once had an antique shop in Trenton, decided they wanted to get back in business and when Svoboda says she had been seeking a Belleville outlet for a long time.

"Not too long ago I saw all the boxes and boxes glass and china at The Flea Market and said we just had to do something. Then we had the opportunity to rent this store" - it's at 392 Front Street -"and just moved in."

Books By And About Women

YOUR LOVING ANNA
Edited by Louie Tivy

In 1925 Anna Leverkign brought her children from England to make a home with her husband in the backwoods of north Hastings County, Ontario. She learned to live frugally, and to practise the rugged pioneer arts of making do, using up, doing without.

From the time of her arrival until 1931, when her mother died, Anna wrote frequently to her family in England. Some of her letters were lost, but many were kept and later returned to the family in Canada. They tell about her life, with its hardships, its joy in simple things, and its abiding faith in the goodness of God.

Louie Tivy, Anna's grandson, prepared the letters for publication. In writing the accompanying narrative, he drew upon the recollections of his grandparents, and memories of his own childhood in rural Ontario.

These are simple, quiet letters, reflecting a brave and courageous personality. For those who remember and those who are too young to recall, they are an up-to-date account, and they bring us closer to those who lived in earlier times.

This book is available at the Corby Library.

Ann Landers

Chain Letter Threat

Dear Ann Landers: Today when I came home from school I found my mother very upset. She had received a chain letter, supposed to have been started by a child. Mom was instructed to send out 20 copies to friends and relatives. If she does, the letter says, she will have good luck. If she doesn't she will have bad luck. It also says to hold absolutely no one responsible for this stuff. Mom is a very busy lady, not cancer or has some terrible sickness.

My mother works hard all day and doesn't want to bother with all letters. Also, it means $2 in stamps. What is your opinion of these chain letters?—Sorry For Mom

Dear Sorry: They are a crock of cranberries, sheer nonsense and a total waste of time and money. I hope your mother knows that nasty letter and helps to put an end to the foolishness.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm the mother of a three-year-old girl and a boy who is 16 months old. The girl is very sweet, but she is average-looking. The boy is an unusually beautiful child.

Invariably people who come to the house, or accompany me to the store, will admire only the boy, tell me he is "gorgeous"—and ignore my girl completely. My heart just breaks when this happens because I know how left-out she must feel.

So please, Ann, tell these good people who mean no harm, since there are two children present they don't ignore one and praise the other. It really hurt.—Broken Heart, Texas

Dear Mother: How right you are. Of course these people mean no harm, they are just thoughtless. I hope your letter will help them become more aware.

If I'm, every day, to start a neat one good idea, to make one useful point in this column, I'll be glad. All is for me today, and I thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: Just one more word, please, to Tue Late who said that she was unmarried because the man who was mad at her doctor because he removed her cancerous breast. Tue Late, you "would want a ball game" tomorrow? You're doomed to spinsterhood."

I'm the coordinator for the Florida division of the American Cancer Society and I direct the Reach To Recovery program. Our volunteer group of dedicated women includes many who married after mastectomies.

Doesn't You Late realize that a woman need not be double-breasted in order to be a lovable? This is how she separates the men from the boys. To a real man, a woman's body single-breasted or flat, altogether feminine. That matters. What a man is about a mastectomy would make no difference! If he really cared he'd be sorry that she had life-saving surgery that left a scar.

We single-breasted ladies have a big number of our own. We don't let a man possess our femininity on the basis of our single-breastedness. We applaud his masculinity based on his reaction. You'd be surprised how many gals have found wonderful men in this manner. It's worth a try.—Mary Lou

Dear Marie: Thanks for a wonderfully upbeat letter. It should give a lift to the single-breasted and double-breasted alike.

These colorful robes for men, in caftans, judos and wrap styles, are made by two Toronto women for their boutique, General Store. The robes, which are made mostly of terry velour in 36 colors, used to be made for prestige stores across Canada, but Dorothy Ames and Deanna Kearns decided to get out of wholesaling and make them just for their own store. (CP Photo).

True Success Story: They Stayed Creative

TORONTO (CP) — In true success-story style, two Toronto women who set out, seven years ago to make clothes that were comfortable for people to wear, now have enough capital to make clothes they want people to wear.

"We started in the robe business because we couldn't find a decent robe to buy at any price," said Dorothy Ames of herself and her partner Deanna Kearns.

The pair who began with $1,000 in capital and a kitchen table for a cutting board swiftly began to receive orders from prestige stores all over Canada for their personally-designed robes for men, women and children.

"The whole reason we went into business was because we wanted to be creative. We make and sell things we'd want to wear and things we'd like to see our husbands wearing," Mrs. Ames said. They're sick of getting orders like "Send us four dozen in blue, just like the last one," and "We'll have that manufacturing for our own store."

The women now have terry robes at $40 to $100 and one-of-a-kind items to sell in their store, General Store, in downtown Toronto.

Strategies To Outwit Death

BY DORIS CLARK

News reached us that a relative just over 50 had a coronary attack, was rushed to and in hospital, given treatment and started on a rest. A few weeks later, there followed another doctor told her the heart had healed itself. What she had had was a warning attack.

Last week another friend, a medical man, had a stroke. Just one of those things, we say to that the stroke was slight. He is feeling movement back into his leg, arm, muscles of the face.

Could these health accidents have been prevented? The doctors know the answer. But many of us ignore the advanced years' call; the health rules we know. We act as though we would live to 90 years old, and we push ourselves beyond the limits of half-conscious fatigue.

Just recently the Hon. Marc Lalonde, Minister of National Health and Welfare, published a working paper entitled "A New Perspective On The Health of Canadians."

Perhaps it is news to you as it was to me — that statistics show the five most important causes of death before age 70 to be: sitticombile accidents, coronary heart disease, strokes, cirrhosis, respiratory diseases (including lung cancer) and suicide. There is little doubt that if we could implement our knowledge of the kind of risks we take because of our lifestyles, we could help to alter these pattern of disease and death.

O.K. Here's The Working Paper: starts out by trying to identify the "high risk" segments of the Canadian population. If we really discover what is happening, we can, as it were, catch some of these people before they get sick, before they fall over.

In the new "Perspective" the broad field of health is divided into:

1. Human Biology. This is everything that has to do with how we are put together — our digestive system, circulatory system, what we inherit and the way we proceed through the years to old age.

2. Environment. Everything around us which affects our health — and over which we have little or no control.

3. Lifestyle. The way we get up, go to work or stay home and work, the things we like to eat and drink, the people who helping on our body's performance, one way or another.

4. Health Care Organization. A total look at the services provided to us by doctors, nurses, hospitals, etc.

Cigarette smoking abuse of alcohol, overeating, high-fat diet, lack of exercise all contributed to disease and death. And the Working Paper adds, in the category of accident causes, careless driving and failure to wear seat belts.

There are five strategies outlined to stage war on the things that aren't good for us.

Way to promote health, to do research, to reduce health hazards. We can get free copies of this thoughtful and remarkable document by writing to: Information Directorate, Health and Welfare Canada, Brooke Claxton Building Ottawa, Ontario.

If you are a person who likes to take action, get your own free copy. Then report to us what you are doing about it.

Lucy Maud's Story Told in Own Words

TORONTO (CP) — When the real story of Lucy Maud Montgomery is told, it will be in her own words.

Her son, Dr. Stuart Macdonald, plied 10 volumes of her handwritten diary into a trunk and said: "It has been estimated that there are one million words."

The diary, kept by the author of Anne of Green Gables for 55 years, is to be published in 1976.

Dr. Macdonald said it will be abridged and edited and will not go beyond 1935 because mother says some unkind things about people who are still living."

The author died in 1942.

Dr. Macdonald said in an interview his mother's words describe the girl and woman she was.

"She set high standards and lived up to them," he said. "At times this was hard on the family."

The author was the wife of Rev. Ewan Macdonald, a Presbyterian minister. There was no smoking or drinking in her house.

"Mother never had an ashtray in her home and she didn't like things easy for people who smoked when they came to the house.

"They ended up putting ashes in their pant cuffs."

She married at 36, her writing income was greater than her husband's salary.

Her two sons spent little time at home. Both were sent to private schools and continued through university. Chester, who became a Queen's Counsel, died a few years ago.

Dr. Macdonald said he enjoyed cooking Scots on days from school.

"She had a good sense of fun and I was very fond of mother," he said. "She always brought or sent goodies to do at school—the things other parents did."

Dr. Macdonald said his mother wrote "because she had no one to talk to."

He said she poured out her longing for intellectual companionship in the diary.

The diary is not a day-by-day record of trivial happenings. The author noted that she wrote every day but the journals are a repository of summations of her days.

"She wrote that one year is not recorded because her daily jottings "were little else than shrieks of anguish."

SHE'S WITH 'DUMPY'

The diary is also a commentary on the times.

At 15, Lucy Montgomery was at a dinner with her grandfather, Senator Hugh Montgomery, at the invitation of Sir John A.Macdonald.

She found Sir John likeable but his wife "kind of dumpy."

She held no illusion about being a great writer. Her son said she always regarded herself as a story-teller.

She is still very much alive to her readers. More than five million of her books have been sold and they have been translated into 20 languages as well as Braille.

Dr. Macdonald said his mother would enjoy the on going international popularity but that the way Prince Edward Island has exploited her as a tourist attraction would have given her pain.

He said he visited a wax museum near where his mother is buried.

"There was this thing crouched in a corner and I asked, "What the hell's that?" Someone said, 'That's your mother.'

"I know I was thinking of this when I stood at my mother's grave and felt a slight tremor."

Anglican Priest Assists 'Misfits'

FORT ERIE, Ont. (CP) — A student who is a misfit in a regular school may find the right fit at St. Barnabas' School.

Rev. Alec Pudwell, founder and headmaster of the school, works with boys who have learning difficulties.

Not disabilities, the Anglican priest stressed.

"Difficulties are made to be overcome," he explained. "A disability is a different matter. The distinction is particularly important to my boys."

Without the unique school, many of the boys would be lost in the jungle of conventional education.

Instead, the 1974 graduates include one accepted in a four-year honors course in history and geography, one who will study to become a librarian and one who will enter agricultural college.

"Our prime aim is to bring boys with learning difficulties to a level where they can continue their education at university," Mr. Pudwell said. "This means they have to be above average in intelligence."

Mr. Pudwell started St. Barnabas five years ago in his farmhouse near the Niagara River when he realized there was nothing available for students with learning disabilities who were forced to send them to the United States.

His interest in learning difficulties started with a battle to conquer a stammer while he was a child.

The school began with an enrolment of 11 and now has 35 boarding students and a staff of seven.

Mr. Pudwell has run the school for no pay. He has even sold farmland to pay off debts and meet payrolls.

He doesn't stop at running a school. He is also in charge of a parish in Buffalo.

From 1964 until February, he was rector while man in a black parish in Buffalo's ghetto. He was transferred to a South Buffalo parish in February.

He arrived at the first parish in 1964 when the atmosphere was "shocked."

"The civil rights movement was only in its infancy when I was sent there to work. I was well accepted."

About 1967, black power started to emerge in Selma, Ala.

"A very definite anti-white feeling began to develop among some of the people involved in the parish, particularly the women."

Mr. Pudwell said the protests were justified. He once visited his pastor's home and was appalled at the conditions.

"The housing on that street was like something out of Charles Dickens. Broken windows, leaking roofs, rats scurrying everywhere."

Mr. Pudwell described Buffalo's mood now as "seething quietness."

He holds little hope for the future.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1974

Leavings Caused 'Unrest'

The departure last year of top professionals from Belleville General Hospital's staff caused "unrest" among other supporting personnel.

That was the impression of Walter Todd, one of several who left Belleville's employ to transfer from BGH during 1973.

Mr. Todd — superintendent of building services for eight years that new major hospital expansion was added to the BGH — contended he resisted the "objectionable, organizational changes" in the restructuring of hospital administration in the past year or so.

He said he himself resigned after last year on "a matter of principle" because of such changes.

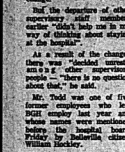
But the departure of other supervisory staff members earlier "didn't help me in my way of thinking about staying at the hospital".

As a result of the changes there was a definite "unrest among" other supervisory people — there is no question about that," he said.

Mr. Todd was one of five former BGH staffers to left BGH employ last year and whose names were mentioned before the hospital board Friday by Belleville citizen Norman Hockley.

Those included:

— John Kunetzky, six years assistant administrator at BGH, who left in mid-1973 and became administrator of the



WALTER TODD

Dr. Joseph O. Ruddy Hospital in Whitby. Contacted Friday, Mr. Kunetzky had no comment except to say he resigned to take another position.

— Harold Mason, comptroller at BGH for seven years, now deputy treasurer for Hastings County in the offices of Earl Bateman, county administrator and hospital board chairman. Mr. Mason also declined comment.

— Ruth M. Lee, nursing director for six years, who says she now is awaiting her licence as a real estate salesperson as she says she "retired from the hospital" and had no further comment.

— Gordon Elder, night administrator for 17 months, now assistant administrator at Vancouver's Lion's Gate Hospital. She told this correspondent Friday by phone he had been offered Mr. Kunetzky's post after it fell vacant. But he already was committed to the Vancouver appointment and felt "obligated" to take it.

Mr. Todd, now steam and electrical superintendent at Deseronto Packaging in Napanee, said he was not happy with the administrative changes. It meant he no longer reported directly to executive director Philip Rickard or his assistant, R. D. Sheldon, but reported to Robert Joy, newly-appointed director of hospital services.

The change "isolated" him and he had to report one step further down the administrative ladder, he said.

He was also not given a change in job title commensurate with qualifications, said Mr. Todd. There was also lack of communication with Mr. Rickard on the changes.

"I didn't like to have to resign from the hospital" he said, "but it was a matter of principle. I could have lived with it. But you have to take a stand once in a while."

Mr. Rickard said Mr. Todd was "unhappy" with the organizational structure and resigned of "his own free will".

He said he "felt quite sure" nobody else left because of the administrative restructuring.

The reorganization, which started in early 1973, at some time before, was necessary as the hospital expanded and needed more services available, said the executive director.

Ambulance Operators Out

Rushnell Ambulance operators in Trenton walked off their jobs Friday morning charging the company was stalling contract negotiations that have been in progress for the past seven months. The eight-member local is only recently formed and this contract — once signed — will be the first.

BGH Capital Budget Set

People lose the benefit of new treatment techniques when hospital cost cutbacks hit medical equipment, Belleville General Hospital board of governors was warned Friday.

The board passed a $326,000 estimate for capital equipment allowances in 1975.

Medical equipment purchases got most of the total — $230,000.

But the medical staff — after paring estimates by $74,000 to meet stringent restraints this year — wanted $300,000 to buy new equipment in 1975.

Dr. A. G. Allen, medical staff president, told the board BGH doctors agreed it could only stand such drastic cutbacks once.

"It's not the medical staff that will suffer it's the patients," he said.

Dr. R. E. Morgan said many new techniques ... were now available and were not luxury items.

Alderman Ben Corke, finance chairman, said hospitalization of a mini-computer in the hospital has been suggested, although no action on such a purchase would await a board decision.

Such an installation would save $15,000 now being spent on contracted computer work done for BGH in London, Ont., he said.

The on-the-spot apparatus would be a "good management tool", said Philip Rickard, executive director, since it would expedite various laboratory, accounts, inventory and payroll programs.

Cooling System Ordered for BGH

Belleville General Hospital authorities moved Friday to air-condition a prime need area.

But the arrival of more comfortable temperatures in the WCA wing depends also on a government funding agreement.

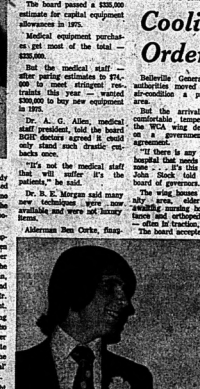
"If there is any part of the hospital that needs a cooling zone . . . It's this area," Dr. John Stock told the BGH board of governors.

The wing houses the maternity area, elderly people needing nursing home administration and orthopedic patients — often in traction, he noted.

The board accepted a tender of $467,900 from H. R. Stark, the lowest of seven bids — the highest was $582,760. The price also includes standby chilling equipment for the hospital's main Quinte wing where a break down of the air-conditioning on a summer's day could be disastrous, the board has been warned.

The board approved the Stark tender subject to a commitment from the health ministry to fund two-thirds of the expense.

"You may not get an answer from the ministry in any great haste," cautioned executive director Philip Rickard.



Top Grads

Jamie Mason, left, valedictorian at BCI's graduation last night, looks at some of the scholarships and wards picked up by Tom Wien, right. Both were among the 13 Ontario scholars graduated from BCI this year.

BCI Graduates Told Set Standards High

BCI's 1974 graduates were offered a four-point program for their future by the guest speaker at their graduation Friday night.

Robert Reid admitted that his observation is "inviting you into a big arena".

Be confident," he said. "Dare to have a dream; be tenacious; be a true craftsman."

Mr. Reid told the graduates they have to believe in themselves and in other people.

"We don't need fear, camouflaged by a chin-on-the-shoulder or by a don't-give-a-damn attitude," he said.

He advised them to dream, but develop discipline, and to set their achievement standards high.

Valedictorian Jamie Mason noted that Belleville's centennial year, 1978, would also mark the 50th anniversary of the first year of classes at BCI. He said the long tradition of BCI contributed to its spirit, a spirit greater than any other school in the city.

The school had 40 honor graduates, 27 graduates and 13 Ontario scholars. The Ontario scholars were Michelle Alexander, Jamie Mason, Barbara Grazzini Campbell, Sandra Closson, Gary Davidson, Valerie Geen, James Mason, Meredith McIntosh, Carol Rendell, Tom Wien, Fred Swaine, Simon Wong and Pat Ka Chan.

Winner of the Carter scholarship for the student in Hastings county attaining the second highest marks in grade 13 was Fred Swain.

Rudnell Ambulance Provincial Police Association Branch 7 donated $150 for the son or daughter of an officer who received high academic standing went to Catherine Graham.

Jane Rowe won the Kinsmen Club of Belleville bursary of $100.

The Intelligencer scholarship of $100 for the student with the highest standing in grade 13 English was awarded to Tom Wien. He also won the Queen's University Trico color scholarship of $2,000.

Hockley Before Board

Charges Levelled at BGH

By HARRY HULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville General Hospital board of governors was told Friday that the dismissal of social worker Robert Sanders was political assassination.

The charge came from William Hockley — outspoken critic on community affairs, he has challenged reasons for the dismissal of Mr. Sanders, now Democratic Party candidate in Hastings in the last federal election.

Mr. Hockley also:

— Questioned reasons for a succession of staff departures at the hospital in the past 18 months;

— Suggested the naming of Carl Bateman, Hastings County administrator, as hospital board chairman to oppose a conflict of interest.

He said Mr. Sanders was dismissed by the hospital when gave restructuring of staff organization as the reason.

But, said Mr. Hockley, BGH executive director Philip Rickard had told him the dismissed social worker had been dismissed because "he was unqualified".

Later on Global television, Mr. Hockley had given poor judgment as the reason, claimed Mr. Hockley.

Staff 'Scared' Says Sanders

Administration of Belleville General Hospital operates on the "creation of fear" among its employees, claims dismissed social worker Robert Sanders.

By dismissing him, "they've cured the bad cut of a few scared the hell out of everybody," said Mr. Sanders Friday.

His charge was denied by BGH executive director Philip Rickard.

"Nobody is a bit scared," retorted Mr. Rickard.

Mr. Sanders, 31, was let out of BGH employ earlier this month after six years. He charged his dismissal was linked to his running as a New Democratic Party candidate in Hastings in the July 8 federal election. The allegation has been denied by hospital authorities, but the charge was renewed Friday when Belleville citizen William Hockley went before the hospital board to question the dismissal and departure of four staff members in the past year.

In an interview later, Mr. Sanders cited other incidents leading up to his dismissal.

He said he was chided for Mr. Rickard's office last February when he objected to making a speech involving the hospital to a BGH meeting where a break down of the air-conditioning on a summer's day could be disastrous, the board has been warned.

He said he was then told "what I was not allowed to say — and I said at anyway".

Mr. Rickard said Mr. Sanders, he criticized the Ontario government for spending money keeping elderly people in the "wrong" when they could have been in less expensive nursing home care. The difference was $6 per day for about 100 patients, he claimed.

Mr. Rickard told the Intelligencer he was trying to protect Mr. Sanders in his job at the time.

"We called him in before he spoke and suggested for his own sake that he be discreet. He knew it was not in his own interest," said the executive director.

Mr. Sanders also said he had helped organize employees in the Hastings County administrative office. He alleged Earl Bateman, county administrator and hospital board chairman, also "resented" his involvement.

Pollution Charged

Clarence Young, volunteer community action watchdog, Friday warned Belleville General Hospital board of governors against pollution.

A hospital drain running into the Moira River at BGH was showing signs of contamination, he claimed.

He said he had noticed effluent in the drain but could not comment on its source.

"All I know by looking at it, it is filthy," he said.

There was no comment from board members.

Parking Garage Shelved Again

Belleville General Hospital board of governors has again delayed action on a parking garage.

It won't take any action before it investigates a more modest concept.

Friday, the board's hospital committee was asked to produce estimates for a parking lot — either a surface lot or one covered by a structure for 200 cars might cost around $600,000. By contrast, a lot for 110 cars might be prepared and paved for as low as $25,000 — barring any problems with moving street services.

Money for such a project is available from a big government fund — the fills stated — left the hospital. But several board members, including Earl Bateman, questioned the expense of the garage.

Dr. A. G. Allen, medical staff president, said BGH had been refused permission by the Ontario Health ministry to build a nursing home.

That puts the wisdom of a society that would spend so much money to park Detroit automobiles "in a city with unemployment difficulty caring for our old people", he said.

Site of the parking project is proposed for the southeast side of hospital property, running south from Bay Drive near Pinnacle.

Belleville city council, who must process rezoning and street closing requests to facilitate the plan, will not act until the board definitely decides what shape the parking project will take.

Ambulance Attendants On Strike

TRENTON — The eight-member CUPE local of ambulance drivers and attendants employed at Trenton's Rushnell Ambulance Service walked off their jobs Friday demanding increases in pay.

York Ryer, shop steward, interviewed on the picket line, charged the company with "stalling" completion of the contract — the first of its kind for the new local.

During the past seven months, management and labor have conducted seven bargaining last Tuesday, Company and union sources said the draft received the initials of both sides. Mr. Ryer said "a few minor changes" were suggested — and the boys blew their stacks when they'd had enough delays".

Rushnell Ambulance owner Doug Rushnell, there were four minor changes to be made and that Thursday changes met with the approval of union representatives. "It was a matter of having the modifications typed properly", he said. "We were up until 4 a.m. sitting in on the document when it is typed out."

The highlights of the tentative contract is a massive reduction in the number of hours worked. Until September men were working 96 hours per week and 72 the next said Mr. Ryer.

Following word last Tuesday that there would be some delay in having the contract retyped, the eight-member local voted unanimously to walk. Until the issue has been settled, members say they will not provide only emergency service.

Driver-attendants with the firm have a starting rate of $110 a week with the highest rate being $143. In addition to a man's base wage, he can earn additional premiums by qualifying for Level 1 ambulance, first aid certificates, a radio operator's licence and so on.

"The only thing we've gained is reduction in the working hours," said Mr. Ryer. Otherwise we work a standard 40-hour week.

Mr. Rushnell said he was surprised by the walkout. "As far as we knew, everyone was happy with the terms. There were no counter-proposals."

As far as the wages go, I'm sympathetic, he said. "If the men can get more pay more power to them but it has to come out of the province's pocket."

Mr. Rushnell receives $7,000 per month administering the ambulance service and said he is disappointed "there are no profits".

"We are not making money, we are providing a service", he said. "We pay the men what the province will allow".

At one point Mr. Rushnell invited the staff to fill out the budget and submit what they felt they were worth. He added, "The budget came back cut by $2,000 per month.

"We'd be able to employ a higher calibre of man if the province raised the nurse strings," said Mr. Rushnell.

He said management will wait for the staff to approach them for a meeting. No such meeting has been made and union spokesmen have given no indication what the next move would be.

If Mr. Sanders, employed at the hospital for six years, was unqualified "why was he let loose in such a sensitive environment as the hospital" he asked.

Nothing had been said to Mr. Sanders about poor judgment, said Mr. Hockley.

"I would suggest to you the most monumental piece of poor judgment that man made was to run as the New Democratic Party candidate in the federal election."

"Had he elected to run as a Conservative member, then win, lose or draw, he would have been promoted and raised in stature," charged Mr. Hockley.

— — It would seem to me that Mr. Sanders was, despite statements to the contrary, the victim of a political assassination."

Mr. Hockley claimed his name had been mentioned before Mr. Sanders had been asked by Mr. Rickard when Dr. Morton Shulman, NDP member of the legislature.

"He tells me he was asked if he was a leak to Dr. Morton Shulman, of if he was in information to me to leak to Dr. Morton Shulman."

Mr. Hockley said he does not know Dr. Shulman, nor has he written or spoken to him.

"The whole situation is quite ludicrous. It was a member of the NDP. For what it's worth . . . I'm a card-carrying member of the Liberal Party," said Mr. Hockley.

In the past year, he said, those leaving hospital staff included an assistant administrator, night administrator, nursing director, building service director and hospital comptroller.

Mr. Hockley also questioned the makeup of board membership. While the board approved made up of prominent local people, he did not see any representatives of working organizations.

Of board chairman Bateman he said, "I think it is a very strange indeed that appointed to the board is an employee of Hastings County. How this can work without conflict of interest arising from time to time is something beyond, me."

The Sanders issue was not discussed after board members noted the social worker had contacted a lawyer.

Mr. Rickard said Mr. Hockley "flatters himself if he thinks I have ever discussed this with anybody".

Following the meeting John Legate, board vice-chairman and Dr. A. G. Allen, medical staff president, were delegated by board spokesmen to be declined to comment on Mr. Sanders' dismissal since it might now be a legal matter.

But, following the public meeting, the governors had been unanimous in support of Mr. Bateman and the hospital administration, said Mr. Legate.

Mr. Bateman, appointed to the board by the lieutenant-governor seven years ago, has not been involved in any conflict of interest "opposed to me in any way, shape or form," said Mr. Legate.

Of the staff changes mentioned by Mr. Hockley, he said there was no controversy involved.

But both spokesmen suggested the people involved should be contacted for their own opinions.

Mr. Legate said he had heard controversy over these people having left in any institution you hear this. You don't in private industry — and the board has to be prepared to accept the fact."

Basically, said Mr. Legate, what the institution needs is an administrative responsibility, and the administration acts to implement the policy of the board and therefore the board must accept responsibility for the actions of the administrative authority.

"In essence," said Dr. Allen, "we hire an administrator and he is responsible for the day-to-day administration of the hospital. If it doesn't run well, we fire him."

The hospital exists for the health and welfare of its community, said Mr. Legate.

"Both the board and administration have had to make decisions that may not be popular with either individual members or groups of people," he said. "But they have always been made with that one basic concept in mind."

Toronto Wins Fifth Straight

TORONTO (CP) — Bobby Hull leads the league scorers with 12 points, but ex-Jet ahead of former and team-mate Tony Featherstone.

Hull was reported to be hampered by a back injury but Toros goalie Jim Shaw wasn't convinced.

"Well, I don't think it was hurting him that much," said Shaw. "He was moving pretty well out there.

"Hull's shot is something else. The puck seems to be always moving. It's kinda scary. I know one shot from centre ice must have dropped five feet and they're always tough to stop that way."

Hull and Henderson both said they were impressed by some of the Jets' newcomers, including Anders Hedberg and Ulf Nilsson, both former members of Sweden's national team.

"They really move out there," said Dillon.

"They're fast and shifty. If you don't watch carefully, they get a couple strides on you and you're beat. They really are fast.

"Those Swedes can really move," said Henderson. "It was the best game we've played this season."

HOCKEY TIPS

PLAY THE PENALTY SHOT BY EAR

Now many times do you see a penalty shot? True, not often but when you do. For instance, in the last pre-season game against New York Rangers, two penalty shots were awarded. Yet there were three minutes in the SAME period.

The New York player missed his chance but our player scored to turn the game around — so were losing at the time. The main point is: while they don't happen frequently, when they do it's ideal to take advantage of the situation.

The penalty shot is a challenge for the goalie and the shooter. Some people suggest that one should study goaltenders so that on breakaways or penalty shots the shooter will know whether to deke or shoot as soon as he picks up the puck.

Quite frankly, I seldom know what I'll do until I get there. Usually, you make your decision by what the goalie does. If he comes out at you or leaves something open you might decide to shoot. By then your instinct as goalies leave openings hoping the goalie's game.

a you'll shoot there and next thing you know they've covered the shot.

We've all heard suggestions one should decide whether to deke or shoot before he takes his wind-up on a penalty shot. I don't think that's very wise because let's say I decide to shoot and suddenly I see the goalie coming out to cut down the angle. I'm stuck.

It's best to play it by ear: if the goalie comes out, try the deke; if he stays in the net, shoot. A greatest you can start is for the net. It would be senseless committing yourself to shoot if the goalie starts to come at you.

Practice penalty shots and breakaways with your goalie before and after practices. The work will help improve your skills and it will also help sharpen the goalie's game.

Flyers and Seals Break Penalty Record

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Flyers' rough antics didn't help them much on the scoreboard, however, and the Seals upset the defending Stanley Cup champions 4-1.

In other NHL games, Vancouver Canucks edged Kansas City Scouts 5-3 and Minnesota North Stars tied 3-3 with Atlanta Flames.

The main rhubarb at California started with a fight between Flyer forward Orest Kindrachuk and Seals defenceman Mike Christie midway in the third period when the Seals were leading 4-1.

The fight led to a bench-clearing brawl and when referee Lewis ended up throwing eight players out of the game — Kindrachuk, Don Saleski, Bob Kelly, Andre Dupont and Dave Shultz of the Flyers and Christie, Len Frig and Jim Neilson of the Seals.

The previous record total penalty minutes by both teams in one game was 204 set by Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs in a game at Toronto, Dec. 8, 1963.

The Flyers also set a record for most penalty minutes by one team in one period of play with 117 minutes in the third period, surpassing Montreal's total of 96 in that 1963 game at Toronto.

After a scoreless first period, the Seals opened the scoring with Stan Weir's deflection while the Flyers were two men short. It was Weir's seventh goal in nine games.

Larry Patey and Stan Gilbert also pushed the score to 3-0 by the end of the second period and Joey Johnston added the fourth goal early in the third.

After the brawl, the Seals played with only two defencemen and Rick MacLeish finally broke through for the Flyers' lone goal, beating goalie Garry Simmons' shutout bid.

At Atlanta, Fred Stanfield's goal at 12:33 of the second period earned the North Stars the tie.

Bill Goldsworthy scored the Minnesota goal and Randy Manery and Bob Murray scored for Atlanta. Minnesota's Cesare Maniago and Atlanta's Phil Myre each stopped 23 shots.

At Vancouver, Paulin Bordeleau's fourth goal of the season early in the third period broke a 3-3 tie and the Canucks outshooting Kansas City 46-34 in the game, clinched their fifth win in eight games with Chris Oddleifson's empty-net score in the last minute.

Dennis Ververgaert scored his sixth goal of the season for the Canucks to start the scoring and Vancouver got other goals from John Gould and Gerry Monahan.

Butch Deadmarsh, Will Paleent and Simon Nolet scored for the Scouts who have yet to win a game.

Fall Hurts Chances

Nightingale Remains No. 2

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The expected and unexpected occurred in the second day of competition Friday at the Skate Canada 74 international figure skating event.

Ron Shaver of Cambridge, Ont., retained his lead in the men's singles as expected. Shaver performed nearly flawlessly in the compulsory free skating program Friday night.

Another Postage of East Germany remained on top in the women's singles, followed by Lynn Nightingale of Ottawa, a clancy free-skater, was expected to move past the German girl but fell during her short program and remained in second place.

The battle for the gold medal in the dance event remained tight with the Soviet Union's couple of Irina Moseyeva and Andrei Minenkov clinging to a slim lead over Colleen O'Connor and Jim Millns of the United States.

Miss Postzech now has 119.18 points to Miss Nightingale's 117.62 points.

Player Heckled During Tourney

SYDNEY (AP) — Black and white anti-apartheid demonstrators booed and heckled South African golfer Gary Player during an Australian tournament today and clashed with Player's supporters.

Before the opening of play, they had set up a picket line of greens at the Australian Golf Club course.

One demonstrator was reported to have been arrested and charged by police.

Reporters at the course said the demonstrators, striking on the third day of the $46,000 Willi Masters golf tournament, mingled in Player's gallery from the start of the day's play.

A black protester coughed loudly to distract Player at the first tee, the reporters said, as when police moved him away other demonstrators shouted: "Why do you arrest my black brother?"

At the fourth hole, a dozen demonstrators chanted, "Blacks can't watch golf in South Africa," and a Player supporter knocked one demonstrator to the ground with a punch to the jaw.

Police and officials moved in and took 12 more demonstrators off the course.

Player had to talk with the demonstrators at the fourth, but officials told him to stay in the centre of the green.

"All I can do is go on and play golf," Player said. "I personally shot six pars and a birdie on the easier holes of the golf course.

Early Saturday, before the start of play, golf club officials found bomb threats. Inspection that time had been spread on three greens at the course.

"Police are quiet," had been painted on the 12th green, in reference to South Africa's policy of racial segregation, and "Apartheid" had been painted on the 13th tee.

Junior Chargers Wrap Up First

Centennial Junior Chargers clinched first place in their division after defeating Metro Trojans 14-1 in high school football action yesterday.

The victory gave Centennial five wins and one loss for the season.

The Quinte senior Golets had an identical win-loss record for the year.

First place was decided on the total number of points accumulated by each team in competition against each other.

Each team was one and lost one. Quinte took the first encounter by a score of 12-6. In the second meeting Centennial came out the winners as they upset the Golets 19-6. This gave Centennial a total of 34 points and 12 points for Quinte.

In yesterday's game, at Metro, a strong Centennial defence was the key to victory.

Corner linebacker Tony Yohns and Terry Tanner, defensive tackle Jeff Mark Meenham and Jeff Owen were standouts on the Charger defence.

The Chargers opened the scoring in the first quarter as Paul Hipkin went for a long run down the field for the major.

The point after attempt was missed and the score remained 6-0 tot the half.

Centennial's final touchdown came late in the fourth quarter on an off tackle play by Larry Thompson. The convert was missed but earlier in the half a two point safety counted.

In the senior game played at Centennial the Metro Trojans kept rolling along with a 36-14 win over the Chargers. It was Metro's fourth consecutive victory.

Scores were not available for the Napanee and Centre Hastings game played Friday.

Bobcats Lose 5-1 to Panthers

Williams Resigns as Cats Coach

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

About the only thing left to go wrong for the Belleville Bobcats is to have the ice surface at the Memorial Arena melt while they're playing Markham's Royals Sunday night. Then again that might be their only exception.

It's been a rough year for the local Metro Junior B club and the year has just gotten under way.

Friday night, before approximately 800 home fans, the Cats dropped a 5-1 decision to the Pickering Panthers.

But the game wasn't all the team lost. It was their fourth consecutive defeat in their first nine games. After coming up with an idea and a tie in their first four games of the regular season, ending five in a row has been disheartening.

Even above losing the game though has been the latest news that Tim Williams has stepped down as head coach of the team.

"I just couldn't get through to them," said Williams. "If a coach isn't able to get through to his players then what's the point of him being there?"

Williams had picked up the coaching duties when the former coach had left earlier. This was Williams debut as the Junior Bobcats bench boss marked his return to coaching after a long layoff.

"I don't know," said Williams, "Maybe it was the players or maybe it was all my fault, but I know I wasn't helping them. The last thing I want to do is hinder a group of young players like that."

"So," he added, "the only logical solution was for me to step down and let someone else have a crack at it."

Williams hinted that perhaps he was just a little too old to handle a group of players of Junior age. "Maybe somebody younger will do a better job."

"Oh, well," said Williams, "it's not something I'll ever regret trying."

Who Next?

Who will replace Williams now? Belleville is already having trouble putting things together. What effect will this have on them?

The Cats management have a few names in mind for replacements, but naturally because of the suddenness of Williams resignation no one has been approached. Sunday when the Cats play host to the Royals the man most likely to be behind the bench is Jim Snider. Maybe.

The Sniper, the Cats general manager, has decided to fill in until the troops lead.

All these happenings went on after the game. What happened during the game was pretty discouraging by itself.

Dave Taylor, who was supposed to be sitting this one out because of stitches in his wrist, had to dress for the occasion because the Cats were short defencemen. As it matter, they were short all over. They had to call two players up from the Juvenile squad just to make up three forward lines and two sets of defencemen.

The Cats can't put things together at all. The veterans on the team are hustling, but they aren't hitting or being aggressive like they have been in the past.

Of course the rookie situation still hasn't straightened around either. On every one of the goals scored by Pickering Friday night it was the fault of a first year player not taking out his man, being caught up ice or being caught out of position.

Mostly it was being caught out of position that really hurt. The veterans on the club would start an offensive play but the rookies wouldn't be in position to finish the play and Belleville would lose control of the puck.

They just need time, though, to learn each others moves. The first year juniors on the club are picking it little time now (hockey sense) but that all comes with experience. They've certainly got the ability and the desire so it shouldn't be long before everything is right as rain.

But for now, it's pouring on the Cats.

Pickering got one goal in the first period and four in the second, and that was the old ball game right there. Belleville's only marker came late in the second period. It started by Gary Thompson, one of the juveniles called up to the club.

The Panthers got a pair of goals from Kevin Owen and singles from Dennis Saunders, Chuck Durocher and Mark Fredick.

Belleville was outshot 33-28 while Pickering was called for 10 minor penalties to the Bobcats eight.

In other Metro Junior B games Friday night Etobicoke upset Brampton 8-4 and Whitby downed Oshawa 7-3.

Bobcat game time against Markham, Sunday, is 8 p.m. at the Memorial Arena.

Sunter Has Crack At Scoring Title

TORONTO (CP) — Ian Sunter believes Hamilton Tiger-Cats helped him to become a better kicker and he hopes to help the club win the regular-passing job this season.

"Doing the punting . . . has given me a lot more confidence," he said in a recent interview.

"I'm staying loose. When you start thinking field goals you're right up standing on the sidelines."

Sunter, leading the Eastern Football Conference scoring race with 128 points, two more than Gerry Organ of Ottawa Rough Riders, feels his kicking may be a major factor in Hamilton's bid for a playoff position.

The Tiger-Cats, third in the EFC with 12 points, one more than Toronto, wind up their regular-season schedule with a home-and-home series against the Argonauts.

The first game is scheduled for Sunday at CNE Stadium and the second Nov. 2 in Hamilton.

Hamilton, 5-6-1, sits 12 points behind first-place Montreal Alouettes in the EFC but Coach Al Bruno has refused to concede the championship.

Sunter has averaged 38.6 yards on 139 punts, a figure that puts him fourth in the EFC and 19th in the league. However, coach Jerry Williams says Sunter, who has recorded last week with a 47-yard average on 10 punts to Sunday contest against Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Sunter says Hamilton is have been spoiled by having good punters like Joe Zuger, whose average is as good anyone since Zuger," Sunter said.

Zuger had a career punting average of 36.5 yards and a 10-year Hamilton star, Cam Fraser, averaged 44.9 yards.

Sunter says Hamilton is scheduled start at 3 p.m. EST, will broadcast on the CTV eastern network with the Toronto-Hamilton game.

Ottawa is idle this week but Montreal Alouettes meet Saskatchewan Roughriders in interlocking game Sunday in Regina.

McGowan Healthy For Title Game

By The Canadian Press

Edmonton Eskimos have a healthy George McGowan in the lineup for the first time this season when they put their position on top team in the Western Football Conference on the line against British Columbia Lions tonight.

McGowan, the flashy receiver named to the all-star team as player in the Canadian Football League last season, has been sidelined with a pulled hamstring muscle for most of this season. He has made only token appearances and hopes to return to full speed for the first time tonight when the Lions visit Clarke Stadium in Edmonton.

McGowan returns to the lineup as the WFC heads into the next-to-last weekend of the season with four of the six teams still in contention for playoff spots.

Edmonton has 17 points, one more than B.C. and Saskatchewan Roughriders, who play Montreal location of the Eastern Conference Sunday. Winnipeg Blue Bombers are three points off the pace with 14 points and visit Calgary Stampeders the only team out of playoff contention.

Saskatchewan's game against Montreal will be the last of the season, while the other four teams play again next week, and in the final attempt to unscramble the playoff picture.

"How much does McGowan mean to us?" Edmonton coach Ray Jauch asks. "He means at least a field goal, maybe a touchdown a game.

"You don't realize how much you receiver the McGowan does for your offence until you don't have him."

British Columbia is expected to be without Jim Young, Peter Lake, acquired recently from Calgary, Don Moorhead, who guided the Lions through most of the season, is hobbled with knee and hand injuries.

The Roughriders will be facing a Montreal team that has already locked up first place in the EFC. Saskatchewan coach Eagle Payne isn't sure what effect that will have on Montreal.

"They may come in here really loose and do everything almost perfectly."

Payne expects Montreal to go with its top players and is particularly concerned about quarterback Jimmy Jones and receiver Johnny Rodgers.

"You have to respect their talent, especially Jones. His rolling-out ability makes him a definite threat."

Calgary general manager Gary Hobson is confident the Stampeders playing for next year's salaries, will upend the Blue Bombers.

"We will beat Winnipeg. Our players have performed exceptionally well in the last two games and they know they have to prove themselves to make it with us for next year."

The Edmonton-B.C. game will be televised on the CBC television network at 10 p.m. EDT. The Montreal-Saskatchewan game will be on the CTV network at 3:30 p.m. EDT.

TORONTO (CP) — Two of the Eastern Football Conference's contenders for playoff berths fined $50 each Friday as a result of a fight Oct. 20 in Ottawa during a game between the Rough Riders and Montreal Alouettes.

Ottawa's Tom Schaefer and Glen Weir of the Als tangled in the fourth quarter of the game, won by Montreal 26-6. Shortly after Dickie Harris had returned a Rider fumble for the final score of the game.

Cards Still Unbeaten

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"I don't think we're different from any other team in the National Football League," says St. Louis Cardinals coach Don Corvell. But the Cards are the only unbeaten team in the league.

To sustain that way they have to hold off George Allen's Washington Redskins on Monday night, the game of the season.

Corvell also has Jim Hart at quarterback—but Corvell calls the shots, handing in plays.

The Cardinals beat the Redskins 17-10 in the second week of action. With another victory, St. Louis' would become the first National Conference East team ever to knock off the defending Redskins twice in one year.

In Sunday's other games, Philadelphia is at New Orleans, Chicago at Buffalo, Houston at Cincinnati, Denver at Cleveland, Green Bay at Detroit, Baltimore at Miami, Dallas at New York Giants, Los Angeles at New York Jets, New England at Minnesota, Kansas City at San Diego and Oakland at San Francisco.

Atlanta is at Pittsburgh Monday night.

Philadelphia Eagles and the Redskins are tied at 4-2, two games back of the Cards.

Philadelphia will face New Orleans Saints' Archie Manning, restored to a starting role at quarterback after a one-game benching. Bobby Scott, who led New Orleans to its first road victory in 19 games, has a knee injury.

Chicago's Carl Garrett, who fashioned his 101 yards last Monday night against Green Bay, is expected to get some help with the return of Ron Harrison.

Their running will counter Buffalo's bed by O. J. Simpson, the Bay but Jack Concannon is NFL ground-gaining leader. The coach Dan Devine's choice to straight victories, also have the against Detroit's Lions.

Headed for the Circle

Snow Knight, a 10-1 shot, is led in by his owner, Mrs. Sharon Phillips, wife of a Montreal lawyer, after he won the 150th running of the Epsom Derby. (AP Wirephoto)

Stakes Beginning Might Be Interesting

TORONTO (CP) — It is the finish of a race that counts, but the start of Sunday's Canadian Inst e rnational Championship Stakes could be one of the more interesting parts of the race.

For instance, there is Snow Knight, the Epsom Derby winner who took several minutes to get into the gate in last Saturday's Jockey Club Cup. After a blindfold was applied, the three-year-old colt finally went into the gate. The same procedure can be expected Sunday.

And then there is Dahlia, the 7-to-5 early favorite, who likes one of her grooms to lead her in and sometimes insists the jockey get off before she will enter the gate.

"She's like that, one of those fillies, like a prima donna," said trainer Maurice Zilber.

"It must be one of my boys, she knows them. She's a very clever filly."

Dahlia, a four-year-old owned by Texas oil millionaire Nelson B. Bunt of Dallas, drew the inside post position in the nine-horse field for the $132,750 race over a mile and five furlongs at Woodbine's Marshall turf course.

Dahlia, the first millionaire filly with earnings of $1,115,955 could add another $91,000 if she takes the winner's share Sunday.

Snow Knight, now owned by E. P. Taylor's Windfields Farm, was a surprise entry after finishing sixth in the Jockey Club Cup. But after trainer Jim Bentley tried bikers on the colt and found some improvement, it was decided to enter the international.

"If you look at that last race, he wasn't beaten all that much, about 5½ lengths and he was close to the pace and he was hindered from that fuss at the gate," said Bentley.

Dahlia, with English jockey Lester Piggott aboard is known to like a firm turf which the Woodbine course has now.

The field, with post position, owners, jockeys, trainers and probable odds:

1. Olmodo; Beverley Bromfman, Montreal; Jim Kelly; Gilbert Feserli; 30 to 1.

2. Big Spruce; Max Clark, New York; Mike Hole; Letty Nickerson; 7 to 2.

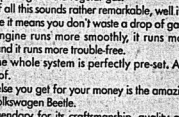
1975. THE YEAR YOU CAN FINALLY AFFORD FUEL INJECTION.

Until now, fuel injection has almost exclusively been a luxury item on luxury cars, costing anywhere up to twenty-five or thirty thousand dollars.

And if you've had the big sums of money it took to buy those kind of cars, then you know what a wonderful thing fuel injection can be.

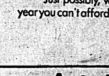
Well, from this day on, all you need is the little sum of money it takes to buy a 1975 VW Beetle, to know what a wonderful thing fuel injection can be.

What you get for your money is an electronic brain, or control unit, that receives signals from the engine, evaluates them, and in micro-seconds, determines exactly how much fuel should go into each cylinder.



Porsche, Alfa Romeo, Mercedes and now the Beetle.

And then, again in micro-seconds, the fuel injectors (where the system gets its name from) actually inject the precise amount of gas for each cylinder. As an added bonus we might add that our system still only requires good old regular gas.



It's run electronically.

Now, if all this sounds rather remarkable, well it is.

Because it means you don't waste a drop of gas.

Your engine runs more smoothly, it runs more efficiently and it runs more trouble-free.

Plus, the whole system is perfectly pre-set. And tamper-proof.

What else you get for your money is the amazing package it all comes in: The Volkswagen Beetle.

A car that's by now legendary for its craftsmanship, quality and dependability. As well as a car that's covered by the VW Owner's Security Blanket, probably the most advanced auto coverage plan in the world.

The 1975 Beetle with electronic fuel injection.

Just possibly, with the way things are shaping up, this might be the year you can't afford not to own one.

The 1975 Beetle.

Firm Guard Is Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A guard for Purolator Security Inc. was charged Friday in connection with the theft last week end of more than $4 million from the company's vault in Chicago, the FBI announced.

Ralph Marrero, 21, of Berwyn, Ill., was charged with bank burglary, bank larceny and the use of explosive devices in a complaint filed in Chicago, said FBI Director Clarence Kelley.

He said Marrero was on duty Sunday night and early Monday morning when the burglary was alleged to have taken place. The suspect is still being sought.

Papers Gone

LONDON (Reuter) — Personal documents belonging to Prime Minister Edward Heath, including old tax forms—have disappeared from his private home here, a spokesman for him said Friday.

Protest Cut

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Industry Association says the slowdown in military spending announced recently by Defence Minister James Richardson will result in Canada being unable to fulfil its military commitments.

GM Cuts Costs

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors is launching a cost-cutting program in the wake of a sagging car industry which dropped the firm's profit margin to practically zero.

Labor Meets

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Inflation, the rights of farm laborers and housing will be among major concerns of the annual convention of the Ontario Federation of Labor (OFL) which begins here Sunday.

End to Abortion Laws Is Sought by Doctors

OTTAWA (CP) — A majority of doctors believe federal abortion laws should be stricken from the books, leaving therapeutic abortion decisions up to patient and doctor, suggests a study published in the current issue of The Canadian Journal of Public Health.

The study, which also finds most doctors agreeing that social and economic factors are grounds for abortion, is based on a survey of 167 general practitioners, obstetricians and gynecologists with hospital privileges at any of Ottawa's five public general hospitals.

The federal position, staunchly supported by Justice Minister Otto Lang and spelled out under Section 251 of the Criminal Code, is that abortion is a crime unless approved by a hospital abortion committee to save a woman's life or health.

PC Says Party Needs Leader Likable as PM

BEAVERTON, Ont. (CP) — The federal Progressive Conservative party needs a leader who can project himself to the public as well as Prime Minister Trudeau, the Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Parry Sound-Muskoka said Thursday.

Researcher Declares His Report Ignored

TORONTO (CP) — A Guelph researcher says the Ontario government has suppressed and ignored a report outlining complaints by policemen in Ontario that poor working conditions hamper and sometimes endanger them.

John Ross, 28, said in an interview he decided to make the material public because "something has to get up and say things that policemen have been saying to themselves for a long time."

Mr. Ross said he was authorized by the government in the fall of 1970 to do a survey of police attitudes toward recruitment, training and promotion practices. The study was completed by spring of 1971.

Brutality Tales Annoy Readers

TORONTO (CP) — Reaction to The Globe and Mail's series on alleged police brutality has been sharply critical with overwhelming support being expressed for the Metropolitan Toronto police force, the newspaper says.

In says telephone calls and letters have numbered as many as a day since the series of 10 stories began last week. Between 80 and 100 per cent have voiced support for the police and condemnation of the series.

Eight of every 10 complaints have come from women, the newspaper says, with many callers saying the police were insulted in beating up the people whose stories were told in the series.

"You are a (obscenity deleted)," an irate 85-year-old woman said on the telephone. That's the only language you understand."

Another caller said: "I'd kill those guys in the street."

The newspaper said that although many callers threatened to cancel their subscriptions, fewer than 20 cancellations have come as a result of the series.

Criminal lawyers spoken to were divided on the value of the series of alleged brutality by reporter Gerald McAuliffe.

Sydney Linden, former civil liberties lawyer, said he found it "objective—as fair as it could be in the circumstances."

"There's been a royal condemnation ordered," he said. "None of us could achieve that in years of trying."

Lawyer Clayton Ruby termed the series "magnificent—a great public service."

Gordon Ercelstone, who has defended policemen in court, said:

"We've got the best police force in North America and we're proud of it. The cross that any police force has to bear is that an isolated case of misbehavior gets the headlines.

"One police officer acted Chief Harold Adamson's ban on comment on the series by force members Friday and said: The Globe and Mail is looking to sell papers, and you can always sell papers when you chew up the police."

"Well, I'm delighted about the royal commission hearings when it's over the police force will come up smelling like roses."

Chaplains Deplore Paper's Revelations

TORONTO (CP) — The Jewish chaplains of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Association say that published allegations of police brutality here will undermine the relationship between police and the community.

Rev. Leonard Wall, one of the chaplains and chancellor of the Roman Catholic diocese of Toronto, said in a letter however that the self-image of every policeman is important.

"A charge of brutality or corruption discounts the work of every good policeman," Father Wall said. "They may not be appreciated by the public all the time, but casting suspicion on the force could make a policeman feel his job is not worthwhile."

Father Wall and Rev. Richard Jones, a Methodist minister and founder-president of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, have been the official but part-time padres to the police association since 1967.

Mr. Jones said a policeman's job is not an easy one.

"He's doing an authoritarian job in a permissible society and we all react negatively to that," he said.

The policeman and the citizen have to treat one another with respect," Mr. Jones said. "It isn't easy to like the guy who is getting a ticket on your car, but there are ways."

Bill Davis was unfair to his employees.
Now you may have to pay the price.

He passed a law that affects the lives of Ontario's 60,000 government employees.

It severely restricts our right to negotiate with our employer, the government, over pay and conditions.

It's so biased in their favour that we're falling badly behind others.

But it affects you, too.

Low pay and unfair conditions cause low morale. Staff turnover is high. Your public services are likely to suffer. Essential services, from ambulances to food inspection.

We don't want this to happen. But we don't see how it can be avoided.

The problem is this repressive law called CECBA (Crown Employees Collective Bargaining Act).

It denies us the right to choose between voluntary arbitration and strike action. A right that federal and many provincial government employees have.

It forces us to abide by arbitration and grievance boards heavily stacked in our employer's favour.

We can't even negotiate important issues like pensions.

All basic rights that other workers enjoy.

This law should be changed.

If you agree, if you consider public services a matter of public concern, write your MPP.

And do us all a service.

Free the servants!

Small Towns in Alberta See Plot Against Them

HILLSPRING, Alta. (CP) — There's a conspiracy about to kill Hillspring, they just no other way to look at it.

The grain-faced farmer was talking about what many people in this southern Alberta region have come to call "the conspiracy" by Ottawa, Rail, the Alberta Wheat Pool and the Alberta government to abolish farming towns like Hillspring.

Like many other prairie communities, Hillspring is expected to fade out of existence in the next decade because of changes in grain handling, transportation and life-styles.

A study by the Canada Grains Group in Ottawa says predicted small towns like Hillspring and nearby Glenwood will die as farm families move to larger communities like Cardston, 25 miles to the southeast.

The first farm threats have been felt here already with the announcement the Alberta Pool would close down its three elevators next July 31.

CP Rail, which has a spur line into Hillspring to service the elevators, has applied to the federal government for abandonment of service.

The weed-covered track stands as evidence of recent traffic and, one farmer says, the ties are so rotten he had to replace three in a section of track which runs through his wheat field.

"I was afraid that if I didn't, a train might get lost and come to Hillspring, and to derail in the middle of my field," said the farmer.

Hillspring, in many ways, is typical of the prairie towns which spawned many of the country's political and business leaders and now are drifting away in the name of progress and economics.

The town's 300 inhabitants—another 300 live on surrounding farms and ranches—are largely long-time residents. Virtually every adult can remember the days of the Depression, the poor wheat markets and the coming of industry to the region.

Hillspring has exclusively Mormon community, used to boast a prosperous business community. Today it has one general store, one derelict service station-garage and one United Farmers' Association outlet.

Grant Harker, owner of the M and M Supply store and mayor of Hillspring, recalled the "better days."

"Just about 20 years ago, we had a Co-op store, a hardware dealer, an auto, gold farm equipment, a butcher shop, a garage and a restaurant," said Mr. Harker.

"Today, it's all I can do to stay in business. I lose more money on lots of items but I figure we have to provide a service to the people of the town."

The soft-spoken mayor reflects the optimistic feeling of most townspeople that the so-called business and government conspiracy will be successful.

"Closing the elevators is going to crowd out the small farmer, no doubt about that," he said. "But I think it will lift the town but it sure won't do it any good.

"The big farms with the heavy trucks can haul over to Glenwood (a slightly smaller town seven miles away) because the elevators there are going to be kept open for a while."

While the railbed leading into Hillspring is in need of major repair, the road bed is in good shape. Much they just finished paving the road it's starting to break up already," said Mr. Harker. "It can't take the weight of the heavy trucks hauling wheat."

While the Hillspring spur line has not yet been officially abandoned by CP Rail, "as far as we are concerned they shut it down a long time ago."

"I sell fertiliser here and I've always relied on the railway to bring it in. It got, so bad, though, that you could never tell if it would take three or six weeks to get a shipment that the man around here needed right away.

"Now I use trucks to haul fertiliser in here, so in a way I guess I'm partly to blame for the town breaking up."

Despite a sign at the entrance to Hillspring which bars "heavy trucks" from the town's paved main streets, two heavy trucks—6 transport unloading goods at Mr. Harker's store and a gasoline tanker at the UFA station—were in town.

"I'd like to see the Pool keep at least one elevator open," said Mr. Harker.

"The small farmer who uses a half-ton truck to haul his grain could bring it here and the Pool could combine it all to be hauled out in trucks."

Pool secretary R. A. Friesen said Hillspring elevators, along with those at Monarch, Whitney, Cessford, Dorothy, Dewinton, Glen and Equity, will be closed because they failed to handle at least 200,000 bushels of grain last year.

Hillspring was the busiest, handling about 70,000 bushels.

Clarke, Pool agent at Hillspring, said this year's volume will be more than double last year's, largely because farmers can obtain higher prices for their products.

The Pool, in a letter signed by Mr. Friesen, told Hillspring farmers that elevators would be closed as part of a province-wide program.

"Closure of elevators at locations where handlings are so low that an earning is not possible has been under active consideration by the directors and delegates for a number of years," the letter stated.

"They are concerned that continuing the operations of the uneconomic elevators will result in a reduction in membership, earnings and deterioration of service."

Mr. Clarke said Hillspring is operating under a handicap due to poor railbed conditions.

"There are so many weeds in the bed that I won't be able to haul any cars this winter," he said. Snow piled against the high weeds would make it impossible for cars to reach the elevator.

Weeds in some sections of track are more than a foot high.

Win at Bridge

By Oswald and James Jacoby

As Shakespeare might well have said, "Take your game and let the honors go."

South thought of this, but ignored it. The latter told him to bid the game in his suit instead of no-trump. Fortunately for his confidence in relations with his partner, South worked out the correct line of play.

His started proceedings by casting his second high spade at trick two. Then he led a club to dummy's 10 and East's jack. East led back a third spade, but that didn't upset South at all. He ruffed and led a second club.

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♥	Pass	2♠
Pass	2♥	Pass	4♠
Pass	4♥	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠ A K 8 4 ♥ 9 ♦ 5 4 ♣ A Q 8 6

What do you bid now?

A—Bid five hearts. Once more you are asking your partner to bid six if he can take the second round of clubs. However, if he now bids six diamonds you should bid seven hearts.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of rebidding two hearts your partner rebids two diamonds. What do you do now?

Answer Monday

THE UNEXPLAINED

by Allen Spraggett

Some mysteries are earth-shakers and others mere tempests in a teacup, but still puzzlers.

For example: How did it get there?

In this case, "it" is something that turned up somewhere it had no business being. The place: The jungles of New Guinea.

Three years ago, scientists found there somewhat what is now ordinary but represented an enigma beyond belief: how it had got there. Or could have.

Early in 1971, New Guinea natives told several white men of seeing the thing in the jungle. The white men pooh-poohed the story. The natives insisted: If the white men doubted, why not go and see for themselves?

A party of Dutch scientists on the island for anthropological research decided to go and see. Led by Dr. Fee Winkler, they started out with the natives' detailed instructions to guide them.

The going was very tough. The jungle was thick and tangled. But finally, 15 miles from the coast, in the midst of virtually impenetrable rain forest, the party found what the natives had told them about.

It was a car.

To be exact, the rusting remains of a 1961 model French make.

The Dutchmen were suitably puzzled. The jungle they had hacked their way through was the most dense on New Guinea. No roads of any description led in or out. The isolated spot was almost 20 miles from the coast.

Question: How did the automobile get there?

The Dutchmen rejected the idea of a plane crash because there was no evidence of that. They rejected the notion that the car, for some bizarre reason, had been parachuted into the jungle: no traces of any parachute gear were found. They rejected the possibility of the car having been dumped from a plane as a practical joke as too costly and senseless.

What's left?

A minor mystery, to be sure, in today's world. But as Dr. Windler, the group's leader said: "We haven't a clue as to how that car got there. We couldn't have been driven in. Of that we are certain."

To Your Good Health

Crawling Is Cure For Kneeling Pain

By G. C. HOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Perhaps my experience will help the woman who has shooting pains from one hip down into her leg.

I had the problem and the cause couldn't be pinpointed by two doctors.

At 42 we moved into a home with a big yard and I took up the hobby of flower gardening. Then I noticed that every session of weeding or transplanting that required a lot of kneeling followed by two or three days of incapacitating discomfort with shooting pains from my left hip down into my leg. Then came the down.

I'm not the type to be inhibited for me to kneel on my right knee with my left leg flexed up. This was putting-strain on my left hip. Next time I gardened, I tried an experiment. Instead of kneeling, I got down on hands and knees and crawled along as I worked.

Sure, I was lame, but the pains didn't come afterward, and they never have since.

In closing I must tell you that it took a lot ridicule to see a 56-year-old woman crawling around her yard and I've taken a lot of kidding. A new neighbor told me once he'd watched me for 3 months before he knew I had legs."—E.K.

Your "shooting pains," like those of the woman whose letter wrote about, could be sciatica, induced by pinching or pressure on the sciatic nerve, at some point of egress from the lower spine. It could be at the spine or the hip joint.

First off, I certainly have to compliment you on detecting the vital fact: descent. I should explain why crawling on all fours, as useful to you, may not be helpful to many other sciatica.

In your case, your one-knee gardening apparently shifted your hips in such a way as to put pressure on your spine and not on the important nerve. The worry about them."

Cause of fatty tumors (lipomas) is not known. Neither is there any way of preventing them. But since they are harmless tumors they rarely bug people to be a nuisance, or are unsightly, my answer is: Let their growth bothering you, don't worry about them."—W.F.

Ontario to Lend Cattlemen Money

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario will lend purebreed beef farmers money to help them over financial humps, Agriculture Minister William Stewart announced Friday.

"Loans may be used to pay operating expenses such as mortgage payments, taxes and to purchase feed, seeds, fertilizers, pesticides and machinery," Mr. Stewart said.

Mr. Stewart said the program "should assist producers to meet obligations that could have been taken care of if beef feeder calf prices had been kept in keeping with the cost of production."

Thursday, Mr. Stewart said if farmers could not get decent prices for their young cattle, they would be left out and Ontario could undergo a beef shortage in 1977-78.

School Board Advances May Be Terminated

SUDBURY (CP) — Ontario Treasurer John White said Friday the province is considering halting carry-over advance payments of provincial education grants to school boards.

He was replying to a question, during the Ontario tri-level meeting, from Whitby Mayor Dea Newman who asked that municipalities be given advance payments to tide them over at fiscal year end.

The treasurer said advance payments of between 10 and 12 per cent had been made to school boards in the past, but because of tight budgeting by the province "we may have to be somewhat more severe with school boards."

He said no final decision had been made but "I would like it if it did not continue."

Arab Hijacker Heads Revolt

Dutch Convicts Hold 17 Persons Hostage

THE HAGUE (AP) — Police today installed a field telephone link with a prison chapel where four armed prisoners held 17 persons hostage. The Dutch cabinet met in special session on the case, but a lengthy ordeal appeared in prospect.

The rebellious convicts, who include a convicted Palestinian airplane hijacker, asked for and were given coffee and a coat for an 11-year-old boy hostage. But the justice ministry said there were no real negotiations under way more than 40 hours after the drama began.

On Sunday, the four released a man, a woman and three children from the 25 hostages they took when they interrupted a Saturday night mass at the chapel of Scheveningen penitentiary. Dutch authorities were holding their fire — and negotiations until the convicts released two more women and the boy, leaving as hostages only male members of a volunteer civilian choir.

Prison officials already had delivered food, mattresses, pillows, blankets and three decks of cards into the chapel. They said most of those inside appeared to have slept until 5 a.m. today, when the convicts asked for the coffee and clothes.

A justice ministry spokesman said it appeared from radio contacts that relations among the convicts were good despite language difficulties. In addition to the Arab, there are two Dutchmen and an Algerian.

The new field telephone link was installed after the gunmen complained of poor reception on walkie-talkie radios they took from two captive wardens. At one point, police used a megaphone.

Inferior Minister Willem de Gaay Fortman said the demands of the convicts were still vague. But one concrete demand was that another Palestinian guerrilla in the prison be allowed to join them.

The guerrilla in the chapel, Adnan Ahmed Nori, and Samil Hussain Tamimah, are serving five-year sentences for hijacking a British airliner last spring and setting it on fire at Amsterdam airport. Both are 23.

Tamimah is in the prison hospital recovering from a hunger strike. He had been in another prison, apparently felt isolated because no one there spoke Arabic, and quit eating when his request to be reunited with Nori was not immediately granted. He was transferred last week.

Officials said the other convicts in the chapel were Daan de Wit, 26, and Jan Bronner, 27, both in prison for armed robbery, and Mohammed Kerdache, a 23-year-old Algerian who robbed a Rotterdam gun shop.

The hostages include a priest, two wardens and members of volunteer choir from outside the prison. The convicts allowed nine other prisoners who were attending the mass to return to their cells immediately after the takeover, and they reported that the convicts had at least two revolvers.

Five Die In Paris Hotel Fire

PARIS, Oct. (CP) — Five men died early Sunday in a fire at the New Royal Hotel, where they lived.

The dead were identified as John Cubit, 37, janitor at the hotel. William Duncan, 49, a labourer; William H. Aslabeskoi, 54, a stock-keeper; Ronald Marsh, 47, unemployed, and Arthur Ivan Cole, 66, retired.

An investigator for the Ontario fire marshal's department office in Woodstock said preliminary inspection showed the fire began in a mattress in a room on the third floor where 11 men lived.

The man living in the room was not among the dead.

Farmers Protest

LOUISEVILLE, Que. (CP) — About 600 farmers held a four-hour protest Sunday against beef prices which included blocking a nearby highway with tractors' dumping animal carcasses at the home of a legislature member and spreading manure on the streets of this town, 90 miles northeast of Montreal.

The farmers drove more than 100 tractors onto the highway to Yamachiche blocking the road to several hundred motorists to whom the farmers pleaded their case for higher beef prices to producers.

Meanwhile, other farmers spread manure on the streets, lit a bonfire on the main street and roasted a calf and a pig.

The farmers then took the carcasses of 10 calves, slaughtered last week as part of the protest, to the home of Yvon Pinquette, national assembly member for Maskinonge.

The carcasses were dropped at the steps leading to the home of Mr. Pinquette who was not in at the time.

Surgery Likely If Clots Found

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Richard Nixon's doctors Sunday said surgery to remove a blood clot in the phlebitis if tests scheduled this week show new clots forming in his leg, the former president's doctor says.

Dr. John Lungren also told a news conference Sunday that Nixon eventually will be available to testify in the trials of the former aides involved in connection with the Watergate affair.

If tests this week show no active clotting, Lungren said the former president will probably leave Memorial Hospital Medical Center in Long Beach at the end of the week.

Smallwood Fails

Liberals Appoint Roberts Leader

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Assuming Joseph Smallwood, a man often described as Newfoundland's living legend, was forced into final political retirement during the weekend as provincial Liberals re-elected a younger man as party leader.

Delegates to the party's leadership convention here Saturday confirmed Ed Roberts, 34, as leader with 488 votes on the second of two ballots. Mr. Smallwood, who will be 74 Christmas Eve, received 298 votes.

Mr. Smallwood, whose name has been firmly linked with Newfoundland politics since he led the island into Confederation in 1949, took his defeat stoically but his expression was grim as he asked the more than 700 delegates to give Mr. Roberts three cheers.

Asked if he was through with politics for good he "replied: "Yes, but to ask me to help in an election if they ask me.

"I'll always be a Liberal."

He said he would devote his retirement to travel and writing, activities which took up much of his time after he quit politics in 1972 following a declaration by the courts that his election to the House in the indecisive October, 1971 provincial election was illegal.

The 1971 election, Mr. Smallwood's seventh since he became premier in 1949, was his first defeat. When he left office in January, 1972, he said he was finished with politics.

In the following month Mr. Roberts was chosen party leader.

Mr. Smallwood spent his first year of retirement travelling and writing his autobiography in the Caribbean and Florida. Along the way he visited Premier Fidel Castro in Cuba and toured in China.

Last month he announced he wanted to be premier again, saying he had personally met 35,000 Newfoundlanders during a summer tour of the province and they were relying on him to unseat the Conservative government. The first move in his political comeback would be to recapture the party's leadership.

Legislature members Steve Neary of Bell Island and Roger Simmons of Hermitage were other contenders for the leadership race.

Mr. Smallwood confined his convention speech to criticism of the Conservatives and a review of the party's progress during his time as premier.

Macaulay Wants Fuel Inventory

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto lawyer Robert Macaulay said Saturday it is a "national disgrace" that there is no reliable inventory of Canadian fossil fuel resources.

"Statistics have been industry-led and there's no way of testing them," he said. "The federal government has been asleep to sleep by the energy cartel in North America" for the last two decades.

Mr. Macaulay said the Sierra Club of Ontario that Canada's fossil fuel resources cannot last more than 35 or 40 years unless new technologies are developed, substantial new resources are found and Canadians change their wasteful lifestyles.

"Canadians face a serious energy problem—a life-and-death energy problem," he said. "North America has lived in a fool's paradise."
